Lesson 1: Introduction to Dr. Heidegger's Experiment

Author biography

Nathaniel Hawthorne was born in Salem, Massachusetts, on 4 July 1804; his ancestor John Hathorne was a judge in the Salem witch trials of 1692, a family history Hawthorne felt as a burden. He later changed the spelling of his surname to Hawthorne; why is uncertain, though many link it to his discomfort with his ancestors. After graduating from Bowdoin College in 1825 he spent years writing in near-seclusion in Salem, publishing Twice-Told Tales in 1837. He lived briefly at the utopian Brook Farm community, worked at the Salem Custom House, and achieved fame with The Scarlet Letter (1850) and The House of the Seven Gables (1851). He served as U.S. consul in Liverpool and died on 19 May 1864 in Plymouth, New Hampshire.

Historical and cultural context

The story plays on the legend of the Fountain of Youth, which tradition (not evidence) links to the Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de León in Florida. The 1830s were also a time of popular quack medicine and "scientific" curiosity.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published as "The Fountain of Youth" in the Knickerbocker magazine in January 1837; collected in Twice-Told Tales (1837) under its present title.

Then: One of the tales that made Twice-Told Tales a modest success.

Now: Often taught with "The Minister's Black Veil" as a short, clear example of Hawthorne's allegory and irony.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Old Dr. Heidegger invites four elderly friends, each ruined by vanity, greed or pleasure, to test water from the Fountain of Youth.

Main themes

- failure to learn from experience.
- vanity and the desire for youth.
- science and folly.

Why it matters

The story questions whether people really change, and pokes at today's obsession with staying young.

Spoilers · teacher only

They grow young and repeat all their old follies, fighting over the widow; the vase breaks, the effect fades, and instead of learning the lesson they resolve to go to Florida and drink there forever.

Flags (verify before teaching):

- Our story metadata gives Twice-Told Tales (1837) as first publication; the earlier Knickerbocker appearance (January 1837, as "The Fountain of Youth") should be confirmed.
- The narrator admits he may be called "a fiction-monger" and Heidegger's guests suspect a trick; Hawthorne leaves the water's reality uncertain.

Old Dr. Heidegger invites four elderly friends, each ruined by vice, to test water from the Fountain of Youth. A withered rose revives in it. The guests drink, grow young, and repeat their old follies: flirting with the widow Wycherly and fighting over her until they knock the vase to the floor. The effect wears off; the rose withers. The doctor has learned his lesson, but the guests resolve to go to Florida to drink from the fountain.

Background: Collected in Twice-Told Tales (1837); Ponce de León's legendary search in Florida is the allusion.

Significance: A tidy moral tale often paired with discussion of whether people learn from experience.

Then start your writing prompt at your assigned level (HS Sophomore: Analyze how Dr. Heidegger's Experiment develops the idea of the foolishness of wishing to be young again. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Hawthorne suggests that age does not bring wisdom unless people reflect on their mistakes. When the text says "I would not stoop to bathe my lips in it" (Dr. Heidegger's Experiment, paragraph 51), it shows this directly. The guests repeat their follies at once, while Heidegger, having watched them, says "I would not stoop to bathe my lips in it" and calls it "the lesson ye taught me."

7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.CHR] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Hawthorne suggests that age does not bring wisdom unless people reflect on their mistakes. Useful evidence: "Such is the lesson ye have taught me" (Dr. Heidegger's Experiment, paragraph 51): His conclusion. On characterization: Each guest stands for a vice: Mr. Medbourne (greed), Colonel Killigrew (pleasure), Mr. Gascoigne (political ambition), Widow Wycherly (vanity). Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: "If you could be ten years older or younger for a day, what would you do differently?" Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does characterization appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with youth and folly? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.CHR] Look for: Look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Hawthorne suggests that age does not bring wisdom unless people reflect on their mistakes. Useful evidence: "the "Fountain of Youth" (Dr. Heidegger's Experiment, paragraph 13): The legend. On characterization: Each guest stands for a vice: Mr. Medbourne (greed), Colonel Killigrew (pleasure), Mr. Gascoigne (political ambition), Widow Wycherly (vanity). Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Collected in Twice-Told Tales (1837); Ponce de León's legendary search in Florida is the allusion. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.SET] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Hawthorne suggests that age does not bring wisdom unless people reflect on their mistakes. Useful evidence: "I would not stoop to bathe my lips in it" (Dr. Heidegger's Experiment, paragraph 51): Heidegger's lesson. Theme link: they resolve to go to Florida. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “A tidy moral tale often paired with discussion of whether people learn from experience.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; AP: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “Dr. Heidegger's Experiment,” how does Hawthorne show the foolishness of wishing to be young again? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; AP: see unit standards): In Dr. Heidegger's Experiment, how does Hawthorne develop the idea of the foolishness of wishing to be young again? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how Dr. Heidegger's Experiment develops the idea of the foolishness of wishing to be young again. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of Dr. Heidegger's Experiment (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of the foolishness of wishing to be young again. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; AP: see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what Dr. Heidegger's Experiment suggests about the foolishness of wishing to be young again. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's irony and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; AP: AP-LIT.NAR, AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Nathaniel Hawthorne uses irony in Dr. Heidegger's Experiment to complicate the reader's understanding of the foolishness of wishing to be young again. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; AP: see unit standards): Situate Dr. Heidegger's Experiment within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of the foolishness of wishing to be young again responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; AP: see unit standards): Read Dr. Heidegger's Experiment alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of the foolishness of wishing to be young again follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; AP: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Dr. Heidegger's Experiment and its treatment of the foolishness of wishing to be young again. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's irony and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads Dr. Heidegger's Experiment as evidence for a larger claim about the foolishness of wishing to be young again in Dr. Heidegger's Experiment. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads Dr. Heidegger's Experiment as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of the foolishness of wishing to be young again. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Dr. Heidegger's Experiment.

SAT-style questions

1. As for the Widow Wycherly, tradition tells us that she was a great beauty in her day; but, for a long while past, she had lived in deep seclusion, on account of certain scandalous stories, which had prejudiced the gentry of the town against her.

   A. chose (someone or something) from a group, often with care

   B. giving offense to moral sensibilities and injurious to reputation

   C. in an uncertain or unsure way

   D. speaking about briefly

2. 'This rose,' said Dr. Heidegger, with a sigh, 'this same withered and crumbling flower, blossomed five-and-fifty years ago. It was given me by Sylvia Ward, whose portrait hangs yonder; and I meant to wear it in my bosom at our wedding. Five-and-fifty years it has been treasured between the leaves of this old volume. Now, would you deem it possible that this rose of half a century could ever bloom again?'

Which choice best states a central concern of "Dr. Heidegger's Experiment"?

A. A symbol of hidden sin that isolates its wearer

B. A story told to protect a livelihood

C. Self-destruction and the urge to do wrong

D. The foolishness of wishing to be young again

SAT key: 1. B (giving offense to moral sensibilities and injurious to reputation); 2. D (The foolishness of wishing to be young again)

Final paper

Dr. Heidegger's Experiment: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Nathaniel Hawthorne develops youth and folly across Dr. Heidegger's Experiment. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in Dr. Heidegger's Experiment and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to the desire to relive the past.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in Dr. Heidegger's Experiment. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether Dr. Heidegger's Experiment finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of human nature. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.
Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.
