Grades: Grades 9–12 (accessible text, well suited to the scaffolded-support track; scales to graduate via rigor levels). Short story: read whole in one 90-minute lesson (assign longer stories as pre-reading). The scaffolded-support track works from the full text with scaffolds. Weeks: 1. Class days: 2 × 90 minutes (1 chapter lessons plus seminar, test and essay days).

Essential questions

- What does The Tell-Tale Heart suggest about guilt and conscience?
- What does The Tell-Tale Heart suggest about the unreliable mind?
- What does The Tell-Tale Heart suggest about obsession?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Lesson 1: Introduction to The Tell-Tale Heart

Objective: Students will explain, in a 3-sentence exit ticket, how one fact about Edgar Allan Poe's life or times connects to guilt and conscience in “The Tell-Tale Heart”, and will set up a reading journal with a prediction and a question for each of 3 themes (guilt and conscience, the unreliable mind, obsession).

Author biography

Edgar Allan Poe was born in Boston on 19 January 1809 to touring actors; orphaned before he was three, he was raised in Richmond, Virginia, by the merchant John Allan, with whom he later quarrelled bitterly. He attended the University of Virginia, served in the U.S. Army and was dismissed from West Point, then lived by his pen as a poet, critic and magazine editor (the Southern Literary Messenger, Graham's Magazine) in Richmond, Philadelphia and New York. He married his young cousin Virginia Clemm, who died of tuberculosis in 1847. "The Raven" (1845) made him famous but never prosperous. He is credited with inventing the modern detective story ("The Murders in the Rue Morgue," 1841) and argued that a short story should create a single "unity of effect." He died in Baltimore on 7 October 1849; the cause of his death is unknown.

Historical and cultural context

Poe wrote in the 1840s, when American magazines were hungry for sensational tales and the new "insanity defense" was making headlines (the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the legal test for madness). He was fascinated by the workings of a guilty mind and by narrators who reveal more than they mean to.

Publication and reception, then and now

"The Tell-Tale Heart" first appeared in The Pioneer, a short-lived Boston magazine edited by James Russell Lowell, in January 1843; Poe was paid about ten dollars. A revised text appeared in the Broadway Journal in 1845.

Then: The story drew little notice in its own day; Poe's reputation rested more on "The Raven" and his criticism.

Now: It is one of the most anthologized American short stories and a standard text for teaching the unreliable narrator, often a student's first encounter with Poe.

Overview (spoiler-free)

A narrator insists he is not mad and sets out to prove it by calmly describing how he decided to kill an old man whose eye disturbed him, and what happened afterward. The story is a confession.

Main themes

- guilt and conscience: the "heart" he hears is the story's central puzzle: the old man's, or his own?
- the unreliable mind: the narrator's every argument for his sanity is evidence against it.

- obsession: a single feature, the eye, takes over his mind.

Why it matters

Students meet unreliable narrators everywhere (in advertising, social media and politics as well as fiction); this story trains them to read a speaker against himself.

Spoilers · teacher only

He kills the old man, dismembers him and hides him under the floorboards; when police call, he is calm until he hears (or imagines) the dead man's heart beating louder and louder, and he confesses.

First, meaning. I read "True!—nervous—very, very dreadfully nervous I had been and am; but why will you say that I am mad" slowly and put it in my own words: The narrator admits he was and is very nervous but demands to know why we call him mad. Next, craft. I notice dashes and exclamations breaking the sentence, which sounds like panicky speech. The strongest word is "dreadfully": it piles extra emphasis onto nervousness and makes him sound more unstable while he argues he is not. Then, effect. What does the narrator's opening outburst show? My answer: He is trying to prove his sanity, and the jerky way he speaks proves the opposite; this is Poe's classic unreliable narrator.

Teacher only · spoilers

An unnamed narrator insists he is sane while describing how the old man's pale blue 'vulture eye' drove him to murder. He spies on the old man for seven nights, kills him on the eighth, dismembers the body and hides it under the floorboards. When police arrive he chats calmly, but a beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart grows louder until he shrieks a confession.

Background: Poe published the story in 1843. Insanity was a live legal question: the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the test for an insanity defense in the same year. Poe's narrators often argue their own case.

Significance: It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself.

Poe published the story in 1843. Insanity was a live legal question: the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the test for an insanity defense in the same year. Poe's narrators often argue their own case. It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself. Point of view: A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him. Irony: Dramatic irony runs through the whole: he says the police "chatted pleasantly" while he grows frantic; he boasts of his "wisdom" and caution while describing a murder. Imagery: The "vulture" eye, the lantern's single ray, the heartbeat like "a watch enveloped in cotton": sound and sight narrowed to a point, as his mind is. Watch for the eye: the "Evil Eye" stands for being seen and judged; the narrator kills to escape a gaze.

First, meaning. I read "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult" slowly and put it in my own words: The narrator admits he loved the old man and had no injury or insult to avenge. Next, craft. I notice three short sentences in a row, each denying a motive, like a list he is ticking off. The strongest word is "wronged": it is the word we expect a revenge story to use, and he denies it, which makes the murder stranger. Then, effect. Why does the narrator insist the old man had never wronged him? My answer: The narrator insists the old man had never wronged him to show he had no motive except the eye; by ruling out motives he proves, without meaning to, that he is not acting sanely.

> I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2)

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable.
- "One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying.
- "it is the beating of his hideous heart" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18) The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound.

Focus sets by rigor level: Scaffolded support: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 11, 12, 13, 14, 21, 22; HS Freshman: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 12, 13, 14, 15, 22, 23, 24; HS Sophomore: 1, 2, 3, 4, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 23, 24, 25; HS Junior: 1, 2, 3, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 24, 25, 26, 27; HS Senior: 1, 2, 3, 15, 16, 17, 18, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29; AP: 1, 2, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30; College Freshman: 1, 2, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29, 30; College Sophomore: 1, 2, 11, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 28, 29, 30; College Junior: 1, 11, 12, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 29, 30; College Senior: 1, 11, 12, 13, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 30; Graduate / PhD: 1, 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28

Literal / recall

1. What does the narrator say drove him to kill the old man? [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: The old man's pale 'vulture' eye
2. How many nights does the narrator watch the old man before acting? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: Seven, killing him on the eighth

3. Where does the narrator hide the body? [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: Under the floorboards of the chamber
4. Why do the police come to the house? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: A neighbor heard a shriek in the night
5. What makes the narrator confess? [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: A beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart
6. Retell the three most important events of "The Tell-Tale Heart" in order, in one sentence each. [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: An unnamed narrator insists he is sane while describing how the old man's pale blue 'vulture eye' drove him to murder. He spies on the old man for seven nights, kills him on the eighth, dismembers the body and hides it under the floorboards. When police arrive he chats calmly, but a beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart grows louder until he shrieks a confession.
7. Which characters appear or are mentioned in "The Tell-Tale Heart"? Name two and one thing each says or does. [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: Names and actions taken from the story; check against the teacher summary.
8. Where and when does "The Tell-Tale Heart" take place? Point to the line that tells you. [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: A place/time detail quoted from the story.
9. Reread: "First of all I dismembered the corpse." What does "dismembered" mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: dismembered: cut a body into pieces.
10. Reread: "There entered three men, who introduced themselves, with perfect suavity, as officers of the police." What does "suavity" mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.1] Look for: suavity: smooth, polished politeness.

Inferential / analytical

1. What does "The Tell-Tale Heart" suggest about guilt that the mind cannot hide? State the inference and the line that supports it. [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself.
2. Find one example of point of view in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.6] Look for: Look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know.
3. How does the irony in this story shape what we understand about guilt that the mind cannot hide? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.6] Look for: Look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. On irony: Dramatic irony runs through the whole: he says the police "chatted pleasantly" while he grows frantic; he boasts of his "wisdom" and caution while describing a murder. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins "If still you think me mad, you will think so no longer when I describe the wise precautions I took for the concealment of the body.", why might Poe have chosen these particular words?

Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · RL.9-10.4, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.4] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.

5. What causes the main turn in “The Tell-Tale Heart”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · RL.9-10.3, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.3] Look for: An unnamed narrator insists he is sane while describing how the old man's pale blue 'vulture eye' drove him to murder. He spies on the old man for seven nights, kills him on the eighth, dismembers the body and hides it under the floorboards. When police arrive he chats calmly, but a beating sound…
6. As the opening story, what does “The Tell-Tale Heart” set up that the rest of The Tell-Tale Heart will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.5, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.5] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.3, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.3] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “The narrator keeps telling us he is not mad. Why might someone insist so hard on a point?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does imagery appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with guilt and conscience? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.4, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.4] Look for: Look for sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. On imagery: The "vulture" eye, the lantern's single ray, the heartbeat like "a watch enveloped in cotton": sound and sight narrowed to a point, as his mind is. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Poe published the story in 1843. Insanity was a live legal question: the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the test for an insanity defense in the same year. Poe's narrators often argue their own case. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.3, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.3] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
2. Which character in this story acts most wisely, and which least? Judge them by a standard you name. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.3, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.3] Look for: An evaluation using an explicit criterion and evidence.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
3. Rewrite one moment of “The Tell-Tale Heart” from the point of view of a different character. What does the new angle reveal or hide about guilt that the mind cannot hide? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.6] Look for: A creative product with a rationale tied to the text.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. On point of view: A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. Write three questions of your own about “The Tell-Tale Heart”: one recall, one “why/how”, and one “should/what if”. Trade with a partner and answer theirs. [DOK 3 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: Student-generated questions at three levels.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

5. Connect this story to the unreliable mind: is the link strong or weak so far? What would Poe need to show next to strengthen it? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: A judgment of thematic development across the work.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

6. Is the point of view in this story effective, or does it feel heavy-handed? Evaluate it as a reader would in a review. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.6] Look for: An evaluative judgment with criteria and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. On point of view: A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

7. Compare how “The Tell-Tale Heart” treats guilt that the mind cannot hide with how another text, film or event you know treats a similar idea. What does The Tell-Tale Heart see that the other misses? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: A cross-text synthesis.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

8. As the final story, does this ending resolve guilt and conscience? Argue whether the ending is earned. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.5, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.5] Look for: A prediction or judgment justified with textual clues.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

9. Design a one-paragraph modern adaptation of this story (setting, characters, conflict). What must stay the same for it to still be about guilt that the mind cannot hide? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: A creative transfer that keeps the core idea.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

10. What question would you most like to ask Edgar Allan Poe about this story, and what answer do you think the text itself gives? [DOK 4 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: A student-generated question answered from evidence.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Annotation focus

- Point of view: look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know (anchor passage in the We do segment)
- Also notice Irony: gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Also notice Imagery: sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? "One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Claim: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2).

    Sample answer: He says "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me," so the murder has no rational motive, yet he calls his own planning "wisdom"; the gap between his reasons and his act exposes him.

15. [mc · analysis · DOK 3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Tell-Tale Heart”? A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him.

    A. Conflict

    B. Point of view

    C. Alliteration

    D. Imagery

    Key: B (Point of view)

16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Evaluate this claim about the story: “The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness.” Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.

    Sample answer: He says "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me," so the murder has no rational motive, yet he calls his own planning "wisdom"; the gap between his reasons and his act exposes him.

17. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “And now at the dead hour of the night, amid the dreadful silence of that old house, so strange a noise as this excited me to _____ terror.”

    Word bank: suavity, dismembered, dissemble, uncontrollable

    Key: uncontrollable

18. [mc · analysis · DOK 3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Tell-Tale Heart”? Dramatic this device runs through the whole: he says the police "chatted pleasantly" while he grows frantic; he boasts of his "wisdom" and caution while describing a murder.

    A. Plot

    B. Characterization

    C. Irony

    D. Symbolism

    Key: C (Irony)

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze the word choice in “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound.

20. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable.

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) shape its meaning?

Consider a second, competing reading.

Sample answer: The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying.

22. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “I paced the floor to and fro with heavy _____, as if excited to fury by the observations of the men—but the noise steadily increased.” Word bank: strides, dissemble, dismembered, suavity

    Key: strides

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Synthesis: trace how guilt and conscience develops from an earlier story to “The Tell-Tale Heart”. Use one quotation from each.

    Sample answer: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation.

24. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “"Villains!" I shrieked, "dissemble no more!”, what does “dissemble” most nearly mean?

    A. difficult to solve or alleviate
    B. to hide one's true feelings
    C. cut a body into pieces
    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: B (to hide one's true feelings)

25. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “First of all I dismembered the corpse.”, what does “dismembered” most nearly mean?

    A. cut a body into pieces
    B. hiding one's true feelings or intentions
    C. to hide one's true feelings
    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: A (cut a body into pieces)

26. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “There entered three men, who introduced themselves, with perfect suavity, as officers of the police.”, what does “suavity” most nearly mean?

    A. to hide one's true feelings
    B. smooth, polished politeness
    C. cut a body into pieces
    D. hiding one's true feelings or intentions

    Key: B (smooth, polished politeness)

27. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “You should have seen how wisely I proceeded—with what caution—with what foresight—with what dissimulation I went to work!”, what does “dissimulation” most nearly mean?

    A. hiding one's true feelings or intentions
    B. difficult to solve or alleviate
    C. cut a body into pieces
    D. smooth, polished politeness

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.1, W.9-10.1): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Tell-Tale Heart,” how does Poe show guilt that the mind cannot hide? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.1, W.9-10.1): In The Tell-Tale Heart, how does Poe develop the idea of guilt that the mind cannot hide? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the point of view in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.1, W.9-10.1): Analyze how The Tell-Tale Heart develops the idea of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of point of view and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.5, RL.11-12.1, W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.9): Analyze how the structure of The Tell-Tale Heart (where it begins, turns and ends) and its point of view shape the reader's understanding of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.9): Two readers disagree about what The Tell-Tale Heart suggests about guilt that the mind cannot hide. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's point of view and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Edgar Allan Poe uses point of view in The Tell-Tale Heart to complicate the reader's understanding of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Situate The Tell-Tale Heart within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of guilt that the mind cannot hide responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Read The Tell-Tale Heart alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of guilt that the mind cannot hide follows or bends those conventions, using the point of view as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Tell-Tale Heart and its treatment of guilt that the mind cannot hide. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's point of view and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Tell-Tale Heart as evidence for a larger claim about guilt that the mind cannot hide in The Tell-Tale Heart. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Tell-Tale Heart as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Tell-Tale Heart.

SAT-style questions

1. "Villains!" I shrieked, "dissemble no more!

   As used in the text, what does the word “dissemble” most nearly mean?

   A. to hide one's true feelings

   B. capable of being borne or endured

   C. a house or building together with its grounds

   D. a step in walking or running

2. If still you think me mad, you will think so no longer when I describe the wise precautions I took for the concealment of the body. The night waned, and I worked hastily, but in silence. First of all I dismembered the corpse. I cut off the head and the arms and the legs.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “The Tell-Tale Heart”?

   A. Guilt that the mind cannot hide

   B. Revenge carried out with perfect control

C. A girl's first encounter with death across the class line

D. The cost of wanting to seem richer than you are

SAT key: 1. A (to hide one's true feelings); 2. A (Guilt that the mind cannot hide)

Unit test

The Tell-Tale Heart: end test · 90 minutes · 18 questions per rigor version (multiple choice, fill in the blank, short answer). The class rigor level picks the version; student auto-adjust applies.

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

Unit test: item bank (all eleven rigor versions)

1. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “And now at the dead hour of the night, amid the dreadful silence of that old house, so strange a noise as this excited me to _____ terror.”
   Word bank: suavity, dismembered, dissemble, uncontrollable
   Key: uncontrollable
2. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Why do the police come to the house?
   A. A neighbor heard a shriek in the night
   B. The old man's son reports him missing
   C. They are searching for a thief
   D. The narrator calls them
   Key: A (A neighbor heard a shriek in the night)
3. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2: “I loved the old man. He had never _____ me. He had never given me insult”
   Key: wronged
4. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What makes the narrator confess?
   A. A witness accuses him
   B. He finds the old man's will
   C. The police find the body
   D. A beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart
   Key: D (A beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart)
5. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “A shriek had been heard by a neighbor during the night; suspicion of foul play had been aroused; information had been lodged at the police office, and they (the officers) had been deputed to search the _____.” Word bank: dismembered, suavity, premises, dissemble
   Key: premises
6. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “Anything was more _____ than this derision!” Word bank: dissemble, dismembered, suavity, tolerable
   Key: tolerable

7. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What does the narrator say drove him to kill the old man?

   A. An insult from the old man

   B. The old man's pale 'vulture' eye

   C. A quarrel over rent

   D. The old man's money

   Key: B (The old man's pale 'vulture' eye)

8. [mc · recall · DOK 1] How many nights does the narrator watch the old man before acting?

   A. One

   B. Thirty

   C. Seven, killing him on the eighth

   D. Three

   Key: C (Seven, killing him on the eighth)

9. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2: “One of his eyes _____ that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it”

   Key: resembled

10. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18: “it is the _____ of his hideous heart”

    Key: beating

11. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “I paced the floor to and fro with heavy _____, as if excited to fury by the observations of the men—but the noise steadily increased.” Word bank: strides, dissemble, dismembered, suavity

    Key: strides

12. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Where does the narrator hide the body?

    A. In the cellar wall

    B. In the garden

    C. Under the floorboards of the chamber

    D. In the river

    Key: C (Under the floorboards of the chamber)

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying.

14. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which choice best states a central concern of “The Tell-Tale Heart”?

    A. Accepting one's place in nature's cycle

    B. What fifteen years of solitude teach

    C. Superstition used against a credulous man

    D. Guilt that the mind cannot hide

    Key: D (Guilt that the mind cannot hide)

15. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze the word choice in “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound.

17. [mc · analysis · DOK 3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Tell-Tale Heart”? Dramatic this device runs through the whole: he says the police "chatted pleasantly" while he grows frantic; he boasts of his "wisdom" and caution while describing a murder.

    A. Plot

    B. Characterization

    C. Irony

    D. Symbolism

    Key: C (Irony)

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Synthesis: trace how guilt and conscience develops from an earlier story to “The Tell-Tale Heart”. Use one quotation from each.

    Sample answer: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Claim: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2).

    Sample answer: He says "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me," so the murder has no rational motive, yet he calls his own planning "wisdom"; the gap between his reasons and his act exposes him.

20. [mc · analysis · DOK 3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Tell-Tale Heart”? A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him.

    A. Conflict

    B. Point of view

    C. Alliteration

    D. Imagery

    Key: B (Point of view)

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable.

22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Evaluate this claim about the story: “The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness.” Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.

    Sample answer: He says "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me," so the murder has no rational motive, yet he calls his own planning "wisdom"; the gap between his reasons and his act exposes him.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) shape its meaning?

Consider a second, competing reading.

Sample answer: The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying.

24. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “You should have seen how wisely I proceeded—with what caution—with what foresight—with what dissimulation I went to work!”, what does “dissimulation” most nearly mean?

    A. hiding one's true feelings or intentions

    B. difficult to solve or alleviate

    C. cut a body into pieces

    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: A (hiding one's true feelings or intentions)

25. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “"Villains!" I shrieked, "dissemble no more!”, what does “dissemble” most nearly mean?

    A. difficult to solve or alleviate

    B. to hide one's true feelings

    C. cut a body into pieces

    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: B (to hide one's true feelings)

26. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “First of all I dismembered the corpse.”, what does “dismembered” most nearly mean?

    A. cut a body into pieces

    B. hiding one's true feelings or intentions

    C. to hide one's true feelings

    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: A (cut a body into pieces)

27. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “There entered three men, who introduced themselves, with perfect suavity, as officers of the police.”, what does “suavity” most nearly mean?

    A. to hide one's true feelings

    B. smooth, polished politeness

    C. cut a body into pieces

    D. hiding one's true feelings or intentions

    Key: B (smooth, polished politeness)

Final paper

The Tell-Tale Heart: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Edgar Allan Poe develops guilt and conscience across The Tell-Tale Heart. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Tell-Tale Heart and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to the unreliable mind.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Tell-Tale Heart. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Tell-Tale Heart finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of obsession. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.
Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.

Essay assignments

Essay: Guilt and conscience

Scaffolded support (600 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The Tell-Tale Heart teaches about guilt and conscience. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Edgar Allan Poe develops guilt and conscience in The Tell-Tale Heart. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Edgar Allan Poe develops guilt and conscience across The Tell-Tale Heart. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.5): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The Tell-Tale Heart (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of guilt and conscience. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of guilt and conscience in The Tell-Tale Heart. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Edgar Allan Poe's choices in The Tell-Tale Heart (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of guilt and conscience, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The Tell-Tale Heart's treatment of guilt and conscience in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on guilt and conscience in The Tell-Tale Heart that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on guilt and conscience in The Tell-Tale Heart. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about guilt and conscience in The Tell-Tale Heart, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on guilt and conscience in The Tell-Tale Heart, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
