Grades: Grades 9–12 (accessible text, well suited to the scaffolded-support track; scales to graduate via rigor levels). Short story: read whole in one 90-minute lesson (assign longer stories as pre-reading). The scaffolded-support track works from the full text with scaffolds. Weeks: 1. Class days: 2 × 90 minutes (1 chapter lessons plus seminar, test and essay days).

Essential questions

- What does The Lady, or the Tiger? suggest about jealousy and love?
- What does The Lady, or the Tiger? suggest about justice and chance?
- What does The Lady, or the Tiger? suggest about choice?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Lesson 1: Introduction to The Lady, or the Tiger?

Objective: Students will explain, in a 3-sentence exit ticket, how one fact about Frank R. Stockton's life or times connects to jealousy and love in “The Lady, or the Tiger?”, and will set up a reading journal with a prediction and a question for each of 3 themes (jealousy and love, justice and chance, choice).

Author biography

Frank R. Stockton was born in Philadelphia on 5 April 1834. He worked as a wood engraver before turning to writing, and became assistant editor of St. Nicholas, the leading American children's magazine. He wrote fairy tales and comic stories, and his puzzle story "The Lady, or the Tiger?" (1882) made him famous; readers wrote to him for decades asking for the answer, which he never gave. He died on 20 April 1902.

Historical and cultural context

Stockton wrote for a popular magazine audience in the 1880s who loved puzzles and parlour debates. The "semi-barbaric" kingdom is a fanciful, vaguely ancient setting, not a real place.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in The Century Magazine in November 1882.

Then: A sensation; readers flooded Stockton with letters demanding the answer, and he never gave one. It was discussed in debating clubs.

Now: A classic for teaching open endings and argument from evidence.

Overview (spoiler-free)

A semi-barbaric king tries accused men in an arena: behind one door is a lady to marry, behind the other a tiger. When a young man loves the princess, he is sent to the arena; she knows which door is which.

Main themes

- love versus jealousy.
- justice and chance.
- human nature.

Why it matters

It teaches students to make and defend a claim when the text does not give an answer.

Spoilers · teacher only

She signals him to the right-hand door, and the story ends without saying what came out.

First, meaning. I read "Which came out of the opened door,—the lady, or the tiger" slowly and put it in my own words: The narrator asks which came out of the door: the lady or the tiger. Next, craft. I notice it is an unanswered question, so the ending is handed to the reader. The strongest word is "tiger": the plain, dangerous animal stands against "the lady," so the choice is death or a rival's marriage. Then, effect. Why does the story end on this question? My answer: Stockton refuses to tell us, so we must decide what the princess's jealousy and love would do; the reader becomes the judge.

A semi-barbaric king judges the accused in an arena: the accused opens one of two doors, behind one a tiger, behind the other a lady he must marry. When the princess's lowborn lover is caught, she learns which door hides which. She signals him to the right-hand door. The story ends without telling us what came out.

Background: Published in The Century in 1882 and widely debated; Stockton reportedly never answered.

Significance: The most famous open ending in American fiction; on Glencoe grade 9 lesson plans.

Then start your writing prompt at your assigned level (HS Sophomore: Analyze how The Lady, or the Tiger? develops the idea of a choice the reader must make. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of structure and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Stockton's description of the princess gives evidence for both endings. When the text says “She raised her hand, and made a slight, quick movement toward the right” (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 17), it shows this directly. She shares her father's "semi-barbaric" nature and has thought jealously about the lady, yet she loves the man; when she makes "a slight, quick movement toward the right," the reader must decide which side of her won.

Teacher analysis (spoilers)

Literary elements

- Ambiguity: The ending is unresolved by design.
- Irony: The "impartial" arena is a matter of chance, not justice.
- Characterization: The princess is "semi-barbaric" like her father, passionate and jealous.

Themes and how they develop

- love versus jealousy: her choice is the story.

Symbols and motifs

- the doors: fate and choice.

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "semi-barbaric king" (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 1) Setting.
- "She raised her hand, and made a slight, quick movement toward the right" (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 17) Her signal.
- "Which came out of the opened door,—the lady, or the tiger" (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 26) The question.

Model claim-evidence-reasoning

Claim: Stockton's description of the princess gives evidence for both endings.
Evidence: “She raised her hand, and made a slight, quick movement toward the right” (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 17)
Reasoning: She shares her father's "semi-barbaric" nature and has thought jealously about the lady, yet she loves the man; when she makes "a slight, quick movement toward the right," the reader must decide which side of her won.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Lady, or the Tiger?,” how does Stockton show a choice the reader must make? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the structure you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): In The Lady, or the Tiger?, how does Stockton develop the idea of a choice the reader must make? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the structure in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how The Lady, or the Tiger? develops the idea of a choice the reader must make. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of structure and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of The Lady, or the Tiger? (where it begins, turns and ends) and its structure shape the reader's understanding of a choice the reader must make. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what The Lady, or the Tiger? suggests about a choice the reader must make. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's structure and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Frank R. Stockton uses structure in The Lady, or the Tiger? to complicate the reader's understanding of a choice the reader must make. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.3, ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.1): Situate The Lady, or the Tiger? within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of a choice the reader must make responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Read The Lady, or the Tiger? alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of a choice the reader must make follows or bends those conventions, using the structure as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Lady, or the Tiger? and its treatment of a choice the reader must make. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's structure and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Lady, or the Tiger? as evidence for a larger claim about a choice the reader must make in The Lady, or the Tiger?. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Lady, or the Tiger? as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of a choice the reader must make. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Lady, or the Tiger?.

SAT-style questions

1. The king and his court were in their places, opposite the twin doors,—those fateful portals, so terrible in their similarity.

   As used in the text, what does the word “fateful” most nearly mean?

   A. pause or hold back in uncertainty or unwillingness

   B. be contingent upon (something that is elided)

   C. decided by fate; leading to an unhappy end

   D. (in the old legal phrase “in the premises”) the matter just described

2. But even here the exuberant and barbaric fancy asserted itself. The arena of the king was built, not to give the people an opportunity of hearing the rhapsodies of dying gladiators, nor to enable them to view the inevitable conclusion of a conflict between religious opinions and hungry jaws, but for purposes far better adapted to widen and develop the mental energies of the people. This vast amphitheatre, with its encircling galleries, its mysterious vaults, and its unseen passages, was an agent of poetic justice, in which crime was punished, or virtue rewarded, by the decrees of an impartial and incorruptible chance.

Which choice best states a central concern of "The Lady, or the Tiger?"?

A. The futile attempt to shut out death

B. Hope created by an act of sacrifice

C. A choice the reader must make

D. Greed that grasps more than a person needs

SAT key: 1. C (decided by fate; leading to an unhappy end); 2. C (A choice the reader must make)

14. [mc · analysis · DOK 3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Lady, or the Tiger?”? The "impartial" arena is a matter of chance, not justice.

    A. Personification

    B. Alliteration

    C. Foreshadowing

    D. Irony

    Key: D (Irony)

15. [mc · analysis · DOK 3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Lady, or the Tiger?”? The ending is unresolved by design.

    A. Symbolism

    B. Characterization

    C. Ambiguity

    D. Structure

    Key: C (Ambiguity)

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Claim: Stockton's description of the princess gives evidence for both endings. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “She raised her hand, and made a slight, quick movement toward the right” (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 17).

    Sample answer: She shares her father's "semi-barbaric" nature and has thought jealously about the lady, yet she loves the man; when she makes "a slight, quick movement toward the right," the reader must decide which side of her won.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze the word choice in “Which came out of the opened door,—the lady, or the tiger” (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 26). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: The question.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “She raised her hand, and made a slight, quick movement toward the right” (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 17) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: Her signal.

19. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “semi-barbaric king” (The Lady, or the Tiger?, paragraph 1) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: Setting.

20. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Evaluate this claim about the story: “Stockton's description of the princess gives evidence for both endings.” Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.

    Sample answer: She shares her father's "semi-barbaric" nature and has thought jealously about the lady, yet she loves the man; when she makes "a slight, quick movement toward the right," the reader must decide which side of her won.

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Synthesis: trace how love versus jealousy develops from an earlier story to “The Lady, or the Tiger?”. Use one quotation from each.

    Sample answer: her choice is the story.

22. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “The king and his court were in their places, opposite the twin doors,—those fateful portals, so terrible in their similarity.”, what does “fateful” most nearly mean?

    A. grind together, of teeth

    B. given something good in return

    C. decided by fate; leading to an unhappy end

    D. joyously unrestrained

    Key: C (decided by fate; leading to an unhappy end)

23. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “He was a man of exuberant fancy, and, withal, of an authority so irresistible that, at his will, he turned his varied fancies into facts.”, what does “exuberant” most nearly mean?

    A. joyously unrestrained

    B. given something good in return

C. grind together, of teeth

D. decided by fate; leading to an unhappy end

Key: A (joyously unrestrained)

24. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “This vast amphitheatre, with its encircling galleries, its mysterious vaults, and its unseen passages, was an agent of poetic justice, in which crime was punished, or virtue rewarded, by the decrees of an impartial and…”, what does “rewarded” most nearly mean?

A. given something good in return

B. grind together, of teeth

C. decided by fate; leading to an unhappy end

D. joyously unrestrained

Key: A (given something good in return)

25. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “How in her grievous reveries had she gnashed her teeth, and torn her hair, when she saw his start of rapturous delight as he opened the door of the lady!”, what does “gnashed” most nearly mean?

A. given something good in return

B. joyously unrestrained

C. decided by fate; leading to an unhappy end

D. grind together, of teeth

Key: D (grind together, of teeth)

Final paper

The Lady, or the Tiger?: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Frank R. Stockton develops jealousy and love across The Lady, or the Tiger?. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Lady, or the Tiger? and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to justice and chance.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Lady, or the Tiger?. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Lady, or the Tiger? finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of choice. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words
