Lesson 1: Introduction to An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge

Author biography

Ambrose Bierce was born in Meigs County, Ohio, on 24 June 1842. He fought for the Union in the Civil War, at Shiloh and Chickamauga, and was seriously wounded in the head at Kennesaw Mountain in 1864. Afterwards he became a sharp-tongued San Francisco journalist and columnist, known as "Bitter Bierce," and wrote war stories and ghost stories collected in Tales of Soldiers and Civilians (1891) and the satirical Devil's Dictionary (1906; 1911). In late 1913 he travelled into revolutionary Mexico and disappeared; his fate is unknown.

Historical and cultural context

The story is set in northern Alabama during the American Civil War (1861–1865). Union forces held railroads in the region and executed civilians caught sabotaging them. Bierce had fought for the Union at Shiloh and Chickamauga, and his war stories are known for their unsentimental view of death.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in the San Francisco Examiner on 13 July 1890; collected in Tales of Soldiers and Civilians (1891, later retitled In the Midst of Life).

Then: Admired by a limited audience; Bierce's grim war fiction did not sell widely.

Now: One of the most famous American short stories, a landmark of non-linear structure and the twist ending; Robert Enrico's French film adaptation (1962) won an Academy Award and aired on The Twilight Zone in 1964.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Peyton Farquhar, a Southern planter, is about to be hanged from a railroad bridge by Union soldiers. The story moves back in time to explain why, then follows him as the rope breaks and he tries to escape home to his wife.

Main themes

- perception and time.
- the romance and reality of war.
- illusion versus reality.

Why it matters

Students learn to track point of view and time shifts, and to question narrators, skills useful for film as well as fiction.

Spoilers · teacher only

The escape takes place only in his mind in the moments before death; the final line reveals his body hanging from the bridge.

Peyton Farquhar, a Southern planter, stands on a railroad bridge in Alabama about to be hanged by Union soldiers. Part II flashes back: a disguised Union scout tempted him to try burning the bridge. In Part III the rope seems to break; he swims, dodges bullets, and walks all night to his home, where his wife waits. As he reaches for her, a blow falls: he is dead, his body swinging beneath the bridge.

Background: Bierce fought for the Union at Shiloh and Chickamauga; the story (1890) is in Tales of Soldiers and Civilians.

Significance: A celebrated experiment with time and point of view; the twist depends on shifting from objective to subjective narration.

Mini-lecture (read or adapt the script).
Bierce fought for the Union at Shiloh and Chickamauga; the story (1890) is in Tales of Soldiers and Civilians. A celebrated experiment with time and point of view; the twist depends on shifting from objective to subjective narration. Structure: Three parts: the present (the execution), a flashback (the scout's trap), and the escape, which turns out to be imagined. Point of view: Part I is objective, like a camera; Part III moves deep into Farquhar's mind, so the reader shares his illusion. Foreshadowing: The ticking watch, his heightened senses and the dream-like road all hint that the escape is unreal. Watch for the bridge: the line between life and death.

Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of structure and point of view shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. When the text says "As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck" (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36), it shows this directly. Part III stays in his mind, with heightened sound ("What he heard was the ticking of his watch"); the switch to the present tense ("As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow") and the objective last line expose the illusion.

Teacher analysis (spoilers)

Literary elements

- Structure: Three parts: the present (the execution), a flashback (the scout's trap), and the escape, which turns out to be imagined.
- Point of view: Part I is objective, like a camera; Part III moves deep into Farquhar's mind, so the reader shares his illusion.
- Foreshadowing: The ticking watch, his heightened senses and the dream-like road all hint that the escape is unreal.

Themes and how they develop

- perception and time: the whole escape happens in a moment.

Symbols and motifs

- the bridge: the line between life and death.

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "What he heard was the ticking of his watch" (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 5) Slowed time.
- "As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck" (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36) The rope.

- "Peyton Farquhar was dead; his body, with a broken neck, swung gently from side to side" (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 37) The reality.

Model claim-evidence-reasoning

Claim: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion.
Evidence: "As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck" (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36)
Reasoning: Part III stays in his mind, with heightened sound ("What he heard was the ticking of his watch"); the switch to the present tense ("As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow") and the objective last line expose the illusion.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “What he heard was the ticking of his watch” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 5): Slowed time. On point of view: Part I is objective, like a camera; Part III moves deep into Farquhar's mind, so the reader shares his illusion. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

[DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Peyton Farquhar, a Southern planter, stands on a railroad bridge in Alabama about to be hanged by Union soldiers. Part II flashes back: a disguised Union scout tempted him to try burning the bridge. In Part III the rope seems to break; he swims, dodges bullets, and walks all night to his home,…
6. As the opening story, what does “An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge” set up that the rest of An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36): The rope. On structure: Three parts: the present (the execution), a flashback (the scout's trap), and the escape, which turns out to be imagined. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “Peyton Farquhar was dead; his body, with a broken neck, swung gently from side to side” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 37): The reality. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “Time can feel slow or fast. When has a moment seemed to last forever?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does imagery appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with illusion and reality? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “What he heard was the ticking of his watch” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 5): Slowed time. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Bierce fought for the Union at Shiloh and Chickamauga; the story (1890) is in Tales of Soldiers and Civilians. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36): The rope. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “A celebrated experiment with time and point of view; the twist depends on shifting from objective to subjective narration.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. 2. Which character in this story acts most wisely, and which least? Judge them by a standard you name. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: An evaluation using an explicit criterion and evidence.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “What he heard was the ticking of his watch” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 5): Slowed time. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

3. Rewrite one moment of “An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge” from the point of view of a different character. What does the new angle reveal or hide about the mind's final escape at the moment of death? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A creative product with a rationale tied to the text.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36): The rope. On point of view: Part I is objective, like a camera; Part III moves deep into Farquhar's mind, so the reader shares his illusion. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

4. Write three questions of your own about “An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge”: one recall, one “why/how”, and one “should/what if”. Trade with a partner and answer theirs. [DOK 3 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: Student-generated questions at three levels.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “Peyton Farquhar was dead; his body, with a broken neck, swung gently from side to side” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 37): The reality. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

5. Connect this story to war and death: is the link strong or weak so far? What would Bierce need to show next to strengthen it? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A judgment of thematic development across the work.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “What he heard was the ticking of his watch” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 5): Slowed time. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

6. Is the structure in this story effective, or does it feel heavy-handed? Evaluate it as a reader would in a review. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: An evaluative judgment with criteria and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36): The rope. On structure: Three parts: the present (the execution), a flashback (the scout's trap), and the escape, which turns out to be imagined. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

7. Compare how “An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge” treats the mind's final escape at the moment of death with how another text, film or event you know treats a similar idea. What does An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge see that the other misses? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A cross-text synthesis.

Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “Peyton Farquhar was dead; his body, with a broken neck, swung gently from side to side” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 37): The reality. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

8. As the final story, does this ending resolve illusion and reality? Argue whether the ending is earned. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A prediction or judgment justified with textual clues.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “What he heard was the ticking of his watch” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 5): Slowed time. On foreshadowing: The ticking watch, his heightened senses and the dream-like road all hint that the escape is unreal. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

9. Design a one-paragraph modern adaptation of this story (setting, characters, conflict). What must stay the same for it to still be about the mind's final escape at the moment of death? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A creative transfer that keeps the core idea.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “As he is about to clasp her he feels a stunning blow upon the back of the neck” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 36): The rope. Theme link: the whole escape happens in a moment. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

10. What question would you most like to ask Ambrose Bierce about this story, and what answer do you think the text itself gives? [DOK 4 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A student-generated question answered from evidence.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Bierce uses point of view to trick the reader into sharing Farquhar's illusion. Useful evidence: “Peyton Farquhar was dead; his body, with a broken neck, swung gently from side to side” (An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, paragraph 37): The reality. Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track; this story is above the grades 6–8 complexity band, so work from the passage your teacher selects). In “An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge,” how does Bierce show the mind's final escape at the moment of death? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the structure you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, how does Bierce develop the idea of the mind's final escape at the moment of death? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the structure in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge develops the idea of the mind's final escape at the moment of death. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of structure and point of view shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge (where it begins, turns and ends) and its structure shape the reader's understanding of the mind's final escape at the moment of death. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge suggests about the mind's final escape at the moment of death. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's structure and point of view), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Ambrose Bierce uses structure in An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge to complicate the reader's understanding of the mind's final escape at the moment of death. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of the mind's final escape at the moment of death responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of the mind's final escape at the moment of death follows or bends those conventions, using the structure as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge and its treatment of the mind's final escape at the moment of death. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's structure and point of view, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge as evidence for a larger claim about the mind's final escape at the moment of death in An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of the mind's final escape at the moment of death. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge.

SAT-style questions

1. The trees upon the bank were giant garden plants; he noted a definite order in their arrangement, inhaled the fragrance of their blooms.

   As used in the text, what does the word “inhaled” most nearly mean?

   A. unbearable

   B. breathed in

   C. rules governing socially acceptable behavior

   D. a murderer

2. The man who was engaged in being hanged was apparently about thirty-five years of age. He was a civilian, if one might judge from his habit, which was that of a planter. His features were good—a straight nose, firm mouth, broad forehead, from which his long, dark hair was combed straight back, falling behind his ears to the collar of his well-fitting frock-coat. He wore a mustache and pointed beard, but no whiskers; his eyes were large and dark gray, and had a kindly expression which one would hardly have expected in one whose neck was in the hemp. Evidently this was no vulgar assassin. The liberal military code makes provision for hanging many kinds of persons, and gentlemen are not excluded.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge”?

   A. The arrogance and loneliness of seeing differently

   B. Self-destruction and the urge to do wrong

   C. Racial pride destroying love

   D. The mind's final escape at the moment of death

SAT key: 1. B (breathed in); 2. D (The mind's final escape at the moment of death)

AP (1300 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Ambrose Bierce's choices in An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of time, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge's treatment of time in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on time in An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on time in An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about time in An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on time in An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
