Lesson 1: Introduction to The Fall of the House of Usher

Author biography

Edgar Allan Poe was born in Boston on 19 January 1809 to touring actors; orphaned before he was three, he was raised in Richmond, Virginia, by the merchant John Allan, with whom he later quarrelled bitterly. He attended the University of Virginia, served in the U.S. Army and was dismissed from West Point, then lived by his pen as a poet, critic and magazine editor (the Southern Literary Messenger, Graham's Magazine) in Richmond, Philadelphia and New York. He married his young cousin Virginia Clemm, who died of tuberculosis in 1847. "The Raven" (1845) made him famous but never prosperous. He is credited with inventing the modern detective story ("The Murders in the Rue Morgue," 1841) and argued that a short story should create a single "unity of effect." He died in Baltimore on 7 October 1849; the cause of his death is unknown.

Historical and cultural context

Poe wrote within the Gothic tradition (crumbling mansions, ancient families, premature burial) popularized by English and German writers, but he turned its horrors inward: the decay of a house mirrors the decay of a mind. The 1830s were also a time of fascination with nervous illness and "hypochondriasis."

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in Burton's Gentleman's Magazine (Philadelphia) in September 1839, where Poe was an editor; collected in Tales of the Grotesque and Arabesque (1840).

Then: Contemporary reviewers praised its atmosphere; it was among the tales that built Poe's reputation abroad, especially in France through Charles Baudelaire's translations in the 1850s.

Now: It is considered a masterpiece of Gothic fiction and the clearest example of Poe's "unity of effect," often read psychologically (the house as the mind; Madeline as Roderick's double).

Overview (spoiler-free)

A narrator answers a desperate letter from his boyhood friend Roderick Usher and arrives at a gloomy mansion beside a dark lake. Roderick is ill with nervous terror, and his twin sister Madeline is wasting away.

Main themes

- decay of family and mind: house, family and mind fall together.
- fear and the imagination: Roderick fears fear itself.
- the double: twins, reflections, a house and its image in the lake.

Why it matters

The story shows how setting can carry psychology, a technique used in every horror film; it also opens conversations about isolation and mental illness.

Spoilers · teacher only

Madeline apparently dies and is entombed in a vault; days later, during a storm, she breaks out, falls on Roderick, and both die. The narrator flees as the house splits along its fissure and sinks into the tarn.

Lesson 2: The Fall of the House of Usher

Focus: a family and a house collapsing together

Content note (premature burial, gothic dread): Sensitive content: Premature burial; gothic dread. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes premature burial; gothic dread.
Suggested language: "Why does the writer include this, and what does it make us notice?"

Teacher only · spoilers

The narrator answers a letter from his boyhood friend Roderick Usher and visits the gloomy Usher mansion, which has a faint crack running down its front. Roderick suffers from acute senses and dread; his twin Madeline wastes away and is entombed in a vault, apparently dead. Days later, during a storm, she bursts out of her tomb and falls dead on her brother, who dies of terror. The narrator flees as the house splits along the crack and sinks into the tarn.

Background: Published in 1839, the story belongs to the gothic tradition of crumbling mansions and family curses. 'House' means both the building and the family line.

Significance: Its opening paragraph is a famous study in creating mood; the double meaning of 'House' ties setting to theme.

Published in 1839, the story belongs to the gothic tradition of crumbling mansions and family curses. 'House' means both the building and the family line. Its opening paragraph is a famous study in creating mood; the double meaning of 'House' ties setting to theme. Setting: The house is described like a face: "vacant eye-like windows," decayed stones, a "barely perceptible fissure" running from roof to water. The setting is the story's main character. Imagery: Sound and light are muffled and dim; inside, Roderick's paintings and music (and the poem "The Haunted Palace") repeat the story's own images. Symbolism: The House of Usher means both the building and the family line; when one falls, so does the other. Watch for the fissure: the hairline crack that splits the house at the end: a hidden flaw in the family and in Roderick's mind.

Then start your writing prompt at your assigned level (HS Sophomore: Analyze how The Fall of the House of Usher develops the idea of a family and a house collapsing together. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and imagery shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Poe uses the house as a mirror of Roderick's mind, so its collapse completes his. When the text says “a barely perceptible fissure, which, extending from the roof of the building in front, made its way down the wall in a zigzag direction” (The Fall of the House of Usher, paragraph 8), it shows this directly. The narrator notices "a barely perceptible fissure" from roof to ground, and Roderick foresees the day he "must abandon life and reason together"; at the end the fissure widens and house and mind fall at once.

- Setting: The house is described like a face: "vacant eye-like windows," decayed stones, a "barely perceptible fissure" running from roof to water. The setting is the story's main character.
- Imagery: Sound and light are muffled and dim; inside, Roderick's paintings and music (and the poem "The Haunted Palace") repeat the story's own images.
- Symbolism: The House of Usher means both the building and the family line; when one falls, so does the other.

Themes and how they develop

- fear and the imagination: Roderick says he will "abandon life and reason together" in a struggle with fear; the story makes the reader share the narrator's growing panic.

Symbols and motifs

- the fissure: the hairline crack that splits the house at the end: a hidden flaw in the family and in Roderick's mind.

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "a barely perceptible fissure, which, extending from the roof of the building in front, made its way down the wall in a zigzag direction" (The Fall of the House of Usher, paragraph 8) Foreshadowing the collapse.
- "I feel that the period will sooner or later arrive when I must abandon life and reason together, in some struggle with the grim phantasm, Fear" (The Fall of the House of Usher, paragraph 14) Roderick's prophecy.
- "We have put her living in the tomb" (The Fall of the House of Usher, paragraph 92) Roderick's confession during the storm.

Model claim-evidence-reasoning

Claim: Poe uses the house as a mirror of Roderick's mind, so its collapse completes his.
Evidence: "a barely perceptible fissure, which, extending from the roof of the building in front, made its way down the wall in a zigzag direction" (The Fall of the House of Usher, paragraph 8)
Reasoning: The narrator notices "a barely perceptible fissure" from roof to ground, and Roderick foresees the day he "must abandon life and reason together"; at the end the fissure widens and house and mind fall at once.

1. What does “The Fall of the House of Usher” suggest about a family and a house collapsing together? State the inference and the line that supports it. [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Its opening paragraph is a famous study in creating mood; the double meaning of 'House' ties setting to theme.
2. Find one example of setting in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling.
3. How does the imagery in this story shape what we understand about a family and a house collapsing together? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Poe uses the house as a mirror of Roderick's mind, so its collapse completes his. Useful evidence: “a barely perceptible fissure, which, extending from the roof of the building in front, made its way down the wall in a zigzag direction” (The Fall of the House of Usher, paragraph 8): Foreshadowing the collapse. On imagery: Sound and light are muffled and dim; inside, Roderick's paintings and music (and the poem "The Haunted Palace") repeat the story's own images. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins “The room in which I found myself was very large and lofty.”, why might Poe have chosen these particular words? Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.
5. What causes the main turn in “The Fall of the House of Usher”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: The narrator answers a letter from his boyhood friend Roderick Usher and visits the gloomy Usher mansion, which has a faint crack running down its front. Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track; this story is above the grades 6–8 complexity band, so work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Fall of the House of Usher,” how does Poe show a family and a house collapsing together? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Fall of the House of Usher, how does Poe develop the idea of a family and a house collapsing together? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Fall of the House of Usher develops the idea of a family and a house collapsing together. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and imagery shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Fall of the House of Usher (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of a family and a house collapsing together. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Fall of the House of Usher suggests about a family and a house collapsing together. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's setting and imagery), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Edgar Allan Poe uses setting in The Fall of the House of Usher to complicate the reader's understanding of a family and a house collapsing together. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Fall of the House of Usher within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of a family and a house collapsing together responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Fall of the House of Usher alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of a family and a house collapsing together follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Fall of the House of Usher and its treatment of a family and a house collapsing together. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's setting and imagery, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Fall of the House of Usher as evidence for a larger claim about a family and a house collapsing together in The Fall of the House of Usher. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Fall of the House of Usher as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of a family and a house collapsing together. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Fall of the House of Usher.

SAT-style questions

1. Much that I encountered on the way contributed, I know not how, to heighten the vague sentiments of which I have already spoken.

As used in the text, what does the word "heighten" most nearly mean?

A. to increase

B. have some of the qualities or attributes of something

C. a careful reading

D. explained point by point

2. The room in which I found myself was very large and lofty. The windows were long, narrow, and pointed, and at so vast a distance from the black oaken floor as to be altogether inaccessible from within. Feeble gleams of encrimsoned light made their way through the trellissed panes, and served to render sufficiently distinct the more prominent objects around; the eye, however, struggled in vain to reach the remoter angles of the chamber, or the recesses of the vaulted and fretted ceiling. Dark draperies hung upon the walls. The general furniture was profuse, comfortless, antique, and tattered. Many books and musical instruments lay scattered about, but failed to give any vitality to the scene. I felt that I breathed an atmosphere of sorrow. An air of stern, deep, and irredeemable gloom hung over and pervaded all.

Which choice best states a central concern of "The Fall of the House of Usher"?

Essay assignments

Essay: Decay of family and mind

Middle School (600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track): write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The Fall of the House of Usher teaches about decay of family and mind. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Edgar Allan Poe develops decay of family and mind in The Fall of the House of Usher. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Edgar Allan Poe develops decay of family and mind across The Fall of the House of Usher. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The Fall of the House of Usher (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of decay of family and mind. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO5): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of decay of family and mind in The Fall of the House of Usher. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Edgar Allan Poe's choices in The Fall of the House of Usher (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of decay of family and mind, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The Fall of the House of Usher's treatment of decay of family and mind in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on decay of family and mind in The Fall of the House of Usher that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on decay of family and mind in The Fall of the House of Usher. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
