Lesson 1: Introduction to Young Goodman Brown

Author biography

Nathaniel Hawthorne was born in Salem, Massachusetts, on 4 July 1804; his ancestor John Hathorne was a judge in the Salem witch trials of 1692, a family history Hawthorne felt as a burden (he added the "w" to his name). After graduating from Bowdoin College in 1825 he spent years writing in near-seclusion in Salem, publishing Twice-Told Tales in 1837. He lived briefly at the utopian Brook Farm community, worked at the Salem Custom House, and achieved fame with The Scarlet Letter (1850) and The House of the Seven Gables (1851). He served as U.S. consul in Liverpool and died on 19 May 1864 in Plymouth, New Hampshire.

Historical and cultural context

The story is set in Salem village in Puritan New England, around the end of the seventeenth century, the world of the 1692 witch trials. Hawthorne's great-great-grandfather John Hathorne was a judge at those trials, and Hawthorne added the "w" to his name partly to distance himself from that inheritance. Puritans believed in human depravity and watched one another for signs of sin.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published anonymously in the New-England Magazine in April 1835; collected in Mosses from an Old Manse (1846).

Then: Little noticed at first; Herman Melville praised the story warmly in his 1850 essay "Hawthorne and His Mosses."

Now: A central text of American Romanticism and "dark romanticism," studied for its allegory and its deliberate ambiguity.

Overview (spoiler-free)

A young Puritan husband leaves his new wife, Faith, for one night to keep a mysterious appointment in the forest with a traveller who carries a serpent-like staff.

Main themes

- loss of faith and innocence: Faith is both his wife and his belief.
- hypocrisy: the "pious" townspeople in the forest.
- ambiguity and suspicion: not knowing the truth destroys him.

Why it matters

The story asks what happens when we see evil in everyone, and how suspicion poisons a community, from 1692 Salem to modern rumour.

Spoilers · teacher only

In the forest he sees the town's most respected people, and apparently Faith, gathering for a witches' meeting; he calls on her to resist and wakes alone. Whether it was a dream or not, he lives the rest of his life gloomy and distrustful, and dies without hope.

In Puritan Salem, Goodman Brown leaves his new wife Faith for a night errand in the forest, where he walks with a traveler resembling his own grandfather, carrying a serpent-like staff. He sees pious townspeople, his minister and finally Faith herself gathering for a witches' communion. He cries out for Faith to resist and finds himself alone. Whether dream or not, he lives out his life gloomy and distrustful, and 'his dying hour was gloom.'

Background: Hawthorne (1835) was descended from John Hathorne, a judge at the 1692 Salem witch trials.

Significance: An allegory central to American literature courses; in Gale's Short Stories for Students vol. 1.

Hawthorne (1835) was descended from John Hathorne, a judge at the 1692 Salem witch trials. An allegory central to American literature courses; in Gale's Short Stories for Students vol. 1. Allegory: Names are meanings: Goodman Brown (an everyman) and Faith; the journey into the forest is a journey into doubt. Symbolism: The pink ribbons tie Faith to innocence; when one floats down from the sky, Brown despairs. Ambiguity: Hawthorne repeatedly hedges ("Had Goodman Brown fallen asleep in the forest and only dreamed a wild dream of a witch-meeting?"). Watch for the forest: the wilderness of doubt and sin that the Puritans feared.

Independent annotation and a claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph (exemplar given).

Annotate the story for allegory, symbolism (three marks with a margin note each), then write one claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph: what does this story suggest about the loss of faith in human goodness? Then start your writing prompt at your assigned level (HS Sophomore: Analyze how Young Goodman Brown develops the idea of the loss of faith in human goodness. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of allusion and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Brown's real loss is not the evil he sees but his inability to trust anyone afterward. When the text says "A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become" (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164), it shows this directly. Whether the meeting was real or a dream, he becomes "a stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man," turning from Faith herself; the vision teaches him that "Evil is the nature of mankind," and he can never unlearn it.

He sees pious townspeople, his minister and finally Faith herself gathering for a witches' communion. He cries…
6. As the opening story, what does “Young Goodman Brown” set up that the rest of Young Goodman Brown will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.7.3, SL.7.1, RL.9-10.5] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Brown's real loss is not the evil he sees but his inability to trust anyone afterward. Useful evidence: “Evil is the nature of mankind” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 149): The devil's sermon. Theme link: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · RL.7.3, SL.7.1, RL.9-10.3] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Brown's real loss is not the evil he sees but his inability to trust anyone afterward. Useful evidence: “A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164): His fate. Theme link: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; Common Core: RL.7.2, W.7.1): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track; this story is above the grades 6–8 complexity band, so work from the passage your teacher selects). In “Young Goodman Brown,” how does Hawthorne show the loss of faith in human goodness? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the allusion you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.9, W.9-10.1): In Young Goodman Brown, how does Hawthorne develop the idea of the loss of faith in human goodness? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the allusion in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.9, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Young Goodman Brown develops the idea of the loss of faith in human goodness. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of allusion and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.5, RL.11-12.1, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Young Goodman Brown (where it begins, turns and ends) and its allusion shape the reader's understanding of the loss of faith in human goodness. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.2, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Young Goodman Brown suggests about the loss of faith in human goodness. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's allusion and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.2, W.11-12.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Nathaniel Hawthorne uses allusion in Young Goodman Brown to complicate the reader's understanding of the loss of faith in human goodness. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Common Core: ICC-WC-1.3, ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.1): Situate Young Goodman Brown within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of the loss of faith in human goodness responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Common Core: LeL-C2-LIT-1, LeL-C2-W-1): Read Young Goodman Brown alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of the loss of faith in human goodness follows or bends those conventions, using the allusion as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Common Core: LeL-C3-LIT-1, LeL-C3-W-1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Young Goodman Brown and its treatment of the loss of faith in human goodness. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's allusion and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Common Core: LeL-C4-LIT-1, LeL-C4-W-1): Develop a research argument that reads Young Goodman Brown as evidence for a larger claim about the loss of faith in human goodness in Young Goodman Brown. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Common Core: LeL-GR-LIT-1, LeL-GR-W-1): Develop an original argument that reads Young Goodman Brown as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of the loss of faith in human goodness. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Young Goodman Brown.

SAT-style questions

1. They continued to walk onward, while the elder traveller exhorted his companion to make good speed and persevere in the path, discoursing so aptly that his arguments seemed rather to spring up in the bosom of his auditor than to be suggested by himself.

   As used in the text, what does the word “auditor” most nearly mean?

   A. carry on a conversation

B. someone who listens attentively

C. to a great extent or degree

D. feeling unsure

2. They continued to walk onward, while the elder traveller exhorted his companion to make good speed and persevere in the path, discoursing so aptly that his arguments seemed rather to spring up in the bosom of his auditor than to be suggested by himself. As they went, he plucked a branch of maple to serve for a walking stick, and began to strip it of the twigs and little boughs, which were wet with evening dew. The moment his fingers touched them they became strangely withered and dried up as with a week's sunshine. Thus the pair proceeded, at a good free pace, until suddenly, in a gloomy hollow of the road, Goodman Brown sat himself down on the stump of a tree and refused to go any farther.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Young Goodman Brown"?

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Nathaniel Hawthorne develops the nature of evil across Young Goodman Brown. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.5): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of Young Goodman Brown (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of the nature of evil. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of the nature of evil in Young Goodman Brown. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Nathaniel Hawthorne's choices in Young Goodman Brown (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of the nature of evil, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Common Core: ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.4, ICC-WC-1.7): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places Young Goodman Brown's treatment of the nature of evil in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Common Core: LeL-C2-W-1, LeL-C2-LIT-1): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on the nature of evil in Young Goodman Brown that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Common Core: LeL-C3-W-1, LeL-C3-LIT-1): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on the nature of evil in Young Goodman Brown. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; Common Core: LeL-C4-W-1, LeL-C4-LIT-1): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about the nature of evil in Young Goodman Brown, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; Common Core: LeL-GR-W-1, LeL-GR-LIT-1): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on the nature of evil in Young Goodman Brown, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
