Lesson 1: Introduction to The Cask of Amontillado

Author biography

Edgar Allan Poe was born in Boston on 19 January 1809 to touring actors; orphaned before he was three, he was raised in Richmond, Virginia, by the merchant John Allan, with whom he later quarrelled bitterly. He attended the University of Virginia, served in the U.S. Army and was dismissed from West Point, then lived by his pen as a poet, critic and magazine editor (the Southern Literary Messenger, Graham's Magazine) in Richmond, Philadelphia and New York. He married his young cousin Virginia Clemm, who died of tuberculosis in 1847. "The Raven" (1845) made him famous but never prosperous. He is credited with inventing the modern detective story ("The Murders in the Rue Morgue," 1841) and argued that a short story should create a single "unity of effect." He died in Baltimore on 7 October 1849; the cause of his death is unknown.

Historical and cultural context

The story is set during carnival in an unnamed Italian city, among aristocrats with family crests and wine cellars that double as catacombs. Poe wrote it in 1846 in the middle of a bitter literary feud with the writers Thomas Dunn English and Hiram Fuller; some scholars read Montresor's revenge as Poe's fantasy of answering his critics.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in Godey's Lady's Book, one of the most popular American magazines, in November 1846.

Then: It received little critical comment at the time; Godey's readers knew Poe mainly as a critic and poet.

Now: It is a classic of revenge fiction and dramatic irony, widely taught in middle and high school, and much debated: why does Montresor tell the story fifty years later, and to whom?

Overview (spoiler-free)

Montresor, insulted by Fortunato, vows revenge. During carnival he lures Fortunato, a proud wine expert, into his family's vaults with the promise of a rare cask of Amontillado sherry.

Main themes

- revenge and pride: Montresor's need for revenge and Fortunato's pride in his palate both drive the plot.
- deception: almost everything Montresor says to Fortunato means something else.
- the burden of the past: the story is told half a century later; is it a boast or a confession?

Why it matters

The story is a model of dramatic irony and of a narrator who manipulates both his victim and the reader; it also raises lasting questions about revenge and justice.

Spoilers · teacher only

Montresor chains the drunken Fortunato in a niche and walls him in alive; fifty years later, he says, no one has disturbed the bones.

Montresor, vowing revenge for 'a thousand injuries' and an insult from Fortunato, lures the drunken wine connoisseur during carnival into his family catacombs with the promise of a rare cask of Amontillado. Deep in the vaults he chains Fortunato into a niche and walls him in alive. He tells the story fifty years later; no one has disturbed the bones.

Background: The story (1846) is set during carnival in an unnamed Italian city. Its catacombs echo Roman and Parisian ossuaries. Amontillado is a Spanish sherry.

Significance: It is a model of dramatic and verbal irony, from Fortunato's name ('fortunate') to the toast 'to your long life'. It is a Common Core Appendix B exemplar for grades 11–CCR.

3. How does the setting in this story shape what we understand about revenge carried out with perfect control? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Montresor's revenge depends on irony: he tells Fortunato the truth in words that Fortunato cannot understand. Useful evidence: “I must not only punish, but punish with impunity” (The Cask of Amontillado, paragraph 1): His philosophy of revenge. On setting: The descent from carnival into damp catacombs lined with bones moves from life to death; the nitre on the walls is both a pretext and an image of the grave. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins “The thousand injuries of Fortunato I had borne as I best could; but when he ventured upon insult, I vowed revenge.”, why might Poe have chosen these particular words? Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.
5. What causes the main turn in “The Cask of Amontillado”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Montresor, vowing revenge for 'a thousand injuries' and an insult from Fortunato, lures the drunken wine connoisseur during carnival into his family catacombs with the promise of a rare cask of Amontillado. Deep in the vaults he chains Fortunato into a niche and walls him in alive. He tells the…
6. As the opening story, what does “The Cask of Amontillado” set up that the rest of The Cask of Amontillado will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Montresor's revenge depends on irony: he tells Fortunato the truth in words that Fortunato cannot understand. Useful evidence: “I drink," he said, "to the buried that repose around us” (The Cask of Amontillado, paragraph 41): Fortunato's toast; the reply "And I to your long life" is pure irony. Theme link: Montresor's rules for revenge ("I must not only punish but punish with impunity") show a man who has thought this through for a long time. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Montresor's revenge depends on irony: he tells Fortunato the truth in words that Fortunato cannot understand. Useful evidence: “For the love of God, Montresor” (The Cask of Amontillado, paragraph 83): Fortunato's last plea; Montresor echoes it mockingly. On characterization: Montresor is cold, patient and articulate; Fortunato's pride ("you are a fool") and drunkenness make him easy to lead. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “Have you ever felt someone deserved to be paid back? What is the difference between justice and revenge?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does characterization appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with revenge and pride? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track; this story is above the grades 6–8 complexity band, so work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Cask of Amontillado,” how does Poe show revenge carried out with perfect control? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Cask of Amontillado, how does Poe develop the idea of revenge carried out with perfect control? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Cask of Amontillado develops the idea of revenge carried out with perfect control. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and setting shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Cask of Amontillado (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of revenge carried out with perfect control. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Cask of Amontillado suggests about revenge carried out with perfect control. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's irony and setting), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Edgar Allan Poe uses irony in The Cask of Amontillado to complicate the reader's understanding of revenge carried out with perfect control. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Cask of Amontillado within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of revenge carried out with perfect control responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Cask of Amontillado alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of revenge carried out with perfect control follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Cask of Amontillado and its treatment of revenge carried out with perfect control. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's irony and setting, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Cask of Amontillado as evidence for a larger claim about revenge carried out with perfect control in The Cask of Amontillado. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Cask of Amontillado as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of revenge carried out with perfect control. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Cask of Amontillado.

SAT-style questions

1. In this respect I did not differ from him materially: I was skilful in the Italian vintages myself, and bought largely whenever I could.

   As used in the text, what does the word “materially” most nearly mean?

   A. wear off or die down

   B. with respect to material aspects

   C. be contingent upon (something that is elided)

   D. grows

2. The thousand injuries of Fortunato I had borne as I best could; but when he ventured upon insult, I vowed revenge. You, who so well know the nature of my soul, will not suppose, however, that I gave utterance to a threat. At length I would be avenged; this was a point definitively settled—but the very definitiveness with which it was resolved, precluded the idea of risk. I must not only punish, but punish with impunity. A wrong is unredressed when retribution overtakes its redresser. It is equally unredressed when the avenger fails to make himself felt as such to him who has done the wrong.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “The Cask of Amontillado”?

   A. The loss of faith in human goodness

   B. A girl's first encounter with death across the class line

C. A crime that backfires

D. Revenge carried out with perfect control

SAT key: 1. B (with respect to material aspects); 2. D (Revenge carried out with perfect control)

HS Senior (1200 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO5): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of deception in The Cask of Amontillado. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Edgar Allan Poe's choices in The Cask of Amontillado (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of deception, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The Cask of Amontillado's treatment of deception in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on deception in The Cask of Amontillado that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on deception in The Cask of Amontillado. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about deception in The Cask of Amontillado, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on deception in The Cask of Amontillado, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
