Lesson 1: Introduction to The Necklace

Author biography

Guy de Maupassant was born in Normandy, France, on 5 August 1850. After serving in the Franco-Prussian War he worked as a government clerk in Paris and was mentored by the storyist Gustave Flaubert, a friend of his mother's. His story "Boule de Suif" (1880) made his name, and in about a decade he published some 300 stories and six stories, known for their precise realism and irony. He suffered from syphilis, which affected his mind; after a suicide attempt he was confined to an asylum and died in Paris on 6 July 1893.

Historical and cultural context

Paris in the 1880s was a society of rigid class distinctions; minor civil servants like Monsieur Loisel lived on small salaries, and social events such as a ministry ball were chances to display status.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published as "La Parure" in the newspaper Le Gaulois on 17 February 1884.

Then: Very popular in France and soon translated.

Now: One of the most famous twist endings, widely taught on irony, materialism and class.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Mathilde Loisel, a clerk's wife who dreams of luxury, borrows a diamond necklace from a rich friend for a ball, and loses it.

Main themes

- appearance versus reality.
- pride and vanity.
- class.

Why it matters

The story questions consumer culture and the cost of pretending.

Spoilers · teacher only

The Loisels borrow heavily to replace it and spend ten years in poverty paying the debt; then Mathilde learns the original was fake.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track; this story is above the grades 6–8 complexity band, so work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Necklace,” how does Maupassant show the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Necklace, how does Maupassant develop the idea of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the story helps build that idea. Read in the public-domain translation by Jonathan Sturges.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Necklace develops the idea of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim. Read in the public-domain translation by Jonathan Sturges.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Necklace (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Necklace suggests about the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Guy de Maupassant uses irony in The Necklace to complicate the reader's understanding of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Necklace within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Necklace alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Necklace and its treatment of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Necklace as evidence for a larger claim about the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are in The Necklace. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Necklace as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of the cost of wanting to seem richer than you are. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Necklace.

SAT-style questions
