Lesson 1: Introduction to The Open Window

Author biography

Saki was the pen name of Hector Hugh Munro, born in Akyab, Burma (now Sittwe, Myanmar), on 18 December 1870. After his mother's death he was raised in Devon by strict aunts, a childhood that may lie behind his stories of clever children outwitting adults. He worked as a journalist and foreign correspondent and wrote witty, often cruel stories of Edwardian society. At 43 he enlisted as a private in the First World War and was killed by a sniper in France on 14 November 1916.

Historical and cultural context

Set in an English country house with Edwardian social customs, such as letters of introduction.

Publication and reception, then and now

Published in Beasts and Super-Beasts (1914); earlier in the Westminster Gazette (1911).

Then: Popular.

Now: A classic of the comic twist.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Nervous Framton Nuttel, on a rest cure, visits Mrs. Sappleton; her niece, Vera, tells him a tragic story about the open window.

Main themes

- deception.
- storytelling.
- appearance versus reality.

Why it matters

It shows how a storyteller manipulates an audience.

Spoilers · teacher only

The "ghosts" are the living men returning, and Framton flees; Vera invents another story about him.

Nervous Framton Nuttel visits the Sappletons for a rest cure. While waiting, fifteen-year-old Vera tells him her aunt keeps the French window open because her husband and brothers vanished in a bog three years ago and she expects them back. When the men appear at the window with a spaniel, Framton flees in terror. Vera calmly invents a new story to explain his flight. 'Romance at short notice was her speciality.'

Background: Published in 1914 in Beasts and Super-Beasts. Saki (H. H. Munro) satirized Edwardian country-house society.

Significance: A short masterpiece of the twist ending; in Gale's Short Stories for Students vol. 1.

Published in 1914 in Beasts and Super-Beasts. Saki (H. H. Munro) satirized Edwardian country-house society. A short masterpiece of the twist ending; in Gale's Short Stories for Students vol. 1. Irony: Dramatic irony is withheld: the reader believes Vera as Framton does, so the twist catches both. Characterization: Vera, "a very self-possessed young lady of fifteen," invents with total composure; Framton is anxious, self-absorbed and easy prey. Structure: A story within a story: Vera's ghost tale inside the visit, and a second invented tale (about Framton and the dogs) at the end.    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. Useful evidence: “Her great tragedy happened just three years ago” (The Open Window, paragraph 10): Vera's story. Theme link: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

2. Which character in this story acts most wisely, and which least? Judge them by a standard you name. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.7.3, SL.7.1, RL.9-10.3] Look for: An evaluation using an explicit criterion and evidence.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. Useful evidence: “Romance at short notice was her speciality” (The Open Window, paragraph 29): The reveal. On characterization: Vera, "a very self-possessed young lady of fifteen," invents with total composure; Framton is anxious, self-absorbed and easy prey. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
3. Rewrite one moment of “The Open Window” from the point of view of a different character. What does the new angle reveal or hide about a story so convincing it becomes real? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.7.6, SL.7.1, RL.9-10.6] Look for: A creative product with a rationale tied to the text.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. Useful evidence: “nerve cure which he was supposed to be undergoing” (The Open Window, paragraph 2): Framton. Theme link: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; Common Core: RL.7.6, W.7.1): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track; this story is above the grades 6–8 complexity band, so work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Open Window,” how does Munro) show a story so convincing it becomes real? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In The Open Window, how does Munro) develop the idea of a story so convincing it becomes real? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how The Open Window develops the idea of a story so convincing it becomes real. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.5, RL.11-12.1, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of The Open Window (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of a story so convincing it becomes real. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what The Open Window suggests about a story so convincing it becomes real. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Saki (H. H. Munro) uses irony in The Open Window to complicate the reader's understanding of a story so convincing it becomes real. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Common Core: ICC-WC-1.3, ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.1): Situate The Open Window within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of a story so convincing it becomes real responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Common Core: LeL-C2-LIT-1, LeL-C2-W-1): Read The Open Window alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of a story so convincing it becomes real follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Common Core: LeL-C3-LIT-1, LeL-C3-W-1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Open Window and its treatment of a story so convincing it becomes real. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Common Core: LeL-C4-LIT-1, LeL-C4-W-1): Develop a research argument that reads The Open Window as evidence for a larger claim about a story so convincing it becomes real in The Open Window. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Common Core: LeL-GR-LIT-1, LeL-GR-W-1): Develop an original argument that reads The Open Window as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of a story so convincing it becomes real. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Open Window.

SAT-style questions
