Lesson 1: Introduction to A White Heron

Author biography

Sarah Orne Jewett was born in South Berwick, Maine, on 3 September 1849, the daughter of a country doctor whose rounds she often joined. Encouraged by the Atlantic Monthly, she wrote sketches and stories of coastal Maine, collected in A White Heron and Other Stories (1886) and her masterpiece The Country of the Pointed Firs (1896). She shared her life for decades with Annie Adams Fields and encouraged the young Willa Cather. She died on 24 June 1909.

Historical and cultural context

Late-nineteenth-century Maine; ornithologists collected and stuffed birds, while plume hunting threatened herons and egrets.

Publication and reception, then and now

Published in A White Heron and Other Stories (1886).

Then: Praised.

Now: A classic of nature writing and choice.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Sylvia, a shy girl living with her grandmother, meets a young ornithologist who offers ten dollars to anyone who can show him the white heron's nest.

Main themes

- nature versus progress.
- loyalty.
- coming of age.

Why it matters

It raises questions of conservation and of what we owe the natural world, still urgent today, and shows a quiet young person making a brave choice against an adult with money.

Spoilers · teacher only

She climbs a great pine and finds the nest, but refuses to tell him.

Lesson 2: A White Heron

Focus: a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval

Content note (shooting of birds): Sensitive content: Shooting of birds. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes shooting of birds.
Suggested language: "Why does the writer include this, and what does it make us notice?"

Teacher only · spoilers

Nine-year-old Sylvia, who lives with her grandmother on a Maine farm, meets a young ornithologist hunting a rare white heron to shoot and stuff. He offers ten dollars for its location. At dawn Sylvia climbs a giant pine and sees the heron's nest. She returns but will not tell; the hunter leaves, and the narrator wonders what she lost and gained.

Background: Published in 1886, when plume hunting for women's hats was devastating heron populations; the Audubon movement began the same decade.

Significance: A Common Core Appendix B 11–CCR exemplar and a central regionalist text.

Mini-lecture (read or adapt the script).
Published in 1886, when plume hunting for women's hats was devastating heron populations; the Audubon movement began the same decade. A Common Core Appendix B 11–CCR exemplar and a central regionalist text. Point of view: Mostly third person limited to Sylvia, but the narrator sometimes speaks directly (addressing the tree, the reader and Sylvia herself), especially at the climax. Symbolism: The great pine, a survivor of the old forest, lifts Sylvia to a view of the sea; the heron represents wild nature and her own secret self. Characterization: Sylvia is shy, "afraid of folks," and at home with animals; the young man is charming but kills the birds he loves. Watch for the white heron: wild beauty that would be destroyed by being possessed.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Excerpt-based (Middle School support track; this story is above the grades 6–8 complexity band, so work from the passage your teacher selects). In “A White Heron,” how does Jewett show a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In A White Heron, how does Jewett develop the idea of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how A White Heron develops the idea of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of A White Heron (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what A White Heron suggests about a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's setting and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Sarah Orne Jewett uses setting in A White Heron to complicate the reader's understanding of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate A White Heron within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read A White Heron alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to A White Heron and its treatment of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's setting and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads A White Heron as evidence for a larger claim about a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval in A White Heron. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads A White Heron as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of a girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on A White Heron.

SAT-style questions

1. She grieved because the longed-for white heron was elusive, but she did not lead the guest, she only followed, and there was no such thing as speaking first.

   As used in the text, what does the word “elusive” most nearly mean?

   A. useful; worth having

   B. stirred up

   C. a deep awareness of and sympathy for another's suffering

   D. hard to grasp, catch or put into words

2. The woods were already filled with shadows one June evening, just before eight o'clock, though a bright sunset still glimmered faintly among the trunks of the trees. A little girl was driving home her cow, a plodding, dilatory, provoking creature in her behavior, but a valued companion for all that. They were going away from whatever light there was, and striking deep into the woods, but their feet were familiar with the path, and it was no matter whether their eyes could see it or not.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “A White Heron”?

   A. The foolishness of wishing to be young again

   B. Racial pride destroying love

   C. A girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval

   D. What fifteen years of solitude teach

SAT key: 1. D (hard to grasp, catch or put into words); 2. C (A girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval)
