Essential questions

- What does The Garden Party suggest about class and privilege?
- What does The Garden Party suggest about life and death?
- What does The Garden Party suggest about coming of age?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Katherine Mansfield was born Kathleen Mansfield Beauchamp in Wellington, New Zealand, on 14 October 1888, into a wealthy family. She moved to London at nineteen, lived among modernist writers including Virginia Woolf and D. H. Lawrence, and married the critic John Middleton Murry. Her collections Bliss (1920) and The Garden Party (1922) helped create the modern plotless, impressionistic short story. She died of tuberculosis near Fontainebleau, France, on 9 January 1923, aged 34.

Historical and cultural context

Set in a wealthy suburb of Wellington, New Zealand, modelled on Mansfield's childhood home on Tinakori Road. Colonial New Zealand society kept sharp class divisions; the workmen's cottages lay just below the big houses.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in the Westminster Gazette (Saturday edition) in February 1922; collected in The Garden Party and Other Stories (1922).

Then: The collection was a critical success in the last year of Mansfield's life.

Now: A classic of modernist short fiction, taught for its shifting point of view, class critique and unresolved epiphany.

Overview (spoiler-free)

The Sheridan family prepares for a lavish garden party. Laura, the youngest daughter, learns that a working man who lived in the cottages nearby has been killed in an accident, and wants to cancel the party.

Main themes

- class and privilege.
- life and death.
- coming of age.

Why it matters

The story asks what we owe neighbours whose lives we don't see.

Spoilers · teacher only

Her mother refuses; after the party Laura takes leftover food to the widow, sees the dead man, and is moved by his peaceful beauty; she can only stammer to her brother, "Isn't life—".

First, meaning. I read "Isn't life," she stammered, "isn't life" slowly and put it in my own words: After seeing the dead man, Laura tries to say what life is and cannot finish her sentence. Next, craft. I notice the repetition and the break, which show she has no words for what she has felt. The strongest word is "stammered": it shows emotion has outrun language. Then, effect. What does Laura's unfinished question tell us? My answer: Laura has learned something too big to put into words; Mansfield ends on a feeling, not a lesson, and leaves the meaning open.

Mansfield grew up in a wealthy family in Wellington, New Zealand, and later moved to London. How might her own upbringing shape a story about a rich family's party? Answer: Accept answers such as: she knew the habits and class attitudes of wealthy families from the inside; the setting is based on her childhood home; she could both love and criticize that world.

Lesson 2: The Garden Party

Focus: a girl's first encounter with death across the class line

Objective: Students will analyze how point of view develops in “The Garden Party” by writing a claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph that cites at least 2 quotations from the section, and will score at least 80% on the section quiz.

Standards: Cambridge International: see the unit standards

Content note (death of a working man, viewing a body, alcohol or drugs (mentioned)): Sensitive content: Death of a working man; viewing a body. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. This section mentions drinking or a drug (“…had washed her hair before breakfast, and she sat drinking her coffee in a green turban, with a da…”). Treat it as period custom or plot detail; name it plainly and don't glamorize it.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes death of a working man; viewing a body.
Suggested language: “Why does the writer include this, and what does it make us notice?”

Teacher only · spoilers

The wealthy Sheridans prepare a garden party. Laura learns that a young carter from the poor cottages below, Scott, has been killed, and wants to cancel; her mother and sister refuse. After the party, Laura takes a basket of leftovers to the widow and is led to see the dead man, who looks peaceful and beautiful. She apologizes for her hat and, sobbing, tries to tell her brother Laurie what life is.

Background: Published in 1922 in the Westminster Gazette; Mansfield drew on her childhood in Wellington, New Zealand.

Significance: A modernist story of free indirect discourse and epiphany.

Published in 1922 in the Westminster Gazette; Mansfield drew on her childhood in Wellington, New Zealand. A modernist story of free indirect discourse and epiphany. Point of view: Free indirect discourse slips into Laura's (and others') voices. Symbolism: Laura's hat, a gift of luxury, marks her class even at the cottage. Irony: The family calls her "absurd" for wanting to cancel. Watch for the hat: class privilege.

Model the close reading of the anchor quotation using the written think-aloud below.
First, meaning. I read "You are being very absurd, Laura" slowly and put it in my own words: Laura wants to cancel the party because a workman nearby has died, and her sister tells her she is being absurd. Next, craft. I notice the word is said calmly, as if the matter is obvious. The strongest word is "absurd": it dismisses her empathy as silly, which is how the wealthy family protects its comfort. Then, effect. Why does Laura's family call her "absurd"? My answer: The family thinks feeling for a poor neighbor is unreasonable; the line shows the class blindness Laura is just starting to see.

> You are being very absurd, Laura (The Garden Party, paragraph 123)

- Point of view: Free indirect discourse slips into Laura's (and others') voices.
- Symbolism: Laura's hat, a gift of luxury, marks her class even at the cottage.
- Irony: The family calls her "absurd" for wanting to cancel.

Themes and how they develop

- class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us."

Symbols and motifs

- the hat: class privilege.

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "You are being very absurd, Laura" (The Garden Party, paragraph 123) Her mother.
- "Forgive my hat" (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) Laura's apology to the dead man.
- "He was wonderful, beautiful" (The Garden Party, paragraph 176) Her vision of death.

Model claim-evidence-reasoning

Claim: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view.
Evidence: "You are being very absurd, Laura" (The Garden Party, paragraph 123)

Reasoning: Her mother says "You are being very absurd, Laura," yet at the cottage Laura says "Forgive my hat," aware of her privilege; she finds the dead man "wonderful, beautiful" and cannot express what she has learned.

6. As the opening story, what does “The Garden Party” set up that the rest of The Garden Party will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178): Laura's apology to the dead man. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176): Her vision of death. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “Should a happy event go on when something sad happens nearby?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does irony appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with class and privilege? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123): Her mother. On irony: The family calls her "absurd" for wanting to cancel. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Published in 1922 in the Westminster Gazette; Mansfield drew on her childhood in Wellington, New Zealand. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178): Laura's apology to the dead man. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “A modernist story of free indirect discourse and epiphany.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176): Her vision of death. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

2. Which character in this story acts most wisely, and which least? Judge them by a standard you name. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: An evaluation using an explicit criterion and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123): Her mother. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
3. Rewrite one moment of “The Garden Party” from the point of view of a different character. What does the new angle reveal or hide about a girl's first encounter with death across the class line? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A creative product with a rationale tied to the text.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178): Laura's apology to the dead man. On point of view: Free indirect discourse slips into Laura's (and others') voices. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. Write three questions of your own about “The Garden Party”: one recall, one “why/how”, and one “should/what if”. Trade with a partner and answer theirs. [DOK 3 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: Student-generated questions at three levels.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176): Her vision of death. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
5. Connect this story to life and death: is the link strong or weak so far? What would Mansfield need to show next to strengthen it? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A judgment of thematic development across the work.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123): Her mother. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
6. Is the point of view in this story effective, or does it feel heavy-handed? Evaluate it as a reader would in a review. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: An evaluative judgment with criteria and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178): Laura's apology to the dead man. On point of view: Free indirect discourse slips into Laura's (and others') voices. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. Compare how “The Garden Party” treats a girl's first encounter with death across the class line with how another text, film or event you know treats a similar idea. What does The Garden Party see that the other misses? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A cross-text synthesis.

Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176): Her vision of death. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

8. As the final story, does this ending resolve class and privilege? Argue whether the ending is earned. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A prediction or judgment justified with textual clues.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123): Her mother. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
9. Design a one-paragraph modern adaptation of this story (setting, characters, conflict). What must stay the same for it to still be about a girl's first encounter with death across the class line? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A creative transfer that keeps the core idea.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178): Laura's apology to the dead man. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. What question would you most like to ask Katherine Mansfield about this story, and what answer do you think the text itself gives? [DOK 4 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A student-generated question answered from evidence.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Useful evidence: “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176): Her vision of death. Theme link: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us." Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Annotation focus

- Point of view: look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know (anchor passage in the We do segment)
- Also notice Imagery: sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create
- Also notice Irony: gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

10. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.6] What does this passage from paragraph 68 reveal about the character or situation? “Do you hear me, children, or shall I have to tell your father when he comes home to-night?” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 68) accurately and quotes “children” and “father”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.6] What does this passage from paragraph 1 reveal about the character or situation? “The gardener had been up since dawn, mowing the lawns and sweeping them, until the grass and the dark flat rosettes where the daisy plants had been seemed to shine.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 1) accurately and quotes “rosettes” and “sweeping”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.6] What does this passage most clearly show? “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) Answer in two or three sentences, quoting one word or phrase.

    Sample answer: Laura's apology to the dead man. The words “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.6] What can you infer from this line? “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: Her mother. The words “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 21 shapes its tone: “Why couldn’t she have workmen for friends rather than the silly boys she danced with and who came to Sunday night supper?” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 21) accurately and quotes “friends” and “workmen”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us.".

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 13 shapes its tone: “A little fat chap thrust out his under-lip, and the tall fellow frowned.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 13) accurately and quotes “frowned” and “little”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us.".

16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Connect this passage from paragraph 31 to the story's treatment of class and privilege: “Little faint winds were playing chase in at the tops of the windows, out at the doors.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 31) accurately and quotes “playing” and “windows”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to class and privilege and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us.".
17. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 10? ““That’s right, miss,” said the tallest of the men, a lanky, _____ fellow, and he shifted his tool-bag, knocked back his straw hat and smiled down at her.”
    A. interfere
    B. chesterfield
    C. lavender
    D. freckled
    Key: D (freckled)
18. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from paragraph 40: ““But I thought you said you didn’t mean to _____,” said Laura.” Word bank: perfect, unsympathetic, quickly, interfere
    Key: interfere
19. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from paragraph 21: “When Laura saw that gesture she forgot all about the karakas in her wonder at him caring for things like that—caring for the smell of _____.” Word bank: chesterfield, lavender, sounded, upbringing
    Key: lavender
20. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.6] What does this passage most clearly show? “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176) Answer in two or three sentences, quoting one word or phrase.
    Sample answer: Her vision of death. The words “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.
21. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.6] What can you infer from this line? “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: Laura's apology to the dead man. The words “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.
22. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 104 shapes its tone: “They were the greatest possible eyesore, and they had no right to be in that neighbourhood at all.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 104) accurately and quotes “neighbourhood” and “greatest”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us.".
23. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.6] Claim: Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123).
    Sample answer: Her mother says "You are being very absurd, Laura," yet at the cottage Laura says "Forgive my hat," aware of her privilege; she finds the dead man "wonderful, beautiful" and cannot express what she has learned. The words “You are being very absurd, Laura" (The Garden Party, paragraph 123) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us.".

24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Synthesis: trace how class and privilege develops from the opening of "The Garden Party" to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us.". The words "The Garden Party" (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us.". Her mother says "You are being very absurd, Laura," yet at the cottage Laura says "Forgive my hat," aware of her privilege; she finds the dead man "wonderful, beautiful" and cannot express what she has learned.
25. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "She said _____, "I'm'er sister, miss." Word bank: supervise, enigmatically, ripened, meaningly
    Key: meaningly
26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 88 shapes its tone: ""Let's go into the garden, out by the back way," suggested Laura." Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 88) accurately and quotes "suggested" and "garden", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us.".
27. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze the word choice in "He was wonderful, beautiful" (The Garden Party, paragraph 176). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.
    Sample answer: Her vision of death. The words "He was wonderful, beautiful" (The Garden Party, paragraph 176) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us.".
28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Connect this passage from paragraph 127 to the story's treatment of class and privilege: "If Laurie agreed with the others, then it was bound to be all right." Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 127) accurately and quotes "Laurie" and "agreed", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to class and privilege and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us.".
29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Connect this passage from paragraph 43 to the story's treatment of class and privilege: ""Bank them up, just inside the door, on both sides of the porch, please," said Mrs." Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 43) accurately and quotes "inside" and "please", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to class and privilege and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don't expect sacrifices from us.".
30. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "But Meg could not possibly go and _____ the men." Word bank: ripened, meaningly, enigmatically, supervise
    Key: supervise
31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Connect this passage from paragraph 114 to the story's treatment of class and privilege: "Sheridan sighed with relief, and took off the big hat and held it on her knees." Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 114) accurately and quotes “Sheridan” and “relief”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to class and privilege and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us.".

32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · L.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: Her mother. The words “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us.". Her mother says "You are being very absurd, Laura," yet at the cottage Laura says "Forgive my hat," aware of her privilege; she finds the dead man "wonderful, beautiful" and cannot express what she has learned.

33. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line “She looked mournfully and enigmatically at her mother and Laura as they came in.”, what does “enigmatically” most nearly mean?

    A. to watch over and direct work

    B. grew ripe

    C. in a way meant to suggest something unspoken

    D. in a mysterious, puzzling way

    Key: D (in a mysterious, puzzling way)

34. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Which literary element does this describe in “The Garden Party”? Free indirect discourse slips into Laura's (and others') voices.

    A. Simile

    B. Plot

    C. Point of view

    D. Allusion

    Key: C (Point of view)

35. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Evaluate this claim about the story: “Laura's encounter with death shakes, but does not fully break, her class view.” Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.

    Sample answer: The claim is persuasive only in part. In support, “You are being very absurd, Laura” (The Garden Party, paragraph 123) bears it out: Her mother says "You are being very absurd, Laura," yet at the cottage Laura says "Forgive my hat," aware of her privilege; she finds the dead man "wonderful, beautiful" and cannot express what she has learned. But “He was wonderful, beautiful” (The Garden Party, paragraph 176) complicates it, because this detail (her vision of death) gives the reader a second explanation to weigh against the claim's reading. So the claim holds only once it is qualified: it explains much of the story, but it has to account for that passage too, which it does not do on its own.

36. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · L.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: Laura's apology to the dead man. The words “Forgive my hat” (The Garden Party, paragraph 178) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops class and privilege: Mrs. Sheridan says "People like that don’t expect sacrifices from us.". Her mother says "You are being very absurd, Laura," yet at the cottage Laura says

"Forgive my hat," aware of her privilege; she finds the dead man "wonderful, beautiful" and cannot express what she has learned.

37. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line “And the perfect afternoon slowly ripened, slowly faded, slowly its petals closed.”, what does “ripened” most nearly mean?

    A. to watch over and direct work

    B. grew ripe

    C. in a mysterious, puzzling way

    D. in a way meant to suggest something unspoken

    Key: B (grew ripe)

38. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.6] Which choice best states a central concern of “The Garden Party”?

    A. A wife's quiet rebellion for a decent home

    B. A girl's first encounter with death across the class line

    C. A reversal that punishes a change of heart

    D. A boy's romantic quest ending in disillusion

    Key: B (A girl's first encounter with death across the class line)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Garden Party,” how does Mansfield show a girl's first encounter with death across the class line? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Garden Party, how does Mansfield develop the idea of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the point of view in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Garden Party develops the idea of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of point of view and imagery shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Garden Party (where it begins, turns and ends) and its point of view shape the reader's understanding of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Garden Party suggests about a girl's first encounter with death across the class line. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's point of view and imagery), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Katherine Mansfield uses point of view in The Garden Party to complicate the reader's understanding of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Garden Party within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Garden Party alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line follows or bends those conventions, using the point of view as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Garden Party and its treatment of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's point of view and imagery, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Garden Party as evidence for a larger claim about a girl's first encounter with death across the class line in The Garden Party. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Garden Party as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of a girl's first encounter with death across the class line. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Garden Party.

Unit test

The Garden Party: end test · 90 minutes · 18 questions per rigor version (multiple choice, fill in the blank, short answer). The class rigor level picks the version; student auto-adjust applies.

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

Final paper

The Garden Party: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Katherine Mansfield develops class and privilege across The Garden Party. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Garden Party and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to life and death.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Garden Party. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Garden Party finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of coming of age. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words

Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.
Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.

Essay assignments

Essay: Class and privilege

Scaffolded support (600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The Garden Party teaches about class and privilege. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Katherine Mansfield develops class and privilege in The Garden Party. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Katherine Mansfield develops class and privilege across The Garden Party. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The Garden Party (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of class and privilege. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO5): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of class and privilege in The Garden Party. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Katherine Mansfield's choices in The Garden Party (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of class and privilege, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The Garden Party's treatment of class and privilege in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on class and privilege in The Garden Party that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on class and privilege in The Garden Party. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about class and privilege in The Garden Party, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on class and privilege in The Garden Party, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history.
