Author biography

Leo Tolstoy was born on his family's estate, Yasnaya Polyana, south of Moscow, on 9 September 1828 (28 August, Old Style). After serving in the army in the Caucasus and the Crimean War he wrote War and Peace (1865–69) and Anna Karenina (1875–77). A spiritual crisis in the late 1870s led him to a radical Christianity of non-violence and simple living; he wrote moral tales for ordinary readers, gave up the copyright to many works and was excommunicated by the Russian Orthodox Church in 1901. He died at the railway station of Astapovo on 20 November 1910 after leaving home.

Historical and cultural context

After the emancipation of the serfs in 1861, Russian peasants could buy land, and many sought to acquire more. Tolstoy, a landowner, increasingly condemned private property and greed in his later years.

Publication and reception, then and now

Written and published in 1886 as one of Tolstoy's moral tales for ordinary readers.

Then: Widely read in Russia; James Joyce later called it "the greatest story that the literature of the world knows."

Now: A classic parable about greed.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Pahóm, a peasant, says that with enough land he would not fear the Devil himself. The Devil hears, and Pahóm keeps acquiring more land.

Main themes

- greed.
- contentment.
- temptation.

Why it matters

The parable asks what "enough" means, a question that applies to money, possessions and ambition in any era, and it models how a simple story can carry a moral argument.

Spoilers · teacher only

The Bashkirs offer him all the land he can walk around in a day for 1,000 rubles; he goes too far, races back, and dies at the finish. He is buried in six feet of land.

Model a close reading of one passage using the written think-aloud below.
First, meaning. I read "Six feet from his head to his heels was all he needed" slowly and put it in my own words: After all his struggle for land, Pahom needs only six feet for a grave. Next, craft. I notice the exact, small measurement, set against the huge stretches of land he wanted. The strongest word is "Six": the plain number answers the title's question with grim exactness. Then, effect. What is the irony of this ending sentence? My answer: The answer to "how much land does a man need" is only enough for a grave; Tolstoy turns the story into a parable against greed.

Content note (death from exhaustion, alcohol or drugs (mentioned)): Sensitive content: Death from exhaustion. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. This section mentions drinking or a drug ("…w the Evil One may tempt your husband with cards, wine, or women, and all will go to ruin. Don…"). Treat it as period custom or plot detail; name it plainly and don't glamorize it.

Peasant Pahóm boasts that with enough land he would fear not even the Devil, who overhears. Pahóm buys land, then more, always wanting more. The Bashkirs offer as much land as he can walk around in a day for a thousand rubles, if he returns by sunset. He walks too far, runs back, reaches the starting point at sunset and falls dead. His servant digs a grave six feet long: all the land he needed.

Background: Written 1886. Translation: Louise and Aylmer Maude, Twenty-Three Tales (1906), public domain in the US. The Bashkirs are a Turkic people of the southern Urals.

Significance: A widely taught parable; James Joyce reportedly called it the greatest story in world literature.

It links the passage to greed and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · L.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “I have lost my life, I have lost my life” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 120) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: His realization. The words “I have lost my life, I have lost my life” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 120) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. He boasts "If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself," keeps pushing for more, cries "I have lost my life," and needs only "Six feet.".

30. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 14? “All _____ that summer, Pahóm had much trouble because of this steward; and he was even glad when winter came and the cattle had to be stabled.”

    A. through

    B. complaint

    C. labourer

    D. always

    Key: A (through)

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · L.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: The boast. The words “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. He boasts "If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself," keeps pushing for more, cries "I have lost my life," and needs only "Six feet.".

32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Evaluate this claim about the story: “Pahóm's greed destroys him.” Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.

    Sample answer: The claim is persuasive only in part. In support, “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8) bears it out: He boasts "If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself," keeps pushing for more, cries "I have lost my life," and needs only "Six feet.". But “I have lost my life, I have lost my life” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 120) complicates it, because this detail (his realization) gives the reader a second explanation to weigh against the claim's reading. So the claim holds only once it is qualified: it explains much of the story, but it has to account for that passage too, which it does not do on its own.

    Sample answer: Ending. The words “Six feet from his head to his heels was all he needed” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 125) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

35. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.6] Connect this passage from paragraph 85 to the story's treatment of greed: “He wondered who it could be, and rose and went out, and he saw the Bashkír Chief sitting in front of the tent holding his side and rolling about with laughter.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 85) accurately and quotes “wondered” and “laughter”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to greed and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

36. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line “Pahóm bargained and haggled with him, and at last they settled the price at 1,500 roubles, part in cash and part to be paid later.”, what does “haggled” most nearly mean?

    A. weight down with a load

    B. spoke of something as having little worth

    C. argued over a price

    D. land owned outright

    Key: C (argued over a price)

37. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line “The younger sister was piqued, and in turn disparaged the life of a tradesman, and stood up for that of a peasant.”, what does “disparaged” most nearly mean?

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “How Much Land Does a Man Need?,” how does Tolstoy show greed that grasps more than a person needs? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): In How Much Land Does a Man Need?, how does Tolstoy develop the idea of greed that grasps more than a person needs? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the story helps build that idea. Read in the public-domain translation by Louise Maude and Aylmer Maude.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how How Much Land Does a Man Need? develops the idea of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim. Read in the public-domain translation by Louise Maude and Aylmer Maude.

HS Junior (550 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of How Much Land Does a Man Need? (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what How Much Land Does a Man Need? suggests about greed that grasps more than a person needs. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's irony and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Leo Tolstoy uses irony in How Much Land Does a Man Need? to complicate the reader's understanding of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.3, ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.1): Situate How Much Land Does a Man Need? within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of greed that grasps more than a person needs responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Read How Much Land Does a Man Need? alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of greed that grasps more than a person needs follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to How Much Land Does a Man Need? and its treatment of greed that grasps more than a person needs. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's irony and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads How Much Land Does a Man Need? as evidence for a larger claim about greed that grasps more than a person needs in How Much Land Does a Man Need?. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads How Much Land Does a Man Need? as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on How Much Land Does a Man Need?.

SAT-style questions

1. She had always lived on good terms with the peasants, until she engaged as her steward an old soldier, who took to burdening the people with fines.

   As used in the text, what does the word “burdening” most nearly mean?

   A. floor covering consisting of a piece of thick heavy fabric (usually with nap or pile)

   B. weight down with a load

   C. politely, with good manners

   D. create by putting components or members together

2. Close to the village there lived a lady, a small landowner, who had an estate of about three hundred acres. She had always lived on good terms with the peasants, until she engaged as her steward an old soldier, who took to burdening the people with fines. However careful Pahóm tried to be, it happened again and again that now a horse of his got among the lady's oats, now a cow strayed into her garden, now his calves found their way into her meadows—and he always had to pay a fine.

Which choice best states a central concern of "How Much Land Does a Man Need?"?

A. A family and a house collapsing together

B. Greed that grasps more than a person needs

C. Courage and guilt in a small community

D. Science that poisons love

SAT key: 1. B (weight down with a load); 2. B (Greed that grasps more than a person needs)

11. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 63 reveal about the character or situation? “Choose whatever piece of land you like; we have plenty of it.'” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 63) accurately and quotes “whatever” and “plenty”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 22 reveal about the character or situation? “Then they went to town and signed the deeds; he paying half the price down, and undertaking to pay the remainder within two years.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 22) accurately and quotes “undertaking” and “remainder”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 34 reveal about the character or situation? “One peasant, he said, had brought nothing with him but his bare hands, and now he had six horses and two cows of his own.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 34) accurately and quotes “nothing” and “peasant”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 88 reveal about the character or situation? “'It's time to wake them up,' thought he. 'We ought to be starting.'” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 88) accurately and quotes “starting” and “thought”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

15. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What can you infer from this line? “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The boast. The words “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.

16. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.1] Which literary element does this describe in “How Much Land Does a Man Need?”? Pahóm's dream of the Devil laughing.

    A. Hyperbole

    B. Theme

    C. Point of view

    D. Foreshadowing

    Key: D (Foreshadowing)

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 41 shapes its tone: “He sowed much wheat and had a fine crop, but the land was too far from the village—the wheat had to be carted more than ten miles.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 41) accurately and quotes “village” and “carted”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 58 to the story's treatment of contentment: “You have only to point it out with your hand and it is yours.'” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 58) accurately and quotes its key words, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to contentment and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

19. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.5] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “'Well,' thought they, 'if the innkeeper gets the land, he will worry us with fines worse than the lady's steward.”

    B. “Pahóm, the master of the house, was lying on the top of the oven, and he listened to the women's chatter.”

C. “All through that summer, Pahóm had much trouble because of this steward; and he was even glad when winter came and the cattle had to be…”

D. “He was pleased that the peasant's wife had led her husband into boasting, and that he had said that if he had plenty of land he would not…”

Key: B (“Pahóm, the master of the house, was lying on the top of the oven, and he listened to the women's chatter.”)

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 94 shapes its tone: “They ascended a hillock (called by the Bashkírs a shikhan) and dismounting from their carts and their horses, gathered in one spot.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 94) accurately and quotes “dismounting” and “ascended”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

21. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 53 shapes its tone: “The people lived on the steppes, by a river, in felt-covered tents.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 53) accurately and quotes “steppes” and “covered”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 44 to the story's treatment of the devil's temptation: “He might have gone on living contentedly, but he grew tired of having to rent other people's land every year, and having to scramble for it.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 44) accurately and quotes “contentedly” and “people's”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to the devil's temptation and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

23. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 30 shapes its tone: “'You let thieves grease your palms,' said he. 'If you were honest folk yourselves, you would not let a thief go free.'” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 30) accurately and quotes “yourselves” and “thieves”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

24. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 38 shapes its tone: “He only waited till the spring, and then started with his family for the new settlement.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 38) accurately and quotes “settlement” and “started”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 84 shapes its tone: “'What a large tract I will mark off!' thought he. 'I can easily do thirty-five miles in a day.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 84) accurately and quotes “thought” and “easily”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 19 to the story's treatment of contentment: “'Look at that,' thought he, 'the land is all being sold, and I shall get none of it.' So he spoke to his wife.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 19) accurately and quotes “thought”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to contentment and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 28 to the story's treatment of contentment: “'If he had only cut one here and there it would have been bad enough,' thought Pahóm, 'but the rascal has actually cut down a whole clump.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 28) accurately and quotes “actually” and “thought”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to contentment and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 54 to the story's treatment of the devil's temptation: “As soon as they saw Pahóm, they came out of their tents and gathered round their visitor.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 54) accurately and quotes “gathered” and “visitor”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to the devil's temptation and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

29. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.11-12.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 6 shapes its tone: “'Well, what of that?' replied the younger. 'Of course our work is rough and coarse.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 6) accurately and quotes “replied” and “younger”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 80 to the story's treatment of contentment: “'Why, we shall go to any spot you like, and stay there.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
