Essential questions

- What does The Most Dangerous Game suggest about hunter and hunted?
- What does The Most Dangerous Game suggest about civilization and savagery?
- What does The Most Dangerous Game suggest about survival?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Richard Connell was born in Poughkeepsie, New York, on 17 October 1893. He reported for newspapers as a teenager, graduated from Harvard, worked in advertising and served in France in the First World War. He became a prolific magazine writer and Hollywood screenwriter; his story for Meet John Doe (1941) earned an Academy Award nomination. He died in Beverly Hills on 22 November 1949.

Historical and cultural context

Written after the First World War, in which Connell served, and at the height of the fashion for big-game hunting safaris among wealthy Americans and Europeans. General Zaroff is a Cossack aristocrat who fled the Russian Revolution of 1917.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in Collier's on 19 January 1924; it won the O. Henry Memorial Award.

Then: An instant popular success, filmed in 1932.

Now: One of the most-taught stories in American schools, the model of suspense and the source of countless "human hunt" plots.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Rainsford, a famous big-game hunter, falls overboard near the mysterious Ship-Trap Island and finds the château of General Zaroff, who has grown bored with hunting animals.

Main themes

- hunter and hunted.
- civilization versus savagery.
- reason and instinct.

Why it matters

It asks students to think about empathy and violence, and teaches suspense and conflict.

Spoilers · teacher only

Zaroff hunts shipwrecked men; he hunts Rainsford for three days. Rainsford escapes by leaping into the sea, ambushes Zaroff in his bedroom, and the story ends with Rainsford sleeping in Zaroff's bed, implying he killed him.

First, meaning. I read "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" slowly and put it in my own words: Rainsford claims the world is made up of two classes, the hunters and the huntees. Next, craft. I notice the confident, simple claim, stated as if it were a law of nature. The strongest word is "classes": it sorts living things into fixed ranks, the same logic Zaroff uses to justify hunting men. Then, effect. How does Rainsford's line set up the irony of the whole story? My answer: Rainsford's own belief will be turned against him when Zaroff decides humans are fair prey; the line forces him to face what his attitude means once he becomes the hunted.

Lesson 2: The Most Dangerous Game

Focus: the hunter becoming the hunted

Objective: Students will analyze how conflict develops in "The Most Dangerous Game" by writing a claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph that cites at least 2 quotations from the section, and will score at least 80% on the section quiz.

Standards: AP: see the unit standards

Content note (killing of humans for sport, violence, zaroff's racist hierarchy of victims (racist language), alcohol or drugs (mentioned)): Sensitive content: Killing of humans for sport; violence; Zaroff's racist hierarchy of victims (racist language). Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. This section mentions drinking or a drug ("… le the general was sitting, alone. "You'll have a cocktail, Mr. Rainsford," he suggested. The cock…"). Treat it as period custom or plot detail; name it plainly and don't glamorize it.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes killing of humans for sport; violence; Zaroff's racist hierarchy of victims (racist language).

I read "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" slowly and put it in my own words: On the yacht, Rainsford tells Whitney that the world is made up of two classes, hunters and huntees. Next, craft. I notice the neat two-part division and the made-up joking word "huntees," which makes the hunted sound unimportant. The strongest word is "huntees": the comic word shows he gives no thought to how the hunted animal feels. Then, effect. What does Rainsford's view of the world show about him at the start? My answer: At the start, Rainsford's view that the world is made of hunters and huntees shows his confidence that he will always be the hunter; the story reverses this by making him Zaroff's prey.

2. Find one example of conflict in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.STR] Look for: Look for the forces, people or desires pulling against each other.
3. How does the foreshadowing in this story shape what we understand about the hunter becoming the hunted? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.STR] Look for: Look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14): His early philosophy. On foreshadowing: Ship-Trap Island's reputation and Rainsford's dismissal of animals' feelings. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins “He struggled up to the surface and tried to cry out, but the wash from the speeding yacht slapped him in the face and the salt water in his open mouth made him gag and strangle.”, why might Connell have chosen these particular words? Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.FIG] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.
5. What causes the main turn in “The Most Dangerous Game”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.STR] Look for: Big-game hunter Sanger Rainsford falls overboard near Ship-Trap Island and finds the chateau of General Zaroff, a Russian aristocrat bored with hunting animals who now hunts shipwrecked sailors. Rainsford refuses to join and becomes the prey for three days. He builds traps that kill a servant and a…
6. As the opening story, what does “The Most Dangerous Game” set up that the rest of The Most Dangerous Game will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.STR] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95): Zaroff's belief. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.CHR] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211): The ending. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

8. The bell-ringer asked: “Is it ever acceptable to hunt for sport? Where would you draw the line?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does irony appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with hunter and hunted? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.NAR] Look for: Look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14): His early philosophy. On irony: The hunter becomes the hunted; Zaroff's "civilized" manners hide savagery. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Published in Collier's on 19 January 1924, after the First World War, in which Connell served. Big-game safaris were a fashionable sport. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.SET] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95): Zaroff's belief. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “Among the most anthologized American stories; it appears in Glencoe's grade 9 lesson plans and Gale's Short Stories for Students, vol. 1.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211): The ending. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
2. Which character in this story acts most wisely, and which least? Judge them by a standard you name. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.CHR, AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: An evaluation using an explicit criterion and evidence.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14): His early philosophy. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
3. Rewrite one moment of “The Most Dangerous Game” from the point of view of a different character. What does the new angle reveal or hide about the hunter becoming the hunted? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN, AP-LIT.NAR] Look for: A creative product with a rationale tied to the text.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95): Zaroff's belief. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

4. Write three questions of your own about “The Most Dangerous Game”: one recall, one “why/how”, and one “should/what if”. Trade with a partner and answer theirs. [DOK 3 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: Student-generated questions at three levels.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211): The ending. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
5. Connect this story to civilization and savagery: is the link strong or weak so far? What would Connell need to show next to strengthen it? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A judgment of thematic development across the work.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14): His early philosophy. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
6. Is the conflict in this story effective, or does it feel heavy-handed? Evaluate it as a reader would in a review. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN, AP-LIT.STR] Look for: An evaluative judgment with criteria and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95): Zaroff's belief. On conflict: Man versus man, and man versus nature. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. Compare how “The Most Dangerous Game” treats the hunter becoming the hunted with how another text, film or event you know treats a similar idea. What does The Most Dangerous Game see that the other misses? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A cross-text synthesis.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211): The ending. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. As the final story, does this ending resolve hunter and hunted? Argue whether the ending is earned. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN, AP-LIT.STR] Look for: A prediction or judgment justified with textual clues.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14): His early philosophy. On foreshadowing: Ship-Trap Island's reputation and Rainsford's dismissal of animals' feelings. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
9. Design a one-paragraph modern adaptation of this story (setting, characters, conflict). What must stay the same for it to still be about the hunter becoming the hunted? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A creative transfer that keeps the core idea.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95): Zaroff's belief. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

10. What question would you most like to ask Richard Connell about this story, and what answer do you think the text itself gives? [DOK 4 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A student-generated question answered from evidence.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211): The ending. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 21 reveal about the character or situation? ““Yes, even that tough-minded old Swede, who’d go up to the devil himself and ask him for a light.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 21) accurately and quotes “himself” and “minded”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What can you infer from this line? “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: His early philosophy. The words “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 101 reveal about the character or situation? “So I bought this island, built this house, and here I do my hunting.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 101) accurately and quotes “hunting” and “island”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 42 shapes its tone: “I suppose the first three shots I heard was when the hunter flushed his quarry and wounded it.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 42) accurately and quotes “flushed” and “wounded”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 33 shapes its tone: “He began to count his strokes; he could do possibly a hundred more and then——” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 33) accurately and quotes “possibly” and “hundred”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 182 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: “The general could follow a trail through the woods at night; he could follow an extremely difficult trail; he must have uncanny powers; only by the merest chance had the Cossack failed to see his quarry.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 182) accurately and quotes “extremely” and “difficult”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hunter and hunted and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.
17. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “There, _____ in and out in the pattern of shadow, were black, noiseless forms; the hounds heard him at the window and looked up, expectantly, with their green eyes.” Word bank: wrestled, bizarre, weaving, complimented
    Key: weaving
18. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · RL.9-10.3] What does Zaroff hunt?
    A. Wild boars
    B. Tigers
    C. Human beings
    D. Deer

    Key: C (Human beings)
19. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14: “The world is made up of two _____—the hunters and the huntees”
    Key: classes
20. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95: “_____ is no match for reason”
    Key: Instinct
21. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 46? “In his hand the man held a long-_____ revolver, and he was pointing it straight at Rainsford’s heart.”
    A. published
    B. direction

C. indolently

D. barrelled

Key: D (barrelled)

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 154 shapes its tone: “He saw the dead black eyes of the general on him, studying him.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 154) accurately and quotes “studying” and “general”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 49 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: “He gave no sign that he understood Rainsford’s words, or that he had even heard them.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 49) accurately and quotes “understood” and “Rainsford”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hunter and hunted and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

24. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 31? “He lunged for it; a short, hoarse cry came from his lips as he _____ he had reached too far and had lost his balance.”

A. underbrush

B. Rainsford

C. staccato

D. realized

Key: D (realized)

25. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · RL.9-10.3] What is Ship-Trap Island known for?

A. Rare birds

B. A lighthouse

C. Sailors' dread of it

D. Gold mines

Key: C (Sailors' dread of it)

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 128 shapes its tone: “A trace of anger was in the general’s black eyes, but it was there for but a second; and he said, in his most pleasant manner, “Dear me, what a righteous young man you are!” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 128) accurately and quotes “righteous” and “pleasant”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 65 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: “Half apologetically General Zaroff said: “We do our best to preserve the amenities of civilization here.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 65) accurately and quotes “apologetically” and

"civilization", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hunter and hunted and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Evaluate this claim about the story: "Rainsford's early view is turned against him." Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.
Sample answer: The claim is persuasive only in part. In support, "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) bears it out: He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too. But "Instinct is no match for reason" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95) complicates it, because this detail (zaroff's belief) gives the reader a second explanation to weigh against the claim's reading. So the claim holds only once it is qualified: it explains much of the story, but it has to account for that passage too, which it does not do on its own.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 177 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: ""I'll give him a trail to follow," muttered Rainsford, and he struck off from the rude path he had been following into the trackless wilderness." Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 177) accurately and quotes "wilderness" and "following", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hunter and hunted and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

30. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "Whenever he looked up from his plate he found the general studying him, appraising him _____." Word bank: narrowly, bizarre, wrestled, complimented
Key: narrowly

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line "He wrestled himself out of his clothes, and shouted with all his power.", what does "wrestled" most nearly mean?

    A. praised
    B. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual
    C. struggled with effort (out of something)
    D. diffusing warmth and friendliness

    Key: C (struggled with effort (out of something))

32. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] Which choice best states a central concern of "The Most Dangerous Game"?

    A. A story so convincing it becomes real
    B. The art of the deadpan tall tale
    C. The hunter becoming the hunted
    D. Waking into a changed nation

    Key: C (The hunter becoming the hunted)

33. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.3] Claim: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14).
Sample answer: He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too. The words

"The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

34. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze the word choice in "He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.
    Sample answer: The ending. The words "He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

35. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.3] Which literary element does this describe in "The Most Dangerous Game"? Ship-Trap Island's reputation and Rainsford's dismissal of animals' feelings.
    A. Alliteration
    B. Foreshadowing
    C. Imagery
    D. Theme

    Key: B (Foreshadowing)

36. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line "He was finding the general a most thoughtful and affable host, a true cosmopolite.", what does "affable" most nearly mean?
    A. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual
    B. diffusing warmth and friendliness
    C. struggled with effort (out of something)
    D. praised

    Key: B (diffusing warmth and friendliness)

37. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Synthesis: trace how hunter and hunted develops from the opening of "The Most Dangerous Game" to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Rainsford learns empathy through terror: his early philosophy. The words "The Most Dangerous Game" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too.

38. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · L.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of "Instinct is no match for reason" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.
    Sample answer: Zaroff's belief. The words "Instinct is no match for reason" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too.

39. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line "Rainsford's first impression was that the man was singularly handsome; his second was that there was an original, almost bizarre quality about the general's face.", what does "bizarre" most nearly mean?

D. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual

Key: D (conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; AP: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Most Dangerous Game,” how does Connell show the hunter becoming the hunted? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the conflict you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; AP: see unit standards): In The Most Dangerous Game, how does Connell develop the idea of the hunter becoming the hunted? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the conflict in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how The Most Dangerous Game develops the idea of the hunter becoming the hunted. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of conflict and foreshadowing shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of The Most Dangerous Game (where it begins, turns and ends) and its conflict shape the reader's understanding of the hunter becoming the hunted. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; AP: see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what The Most Dangerous Game suggests about the hunter becoming the hunted. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's conflict and foreshadowing), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP: AP-LIT.STR, AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Richard Connell uses conflict in The Most Dangerous Game to complicate the reader's understanding of the hunter becoming the hunted. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; AP: see unit standards): Situate The Most Dangerous Game within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of the hunter becoming the hunted responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; AP: see unit standards): Read The Most Dangerous Game alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of the hunter becoming the hunted follows or bends those conventions, using the conflict as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; AP: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Most Dangerous Game and its treatment of the hunter becoming the hunted. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's conflict and foreshadowing, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Most Dangerous Game as evidence for a larger claim about the hunter becoming the hunted in The Most Dangerous Game. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Most Dangerous Game as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of the hunter becoming the hunted. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Most Dangerous Game.

SAT-style questions

1. When I shot some of his prize turkeys with it, he did not punish me; he complimented me on my marksmanship.

   As used in the text, what does the word “complimented” most nearly mean?

   A. utter words of protest

   B. interlace by or as if by weaving

   D. to express pleasure at someone's good fortune

2. He struggled up to the surface and tried to cry out, but the wash from the speeding yacht slapped him in the face and the salt water in his open mouth made him gag and strangle. Desperately he struck out with strong strokes after the receding lights of the yacht, but he stopped before he had swum fifty feet. A certain cool-headedness had come to him; it was not the first time he had been in a tight place. There was a chance that his cries could be heard by someone aboard the yacht, but that chance was slender, and grew more slender as the yacht raced on. He wrestled himself out of his clothes, and shouted with all his power. The lights of the yacht became faint and ever-vanishing fireflies; then they were blotted out entirely by the night.

Which choice best states a central concern of "The Most Dangerous Game"?

B. Love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence

C. Reason struggling against terror

D. The cost of wanting to seem richer than you are

SAT key: 1. C (praised); 2. A (The hunter becoming the hunted)

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 54 reveal about the character or situation? ““I’ve read your book about hunting snow leopards in Tibet, you see,” explained the man.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 54) accurately and quotes “explained” and “leopards”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

12. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.5] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. ““Yes, even that tough-minded old Swede, who’d go up to the devil himself and ask him for a light.”

    B. “But sometimes I think sailors have an extra sense that tells them when they are in danger.”

    C. ““Can’t see it,” remarked Rainsford, trying to peer through the dank tropical night that was palpable as it pressed its thick warm blackness…”

    D. “Now, you mustn’t laugh when I tell you this—I did feel something like a sudden chill.”

    Key: C (““Can’t see it,” remarked Rainsford, trying to peer through the dank tropical night that was palpable as it pressed its thick warm blackness…”)

13. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 38 reveal about the character or situation? “Sleep had given him new vigour; a sharp hunger was picking at him.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 38) accurately and quotes “picking” and “vigour”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 178 reveal about the character or situation? “Toward morning when a dingy gray was varnishing the sky, the cry of some startled bird focused Rainsford’s attention in that direction.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 178) accurately and quotes “varnishing” and “direction”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 115 shapes its tone: ““One does not expect nowadays to find a young man of the educated class, even in America, with such a naïve, and, if I may say so, mid-Victorian point of view.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 115) accurately and quotes “Victorian” and “nowadays”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 180 shapes its tone: “The hunter shook his head several times, as if he were puzzled.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 180) accurately and quotes “several” and “puzzled”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

17. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 91 to the story's treatment of survival: ““So,” continued the general, “I asked myself why the hunt no longer fascinated me.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 91) accurately and quotes “fascinated” and “continued”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to survival and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

18. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 142 reveal about the character or situation? ““And now,” said the general, “I want to show you my new collection of heads.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 142) accurately and quotes “collection” and “general”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

19. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What can you infer from this line? “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: Zaroff's belief. The words “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 62 shapes its tone: “Ivan laid out an evening suit, and Rainsford, as he put it on, noticed that it came from a London tailor who ordinarily cut and sewed for none below the rank of duke.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 62) accurately and quotes “ordinarily” and “Rainsford”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

21. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 187 shapes its tone: “The job was finished at last, and he threw himself down behind a fallen log a hundred feet away.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 187) accurately and quotes “finished” and “hundred”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 173 shapes its tone: “Under one arm he carried khaki hunting clothes, a haversack of food, a leather sheath containing a long-bladed hunting knife; his right hand rested on a cocked revolver thrust in the crimson sash about his waist....” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 173) accurately and quotes “containing” and “haversack”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

23. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.1] Which literary element does this describe in “The Most Dangerous Game”? The hunter becomes the hunted; Zaroff's "civilized" manners hide savagery.

    A. Allusion

    B. Irony

    C. Metaphor

    D. Plot

    Key: B (Irony)

24. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 73 shapes its tone: “For a moment the general did not reply; he was smiling his curious red-lipped smile.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 73) accurately and quotes “general” and “smiling”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: His early philosophy. The words “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 123 to the story's treatment of survival: ""Sometimes an angry god of the high seas sends them to me." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 123) accurately and quotes "Sometimes", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to survival and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

27. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.11-12.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 46 shapes its tone: "He let it fall, and it startled him with its booming loudness." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 46) accurately and quotes "startled" and "loudness", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 37 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: "Jagged crags appeared to jut up into the opaqueness; he forced himself upward, hand over hand." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 37) accurately and quotes "opaqueness" and "appeared", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to civilization and savagery and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

29. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.11-12.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 24 shapes its tone: "But sometimes I think sailors have an extra sense that tells them when they are in danger." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 24) accurately and quotes "sometimes" and "sailors", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 188 to the story's treatment of survival: "He staggered, but he did not fall; nor did he drop his revolver." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 188) accurately and quotes "staggered" and "revolver", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to survival and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 30 to the story's treatment of survival: "Somewhere, off in the blackness, someone had fired a gun three times." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 30) accurately and quotes "Somewhere" and "blackness", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to survival and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

32. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.11-12.4] In the line "When I shot some of his prize turkeys with it, he did not punish me; he complimented me on my marksmanship.", what does "complimented" most nearly mean?

    A. praised

    C. struggled with effort (out of something)

D. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual

Key: A (praised)

33. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 44 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: “He came upon them as he turned a crook in the coast line; and his first thought was that he had come upon a village, for there were many lights.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 44) accurately and quotes “thought” and “village”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to civilization and savagery and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

34. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 132 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: “If my quarry eludes me for three whole days, he wins the game.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 132) accurately and quotes “quarry” and “eludes”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to civilization and savagery and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

35. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 167 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: “Of course you, in turn, must agree to say nothing of your visit here.”” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 167) accurately and quotes “nothing” and “course”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to civilization and savagery and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

Final paper

The Most Dangerous Game: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Richard Connell develops hunter and hunted across The Most Dangerous Game. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Most Dangerous Game and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to civilization and savagery.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Most Dangerous Game. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Most Dangerous Game finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of survival. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.
