Essential questions

- What does The City of Refuge suggest about the Great Migration?
- What does The City of Refuge suggest about hope and exploitation?
- What does The City of Refuge suggest about urban identity?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Rudolph Fisher was born in Washington, D.C., on 9 May 1897 and grew up in Providence, Rhode Island. He graduated from Brown University and Howard University's medical school and practised in Harlem as a physician and radiologist while writing fiction. "The City of Refuge" (1925) was his first published story; his stories The Walls of Jericho (1928) and The Conjure-Man Dies (1932), one of the first detective stories by a Black American writer, made him a leading wit of the Harlem Renaissance. He died on 26 December 1934, aged 37.

Historical and cultural context

The Great Migration (about 1916–1970) brought millions of Black Southerners north. Harlem in the 1920s was the cultural capital of Black America. The title alludes to the biblical cities of refuge (Numbers 35), where a man who had killed could find sanctuary.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in The Atlantic Monthly in February 1925, and included in Alain Locke's anthology The New Negro (1925).

Then: Praised; it established Fisher as a Harlem Renaissance writer.

Now: An important Harlem Renaissance story about migration and exploitation.

Overview (spoiler-free)

King Solomon Gillis arrives in Harlem from North Carolina, fleeing after shooting a white man, and is amazed to see Black policemen. A fellow migrant, Mouse Uggam, befriends him.

Main themes

- migration and hope.
- exploitation.
- freedom and the law.

Why it matters

It shows the promise and the traps of the Great Migration.

Spoilers · teacher only

Mouse uses Gillis to sell drugs; Gillis is arrested by a Black policeman and, oddly happy, says "Cullud policemans!"

Content note (racial slurs in dialogue, drugs, violence): Sensitive content: Racial slurs in dialogue; drugs; violence. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. The text quotes racial slurs in period dialogue: decide in advance that no one reads them aloud, and name why the author records them.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes racial slurs in dialogue; drugs; violence.
Suggested language: "Why does the writer include this, and what does it make us notice?"

Model the close reading of the anchor quotation using the written think-aloud below.
First, meaning. I read "Cullud policemans" slowly and put it in my own words: Fresh from North Carolina, Gillis is amazed to see a Black policeman giving orders to white drivers. Next, craft. I notice the dialect and the plural "policemans," which show his excitement. The strongest word is "policemans": his grammar shows his rural voice and the newness of what he sees. Then, effect. Why is Gillis so astonished? My answer: Gillis is so astonished because he sees a Black policeman directing white drivers; for Gillis that authority means Harlem is a place of freedom, a hope the story will test.

10. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 155 reveal about the character or situation? “"Now y're tootin'!" Uggam's two big front teeth popped out in a grin of genuine pleasure.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 155) accurately and quotes “pleasure” and “genuine”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What can you infer from this line? “Cullud policemans” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: His wonder. The words “Cullud policemans” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself.

12. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “white-walled corridor, the impassible slot-machine, the terrifying subway train—he felt as if he had been caught up in”

B. “Ever since a travelling preacher had first told him of the place, King Solomon Gillis had longed to come to Harlem.”

C. “Penn Terminal—all change!” “Pohter, hyer, pohter, suh?” Shuffle of a thousand soles, clatter of a thousand heels, innumerable echoes.”

D. “And there were occasional "colored” newspapers from New York: newspapers that mentioned Negroes without comment, but always spoke of a…”

Key: A (“white-walled corridor, the impassible slot-machine, the terrifying subway train—he felt as if he had been caught up in”)

13. [short · inference · DOK 2 · RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 222 reveal about the character or situation? “Even the oldest and rattiest cabarets in Harlem have sense of shame enough to hide themselves under the ground—for instance, Edwards’s.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 222) accurately and quotes “themselves” and “rattiest”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It then states the inference in one sentence and backs it with that detail.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 243 shapes its tone: ““An' here's two-fifty for a good day's work.” Uggam passed the money over.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 243) accurately and quotes “here's” and “passed”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 16 shapes its tone: “And there were occasional "colored” newspapers from New York: newspapers that mentioned Negroes without comment, but always spoke of a white person as “So-and-so, white.” That was the point.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 16) accurately and quotes “occasional” and “newspapers”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Evaluate this claim about the story: “Fisher shows Harlem as both refuge and trap.” Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.
Sample answer: The claim is persuasive only in part. In support, “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) bears it out: Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for. But “This was Negro Harlem” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 8) complicates it, because this detail (arrival) gives the reader a second explanation to weigh against the claim's reading. So the claim holds only once it is qualified: it explains much of the story, but it has to account for that passage too, which it does not do on its own.

17. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from paragraph 171: “It was good for what ailed them, and they didn't know how to get it except _____ him.” Word bank: policeman, Finally, through, Presently
Key: through

18. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · RL.9-10.3] What does Gillis do at the end?

A. Surrenders when he sees the Black officer

B. Kills Mouse

C. Escapes

D. Returns south

Key: A (Surrenders when he sees the Black officer)

19. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · RL.9-10.3] Who befriends and exploits him?

A. A preacher

B. Uncle Ezra

C. Mouse Uggam

D. Tony Gabrielli

Key: C (Mouse Uggam)

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 184 shapes its tone: “"I'll be round to your room tonight with enough stuff for to-morrer, see?” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 184) accurately and quotes “tonight” and “morrer”, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Synthesis: trace how exploitation develops from the opening of “The City of Refuge” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.

Sample answer: Mouse betrays him: the dream. The words “The City of Refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for.

22. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from paragraph 56: ““Chief, I got him: a baby jess in from the land o' _____ and so dumb he thinks ante-bellum's an old woman.” Word bank: cotton, Finally, approaching, culminated

Key: cotton

23. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 171 shapes its tone: “If he had, he could sell three or four times as much as he did.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 171) accurately and quotes its key words, saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It explains the tone those words create (for example, whether they make the moment tense, ironic or tender) and why the author chose them. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

24. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · L.9-10.4] Analyze the word choice in “This was Negro Harlem” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 8). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

Sample answer: Arrival. The words “This was Negro Harlem” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 8) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 193 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: “The mysterious thing about it was that their purchases totalled little more than those of the original three or four.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 193) accurately and quotes “mysterious” and

"purchases", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hope and exploitation and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 50 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: "There was a collision; the apples rolled; Tony exploded; King Solomon apologized." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 50) accurately and quotes "apologized" and "collision", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hope and exploitation and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · L.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of "Cullud policemans" (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: His wonder. The words "Cullud policemans" (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 197 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: "They displayed extreme nervousness, looking about as if afraid of being seen; and when one of them spoke to Tony it was in a husky, toneless, blowing voice, like the sound of a dirty phonograph record." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 197) accurately and quotes "nervousness" and "phonograph", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hope and exploitation and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

29. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line "Inside, the spokesman snuffled, gave his shoulders a queer little hunch, and asked, "Can you fix us up, buddy?"", what does "spokesman" most nearly mean?

    A. with appreciation; in a grateful manner
    B. reflect deeply on a subject
    C. the person who did most of the talking
    D. a regular and monotonous rising and falling intonation

    Key: C (the person who did most of the talking)

30. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · L.9-10.4] In the line "King Solomon Gillis sat meditating in a room half the size of his hencoop back home, with a single window opening into an airshaft.", what does "meditating" most nearly mean?

    A. the person who did most of the talking
    B. with appreciation; in a grateful manner
    C. a regular and monotonous rising and falling intonation
    D. reflect deeply on a subject

    Key: D (reflect deeply on a subject)

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · RL.9-10.3] Connect this passage from paragraph 89 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: "Cheevers come up on three of 'em one night pizenin' his well." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: A model answer paraphrases the passage (paragraph 89) accurately and quotes "pizenin'" and "Cheevers", saying what those words show about the speaker or situation at that moment. It links the passage to hope and exploitation and to one other named moment in the story. The unit's reading of hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

32. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.3] Which literary element does this describe in “The City of Refuge”? The "land of plenty" exploits him.

    A. Symbolism

    B. Point of view

    C. Alliteration

    D. Irony

    Key: D (Irony)

33. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · L.9-10.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: The dream. The words “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for.

34. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · RL.9-10.3] Claim: Fisher shows Harlem as both refuge and trap. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255).

    Sample answer: Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for. The words “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) are the evidence: their wording makes this point in the text itself. This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The City of Refuge,” how does Fisher show Harlem as promised refuge and trap? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The City of Refuge, how does Fisher develop the idea of Harlem as promised refuge and trap? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The City of Refuge develops the idea of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The City of Refuge (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The City of Refuge suggests about Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's setting and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Rudolph Fisher uses setting in The City of Refuge to complicate the reader's understanding of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The City of Refuge within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of Harlem as promised refuge and trap responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The City of Refuge alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of Harlem as promised refuge and trap follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The City of Refuge and its treatment of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's setting and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The City of Refuge as evidence for a larger claim about Harlem as promised refuge and trap in The City of Refuge. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The City of Refuge as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The City of Refuge.

SAT-style questions

1. Inside, the spokesman snuffled, gave his shoulders a queer little hunch, and asked, "Can you fix us up, buddy?"

   As used in the text, what does the word "spokesman" most nearly mean?

   A. a regular and monotonous rising and falling intonation

   B. reflect deeply on a subject

   C. with appreciation; in a grateful manner

   D. the person who did most of the talking

2. Uggam stepped over and opened the door. King Solomon's apprehensive eyes saw framed therein, instead of a gigantic officer, calling for him, a little blot of a creature, quite black against even the darkness of the hallway, except for a dirty, wide-striped silk shirt, collarless, with the sleeves rolled up. "Ah hahve bill fo' Mr. Gillis." A high, strongly accented Jamaican voice, with its characteristic singsong intonation, interrupted King Solomon's sigh of relief.

   Which choice best states a central concern of "The City of Refuge"?

   A. A reversal that punishes a change of heart

   B. Harlem as promised refuge and trap

   C. A story so convincing it becomes real

   D. Refusal as a mystery the narrator cannot solve

SAT key: 1. D (the person who did most of the talking); 2. B (Harlem as promised refuge and trap)

Final paper

The City of Refuge: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Rudolph Fisher develops the Great Migration across The City of Refuge. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The City of Refuge and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to hope and exploitation.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The City of Refuge. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The City of Refuge finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of urban identity. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words

Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.
Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.

Essay assignments

Essay: The Great Migration

Scaffolded support (600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The City of Refuge teaches about the Great Migration. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Rudolph Fisher develops the Great Migration in The City of Refuge. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Rudolph Fisher develops the Great Migration across The City of Refuge. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The City of Refuge (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of the Great Migration. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO5): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of the Great Migration in The City of Refuge. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Rudolph Fisher's choices in The City of Refuge (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of the Great Migration, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The City of Refuge's treatment of the Great Migration in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on the Great Migration in The City of Refuge that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on the Great Migration in The City of Refuge. Essay: Urban identity

Scaffolded support (600 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The City of Refuge teaches about urban identity. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Rudolph Fisher develops urban identity in The City of Refuge. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Rudolph Fisher develops urban identity across The City of Refuge. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The City of Refuge (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of urban identity. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO5): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of urban identity in The City of Refuge. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Rudolph Fisher's choices in The City of Refuge (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of urban identity, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.
