

Pride and Prejudice

Jane Austen · 1813

TEACHER EDITION · CURRICULUM UNIT

61 lessons of 90 minutes, 5 a week (block schedule), 13 weeks

Syllabus · 90-minute lesson plans · lecture scripts · vocabulary · quizzes with keys · writing prompts at eleven rigor levels · SAT-style items · whole-book test · essays

Liber et Libri · Lux et Libri LLC

Cover: John Constable, Wivenhoe Park, Essex (1816). Public domain (Wikimedia Commons).

Contents and unit overview

1. Unit overview and the 90-minute lesson
2. Syllabus (weekly pacing)
3. Lesson plans and lecture scripts (chapters 1–61), each with vocabulary, discussion questions, annotation focus, quiz and key, writing prompts and SAT-style items
4. Whole-book test and answer key
5. Essay assignments at eleven rigor levels

Grades: Grades 9–12 (also 7–8; scales to graduate via rigor levels). Weeks: 13. Lessons: 61 × 90 minutes.

Essential questions

- What does Pride and Prejudice suggest about first impressions and prejudice?
- What does Pride and Prejudice suggest about pride and self-knowledge?
- What does Pride and Prejudice suggest about marriage and money?
- What does Pride and Prejudice suggest about class and social mobility?
- What does Pride and Prejudice suggest about women's limited choices?

Objectives

- Cite textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly and implicitly.
- Determine themes and analyze their development over the course of the novel.
- Analyze how characters, setting and point of view interact.
- Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in the text.
- Write arguments to support claims with clear reasons and relevant evidence.

Standards: RL.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2, RL.9-10.3, RL.9-10.4, RL.11-12.2, W.9-10.1, W.11-12.1, RL.7.2, AP.RL.2, CF.RL.2, C2.RL.2, C3.RL.2, C4.RL.2, GR.RL.2
Assessments: Daily chapter quizzes (auto-graded); Weekly writing prompt (rubric); Whole-book test; Final essay Differentiation: Every prompt and quiz has eleven rigor levels (Middle School through Graduate / PhD); the app applies student override, then class standard, then the automatic level.
Materials: Liber et Libri reader; Annotation journal; Chapter lecture slides or script

The 90-minute lesson

#	Segment	Mode	Minutes	Clock
1	Bell-ringer	You do	8	0–8
2	Vocabulary with etymology notes	I do	10	8–18

3	Background and context	I do	10	18–28
4	I do: modeled close reading	I do	12	28–40
5	We do: guided annotation	We do	15	40–55
6	You do: independent annotation	You do	15	55–70
7	Discussion	We do	10	70–80
8	Exit ticket / chapter quiz	You do	7	80–87
9	Closure	I do	3	87–90
	Total		90

Syllabus

Week	Chapters	Lessons	Focus and activities	Assessment
1	Chapter I Chapter II Chapter III Chapter IV Chapter V	5 × 90 min (450 min)	first impressions and prejudice • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Socratic seminar on first impressions and prejudice • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
2	Chapter VI Chapter VII Chapter VIII Chapter IX Chapter X	5 × 90 min (450 min)	pride and self-knowledge • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Annotation check and vocabulary game • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
3	Chapter XI Chapter XII Chapter XIII Chapter XIV Chapter XV	5 × 90 min (450 min)	marriage and money • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Socratic seminar on marriage and money • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
4	Chapter XVI Chapter XVII Chapter XVIII Chapter XIX Chapter XX	5 × 90 min (450 min)	class and social mobility • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Annotation check and vocabulary game • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
5	Chapter XXI Chapter XXII Chapter XXIII Chapter XXIV Chapter XXV	5 × 90 min (450 min)	women's limited choices • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Socratic seminar on women's limited choices • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt

6	Chapter XXVI Chapter XXVII Chapter XXVIII Chapter XXIX Chapter XXX	5 × 90 min (450 min)	first impressions and prejudice • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Annotation check and vocabulary game • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
7	Chapter XXXI Chapter XXXII Chapter XXXIII Chapter XXXIV Chapter XXXV	5 × 90 min (450 min)	pride and self-knowledge • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Socratic seminar on pride and self-knowledge • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
8	Chapter XXXVI Chapter XXXVII Chapter XXXVIII Chapter XXXIX Chapter XL	5 × 90 min (450 min)	marriage and money • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Annotation check and vocabulary game • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
9	Chapter XLI Chapter XLII Chapter XLIII Chapter XLIV Chapter XLV	5 × 90 min (450 min)	class and social mobility • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Socratic seminar on class and social mobility • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
10	Chapter XLVI Chapter XLVII Chapter XLVIII Chapter	5 × 90 min (450 min)	women's limited choices • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Annotation check and vocabulary game • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt

	XLIX Chapter L
11	Chapter LI Chapter LII Chapter LIII Chapter LIV Chapter LV	5 × 90 min (450 min)	first impressions and prejudice • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Socratic seminar on first impressions and prejudice • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
12	Chapter LVI Chapter LVII Chapter LVIII Chapter LIX Chapter LX	5 × 90 min (450 min)	pride and self-knowledge • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Annotation check and vocabulary game • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Quiz average plus one graded writing prompt
13	Chapter LXI	1 × 90 min (90 min)	marriage and money • Daily 90-minute lesson: bell-ringer, vocabulary and etymology, background, I do / We do / You do, discussion, exit ticket, closure • Chapter quizzes in the app • Socratic seminar on marriage and money • Weekly writing prompt at assigned rigor	Whole-book test and final essay

Lesson plans and lecture scripts

Each chapter is one 90-minute class. Scripts are a starting point; adapt them to your students. Teacher summaries contain spoilers.

Lesson 1: Chapter I

Focus: marriage as a social goal

Teacher only · spoilers

The novel opens with its famous ironic line about a single man in possession of a good fortune. Mrs. Bennet excitedly tells Mr. Bennet that a wealthy young man, Mr. Bingley, has rented Netherfield Park; Mr. Bennet teases her.

Background: In Regency England, daughters of gentry families depended on marriage for security; the Bennet estate is entailed away from daughters.

Significance: The opening sentence is among the most quoted in English and models Austen's irony: it means the reverse of what it seems to say.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does the first sentence really suggest about who wants the marriage? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are newcomers, develop, caprice, tiresome, recommend. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Sir William and Lady Lucas are determined to go, merely on that account, for in general you know they visit no newcomers.” Webster's says: One who has lately come. Now the word history: “newcomer”: -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “develop”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “caprice”: cap (Latin capere, "to take"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. In Regency England, daughters of gentry families depended on marriage for security; the Bennet estate is entailed away from daughters. Why does this chapter matter? The opening sentence is among the most quoted in English and models Austen's irony: it means the reverse of what it seems to say. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to marriage as a social goal.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "My dear, you flatter me. I certainly have had my share of beauty, but I do not pretend to be anything extraordinary now. When a woman has five grown up daughters, she ought to give over thinking of her own beauty."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter I," how does Austen show marriage as a social goal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about marriage as a social goal, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes marriage as a social goal. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
newcomers	One who has lately come	Sir William and Lady Lucas are determined to go, merely on that account, for in general you know they visit no newcomers.	"newcomer": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
develop		Her mind was less difficult to develop.

	To free from that which infolds or envelops		“develop”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
caprice	An abrupt change in feeling, opinion, or action, proceeding from some whim or fancy	Bennet was so odd a mixture of quick parts, sarcastic humour, reserve, and caprice, that the experience of three and twenty years had been insufficient to make his wife understand his character.	“caprice”: cap (Latin capere, "to take"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
tiresome	Fitted or tending to tire	Bennet,” replied his wife, “how can you be so tiresome!	“tiresome”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
recommend	To commend to the favorable notice of another	“They have none of them much to recommend them,” replied he; “they are all silly and ignorant like other girls; but Lizzy has something more of quickness than her sisters.”	“recommend”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
mixture	The act of mixing, or the state of being mixed	Bennet was so odd a mixture of quick parts, sarcastic humour, reserve, and caprice, that the experience of three and twenty years had been insufficient to make his wife understand his character.	“mixture”: -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
reserve	To keep back	Bennet was so odd a mixture of quick parts, sarcastic humour, reserve, and caprice, that the experience of three and twenty years had been insufficient to make his wife understand his character.	“reserve”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
marrying	To unite in wedlock or matrimony	You must know that I am thinking of his marrying one of them.”	“marry”: mar (Latin mare, "sea"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
compassion	Literally, suffering with another	You have no compassion on my poor nerves.”	“compassion”: com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -sion (Latin -sio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
pretend	To lay a claim to	I certainly have had my share of beauty, but I do not pretend to be anything extraordinary now.	“pretend”: pre- (Latin prae, "before") + ten (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. What does the first sentence really suggest about who wants the marriage?
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who has rented Netherfield Park?
   A. Mr. Darcy
   B. Mr. Bingley
   C. Mr. Wickham
   D. Mr. Collins
2. How does Mr. Bennet treat his wife's excitement?
   A. He scolds her angrily
   B. He shares it
   C. He ignores her entirely
   D. He teases her dryly
3. What is the tone of the opening sentence?
   A. Angry
   B. Ironic
   C. Tragic
   D. Mysterious
4. What is Mrs. Bennet's main goal?
   A. Buying a new house
   B. Educating her daughters
   C. Marrying off her daughters
   D. Travelling to London
5. How many daughters do the Bennets have?
   A. Three
   B. Two
   C. Seven
   D. Five
6. In the line “Sir William and Lady Lucas are determined to go, merely on that account, for in general you know they visit no newcomers.”, what does “newcomers” most nearly mean?
   A. Fitted or tending to tire

B. One who has lately come

C. An abrupt change in feeling, opinion, or action, proceeding from some whim or fancy

D. To free from that which infolds or envelops

7. In the line “Her mind was less difficult to develop.”, what does “develop” most nearly mean?

A. One who has lately come

B. An abrupt change in feeling, opinion, or action, proceeding from some whim or fancy

C. To free from that which infolds or envelops

D. Fitted or tending to tire

Answer key: 1. B (Mr. Bingley); 2. D (He teases her dryly); 3. B (Ironic); 4. C (Marrying off her daughters); 5. D (Five); 6. B (One who has lately come); 7. C (To free from that which infolds or envelops)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter I,” how does Austen show marriage as a social goal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter I, how does Austen develop the idea of marriage as a social goal? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter I develops the idea of marriage as a social goal. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter I (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of marriage as a social goal. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter I suggests about marriage as a social goal. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter I to complicate the reader's understanding of marriage as a social goal. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter I within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of marriage as a social goal responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter I alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of marriage as a social goal follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter I and its treatment of marriage as a social goal. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter I as evidence for a larger claim about marriage as a social goal in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter I as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of marriage as a social goal. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Bennet was so odd a mixture of quick parts, sarcastic humour, reserve, and caprice, that the experience of three and twenty years had been insufficient to make his wife understand his character.

   As used in the text, what does the word “caprice” most nearly mean?

   A. To unite in wedlock or matrimony

   B. To lay a claim to

   C. Literally, suffering with another

   D. An abrupt change in feeling, opinion, or action, proceeding from some whim or fancy

2. “My dear, you flatter me. I certainly have had my share of beauty, but I do not pretend to be anything extraordinary now. When a woman has five grown up daughters, she ought to give over thinking of her own beauty.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter I”?

   A. An unhappy marriage observed

   B. A charming stranger

   C. Disappointment and philosophy

   D. Marriage as a social goal

SAT key: 1. D (An abrupt change in feeling, opinion, or action, proceeding from some whim or fancy); 2. D (Marriage as a social goal)

Lesson 2: Chapter II

Focus: family dynamics and anticipation

Teacher only · spoilers

Mr. Bennet reveals he has already visited Mr. Bingley, delighting his wife and daughters after teasing them. The sisters guess when Bingley will come to the next ball.

Background: Social custom required the father to call on a newcomer before the family could be introduced.

Significance: Mr. Bennet's playful withholding shows both wit and a certain irresponsibility as a parent.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Is Mr. Bennet's teasing harmless fun or a sign of a deeper problem? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are fretfully, conjecturing, extracts, adjusting, trimming. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""I do not cough for my own amusement," replied Kitty fretfully." Webster's says: Disposed to fret. Now the word history: "fretful": -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "conjecture": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + ject (Latin iacere, "to throw") + -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "extract": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + tract (Latin trahere, "to draw, pull"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Social custom required the father to call on a newcomer before the family could be introduced. Why does this chapter matter? Mr. Bennet's playful withholding shows both wit and a certain irresponsibility as a parent. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to family dynamics and anticipation.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Mr. Bennet was among the earliest of those who waited on Mr. Bingley. He had always intended to visit him, though to the last always assuring his wife that he should not go; and till the evening after the visit was paid, she had no knowledge of it. It was then disclosed in the following manner. Observing his second daughter employed in trimming a hat, he suddenly addressed her with:

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter II," how does Austen show family dynamics and anticipation? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about family dynamics and anticipation, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes family dynamics and anticipation. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
fretfully	Disposed to fret	"I do not cough for my own amusement," replied Kitty fretfully.	"fretful": -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
conjecturing	An opinion, or judgment, formed on		"conjecture": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + ject (Latin iacere, "to throw") defective or presumptive evidence	The rest of the evening was spent in conjecturing how soon he would return Mr.	+ -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

extracts	To draw out or forth	What say you, Mary? for you are a young lady of deep reflection I know, and read great books, and make extracts."	"extract": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + tract (Latin trahere, "to draw, pull"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
adjusting	To make exact	"While Mary is adjusting her ideas," he continued, "let us return to Mr.	"adjust": ad- (Latin ad, "to, toward"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
trimming	from Trim, v	Observing his second daughter employed in trimming a hat, he suddenly addressed her with:	"trimming": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
deigned	To esteem worthy	Bennet deigned not to make any reply; but unable to contain herself, began scolding one of her daughters.	"deign": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
teasing	To comb or card, as wool or flax	Bennet, impossible, when I am not acquainted with him myself; how can you be so teasing?"	"tease": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
raptures	A seizing by violence	Bennet; and, as he spoke, he left the room, fatigued with the raptures of his wife.	"rapture": -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
fatigued	Weariness from bodily labor or mental exertion	Bennet; and, as he spoke, he left the room, fatigued with the raptures of his wife.	"fatigue": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
determining	To fix the boundaries of	Bennet's visit, and determining when they should ask him to dinner.	"determine": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + min (Latin minor, "smaller"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Is Mr. Bennet's teasing harmless fun or a sign of a deeper problem?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. What has Mr. Bennet secretly done?
   A. Written to Mr. Collins
   B. Invited Darcy
   C. Sold Longbourn
   D. Visited Mr. Bingley
2. Why did a father need to call on a newcomer?
   A. To ask for money
   B. Social custom required it before introductions
   C. To collect rent
   D. To deliver mail
3. How does Mrs. Bennet react to the news?
   A. With fear
   B. With delight
   C. With boredom
   D. With anger
4. Which sister is teased for coughing?
   A. Mary
   B. Kitty
   C. Elizabeth
   D. Jane
5. What trait does Mr. Bennet show here?
   A. Cruelty
   B. Shyness
   C. Greed
   D. Dry wit
6. In the line ""I do not cough for my own amusement," replied Kitty fretfully.", what does "fretfully" most nearly mean?
   A. To make exact
   B. To draw out or forth
   C. An opinion, or judgment, formed on defective or presumptive evidence
   D. Disposed to fret
7. In the line "The rest of the evening was spent in conjecturing how soon he would return Mr.", what does "conjecturing" most nearly mean?
   A. To make exact
   B. Disposed to fret
   C. To draw out or forth
   D. An opinion, or judgment, formed on defective or presumptive evidence

Answer key: 1. D (Visited Mr. Bingley); 2. B (Social custom required it before introductions); 3. B (With delight); 4. B (Kitty); 5. D (Dry wit); 6. D (Disposed to fret); 7. D (An opinion, or judgment, formed on defective or presumptive evidence)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In "Chapter II," how does Austen show family dynamics and anticipation? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter II, how does Austen develop the idea of family dynamics and anticipation? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter II develops the idea of family dynamics and anticipation. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter II (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of family dynamics and anticipation. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter II suggests about family dynamics and anticipation. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter II to complicate the reader's understanding of family dynamics and anticipation. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter II within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of family dynamics and anticipation responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter II alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of family dynamics and anticipation follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter II and its treatment of family dynamics and anticipation. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter II as evidence for a larger claim about family dynamics and anticipation in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter II as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of family dynamics and anticipation. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. What say you, Mary? for you are a young lady of deep reflection I know, and read great books, and make extracts."

   As used in the text, what does the word "extracts" most nearly mean?

   A. Weariness from bodily labor or mental exertion

   B. To fix the boundaries of

   C. To draw out or forth

   D. A seizing by violence

2. Mr. Bennet was among the earliest of those who waited on Mr. Bingley. He had always intended to visit him, though to the last always assuring his wife that he should not go; and till the evening after the visit was paid, she had no knowledge of it. It was then disclosed in the following manner. Observing his second daughter employed in trimming a hat, he suddenly addressed her with:

   Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter II"?

   A. First impressions at the ball

   B. Puzzling visits

   C. Letters of judgment

   D. Family dynamics and anticipation

SAT key: 1. C (To draw out or forth); 2. D (Family dynamics and anticipation)

Lesson 3: Chapter III

Focus: first impressions at the ball

Teacher only · spoilers

At the Meryton assembly, Bingley is lively and dances with Jane twice. His friend Mr. Darcy, though richer, is judged proud and disagreeable; he refuses to dance with Elizabeth, calling her 'tolerable' within her hearing.

Background: Public assemblies were key places for courtship; dancing twice signaled interest.

Significance: Darcy's insult launches the central conflict and the theme of first impressions (Austen's original title).

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does the town change its opinion of Darcy so quickly? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are sprained, suiting, barefaced, surmises, overhear. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Oh! that he had sprained his ankle in the first dance!"" Webster's says: To weaken, as a joint, ligament, or muscle, by sudden and excessive exertion, as by wrenching. Now the word history: "sprain": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "suiting": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it. "barefaced": fac (Latin facere, "to make, do") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Public assemblies were key places for courtship; dancing twice signaled interest. Why does this chapter matter? Darcy's insult launches the central conflict and the theme of first impressions (Austen's original title). Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to first impressions at the ball.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Not all that Mrs. Bennet, however, with the assistance of her five daughters, could ask on the subject was sufficient to draw from her husband any satisfactory description of Mr. Bingley. They attacked him in various ways; with barefaced questions, ingenious suppositions, and distant surmises; but he eluded the skill of them all; and they were at last obliged to accept the secondhand intelligence of their neighbour Lady Lucas. Her report was highly favourable. Sir William had been delighted with him. He was quite young, wonderfully handsome, extremely agreeable, and to crown the whole, he meant to be at the next assembly with a large party. Nothing could be more delightful! To be fond of dancing was a certain step towards falling in love; and very lively hopes of Mr. Bingley's heart were entertained.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter III," how does Austen show first impressions at the ball? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about first impressions at the ball, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes first impressions at the ball. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note

sprained	To weaken, as a joint, ligament, or muscle, by sudden and excessive exertion, as by wrenching	Oh! that he had sprained his ankle in the first dance!"	"sprain": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
suiting	Among tailors, cloth suitable for making entire suits of clothes	"But I can assure you," she added, "that Lizzy does not lose much by not suiting his fancy; for he is a most disagreeable, horrid man, not at all worth pleasing.	"suiting": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
barefaced	With the face uncovered	They attacked him in various ways; with barefaced questions, ingenious suppositions, and distant surmises; but he eluded the skill of them all; and they were at last obliged to accept the secondhand intelligence of their neighbour Lady Lucas.	"barefaced": fac (Latin facere, "to make, do") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
surmises	A thought, imagination, or conjecture, which is based upon feeble or scanty evidence	They attacked him in various ways; with barefaced questions, ingenious suppositions, and distant surmises; but he eluded the skill of them all; and they were at last obliged to accept the secondhand intelligence of their neighbour Lady Lucas.	"surmise": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
overhear	To hear more of (anything) than was intended to be heard	Darcy had been standing near enough for her to overhear a conversation between him and Mr.	"overhear": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
insupportable	Incapable of being supported or borne	At such an assembly as this, it would be insupportable.	"insupportable": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + port (Latin portare, "to carry") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
dispatched	To dispose of speedily, as business	An invitation to dinner was soon afterwards dispatched; and already had Mrs.	"dispatch": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
ascertaining	To render (a person) certain	The ladies were somewhat more fortunate, for they had the advantage of ascertaining from an upper window, that he wore a blue coat and rode a black horse.	"ascertain": as- (Latin ad, "to") + tain (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
quieted	In a state of rest or calm	Lady Lucas quieted her fears a little by starting the idea of his being gone to London only to get a large party for the	"quiet": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up ball; and a report soon followed that Mr.	(Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

fastidious	Difficult to please	"I would not be so fastidious as you are," cried Bingley, "for a kingdom!	"fastidious": -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why does the town change its opinion of Darcy so quickly?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Whom does Bingley dance with twice?
   A. Lydia
   B. Elizabeth
   C. Charlotte
   D. Jane
2. What word does Darcy use about Elizabeth?
   A. Tolerable
   B. Charming
   C. Ugly
   D. Beautiful
3. How does Elizabeth react to the insult?
   A. She cries
   B. She confronts him
   C. She laughs and tells the story to friends
   D. She leaves the ball
4. Why does the town turn against Darcy?
   A. He is poor
   B. He dances too much
   C. He seems proud and disagreeable
   D. He insults Bingley
5. What was the novel's original title?
   A. First Impressions
   B. Lady Susan

C. The Watsons

D. Elinor and Marianne

6. In the line “Oh! that he had sprained his ankle in the first dance!””, what does “sprained” most nearly mean?

A. A thought, imagination, or conjecture, which is based upon feeble or scanty evidence

B. With the face uncovered

C. Among tailors, cloth suitable for making entire suits of clothes

D. To weaken, as a joint, ligament, or muscle, by sudden and excessive exertion, as by wrenching

7. In the line ““But I can assure you,” she added, “that Lizzy does not lose much by not suiting his fancy; for he is a most disagreeable, horrid man, not at all worth pleasing.”, what does “suiting” most nearly mean?

A. A thought, imagination, or conjecture, which is based upon feeble or scanty evidence

B. Among tailors, cloth suitable for making entire suits of clothes

C. To weaken, as a joint, ligament, or muscle, by sudden and excessive exertion, as by wrenching

D. With the face uncovered

Answer key: 1. D (Jane); 2. A (Tolerable); 3. C (She laughs and tells the story to friends); 4. C (He seems proud and disagreeable); 5. A (First Impressions); 6. D (To weaken, as a joint, ligament, or muscle, by sudden and excessive exertion, as by wrenching); 7. B (Among tailors, cloth suitable for making entire suits of clothes)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter III,” how does Austen show first impressions at the ball? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter III, how does Austen develop the idea of first impressions at the ball? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter III develops the idea of first impressions at the ball. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter III (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of first impressions at the ball. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter III suggests about first impressions at the ball. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter III to complicate the reader's understanding of first impressions at the ball. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter III within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of first impressions at the ball responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter III alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of first impressions at the ball follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter III and its treatment of first impressions at the ball. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter III as evidence for a larger claim about first impressions at the ball in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter III as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of first impressions at the ball. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. They attacked him in various ways; with barefaced questions, ingenious suppositions, and distant surmises; but he eluded the skill of them all; and they were at last obliged to accept the secondhand intelligence of their neighbour Lady Lucas.

   As used in the text, what does the word “barefaced” most nearly mean?

   A. In a state of rest or calm

   B. With the face uncovered

   C. To render (a person) certain

   D. Difficult to please

2. Not all that Mrs. Bennet, however, with the assistance of her five daughters, could ask on the subject was sufficient to draw from her husband any satisfactory description of Mr. Bingley. They attacked him in various ways; with barefaced questions, ingenious suppositions, and distant surmises; but he eluded the skill of them all; and they were at last obliged to accept the secondhand intelligence of their neighbour Lady Lucas. Her report was highly favourable. Sir William had been delighted with him. He was quite young, wonderfully handsome, extremely agreeable, and to crown the whole, he meant to be at the next assembly with a large party. Nothing could be more delightful! To be fond of dancing was a certain step towards falling in love; and very lively hopes of Mr. Bingley’s heart were entertained.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter III"?

A. Rejection and the turn to revenge

B. Recovery and false peace

C. The second proposal

D. First impressions at the ball

SAT key: 1. B (With the face uncovered); 2. D (First impressions at the ball)

Lesson 4: Chapter IV

Focus: sisters and judgment

Teacher only · spoilers

Jane confides her admiration of Bingley; Elizabeth praises Jane's habit of seeing good in everyone. The narrator contrasts Bingley's easy temper with Darcy's cleverness and reserve, and introduces Bingley's sisters as proud.

Background: Bingley's fortune came from trade, which the gentry viewed as less respectable than inherited land.

Significance: Elizabeth prides herself on judging character—setting up her later mistakes.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Is Jane's generosity in judging people a strength or a weakness? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are censuring, easiness, endeared, openness, preside. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""I would wish not to be hasty in censuring anyone; but I always speak what I think."" Webster's says: Judgment either favorable or unfavorable. Now the word history: "censure": -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "easiness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "endear": en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Bingley's fortune came from trade, which the gentry viewed as less respectable than inherited land. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth prides herself on judging character—setting up her later mistakes. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to sisters and judgment.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Point of view, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "Did not you? I did for you. But that is one great difference between us. Compliments always take you by surprise, and me never. What could be more natural than his asking you again? He could not help seeing that you were about five times as pretty as every other woman in the room. No thanks to his gallantry for that. Well, he certainly is very agreeable, and I give you leave to like him. You have liked many a stupider person."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Point of view, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter IV," how does Austen show sisters and judgment? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about sisters and judgment, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes sisters and judgment. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
censuring	Judgment either favorable or unfavorable	"I would wish not to be hasty in censuring anyone; but I always speak what I think."	"censure": -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
easiness		Bingley was endeared to Darcy by the easiness, openness, ductility of his temper,

	The state or condition of being easy	though no disposition could offer a greater contrast to his own, and though with his own he never appeared dissatisfied.	“easiness”: -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
endeared	To make dear or beloved	Bingley was endeared to Darcy by the easiness, openness, ductility of his temper, though no disposition could offer a greater contrast to his own, and though with his own he never appeared dissatisfied.	“endear”: en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
openness	The quality or state of being open	Bingley was endeared to Darcy by the easiness, openness, ductility of his temper, though no disposition could offer a greater contrast to his own, and though with his own he never appeared dissatisfied.	“openness”: -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
preside	To be set, or to sit, in the place of authority	His sisters were very anxious for his having an estate of his own; but though he was now established only as a tenant, Miss Bingley was by no means unwilling to preside at his table, nor was Mrs.	“preside”: pre- (Latin prae, "before"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
conceited	Endowed with fancy or imagination	They were in fact very fine ladies; not deficient in good humour when they were pleased, nor in the power of being agreeable where they chose it; but proud and conceited.	“conceited”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
deficient	Wanting, to make up completeness	They were in fact very fine ladies; not deficient in good humour when they were pleased, nor in the power of being agreeable where they chose it; but proud and conceited.	“deficient”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + fic (Latin facere, "to make") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
gallantry	Splendor of appearance	No thanks to his gallantry for that.	“gallantry”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
dissatisfied	To render unsatisfied or discontented	Bingley was endeared to Darcy by the easiness, openness, ductility of his temper, though no disposition could offer a greater contrast to his own, and though with his own he never appeared dissatisfied.	“dissatisfy”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
accidental	Happening by chance, or unexpectedly	Bingley had not been of age two years, when he was tempted by an accidental recommendation to look at Netherfield House.	“accidental”: ac- (Latin ad, "to") + -al (Latin -alis, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Is Jane's generosity in judging people a strength or a weakness?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Point of view: look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. What is Jane's habit in judging others?
   A. She sees good in everyone
   B. She gossips
   C. She distrusts everyone
   D. She judges by wealth
2. Where did Bingley's family fortune come from?
   A. Military service
   B. Gambling
   C. Trade
   D. Land
3. How does the narrator describe Darcy's mind?
   A. Lazy
   B. Simple
   C. Foolish
   D. Clever but reserved
4. How are Bingley's sisters portrayed?
   A. Proud and conceited
   B. Poor
   C. Shy and modest
   D. Kind to all
5. What does Elizabeth pride herself on?
   A. Her music
   B. Her beauty
   C. Her wealth
   D. Judging character
6. In the line ""I would wish not to be hasty in censuring anyone; but I always speak what I think."", what does "censuring" most nearly mean?
   A. To make dear or beloved

B. The quality or state of being open

C. Judgment either favorable or unfavorable

D. The state or condition of being easy

7. In the line “Bingley was endeared to Darcy by the easiness, openness, ductility of his temper, though no disposition could offer a greater contrast to his own, and though with his own he never appeared dissatisfied.”, what does “easiness” most nearly mean?

   A. To make dear or beloved

   B. The quality or state of being open

   C. The state or condition of being easy

   D. Judgment either favorable or unfavorable

Answer key: 1. A (She sees good in everyone); 2. C (Trade); 3. D (Clever but reserved); 4. A (Proud and conceited); 5. D (Judging character); 6. C (Judgment either favorable or unfavorable); 7. C (The state or condition of being easy)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter IV,” how does Austen show sisters and judgment? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter IV, how does Austen develop the idea of sisters and judgment? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter IV develops the idea of sisters and judgment. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and point of view shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter IV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of sisters and judgment. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter IV suggests about sisters and judgment. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and point of view), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter IV to complicate the reader's understanding of sisters and judgment. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter IV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of sisters and judgment responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter IV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of sisters and judgment follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter IV and its treatment of sisters and judgment. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and point of view, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter IV as evidence for a larger claim about sisters and judgment in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter IV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of sisters and judgment. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Bingley was endeared to Darcy by the easiness, openness, ductility of his temper, though no disposition could offer a greater contrast to his own, and though with his own he never appeared dissatisfied.

   As used in the text, what does the word “endeared” most nearly mean?

   A. To make dear or beloved

   B. Splendor of appearance

   C. To render unsatisfied or discontented

   D. Happening by chance, or unexpectedly

2. “Did not you? I did for you. But that is one great difference between us. Compliments always take you by surprise, and me never. What could be more natural than his asking you again? He could not help seeing that you were about five times as pretty as every other woman in the room. No thanks to his gallantry for that. Well, he certainly is very agreeable, and I give you leave to like him. You have liked many a stupider person.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter IV”?

   A. The teacher and the teaching

   B. Recovery and false peace

   C. Sisters and judgment

   D. Injustice and the burden of silence

SAT key: 1. A (To make dear or beloved); 2. C (Sisters and judgment)

Lesson 5: Chapter V

Focus: neighbors and gossip

Teacher only · spoilers

The Bennets discuss the ball with the Lucases. Charlotte Lucas, Elizabeth's practical friend, excuses Darcy's pride; Mary moralizes about pride and vanity.

Background: Sir William Lucas had been knighted after a career in trade, illustrating social climbing.

Significance: Mary's definition separating pride from vanity directly states one of the novel's themes.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How does Mary distinguish pride from vanity, and do you agree? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are inoffensive, supercilious, mortified, relates, protested. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “By nature inoffensive, friendly and obliging, his presentation at St.” Webster's says: Giving no offense, or provocation. Now the word history: “inoffensive”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ive (Latin -ivus, "tending to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “supercilious”: super- (Latin super, "above") + -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “mortify”: mort (Latin mors, "death") + -ify (Latin -ficare, "to make"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Sir William Lucas had been knighted after a career in trade, illustrating social climbing. Why does this chapter matter? Mary's definition separating pride from vanity directly states one of the novel's themes. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to neighbors and gossip.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Tone / mood, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "Pride," observed Mary, who piqued herself upon the solidity of her reflections, "is a very common failing I believe. By all that I have ever read, I am convinced that it is very common indeed, that human nature is particularly prone to it, and that there are very few of us who do not cherish a feeling of self-complacency on the score of some quality or other, real or imaginary. Vanity and pride are different things, though the words are often used synonymously. A person may be proud without being vain. Pride relates more to our opinion of ourselves, vanity to what we would have others think of us."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Tone / mood, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter V," how does Austen show neighbors and gossip? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about neighbors and gossip, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes neighbors and gossip. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
inoffensive	Giving no offense, or provocation	By nature inoffensive, friendly and obliging, his presentation at St.	"inoffensive": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ive (Latin -ivus,

			"tending to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
supercilious	Lofty with pride	For though elated by his rank, it did not render him supercilious; on the contrary, he was all attention to everybody.	"supercilious": super- (Latin super, "above") + -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
mortified	To destroy the organic texture and vital functions of	"That is very true," replied Elizabeth, "and I could easily forgive his pride, if he had not mortified mine."	"mortify": mort (Latin mors, "death") + -ify (Latin -ficare, "to make"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
relates	To bring back	Pride relates more to our opinion of ourselves, vanity to what we would have others think of us."	"relate": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
protested	To affirm in a public or formal manner	The boy protested that she should not; she continued to declare that she would, and the argument ended only with the visit.	"protest": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
tolerable	Capable of being borne or endured	Sir William Lucas had been formerly in trade in Meryton, where he had made a tolerable fortune and risen to the honour of knighthood by an address to the King, during his mayoralty.	"tolerable": -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
communicate	To share in common	That the Miss Lucases and the Miss Bennets should meet to talk over a ball was absolutely necessary; and the morning after the assembly brought the former to Longbourn to hear and to communicate.	"communicate": com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
valuable	Having value or worth	Lady Lucas was a very good kind of woman, not too clever to be a valuable neighbour to Mrs.	"valuable": -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
admired	Regarded with wonder and delight	To be sure that did seem as if he admired her—indeed I rather believe he did—I heard something about it—but I hardly know what—something about Mr.	"admired": ad- (Latin ad, "to, toward") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
intelligent	Endowed with the faculty of understanding or reason	The eldest of them, a sensible, intelligent young woman, about twenty-seven, was Elizabeth's intimate friend.	"intelligent": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. How does Mary distinguish pride from vanity, and do you agree?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.

3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. Who is Charlotte Lucas?
   A. A servant
   B. Darcy's sister
   C. Elizabeth's practical friend
   D. Bingley's sister
2. How did Sir William Lucas rise socially?
   A. He was knighted after trade
   B. He married a duchess
   C. He inherited land
   D. He won a lottery
3. Which sister lectures on pride and vanity?
   A. Kitty
   B. Mary
   C. Jane
   D. Lydia
4. How does Charlotte view Darcy's pride?
   A. As somewhat excusable given his rank
   B. As fake
   C. As monstrous
   D. As charming
5. What is the main activity of this chapter?
   A. A journey
   B. A dinner at Netherfield
   C. A wedding
   D. Discussing the ball
6. In the line “By nature inoffensive, friendly and obliging, his presentation at St.”, what does “inoffensive” most nearly mean?
   A. Giving no offense, or provocation
   B. To bring back
   C. Lofty with pride
   D. To destroy the organic texture and vital functions of

7. In the line “For though elated by his rank, it did not render him supercilious; on the contrary, he was all attention to everybody.”, what does “supercilious” most nearly mean?
   A. Giving no offense, or provocation
   B. To destroy the organic texture and vital functions of
   C. Lofty with pride
   D. To bring back

Answer key: 1. C (Elizabeth's practical friend); 2. A (He was knighted after trade); 3. B (Mary); 4. A (As somewhat excusable given his rank); 5. D (Discussing the ball); 6. A (Giving no offense, or provocation); 7. C (Lofty with pride)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter V,” how does Austen show neighbors and gossip? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter V, how does Austen develop the idea of neighbors and gossip? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter V develops the idea of neighbors and gossip. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and tone / mood shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter V (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of neighbors and gossip. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter V suggests about neighbors and gossip. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and tone / mood), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter V to complicate the reader's understanding of neighbors and gossip. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter V within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of neighbors and gossip responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter V alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of neighbors and gossip follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter V and its treatment of neighbors and gossip. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and tone / mood, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter V as evidence for a larger claim about neighbors and gossip in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter V as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of neighbors and gossip. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. "That is very true," replied Elizabeth, "and I could easily forgive his pride, if he had not mortified mine."

   As used in the text, what does the word "mortified" most nearly mean?

   A. Endowed with the faculty of understanding or reason
   B. To destroy the organic texture and vital functions of
   C. Regarded with wonder and delight
   D. Having value or worth

2. "Pride," observed Mary, who piqued herself upon the solidity of her reflections, "is a very common failing I believe. By all that I have ever read, I am convinced that it is very common indeed, that human nature is particularly prone to it, and that there are very few of us who do not cherish a feeling of self-complacency on the score of some quality or other, real or imaginary. Vanity and pride are different things, though the words are often used synonymously. A person may be proud without being vain. Pride relates more to our opinion of ourselves, vanity to what we would have others think of us."

   Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter V"?

   A. The great confrontation
   B. An unhappy marriage observed
   C. The hidden benefactor
   D. Neighbors and gossip

SAT key: 1. B (To destroy the organic texture and vital functions of); 2. D (Neighbors and gossip)

Lesson 6: Chapter VI

Focus: strategy in courtship

Teacher only · spoilers

Charlotte argues Jane should show more affection to secure Bingley, since 'happiness in marriage is entirely a matter of chance.' Darcy begins to admire Elizabeth's 'fine eyes,' and Miss Bingley teases him about it.

Background: Women could not propose; they had to signal interest within strict propriety.

Significance: Charlotte's pragmatic view of marriage foreshadows her own choice later; Darcy's interest is the novel's first reversal.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Do you agree with Charlotte that happiness in marriage is a matter of chance? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are complaisance, performs, conceals, porridge, simpleton. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""He is indeed—but considering the inducement, my dear Miss Eliza, we cannot wonder at his complaisance; for who would object to such a partner?"" Webster's says: Disposition to please or oblige. Now the word history: "complaisance": com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "perform": per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly") + form (Latin forma, "shape"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "conceal": con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Women could not propose; they had to signal interest within strict propriety. Why does this chapter matter? Charlotte's pragmatic view of marriage foreshadows her own choice later; Darcy's interest is the novel's first reversal. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to strategy in courtship.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Foreshadowing, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> On his approaching them soon afterwards, though without seeming to have any intention of speaking, Miss Lucas defied her friend to mention such a subject to him, which immediately provoking Elizabeth to do it, she turned to him and said—

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Foreshadowing, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter VI," how does Austen show strategy in courtship? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about strategy in courtship, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes strategy in courtship. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
complaisance	Disposition to please or oblige	"He is indeed—but considering the inducement, my dear Miss Eliza, we cannot wonder at his complaisance; for who would object to such a partner?"	"complaisance": com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

performs	To carry through	"Your friend performs delightfully;" he continued after a pause, on seeing Bingley join the group;—"and I doubt not that you are an adept in the science yourself, Mr.	"perform": per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly") + form (Latin forma, "shape"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
conceals	To hide or withdraw from observation	If a woman conceals her affection with the same skill from the object of it, she may lose the opportunity of fixing him; and it will then be but poor consolation to believe the world equally in the dark.	"conceal": con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
porridge	A food made by boiling some leguminous or farinaceous substance, or the meal of it, in water or in milk, making of…	Darcy, "There is a fine old saying, which everybody here is of course familiar with—'Keep your breath to cool your porridge,'—and I shall keep mine to swell my song."	"porridge": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
simpleton	A person of weak intellect	If I can perceive her regard for him, he must be a simpleton indeed not to discover it too."	"simpleton": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
matrimony	The union of man and woman as husband and wife	A lady's imagination is very rapid; it jumps from admiration to love, from love to matrimony in a moment.	"matrimony": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
accosted	Supported on both sides by other charges	Her resistance had not injured her with the gentleman, and he was thinking of her with some complacency, when thus accosted by Miss Bingley—	"accosted": ac- (Latin ad, "to") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
provoking	Having the power or quality of exciting resentment	On his approaching them soon afterwards, though without seeming to have any intention of speaking, Miss Lucas defied her friend to mention such a subject to him, which immediately provoking Elizabeth to do it, she turned to him and said—	"provoking": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + vok (Latin vocare, "to call") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
engrossed	To make gross, thick, or large	Darcy stood near them in silent indignation at such a mode of passing the evening, to the exclusion of all conversation, and was too much engrossed by his own thoughts to perceive that Sir William Lucas was	"engross": en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		his neighbour, till Sir William thus began.
meditating	To keep the mind in a state of contemplation	I have been meditating on the very great pleasure which a pair of fine eyes in the face of a pretty woman can bestow."	"meditate": -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Do you agree with Charlotte that happiness in marriage is a matter of chance?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Foreshadowing: look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. What advice does Charlotte give about Jane?
   A. She should leave Meryton
   B. She should hide her feelings
   C. She should marry Darcy
   D. She should show more affection
2. What does Charlotte say about happiness in marriage?
   A. It is entirely a matter of chance
   B. It is impossible
   C. It is guaranteed by love
   D. It requires wealth
3. What does Darcy begin to admire in Elizabeth?
   A. Her fine eyes
   B. Her fortune
   C. Her singing
   D. Her family
4. Who teases Darcy about Elizabeth?
   A. Lydia
   B. Jane
   C. Mr. Bennet
   D. Miss Bingley
5. What does Charlotte's view foreshadow?
   A. Her own practical marriage

B. Darcy's letter

C. Jane's illness

D. Lydia's elopement

6. In the line ""He is indeed—but considering the inducement, my dear Miss Eliza, we cannot wonder at his complaisance; for who would object to such a partner?"", what does "complaisance" most nearly mean?

A. To carry through

B. To hide or withdraw from observation

C. Disposition to please or oblige

D. A food made by boiling some leguminous or farinaceous substance, or the meal of it, in water or in milk, making of…

7. In the line ""Your friend performs delightfully;" he continued after a pause, on seeing Bingley join the group;—"and I doubt not that you are an adept in the science yourself, Mr.", what does "performs" most nearly mean?

A. Disposition to please or oblige

B. To hide or withdraw from observation

C. A food made by boiling some leguminous or farinaceous substance, or the meal of it, in water or in milk, making of…

D. To carry through

Answer key: 1. D (She should show more affection); 2. A (It is entirely a matter of chance); 3. A (Her fine eyes); 4. D (Miss Bingley); 5. A (Her own practical marriage); 6. C (Disposition to please or oblige); 7. D (To carry through)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In "Chapter VI," how does Austen show strategy in courtship? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter VI, how does Austen develop the idea of strategy in courtship? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter VI develops the idea of strategy in courtship. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and foreshadowing shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter VI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of strategy in courtship. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter VI suggests about strategy in courtship. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and foreshadowing), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter VI to complicate the reader's understanding of strategy in courtship. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter VI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of strategy in courtship responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter VI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of strategy in courtship follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter VI and its treatment of strategy in courtship. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and foreshadowing, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter VI as evidence for a larger claim about strategy in courtship in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter VI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of strategy in courtship. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. If a woman conceals her affection with the same skill from the object of it, she may lose the opportunity of fixing him; and it will then be but poor consolation to believe the world equally in the dark.

   As used in the text, what does the word “conceals” most nearly mean?

   A. To hide or withdraw from observation

   B. To keep the mind in a state of contemplation

   C. Having the power or quality of exciting resentment

   D. To make gross, thick, or large

2. On his approaching them soon afterwards, though without seeming to have any intention of speaking, Miss Lucas defied her friend to mention such a subject to him, which immediately provoking Elizabeth to do it, she turned to him and said—

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter VI”?

   A. Strategy in courtship

B. Learning from the river

C. A practical marriage

D. Horror at the moment of creation

SAT key: 1. A (To hide or withdraw from observation); 2. A (Strategy in courtship)

Lesson 7: Chapter VII

Focus: the entail and the officers

Teacher only · spoilers

We learn Longbourn is entailed to a distant male relative. Kitty and Lydia chase officers stationed in Meryton. Jane, invited to Netherfield, rides there in the rain at her mother's scheming and falls ill; Elizabeth walks three miles through mud to nurse her.

Background: An entail restricted inheritance, usually to male heirs; militia regiments were stationed in towns during the Napoleonic wars.

Significance: Elizabeth's muddy walk shows her independence and affection, shocking the Netherfield ladies.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does Elizabeth's long walk reveal about her values? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are prognostics, coincided, milliner, effusions, justifying. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Jane was therefore obliged to go on horseback, and her mother attended her to the door with many cheerful prognostics of a bad day.” Webster's says: Indicating something future by signs or symptoms. Now the word history: “prognostic”: pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + gnos (Greek gnosis, "knowledge") + -ic (Greek -ikos, "relating to"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “coincide”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “milliner”: -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. An entail restricted inheritance, usually to male heirs; militia regiments were stationed in towns during the Napoleonic wars. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's muddy walk shows her independence and affection, shocking the Netherfield ladies. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for setting.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see setting, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the entail and the officers.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Setting, Plot, Characterization.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of setting. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "This is the only point, I flatter myself, on which we do not agree. I had hoped that our sentiments coincided in every particular, but I must so far differ from you as to think our two youngest daughters uncommonly foolish."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Setting, Plot, Characterization: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter VII," how does Austen show the entail and the officers? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the entail and the officers, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how setting shapes the entail and the officers. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
prognostics

	Indicating something future by signs or symptoms	Jane was therefore obliged to go on horseback, and her mother attended her to the door with many cheerful prognostics of a bad day.	"prognostic": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + gnos (Greek gnosis, "knowledge") + -ic (Greek -ikos, "relating to"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
coincided	To occupy the same place in space, as two equal triangles, when placed one on the other	I had hoped that our sentiments coincided in every particular, but I must so far differ from you as to think our two youngest daughters uncommonly foolish."	"coincide": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
milliner	Formerly, a man who imported and dealt in small articles of a miscellaneous kind, especially such as please the…	The village of Longbourn was only one mile from Meryton; a most convenient distance for the young ladies, who were usually tempted thither three or four times a week, to pay their duty to their aunt and to a milliner's shop just over the way.	"milliner": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
effusions	The act of pouring out	After listening one morning to their effusions on this subject, Mr.	"effusion": -sion (Latin -sio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
justifying	To prove or show to be just	The former was divided between admiration of the brilliancy which exercise had given to her complexion, and doubt as to the occasion's justifying her coming so far alone.	"justify": -ify (Latin -ficare, "to make"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
apothecary	One who prepares and sells drugs or compounds for medicinal purposes	The apothecary came, and having examined his patient, said, as might be supposed, that she had caught a violent cold, and that they must endeavour to get the better of it; advised her to return to bed, and promised her some draughts.	"apothecary": ap- (Latin ad, "to") + the (Greek theos, "god") + -ary (Latin -arius, "connected with"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
draughts	A mild vesicatory	The apothecary came, and having examined his patient, said, as might be supposed, that she had caught a violent cold, and that they must endeavour to get the better of it; advised her to return to bed, and promised her some draughts.	"draughts": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
compassionate	Having a temper or disposition to pity	"If you are not so compassionate as to dine today with Louisa and me, we shall be in danger of hating each other for the rest of our lives, for a	"compassionate": com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + pass (Latin passus, "step") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher whole day's tête-à-tête between two women can never end without a quarrel.	note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

politely	In a polished manner	She was received, however, very politely by them; and in their brother's manners there was something better than politeness; there was good humour and kindness.	"politely": -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
headache	Pain in the head	Jones—therefore do not be alarmed if you should hear of his having been to me—and excepting a sore-throat and headache there is not much the matter with me.	"headache": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. What does Elizabeth's long walk reveal about her values?
2. Where does setting appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Setting: look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them

Chapter quiz

1. What is an entail?
   A. A kind of carriage
   B. A dance
   C. A legal limit passing property to a set heir
   D. A marriage contract
2. Who chase the officers?
   A. Mrs. Bennet
   B. Jane and Elizabeth
   C. Mary and Charlotte
   D. Kitty and Lydia
3. Why does Mrs. Bennet send Jane on horseback?
   A. For exercise
   B. To save money
   C. Because the carriage is broken
   D. So rain will force her to stay at Netherfield

4. What happens to Jane?
   A. She is engaged
   B. She gets lost
   C. She catches a cold and must stay
   D. She meets Wickham
5. How does Elizabeth reach Netherfield?
   A. On horseback
   B. She walks through mud
   C. By carriage
   D. By boat
6. In the line "Jane was therefore obliged to go on horseback, and her mother attended her to the door with many cheerful prognostics of a bad day.", what does "prognostics" most nearly mean?
   A. The act of pouring out
   B. To occupy the same place in space, as two equal triangles, when placed one on the other
   C. Indicating something future by signs or symptoms
   D. Formerly, a man who imported and dealt in small articles of a miscellaneous kind, especially such as please the…
7. In the line "I had hoped that our sentiments coincided in every particular, but I must so far differ from you as to think our two youngest daughters uncommonly foolish."", what does "coincided" most nearly mean?
   A. Formerly, a man who imported and dealt in small articles of a miscellaneous kind, especially such as please the…
   B. To occupy the same place in space, as two equal triangles, when placed one on the other
   C. Indicating something future by signs or symptoms
   D. The act of pouring out

Answer key: 1. C (A legal limit passing property to a set heir); 2. D (Kitty and Lydia); 3. D (So rain will force her to stay at Netherfield); 4. C (She catches a cold and must stay); 5. B (She walks through mud); 6. C (Indicating something future by signs or symptoms); 7. B (To occupy the same place in space, as two equal triangles, when placed one on the other)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In "Chapter VII," how does Austen show the entail and the officers? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter VII, how does Austen develop the idea of the entail and the officers? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter VII develops the idea of the entail and the officers. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and plot shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter VII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of the entail and the officers. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter VII suggests about the entail and the officers. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's setting and plot), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.3, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses setting in Chapter VII to complicate the reader's understanding of the entail and the officers. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.3, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter VII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the entail and the officers responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.3, C2.W.1): Read Chapter VII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the entail and the officers follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.3, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter VII and its treatment of the entail and the officers. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's setting and plot, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.3, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter VII as evidence for a larger claim about the entail and the officers in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.3, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter VII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the entail and the officers. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. The village of Longbourn was only one mile from Meryton; a most convenient distance for the young ladies, who were usually tempted thither three or four times a week, to pay their duty to their aunt and to a milliner's shop just over the way.

   As used in the text, what does the word "milliner" most nearly mean?

   A. Pain in the head

B. In a polished manner

C. Having a temper or disposition to pity

D. Formerly, a man who imported and dealt in small articles of a miscellaneous kind, especially such as please the…

2. "This is the only point, I flatter myself, on which we do not agree. I had hoped that our sentiments coincided in every particular, but I must so far differ from you as to think our two youngest daughters uncommonly foolish."

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter VII"?

A. Learning from the river

B. The final reckoning

C. The entail and the officers

D. Visit to Hunsford

SAT key: 1. D (Formerly, a man who imported and dealt in small articles of a miscellaneous kind, especially such as please the…); 2. C (The entail and the officers)

Lesson 8: Chapter VIII

Focus: the accomplished woman

Teacher only · spoilers

At Netherfield the Bingley sisters mock Elizabeth's muddy petticoat. Darcy, Miss Bingley and Elizabeth debate what makes an 'accomplished' woman; Darcy adds 'extensive reading.'

Background: Female 'accomplishments' (music, drawing, languages) were valued as marriage assets.

Significance: Elizabeth's skepticism about impossible standards is a sly critique of how women were judged.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does the debate about accomplishments reveal about each speaker? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are undervaluing, netting, scampering, solaced, inattention. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""Eliza Bennet," said Miss Bingley, when the door was closed on her, "is one of those young ladies who seek to recommend themselves to the other sex, by undervaluing their own; and with many men, I dare say, it succeeds." Webster's says: To value, rate, or estimate below the real worth. Now the word history: "undervalue": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "netting": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it. "scamper": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Female 'accomplishments' (music, drawing, languages) were valued as marriage assets. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's skepticism about impossible standards is a sly critique of how women were judged. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the accomplished woman.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "Yes, all of them, I think. They all paint tables, cover screens and net purses. I scarcely know anyone who cannot do all this, and I am sure I never heard a young lady spoken of for the first time, without being informed that she was very accomplished."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter VIII," how does Austen show the accomplished woman? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the accomplished woman, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes the accomplished woman. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
undervaluing	To value, rate, or estimate below the real worth	"Eliza Bennet," said Miss Bingley, when the door was closed on her, "is one of those young ladies who seek to recommend themselves to the other sex, by undervaluing their own; and with many men, I dare say, it succeeds.	"undervalue": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

netting	The act or process of making nets or network, or of forming meshes, as for fancywork, fishing nets, etc	The word is applied to many a woman who deserves it no otherwise than by netting a purse, or covering a screen.	"netting": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
scampering	To run with speed	Why must she be scampering about the country, because her sister had a cold?	"scamper": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
solaced	Comfort in grief	They solaced their wretchedness, however, by duets after supper, while he could find no better relief to his feelings than by giving his housekeeper directions that every possible attention might be paid to the sick lady and her sister.	"solace": sol (Latin solus, "alone" / sol, "sun"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
inattention	Want of attention, or failure to pay attention	Hurst called them to order, with bitter complaints of their inattention to what was going forward.	"inattention": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + ten (Latin tenere, "to hold") + -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
screens	Anything that separates or cuts off inconvience, injury, or danger	They all paint tables, cover screens and net purses.	"screen": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
pianoforte	A well-known musical instrument somewhat resembling the harpsichord, and consisting of a sreies of wires of…	Her performance on the pianoforte is exquisite."	"pianoforte": fort (Latin fortis, "strong"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
materially	In the state of matter	"But it must very materially lessen their chance of marrying men of any consideration in the world," replied Darcy.	"materially": -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
despises	To look down upon with disfavor or contempt	"Miss Eliza Bennet," said Miss Bingley, "despises cards.	"despise": de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
condescend	To stoop or descend	"Undoubtedly," replied Darcy, to whom this remark was chiefly addressed, "there is meanness in all the arts which	"condescend": con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		ladies sometimes condescend to employ for captivation.

Discussion questions

1. What does the debate about accomplishments reveal about each speaker?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. What do the Bingley sisters mock?
   A. Jane's illness
   B. Mr. Bennet's wit
   C. Elizabeth's muddy petticoat
   D. Darcy's books
2. What does Darcy add to the list of accomplishments?
   A. Dancing
   B. Wealth
   C. Extensive reading
   D. Cooking
3. How does Elizabeth respond to the long list?
   A. She agrees completely
   B. She lists her own skills
   C. She doubts any woman meets it
   D. She leaves
4. Why were accomplishments valued?
   A. They improved marriage prospects
   B. They were required by law
   C. They prevented illness
   D. They paid wages
5. Who praises Darcy's library to win him?
   A. Miss Bingley
   B. Mrs. Hurst
   C. Elizabeth
   D. Jane

6. In the line ““Eliza Bennet,” said Miss Bingley, when the door was closed on her, “is one of those young ladies who seek to recommend themselves to the other sex, by undervaluing their own; and with many men, I dare say, it succeeds.”, what does “undervaluing” most nearly mean?
   A. To run with speed
   B. The act or process of making nets or network, or of forming meshes, as for fancywork, fishing nets, etc
   C. Comfort in grief
   D. To value, rate, or estimate below the real worth
7. In the line “The word is applied to many a woman who deserves it no otherwise than by netting a purse, or covering a screen.”, what does “netting” most nearly mean?
   A. The act or process of making nets or network, or of forming meshes, as for fancywork, fishing nets, etc
   B. To run with speed
   C. Comfort in grief
   D. To value, rate, or estimate below the real worth

Answer key: 1. C (Elizabeth's muddy petticoat); 2. C (Extensive reading); 3. C (She doubts any woman meets it); 4. A (They improved marriage prospects); 5. A (Miss Bingley); 6. D (To value, rate, or estimate below the real worth); 7. A (The act or process of making nets or network, or of forming meshes, as for fancywork, fishing nets, etc)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter VIII,” how does Austen show the accomplished woman? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter VIII, how does Austen develop the idea of the accomplished woman? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter VIII develops the idea of the accomplished woman. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter VIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of the accomplished woman. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter VIII suggests about the accomplished woman. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter VIII to complicate the reader's understanding of the accomplished woman.

Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter VIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the accomplished woman responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter VIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the accomplished woman follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter VIII and its treatment of the accomplished woman. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter VIII as evidence for a larger claim about the accomplished woman in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter VIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the accomplished woman. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Why must she be scampering about the country, because her sister had a cold?

   As used in the text, what does the word “scampering” most nearly mean?

   A. To run with speed

   B. In the state of matter

   C. To look down upon with disfavor or contempt

   D. To stoop or descend

2. “Yes, all of them, I think. They all paint tables, cover screens and net purses. I scarcely know anyone who cannot do all this, and I am sure I never heard a young lady spoken of for the first time, without being informed that she was very accomplished.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter VIII”?

   A. Cold reception

   B. The accomplished woman

   C. A persuasive tale

D. Family dynamics and anticipation

SAT key: 1. A (To run with speed); 2. B (The accomplished woman)

Lesson 9: Chapter IX

Focus: embarrassing relations

Teacher only · spoilers

Mrs. Bennet visits Netherfield with Lydia and Kitty, embarrassing Elizabeth by boasting and mocking Darcy. Lydia demands that Bingley hold a ball.

Background: Public behavior reflected on a family's whole reputation in genteel society.

Significance: Mrs. Bennet's lack of propriety becomes a real obstacle to her daughters' prospects.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How does Mrs. Bennet's behavior hurt the daughters she wants to help? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are witticisms, nourishes, trespass, profuse, exposing. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Darcy; the latter of whom, however, could not be prevailed on to join in their censure of her, in spite of all Miss Bingley's witticisms on fine eyes." Webster's says: A witty saying. Now the word history: "witticism": -ism (Greek -ismos, "practice, belief"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "nourish": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "trespass": pass (Latin passus, "step"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Public behavior reflected on a family's whole reputation in genteel society. Why does this chapter matter? Mrs. Bennet's lack of propriety becomes a real obstacle to her daughters' prospects. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to embarrassing relations.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Tone / mood, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Elizabeth passed the chief of the night in her sister's room, and in the morning had the pleasure of being able to send a tolerable answer to the enquiries which she very early received from Mr. Bingley by a housemaid, and some time afterwards from the two elegant ladies who waited on his sisters. In spite of this amendment, however, she requested to have a note sent to Longbourn, desiring her mother to visit Jane, and form her own judgment of her situation. The note was immediately dispatched, and its contents as quickly complied with. Mrs. Bennet, accompanied by her two youngest girls, reached Netherfield soon after the family breakfast.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Tone / mood, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter IX," how does Austen show embarrassing relations? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about embarrassing relations, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes embarrassing relations. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
witticisms	A witty saying	Darcy; the latter of whom, however, could not be prevailed on to join in their	"witticism": -ism (Greek -ismos, "practice, belief"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		censure of her, in spite of all Miss Bingley's witticisms on fine eyes.
nourishes	To feed and cause to grow	Everything nourishes what is strong already.	"nourish": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
trespass	To pass beyond a limit or boundary	We must trespass a little longer on your kindness."	"trespass": pass (Latin passus, "step"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
profuse	Pouring forth with fullness or exuberance	Bennet was profuse in her acknowledgments.	"profuse": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
exposing	To set forth	Darcy only smiled; and the general pause which ensued made Elizabeth tremble lest her mother should be exposing herself again.	"expose": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
amendment	An alteration or change for the better	In spite of this amendment, however, she requested to have a note sent to Longbourn, desiring her mother to visit Jane, and form her own judgment of her situation.	"amendment": -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
efficacy	Power to produce effects	I wonder who first discovered the efficacy of poetry in driving away love!"	"efficacy": fic (Latin facere, "to make"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
complied	To yield assent	The note was immediately dispatched, and its contents as quickly complied with.	"comply": -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
troubling	To put into confused motion	Bingley for his kindness to Jane, with an apology for troubling him also with Lizzy.	"trouble": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
genteel	Possessing or exhibiting the qualities popularly regarded as belonging to high birth and breeding	Bingley—is not he? so much the man of fashion! so genteel and so easy!—He has always something to say to everybody.	"genteel": gen (Latin/Greek genus, "birth, kind"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. How does Mrs. Bennet's behavior hurt the daughters she wants to help?

2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Who visits Netherfield to check on Jane?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Mrs. Bennet with Lydia and Kitty
   C. Mr. Collins
   D. Mr. Bennet alone
2. How does Elizabeth feel during the visit?
   A. Bored
   B. Angry with Jane
   C. Embarrassed
   D. Proud
3. What does Lydia ask Bingley to hold?
   A. A dinner
   B. A ball
   C. A concert
   D. A hunt
4. How does Mrs. Bennet treat Darcy?
   A. Rudely
   B. Shyly
   C. Flirtatiously
   D. Respectfully
5. Why does family behavior matter?
   A. It is illegal
   B. It affects the daughters' reputation
   C. It affects the weather
   D. It changes the entail
6. In the line “Darcy; the latter of whom, however, could not be prevailed on to join in their censure of her, in spite of all Miss Bingley’s witticisms on fine eyes.”, what does “witticisms” most nearly mean?
   A. A witty saying
   B. To pass beyond a limit or boundary
   C. Pouring forth with fullness or exuberance

D. To feed and cause to grow

7. In the line “Everything nourishes what is strong already.”, what does “nourishes” most nearly mean?

A. Pouring forth with fullness or exuberance

B. To feed and cause to grow

C. To pass beyond a limit or boundary

D. A witty saying

Answer key: 1. B (Mrs. Bennet with Lydia and Kitty); 2. C (Embarrassed); 3. B (A ball); 4. A (Rudely); 5. B (It affects the daughters' reputation); 6. A (A witty saying); 7. B (To feed and cause to grow)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter IX,” how does Austen show embarrassing relations? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter IX, how does Austen develop the idea of embarrassing relations? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter IX develops the idea of embarrassing relations. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and tone / mood shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter IX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of embarrassing relations. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter IX suggests about embarrassing relations. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and tone / mood), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter IX to complicate the reader's understanding of embarrassing relations. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter IX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of embarrassing relations responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter IX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of embarrassing relations follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter IX and its treatment of embarrassing relations. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and tone / mood, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter IX as evidence for a larger claim about embarrassing relations in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter IX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of embarrassing relations. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. We must trespass a little longer on your kindness."

   As used in the text, what does the word "trespass" most nearly mean?

   A. Possessing or exhibiting the qualities popularly regarded as belonging to high birth and breeding

   B. To put into confused motion

   C. To yield assent

   D. To pass beyond a limit or boundary

2. Elizabeth passed the chief of the night in her sister's room, and in the morning had the pleasure of being able to send a tolerable answer to the enquiries which she very early received from Mr. Bingley by a housemaid, and some time afterwards from the two elegant ladies who waited on his sisters. In spite of this amendment, however, she requested to have a note sent to Longbourn, desiring her mother to visit Jane, and form her own judgment of her situation. The note was immediately dispatched, and its contents as quickly complied with. Mrs. Bennet, accompanied by her two youngest girls, reached Netherfield soon after the family breakfast.

   Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter IX"?

   A. A privileged childhood and family love

   B. Wisdom cannot be taught

   C. Embarrassing relations

   D. Music, wit and manners

SAT key: 1. D (To pass beyond a limit or boundary); 2. C (Embarrassing relations)

Lesson 10: Chapter X

Focus: wit as courtship

Teacher only · spoilers

Miss Bingley flatters Darcy as he writes a letter; Elizabeth and Darcy spar over Bingley's 'humility' and persuadability. Darcy asks Elizabeth to dance a reel; she refuses wittily, and he finds himself 'bewitched.'

Background: Letter writing was a central social skill and a sign of character.

Significance: Their verbal duels reveal mutual attraction neither admits.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Darcy enjoy Elizabeth's refusal rather than resent it? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are appertain, overthrowing, celerity, rambled, premeditated. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""Will it not be advisable, before we proceed on this subject, to arrange with rather more precision the degree of importance which is to appertain to this request, as well as the degree of intimacy subsisting between the parties?"" Webster's says: To belong or pertain, whether by right, nature, appointment, or custom. Now the word history: "appertain": ap- (Latin ad, "to") + tain (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "overthrow": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "celerity": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Letter writing was a central social skill and a sign of character. Why does this chapter matter? Their verbal duels reveal mutual attraction neither admits. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to wit as courtship.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "I dare say you believed it; but I am by no means convinced that you would be gone with such celerity. Your conduct would be quite as dependant on chance as that of any man I know; and if, as you were mounting your horse, a friend were to say, 'Bingley, you had better stay till next week,' you would probably do it, you would probably not go—and, at another word, might stay a month."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter X," how does Austen show wit as courtship? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about wit as courtship, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes wit as courtship. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
appertain	To belong or pertain, whether by right, nature, appointment, or custom	"Will it not be advisable, before we proceed on this subject, to arrange with rather more precision the degree of importance which is to appertain to this	"appertain": ap- (Latin ad, "to") + tain (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

		request, as well as the degree of intimacy subsisting between the parties?"
overthrowing	To throw over	You wanted me, I know, to say 'Yes,' that you might have the pleasure of despising my taste; but I always delight in overthrowing those kind of schemes, and cheating a person of their premeditated contempt.	"overthrow": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
celerity	Rapidity of motion	"I dare say you believed it; but I am by no means convinced that you would be gone with such celerity.	"celerity": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
rambled	To walk, ride, or sail, from place to place, without any determinate object in view	She then ran gaily off, rejoicing as she rambled about, in the hope of being at home again in a day or two.	"ramble": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
premeditated	To think on, and revolve in the mind, beforehand	You wanted me, I know, to say 'Yes,' that you might have the pleasure of despising my taste; but I always delight in overthrowing those kind of schemes, and cheating a person of their premeditated contempt.	"premeditate": pre- (Latin prae, "before") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
adhering	To stick fast or cleave, as a glutinous substance does	Darcy then consider the rashness of your original intention as atoned for by your obstinacy in adhering to it?"	"adhere": ad- (Latin ad, "to, toward"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
bordering	The outer part or edge of anything, as of a garment, a garden, etc.; margin	And, if I may mention so delicate a subject, endeavour to check that little something, bordering on conceit and impertinence, which your lady possesses."	"border": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
indignity	Any action toward another which manifests contempt for him	Miss Bingley warmly resented the indignity he had received, in an expostulation with her brother for talking such nonsense.	"indignity": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
converting	To cause to turn	"I am exceedingly gratified," said Bingley, "by your converting what my friend says into a compliment on the sweetness of my temper.	"convert": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + vert (Latin vertere, "to turn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
charmingly	Pleasing the mind or senses in a high degree	You are charmingly group'd, and appear to uncommon advantage.	"charming": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Darcy enjoy Elizabeth's refusal rather than resent it?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. What is Darcy doing while Miss Bingley flatters him?
   A. Playing cards
   B. Reading
   C. Writing a letter
   D. Painting
2. What trait of Bingley do they debate?
   A. His dancing
   B. How easily he is persuaded
   C. His health
   D. His wealth
3. What does Elizabeth refuse?
   A. To leave Netherfield
   B. To play the piano
   C. To dance a reel with Darcy
   D. To marry Collins
4. How does Darcy feel about Elizabeth?
   A. Indifferent
   B. Increasingly attracted
   C. Disgusted
   D. Afraid
5. What literary device fills their conversations?
   A. Allegory
   B. Flashback
   C. Rhyme
   D. Witty irony

6. In the line ““Will it not be advisable, before we proceed on this subject, to arrange with rather more precision the degree of importance which is to appertain to this request, as well as the degree of intimacy subsisting between the parties?””, what does “appertain” most nearly mean?
   A. To belong or pertain, whether by right, nature, appointment, or custom
   B. To throw over
   C. To walk, ride, or sail, from place to place, without any determinate object in view
   D. Rapidity of motion
7. In the line “You wanted me, I know, to say ‘Yes,’ that you might have the pleasure of despising my taste; but I always delight in overthrowing those kind of schemes, and cheating a person of their premeditated contempt.”, what does “overthrowing” most nearly mean?
   A. To walk, ride, or sail, from place to place, without any determinate object in view
   B. Rapidity of motion
   C. To belong or pertain, whether by right, nature, appointment, or custom
   D. To throw over

Answer key: 1. C (Writing a letter); 2. B (How easily he is persuaded); 3. C (To dance a reel with Darcy); 4. B (Increasingly attracted); 5. D (Witty irony); 6. A (To belong or pertain, whether by right, nature, appointment, or custom); 7. D (To throw over)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter X,” how does Austen show wit as courtship? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter X, how does Austen develop the idea of wit as courtship? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter X develops the idea of wit as courtship. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter X (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of wit as courtship. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter X suggests about wit as courtship. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter X to complicate the reader's understanding of wit as courtship. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter X within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of wit as courtship responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter X alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of wit as courtship follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter X and its treatment of wit as courtship. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter X as evidence for a larger claim about wit as courtship in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter X as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of wit as courtship. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. “I dare say you believed it; but I am by no means convinced that you would be gone with such celerity.

   As used in the text, what does the word “celerity” most nearly mean?

   A. Rapidity of motion

   B. Any action toward another which manifests contempt for him

   C. Pleasing the mind or senses in a high degree

   D. To cause to turn

2. “I dare say you believed it; but I am by no means convinced that you would be gone with such celerity. Your conduct would be quite as dependant on chance as that of any man I know; and if, as you were mounting your horse, a friend were to say, ‘Bingley, you had better stay till next week,’ you would probably do it, you would probably not go—and, at another word, might stay a month.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter X”?

   A. First experiences of the senses

   B. Family uproar

   C. The great confrontation

   D. Wit as courtship

SAT key: 1. A (Rapidity of motion); 2. D (Wit as courtship)

Lesson 11: Chapter XI

Focus: character flaws examined

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth and Darcy discuss faults: he admits to a resentful temper—'my good opinion once lost is lost forever'—while she teases that his flaw is to hate everybody.

Background: Self-examination was a common moral exercise in conduct literature.

Significance: Darcy names his pride directly; the novel will test whether either can change.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Darcy says his good opinion once lost is lost forever. Is this pride or integrity? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are insufferably, disappointing, persevered, bracelets, weaknesses. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""I should like balls infinitely better," she replied, "if they were carried on in a different manner; but there is something insufferably tedious in the usual process of such a meeting." Webster's says: In a manner or to a degree beyond endurance. Now the word history: "insufferably": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + fer (Latin ferre, "to carry, bear") + -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "disappoint": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "persevere": per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Self-examination was a common moral exercise in conduct literature. Why does this chapter matter? Darcy names his pride directly; the novel will test whether either can change. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to character flaws examined.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> But when the gentlemen entered, Jane was no longer the first object. Miss Bingley's eyes were instantly turned towards Darcy, and she had something to say to him before he had advanced many steps. He addressed himself directly to Miss Bennet, with a polite congratulation; Mr. Hurst also made her a slight bow, and said he was "very glad;" but diffuseness and warmth remained for Bingley's salutation. He was full of joy and attention. The first half hour was spent in piling up the fire, lest she should suffer from the change of room; and she removed at his desire to the other side of the fireplace, that she might be farther from the door. He then sat down by her, and talked scarcely to anyone else. Elizabeth, at work in the opposite corner, saw it all with great delight.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XI," how does Austen show character flaws examined? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about character flaws examined, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes character flaws examined. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note

insufferably	In a manner or to a degree beyond endurance	"I should like balls infinitely better," she replied, "if they were carried on in a different manner; but there is something insufferably tedious in the usual process of such a meeting.	"insufferably": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + fer (Latin ferre, "to carry, bear") + -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
disappointing	To defeat of expectation or hope	"Not at all," was her answer; "but depend upon it, he means to be severe on us, and our surest way of disappointing him, will be to ask nothing about it."	"disappoint": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
persevered	To persist in any business or enterprise undertaken	Darcy in anything, and persevered therefore in requiring an explanation of his two motives.	"persevere": per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
bracelets	An ornamental band or ring, for the wrist or the arm	Hurst, principally occupied in playing with her bracelets and rings, joined now and then in her brother's conversation with Miss Bennet.	"bracelet": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
weaknesses	The quality or state of being weak	But it has been the study of my life to avoid those weaknesses which often expose a strong understanding to ridicule."	"weakness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
studious	Given to study	Her figure was elegant, and she walked well;—but Darcy, at whom it was all aimed, was still inflexibly studious.	"studious": -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
joining	To bring together, literally or figuratively	He was directly invited to join their party, but he declined it, observing that he could imagine but two motives for their choosing to walk up and down the room together, with either of which motives his joining them would interfere.	"join": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
chooses	To make choice of	"If you mean Darcy," cried her brother, "he may go to bed, if he chooses, before it begins—but as for the ball, it is quite a settled thing; and as soon as Nicholls has made white soup enough I shall send round my cards."	"choose": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
calmness	The state of quality of being calm	Tease calmness of temper and presence of mind!	"calmness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
fireplace	The part a chimney appropriated to the fire	The first half hour was spent in piling up the fire, lest she should suffer from the change of room; and she removed at his	"fireplace": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

		desire to the other side of the fireplace, that she might be farther from the door.

Discussion questions

1. Darcy says his good opinion once lost is lost forever. Is this pride or integrity?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. What fault does Darcy admit?
   A. Greed
   B. Cowardice
   C. Laziness
   D. A resentful temper
2. What does Elizabeth say is Darcy's defect?
   A. Vanity about looks
   B. Shyness
   C. Poverty
   D. A tendency to hate everybody
3. Who invites Elizabeth to walk around the room?
   A. Miss Bingley
   B. Darcy
   C. Mrs. Hurst
   D. Jane
4. What does Elizabeth refuse to laugh at?
   A. Whims
   B. Folly
   C. Wisdom and goodness
   D. Nonsense
5. Which theme does this conversation develop?
   A. Pride and self-knowledge
   B. Travel
   C. War
   D. Money only

6. In the line ““I should like balls infinitely better,” she replied, “if they were carried on in a different manner; but there is something insufferably tedious in the usual process of such a meeting.”, what does “insufferably” most nearly mean?
   A. An ornamental band or ring, for the wrist or the arm
   B. In a manner or to a degree beyond endurance
   C. To defeat of expectation or hope
   D. To persist in any business or enterprise undertaken
7. In the line ““Not at all,” was her answer; “but depend upon it, he means to be severe on us, and our surest way of disappointing him, will be to ask nothing about it.””, what does “disappointing” most nearly mean?
   A. To persist in any business or enterprise undertaken
   B. An ornamental band or ring, for the wrist or the arm
   C. In a manner or to a degree beyond endurance
   D. To defeat of expectation or hope

Answer key: 1. D (A resentful temper); 2. D (A tendency to hate everybody); 3. A (Miss Bingley); 4. C (Wisdom and goodness); 5. A (Pride and self-knowledge); 6. B (In a manner or to a degree beyond endurance); 7. D (To defeat of expectation or hope)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XI,” how does Austen show character flaws examined? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XI, how does Austen develop the idea of character flaws examined? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XI develops the idea of character flaws examined. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of character flaws examined. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XI suggests about character flaws examined. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XI to complicate the reader's understanding of character flaws examined. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of character flaws examined responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of character flaws examined follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XI and its treatment of character flaws examined. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XI as evidence for a larger claim about character flaws examined in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of character flaws examined. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Darcy in anything, and persevered therefore in requiring an explanation of his two motives.

   As used in the text, what does the word “persevered” most nearly mean?

   A. The state of quality of being calm

   B. To persist in any business or enterprise undertaken

   C. To make choice of

   D. The part a chimney appropriated to the fire

2. But when the gentlemen entered, Jane was no longer the first object. Miss Bingley’s eyes were instantly turned towards Darcy, and she had something to say to him before he had advanced many steps. He addressed himself directly to Miss Bennet, with a polite congratulation; Mr. Hurst also made her a slight bow, and said he was “very glad;” but diffuseness and warmth remained for Bingley’s salutation. He was full of joy and attention. The first half hour was spent in piling up the fire, lest she should suffer from the change of room; and she removed at his desire to the other side of the fireplace, that she might be farther from the door. He then sat down by her, and talked scarcely to anyone else. Elizabeth, at work in the opposite corner, saw it all with great delight.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XI”?

   A. Despair and the sublime

B. Character flaws examined

C. The first spark of obsession

D. An unhappy marriage observed

SAT key: 1. B (To persist in any business or enterprise undertaken); 2. B (Character flaws examined)

Lesson 12: Chapter XII

Focus: departure and relief

Teacher only · spoilers

The sisters return home to Longbourn. Darcy, alarmed by his attraction, resolves to give Elizabeth no further encouragement. Mrs. Bennet is displeased they came back so soon.

Background: Extended visits were common; leaving too early or too late could seem impolite.

Significance: Darcy's inner resistance shows class pride battling feeling.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Darcy decide to avoid Elizabeth? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are needlessly, postscript, intruding, exceeded, welcomed. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Against staying longer, however, Elizabeth was positively resolved —nor did she much expect it would be asked; and fearful, on the contrary, as being considered as intruding themselves needlessly long, she urged Jane to borrow Mr.” Webster's says: Having no need. Now the word history: “needless”: -less (Old English -leas, "without"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “postscript”: script (Latin scribere, "to write"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “intrude”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Extended visits were common; leaving too early or too late could seem impolite. Why does this chapter matter? Darcy's inner resistance shows class pride battling feeling. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to departure and relief.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> The communication excited many professions of concern; and enough was said of wishing them to stay at least till the following day to work on Jane; and till the morrow, their going was deferred. Miss Bingley was then sorry that she had proposed the delay, for her jealousy and dislike of one sister much exceeded her affection for the other.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XII," how does Austen show departure and relief? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about departure and relief, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes departure and relief. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
needlessly	Having no need	Against staying longer, however, Elizabeth was positively resolved—nor did she much expect it would be asked; and fearful, on the contrary, as being considered as intruding	"needless": -less (Old English -leas, "without"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		themselves needlessly long, she urged Jane to borrow Mr.
postscript	A paragraph added to a letter after it is concluded and signed by the writer	Bennet sent them word that they could not possibly have the carriage before Tuesday; and in her postscript it was added, that if Mr.	“postscript”: script (Latin scribere, "to write"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
intruding	To thrust one's self in	Against staying longer, however, Elizabeth was positively resolved—nor did she much expect it would be asked; and fearful, on the contrary, as being considered as intruding themselves needlessly long, she urged Jane to borrow Mr.	“intrude”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
exceeded	To go beyond	Miss Bingley was then sorry that she had proposed the delay, for her jealousy and dislike of one sister much exceeded her affection for the other.	“exceed”: ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + ceed (Latin cedere, "to go"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
welcomed	Received with gladness	They were not welcomed home very cordially by their mother.	“welcome”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
assembled	To collect into one place or body	The evening conversation, when they were all assembled, had lost much of its animation, and almost all its sense, by the absence of Jane and Elizabeth.	“assemble”: as- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
attracted	To draw to, or cause to tend to	She attracted him more than he liked—and Miss Bingley was uncivil to her, and more teasing than usual to himself.	“attract”: at- (Latin ad, "to") + tract (Latin trahere, "to draw, pull"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
staying	A large, strong rope, employed to support a mast, by being extended from the head of one mast down to some other, or…	Against staying longer, however, Elizabeth was positively resolved—nor did she much expect it would be asked; and fearful, on the contrary, as being considered as intruding themselves needlessly long, she urged Jane to borrow Mr.	“stay”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
remaining	To stay behind while others withdraw	Bennet, who had calculated on her daughters remaining at Netherfield till the following Tuesday, which would exactly finish Jane's week, could not bring herself to receive them with pleasure before.	“remain”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
concern	To relate or belong to

		The communication excited many professions of concern; and enough was said of wishing them to stay at least till the following day to work on Jane; and till the morrow, their going was deferred.	"concern": con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Darcy decide to avoid Elizabeth?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Where do Jane and Elizabeth return?
   A. Meryton inn
   B. Longbourn
   C. London
   D. Hunsford
2. What does Darcy decide?
   A. To propose
   B. To dance with her
   C. To leave England
   D. To show Elizabeth no further attention
3. How does Mrs. Bennet feel about their early return?
   A. Relieved
   B. Thrilled
   C. Displeased
   D. Indifferent
4. What does Darcy fear?
   A. Illness
   B. His growing attraction
   C. Bingley's anger
   D. Losing his estate
5. Who is glad to see them home?
   A. Mrs. Hurst
   B. Lydia

C. Miss Bingley

D. Mr. Bennet

6. In the line “Against staying longer, however, Elizabeth was positively resolved—nor did she much expect it would be asked; and fearful, on the contrary, as being considered as intruding themselves needlessly long, she urged Jane to borrow Mr.”, what does “needlessly” most nearly mean?

   A. To go beyond

   B. A paragraph added to a letter after it is concluded and signed by the writer

   C. Having no need

   D. To thrust one's self in

7. In the line “Bennet sent them word that they could not possibly have the carriage before Tuesday; and in her postscript it was added, that if Mr.”, what does “postscript” most nearly mean?

   A. Having no need

   B. To go beyond

   C. To thrust one's self in

   D. A paragraph added to a letter after it is concluded and signed by the writer

Answer key: 1. B (Longbourn); 2. D (To show Elizabeth no further attention); 3. C (Displeased); 4. B (His growing attraction); 5. D (Mr. Bennet); 6. C (Having no need); 7. D (A paragraph added to a letter after it is concluded and signed by the writer)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XII,” how does Austen show departure and relief? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XII, how does Austen develop the idea of departure and relief? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XII develops the idea of departure and relief. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and plot shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of departure and relief. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XII suggests about departure and relief. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and plot), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XII to complicate the reader's understanding of departure and relief. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of departure and relief responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of departure and relief follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XII and its treatment of departure and relief. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and plot, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XII as evidence for a larger claim about departure and relief in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of departure and relief. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Against staying longer, however, Elizabeth was positively resolved—nor did she much expect it would be asked; and fearful, on the contrary, as being considered as intruding themselves needlessly long, she urged Jane to borrow Mr.

   As used in the text, what does the word “intruding” most nearly mean?

   A. To relate or belong to

   B. A large, strong rope, employed to support a mast, by being extended from the head of one mast down to some other, or…

   C. To stay behind while others withdraw

   D. To thrust one's self in

2. The communication excited many professions of concern; and enough was said of wishing them to stay at least till the following day to work on Jane; and till the morrow, their going was deferred. Miss Bingley was then sorry that she had proposed the delay, for her jealousy and dislike of one sister much exceeded her affection for the other.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XII"?

A. Departure and relief

B. Injustice and exile

C. Marriage as a social goal

D. An absurd cousin's letter

SAT key: 1. D (To thrust one's self in); 2. A (Departure and relief)

Lesson 13: Chapter XIII

Focus: an absurd cousin's letter

Teacher only · spoilers

Mr. Bennet reads a letter from Mr. Collins, the clergyman cousin who will inherit Longbourn. Collins arrives, pompous and obsequious, praising his patroness Lady Catherine de Bourgh.

Background: Clergymen often depended on wealthy patrons for their livings.

Significance: Collins is a comic masterpiece who satirizes both sycophancy and the church's dependence on rank.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What words would you use for Collins's letter, and why? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are inheriting, asperity, complimented, atonement, injuring. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Collins from the guilt of inheriting Longbourn." Webster's says: (Law) To take by descent from an ancestor. Now the word history: "inherit": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "asperity": as- (Latin ad, "to") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "compliment": com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Clergymen often depended on wealthy patrons for their livings. Why does this chapter matter? Collins is a comic masterpiece who satirizes both sycophancy and the church's dependence on rank. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to an absurd cousin's letter.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "It certainly is a most iniquitous affair," said Mr. Bennet, "and nothing can clear Mr. Collins from the guilt of inheriting Longbourn. But if you will listen to his letter, you may perhaps be a little softened by his manner of expressing himself."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XIII," how does Austen show an absurd cousin's letter? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about an absurd cousin's letter, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes an absurd cousin's letter. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
inheriting	(Law) To take by descent from an ancestor	Collins from the guilt of inheriting Longbourn.	"inherit": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
asperity	Roughness of surface	Bennet, who assured him with some asperity that they were very well able to keep a good cook, and that her	"asperity": as- (Latin ad, "to") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of").

		daughters had nothing to do in the kitchen.	Root not in our table: have students find it.
complimented	An expression, by word or act, of approbation, regard, confidence, civility, or admiration	He had not been long seated before he complimented Mrs.	“compliment”: com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
atonement	(Literally, a setting at one.) Reconciliation	“Though it is difficult,” said Jane, “to guess in what way he can mean to make us the atonement he thinks our due, the wish is certainly to his credit.”	“atonement”: at- (Latin ad, "to") + -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
injuring	To do harm to	I cannot be otherwise than concerned at being the means of injuring your amiable daughters, and beg leave to apologise for it, as well as to assure you of my readiness to make them every possible amends—but of this hereafter.	“injure”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
cookery	The art or process of preparing food for the table, by dressing, compounding, and the application of heat	The dinner too in its turn was highly admired; and he begged to know to which of his fair cousins, the excellence of its cookery was owing.	“cookery”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
defective	Wanting in something	“In point of composition,” said Mary, “his letter does not seem defective.	“defective”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + fect (Latin facere, "to make") + -ive (Latin -ivus, "tending to"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
punctual	Consisting in a point	Collins was punctual to his time, and was received with great politeness by the whole family.	“punctual”: -al (Latin -alis, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
discourage	To extinguish the courage of	“There is some sense in what he says about the girls however; and if he is disposed to make them any amends, I shall not be the person to discourage him.”	“discourage”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
viewing	The act of seeing or beholding	Bennet’s heart, but for the mortifying supposition of his viewing it all as his own future property.	“view”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. What words would you use for Collins's letter, and why?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who will inherit Longbourn?
   A. Sir William
   B. Mr. Bingley
   C. Mr. Collins
   D. Mr. Darcy
2. What is Collins's profession?
   A. Clergyman
   B. Merchant
   C. Soldier
   D. Lawyer
3. Who is Collins's patroness?
   A. Mrs. Phillips
   B. Lady Lucas
   C. Miss Bingley
   D. Lady Catherine de Bourgh
4. How does Mr. Bennet view the letter?
   A. With amusement
   B. With anger
   C. With fear
   D. With admiration
5. What tone does Austen use for Collins?
   A. Tragic
   B. Satirical
   C. Mysterious
   D. Romantic
6. In the line “Collins from the guilt of inheriting Longbourn.”, what does “inheriting” most nearly mean?
   A. (Literally, a setting at one.) Reconciliation
   B. (Law) To take by descent from an ancestor

C. Roughness of surface

D. An expression, by word or act, of approbation, regard, confidence, civility, or admiration

7. In the line “Bennet, who assured him with some asperity that they were very well able to keep a good cook, and that her daughters had nothing to do in the kitchen.”, what does “asperity” most nearly mean?

A. An expression, by word or act, of approbation, regard, confidence, civility, or admiration

B. (Law) To take by descent from an ancestor

C. Roughness of surface

D. (Literally, a setting at one.) Reconciliation

Answer key: 1. C (Mr. Collins); 2. A (Clergyman); 3. D (Lady Catherine de Bourgh); 4. A (With amusement); 5. B (Satirical); 6. B ((Law) To take by descent from an ancestor); 7. C (Roughness of surface)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XIII,” how does Austen show an absurd cousin's letter? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XIII, how does Austen develop the idea of an absurd cousin's letter? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XIII develops the idea of an absurd cousin's letter. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of an absurd cousin's letter. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XIII suggests about an absurd cousin's letter. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XIII to complicate the reader's understanding of an absurd cousin's letter. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of an absurd cousin's letter responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of an absurd cousin's letter follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XIII and its treatment of an absurd cousin's letter. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XIII as evidence for a larger claim about an absurd cousin's letter in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of an absurd cousin's letter. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. He had not been long seated before he complimented Mrs.

   As used in the text, what does the word “complimented” most nearly mean?

   A. Consisting in a point

   B. The act of seeing or beholding

   C. To extinguish the courage of

   D. An expression, by word or act, of approbation, regard, confidence, civility, or admiration

2. “It certainly is a most iniquitous affair,” said Mr. Bennet, “and nothing can clear Mr. Collins from the guilt of inheriting Longbourn. But if you will listen to his letter, you may perhaps be a little softened by his manner of expressing himself.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XIII”?

   A. Happiness for Jane

   B. Self-denial as a path

   C. An absurd cousin's letter

   D. Character flaws examined

SAT key: 1. D (An expression, by word or act, of approbation, regard, confidence, civility, or admiration); 2. C (An absurd cousin's letter)

Lesson 14: Chapter XIV

Focus: pompous flattery

Teacher only · spoilers

Collins praises Lady Catherine at length and explains that he prepares delicate compliments in advance. Asked to read aloud, he picks Fordyce's Sermons and is offended when Lydia interrupts.

Background: Fordyce's Sermons to Young Women (1766) was a conduct book on female propriety.

Significance: Austen mocks rehearsed flattery and moralizing aimed at young women.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why is it funny that Collins prepares compliments in advance? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are superintended, backgammon, phaeton, quadrille, resides. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "She is unfortunately of a sickly constitution, which has prevented her making that progress in many accomplishments, which she could not otherwise have failed of; as I am informed by the lady who superintended her education, and who still resides with them." Webster's says: To have or exercise the charge and oversight of. Now the word history: "superintend": super- (Latin super, "above") + ten (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "backgammon": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "phaeton": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Fordyce's Sermons to Young Women (1766) was a conduct book on female propriety. Why does this chapter matter? Austen mocks rehearsed flattery and moralizing aimed at young women. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to pompous flattery.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "She is a most charming young lady indeed. Lady Catherine herself says that in point of true beauty, Miss de Bourgh is far superior to the handsomest of her sex; because there is that in her features which marks the young woman of distinguished birth. She is unfortunately of a sickly constitution, which has prevented her making that progress in many accomplishments, which she could not otherwise have failed of; as I am informed by the lady who superintended her education, and who still resides with them. But she is perfectly amiable, and often condescends to drive by my humble abode in her little phaeton and ponies."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XIV," how does Austen show pompous flattery? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about pompous flattery, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes pompous flattery. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
superintended	To have or exercise the charge and oversight of	She is unfortunately of a sickly constitution, which has prevented her making that progress in many accomplishments, which she could not	"superintend": super- (Latin super, "above") + ten (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify otherwise have failed of; as I am informed by the lady who superintended her education, and who still resides with them.	in an etymological dictionary.

backgammon	A game of chance and skill, played by two persons on a "board" marked off into twenty-four spaces called "points"….	Bennet, he offered himself as his antagonist at backgammon.	"backgammon": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
phaeton	A four-wheeled carriage (with or without a top), open, or having no side pieces, in front of the seat	But she is perfectly amiable, and often condescends to drive by my humble abode in her little phaeton and ponies."	"phaeton": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
quadrille	A dance having five figures, in common time, four couples of dancers being in each set	She had also asked him twice to dine at Rosings, and had sent for him only the Saturday before, to make up her pool of quadrille in the evening.	"quadrille": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
resides	To dwell permanently or for a considerable time	She is unfortunately of a sickly constitution, which has prevented her making that progress in many accomplishments, which she could not otherwise have failed of; as I am informed by the lady who superintended her education, and who still resides with them.	"reside": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
civilly	Pertaining to a city or state, or to a citizen in his relations to his fellow citizens or to the state	Bennet and her daughters apologised most civilly for Lydia's interruption, and promised that it should not occur again, if he would resume his book; but Mr.	"civil": civ (Latin civis, "citizen"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
suggesting	To introduce indirectly to the thoughts	"They arise chiefly from what is passing at the time, and though I sometimes amuse myself with suggesting and arranging such little elegant compliments as may be adapted to ordinary occasions, I always wish to give them as unstudied an air as possible."	"suggest": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
heiress	, A female heir	"She has one only daughter, the heiress of Rosings, and of very extensive property."	"heiress": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

antagonist	One who contends with another, especially in combat	Bennet, he offered himself as his antagonist at backgammon.	“antagonist”: -ist (Greek -istes, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
prevents	To go before	“Her indifferent state of health unhappily prevents her being in town; and by that means, as I told Lady Catherine myself one day, has deprived the British court of its brightest ornament.	“prevent”: pre- (Latin prae, "before") + vent (Latin venire, "to come"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Why is it funny that Collins prepares compliments in advance?
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. What does Collins admit he does?
   A. Avoids church
   B. Gambles
   C. Prepares compliments in advance
   D. Writes novels
2. What book does Collins read aloud?
   A. A newspaper
   B. A novel
   C. Fordyce's Sermons
   D. The Bible
3. Who interrupts him?
   A. Mary
   B. Mr. Bennet
   C. Lydia
   D. Jane

4. What is his attitude to Lady Catherine?
   A. Worshipful
   B. Indifferent
   C. Critical
   D. Hostile
5. Why does Mr. Bennet invite Collins to read?
   A. To learn
   B. For Mary
   C. To enjoy his absurdity
   D. To flatter him
6. In the line “She is unfortunately of a sickly constitution, which has prevented her making that progress in many accomplishments, which she could not otherwise have failed of; as I am informed by the lady who superintended her education, and who still resides with them.”, what does “superintended” most nearly mean?
   A. A game of chance and skill, played by two persons on a "board" marked off into twenty-four spaces called "points"…
   B. A four-wheeled carriage (with or without a top), open, or having no side pieces, in front of the seat
   C. A dance having five figures, in common time, four couples of dancers being in each set
   D. To have or exercise the charge and oversight of
7. In the line “Bennet, he offered himself as his antagonist at backgammon.”, what does “backgammon” most nearly mean?
   A. To have or exercise the charge and oversight of
   B. A dance having five figures, in common time, four couples of dancers being in each set
   C. A game of chance and skill, played by two persons on a "board" marked off into twenty-four spaces called "points"…
   D. A four-wheeled carriage (with or without a top), open, or having no side pieces, in front of the seat

Answer key: 1. C (Prepares compliments in advance); 2. C (Fordyce's Sermons); 3. C (Lydia); 4. A (Worshipful); 5. C (To enjoy his absurdity); 6. D (To have or exercise the charge and oversight of); 7. C (A game of chance and skill, played by two persons on a "board" marked off into twenty-four spaces called "points"…)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter XIV,” how does Austen show pompous flattery? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XIV, how does Austen develop the idea of pompous flattery? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XIV develops the idea of pompous flattery. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XIV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of pompous flattery. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XIV suggests about pompous flattery. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter XIV to complicate the reader's understanding of pompous flattery. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XIV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of pompous flattery responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XIV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of pompous flattery follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XIV and its treatment of pompous flattery. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XIV as evidence for a larger claim about pompous flattery in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XIV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of pompous flattery. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. But she is perfectly amiable, and often condescends to drive by my humble abode in her little phaeton and ponies."

As used in the text, what does the word "phaeton" most nearly mean?

A. To go before

B. , A female heir

C. One who contends with another, especially in combat

D. A four-wheeled carriage (with or without a top), open, or having no side pieces, in front of the seat

2. "She is a most charming young lady indeed. Lady Catherine herself says that in point of true beauty, Miss de Bourgh is far superior to the handsomest of her sex; because there is that in her features which marks the young woman of distinguished birth. She is unfortunately of a sickly constitution, which has prevented her making that progress in many accomplishments, which she could not otherwise have failed of; as I am informed by the lady who superintended her education, and who still resides with them. But she is perfectly amiable, and often condescends to drive by my humble abode in her little phaeton and ponies."

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XIV"?

A. Marriage as a social goal

B. A charming stranger

C. Pompous flattery

D. Grief, prison and return

SAT key: 1. D (A four-wheeled carriage (with or without a top), open, or having no side pieces, in front of the seat); 2. C (Pompous flattery)

Lesson 15: Chapter XV

Focus: a charming stranger

Teacher only · spoilers

Collins intends to marry a Bennet daughter and, told Jane is likely engaged, shifts to Elizabeth. In Meryton the girls meet the handsome George Wickham; Darcy and Wickham see each other and change color.

Background: Militia officers were socially attractive but often lacked fortune.

Significance: The tense meeting foreshadows a hidden history.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does the reaction of Darcy and Wickham suggest? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are seconding, unwearying, counteracted, spokesman, assents. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Philips' throwing up the parlour window, and loudly seconding the invitation." Webster's says: Immediately following the first. Now the word history: "second": se- (Latin se-, "apart"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "unweary": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "counteract": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Militia officers were socially attractive but often lacked fortune. Why does this chapter matter? The tense meeting foreshadows a hidden history. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a charming stranger.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Foreshadowing, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> In pompous nothings on his side, and civil assents on that of his cousins, their time passed till they entered Meryton. The attention of the younger ones was then no longer to be gained by him. Their eyes were immediately wandering up in the street in quest of the officers, and nothing less than a very smart bonnet indeed, or a really new muslin in a shop window, could recall them.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Foreshadowing, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XV," how does Austen show a charming stranger? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a charming stranger, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes a charming stranger. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
seconding	Immediately following the first	Philips' throwing up the parlour window, and loudly seconding the invitation.	"second": se- (Latin se-, "apart"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
unwearying		Collins repeated his apologies in quitting the room, and was assured with

	To cause to cease being weary	unwearying civility that they were perfectly needless.	"unweary": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
counteracted	To act in opposition to	The subjection in which his father had brought him up, had given him originally great humility of manner, but it was now a good deal counteracted by the self-conceit of a weak head, living in retirement, and the consequential feelings of early and unexpected prosperity.	"counteract": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
spokesman	One who speaks for another	Bingley was the principal spokesman, and Miss Bennet the principal object.	"spokesman": man (Latin manus, "hand"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
assents	To admit a thing as true	In pompous nothings on his side, and civil assents on that of his cousins, their time passed till they entered Meryton.	"assent": as- (Latin ad, "to") + sent (Latin sentire, "to feel"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
lottery	A scheme for the distribution of prizes by lot or chance	Philips protested that they would have a nice comfortable noisy game of lottery tickets, and a little bit of hot supper afterwards.	"lottery": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
cessation	A ceasing of discontinuance, as of action, whether termporary or final	Bennet, with little cessation, of his house and garden at Hunsford.	"cessation": cess (Latin cedere, "to go, yield") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
tickets	A small piece of paper, cardboard, or the like, serving as a notice, certificate, or distinguishing token of something	Philips protested that they would have a nice comfortable noisy game of lottery tickets, and a little bit of hot supper afterwards.	"ticket": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
exclamations	A loud calling or crying out	Philips was quite awed by such an excess of good breeding; but her contemplation of one stranger was soon put an end to by exclamations and inquiries about the other, of whom, however, she could only tell her nieces what they already knew, that Mr.	"exclamation": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

claimed	To ask for, or seek to obtain, by virtue of authority, right, or supposed right	Jones's shop boy in the street, who had told her that they were not to send any more draughts to Netherfield because the Miss Bennets were come away, when her civility was claimed towards Mr.	"claim": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. What does the reaction of Darcy and Wickham suggest?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Foreshadowing: look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Why did Collins come to Longbourn?
   A. To preach
   B. To meet Darcy
   C. To sell land
   D. To choose a wife among the daughters
2. Whom does Collins choose after Jane?
   A. Mary
   B. Lydia
   C. Elizabeth
   D. Kitty
3. Who is Mr. Wickham?
   A. A charming militia officer
   B. A clergyman
   C. A lawyer
   D. Bingley's cousin
4. What happens when Darcy and Wickham meet?
   A. They embrace
   B. They fight
   C. Both change color
   D. They ignore each other calmly
5. What first impression does Wickham make?
   A. Shy
   B. Ugly

C. Very charming

D. Rude

6. In the line “Philips’ throwing up the parlour window, and loudly seconding the invitation.”, what does “seconding” most nearly mean?

   A. Immediately following the first

   B. To act in opposition to

   C. To cause to cease being weary

   D. One who speaks for another

7. In the line “Collins repeated his apologies in quitting the room, and was assured with unwearying civility that they were perfectly needless.”, what does “unwearying” most nearly mean?

   A. One who speaks for another

   B. To cause to cease being weary

   C. Immediately following the first

   D. To act in opposition to Answer key: 1. D (To choose a wife among the daughters); 2. C (Elizabeth); 3. A (A charming militia officer); 4. C (Both change color); 5. C (Very charming); 6. A (Immediately following the first); 7. B (To cause to cease being weary)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XV,” how does Austen show a charming stranger? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XV, how does Austen develop the idea of a charming stranger? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XV develops the idea of a charming stranger. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and foreshadowing shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of a charming stranger. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XV suggests about a charming stranger. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and foreshadowing), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XV to complicate the reader's understanding of a charming stranger. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a charming stranger responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a charming stranger follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XV and its treatment of a charming stranger. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and foreshadowing, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XV as evidence for a larger claim about a charming stranger in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a charming stranger. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. The subjection in which his father had brought him up, had given him originally great humility of manner, but it was now a good deal counteracted by the self-conceit of a weak head, living in retirement, and the consequential feelings of early and unexpected prosperity.

   As used in the text, what does the word “counteracted” most nearly mean?

   A. A small piece of paper, cardboard, or the like, serving as a notice, certificate, or distinguishing token of something

   B. A loud calling or crying out

   C. To act in opposition to

   D. To ask for, or seek to obtain, by virtue of authority, right, or supposed right

2. In pompous nothings on his side, and civil assents on that of his cousins, their time passed till they entered Meryton. The attention of the younger ones was then no longer to be gained by him. Their eyes were immediately wandering up in the street in quest of the officers, and nothing less than a very smart bonnet indeed, or a really new muslin in a shop window, could recall them.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XV”?

   A. The demand for a companion

   B. A charming stranger

C. Wit as courtship

D. Confrontation between creator and creation

SAT key: 1. C (To act in opposition to); 2. B (A charming stranger)

Lesson 16: Chapter XVI

Focus: a persuasive tale

Teacher only · spoilers

At Mrs. Phillips's party, Wickham tells Elizabeth that Darcy denied him a clergyman's living promised by Darcy's father. Elizabeth believes him readily.

Background: A 'living' was a church post with income controlled by a patron.

Significance: Readers learn alongside Elizabeth that a confident story is not proof—central to the theme of prejudice.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What evidence does Elizabeth have that Wickham is telling the truth? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are misleads, disgracing, reverting, unguarded, godfather. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Collins," said she, "speaks highly both of Lady Catherine and her daughter; but from some particulars that he has related of her ladyship, I suspect his gratitude misleads him, and that in spite of her being his patroness, she is an arrogant, conceited woman."" Webster's says: To lead into a wrong way or path. Now the word history: "mislead": mis- (Old English mis-, "wrongly"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "disgrace": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "revert": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + vert (Latin vertere, "to turn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. A 'living' was a church post with income controlled by a patron. Why does this chapter matter? Readers learn alongside Elizabeth that a confident story is not proof—central to the theme of prejudice. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for point of view.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see point of view, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a persuasive tale.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Point of view, Irony, Characterization.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of point of view. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "It was the prospect of constant society, and good society," he added, "which was my chief inducement to enter the ——shire. I knew it to be a most respectable, agreeable corps, and my friend Denny tempted me farther by his account of their present quarters, and the very great attentions and excellent acquaintance Meryton had procured them. Society, I own, is necessary to me. I have been a disappointed man, and my spirits will not bear solitude. I must have employment and society. A military life is not what I was intended for, but circumstances have now made it eligible. The church ought to have been my profession—I was brought up for the church, and I should at this time have been in possession of a most valuable living, had it pleased the gentleman we were speaking of just now."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Point of view, Irony, Characterization: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XVI," how does Austen show a persuasive tale? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a persuasive tale, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how point of view shapes a persuasive tale. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
misleads	To lead into a wrong way or path	Collins," said she, "speaks highly both of Lady Catherine and her daughter; but from	"mislead": mis- (Old English mis-, "wrongly"). Root not in some particulars that he has related of her ladyship, I suspect his gratitude misleads him, and that in spite of her being his patroness, she is an arrogant, conceited woman."	our table: have students find it.

disgracing	The condition of being out of favor	His behaviour to myself has been scandalous; but I verily believe I could forgive him anything and everything, rather than his disappointing the hopes and disgracing the memory of his father."	"disgrace": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
reverting	To turn back, or to the contrary	After many pauses and many trials of other subjects, Elizabeth could not help reverting once more to the first, and saying—	"revert": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + vert (Latin vertere, "to turn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
unguarded	To deprive of a guard	I have a warm, unguarded temper, and I may perhaps have sometimes spoken my opinion of him, and to him, too freely.	"unguard": un- (Old English un-, "not") + ard (Latin ardere, "to burn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
godfather	A man who becomes sponsor for a child at baptism, and makes himself a surety for its Christian training and instruction	He was my godfather, and excessively attached to me.	"godfather": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
bequeathed	To give or leave by will	Darcy bequeathed me the next presentation of the best living in his gift.	"bequeath": be- (Old English be-, "thoroughly, about"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
creditable	Worthy of belief	The officers of the ——shire were in general a very creditable, gentleman-like set, and the best of them were of the present party; but Mr.	"creditable": cred (Latin credere, "to believe") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
inmates	One who lives in the same house or apartment with another	"We were born in the same parish, within the same park, the greatest part of our youth was passed together; inmates of the same house, sharing the same amusements, objects of the same parental care.	"inmate": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
eligible	That may be selected

		A military life is not what I was intended for, but circumstances have now made it eligible.	"eligible": -ible (Latin -ibilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
scandalous	Giving offense to the conscience or moral feelings	His behaviour to myself has been scandalous; but I verily believe I could forgive him anything and everything, rather than his disappointing the hopes and disgracing the memory of his father."	"scandalous": -ous (Latin -osus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. What evidence does Elizabeth have that Wickham is telling the truth?
2. Where does point of view appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Point of view: look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them

Chapter quiz

1. What does Wickham claim Darcy did?
   A. Stole his money
   B. Denied him a promised living
   C. Insulted his mother
   D. Shot him
2. Where do they talk?
   A. Rosings
   B. Netherfield
   C. Pemberley
   D. Mrs. Phillips's house
3. How does Elizabeth react?
   A. She leaves
   B. She believes him readily
   C. She doubts him
   D. She warns Darcy
4. What is a 'living'?
   A. An inheritance
   B. A house
   C. A salary from the army
   D. A church position with income

5. What theme does Elizabeth's belief show?
   A. Love of science
   B. Patriotism
   C. Prejudice from first impressions
   D. Religion
6. In the line “Collins,” said she, “speaks highly both of Lady Catherine and her daughter; but from some particulars that he has related of her ladyship, I suspect his gratitude misleads him, and that in spite of her being his patroness, she is an arrogant, conceited woman.””, what does “misleads” most nearly mean?
   A. To lead into a wrong way or path
   B. To turn back, or to the contrary
   C. The condition of being out of favor
   D. To deprive of a guard
7. In the line “His behaviour to myself has been scandalous; but I verily believe I could forgive him anything and everything, rather than his disappointing the hopes and disgracing the memory of his father.””, what does “disgracing” most nearly mean?
   A. The condition of being out of favor
   B. To deprive of a guard
   C. To lead into a wrong way or path
   D. To turn back, or to the contrary

Answer key: 1. B (Denied him a promised living); 2. D (Mrs. Phillips's house); 3. B (She believes him readily); 4. D (A church position with income); 5. C (Prejudice from first impressions); 6. A (To lead into a wrong way or path); 7. A (The condition of being out of favor)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter XVI,” how does Austen show a persuasive tale? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XVI, how does Austen develop the idea of a persuasive tale? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the point of view in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XVI develops the idea of a persuasive tale. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of point of view and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XVI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its point of view shape the reader's understanding of a persuasive tale. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XVI suggests about a persuasive tale. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's point of view and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.3, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses point of view in Chapter XVI to complicate the reader's understanding of a persuasive tale. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.3, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XVI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a persuasive tale responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.3, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XVI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a persuasive tale follows or bends those conventions, using the point of view as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.3, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XVI and its treatment of a persuasive tale. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's point of view and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.3, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XVI as evidence for a larger claim about a persuasive tale in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.3, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XVI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a persuasive tale. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. After many pauses and many trials of other subjects, Elizabeth could not help reverting once more to the first, and saying—

   As used in the text, what does the word “reverting” most nearly mean?

   A. One who lives in the same house or apartment with another

   B. To turn back, or to the contrary

   C. Giving offense to the conscience or moral feelings

   D. That may be selected

2. "It was the prospect of constant society, and good society," he added, "which was my chief inducement to enter the ——shire. I knew it to be a most respectable, agreeable corps, and my friend Denny tempted me farther by his account of their present quarters, and the very great attentions and excellent acquaintance Meryton had procured them. Society, I own, is necessary to me. I have been a disappointed man, and my spirits will not bear solitude. I must have employment and society. A military life is not what I was intended for, but circumstances have now made it eligible. The church ought to have been my profession—I was brought up for the church, and I should at this time have been in possession of a most valuable living, had it pleased the gentleman we were speaking of just now."

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XVI"?

A. Parental failure

B. A persuasive tale

C. Scandal

D. The letter

SAT key: 1. B (To turn back, or to the contrary); 2. B (A persuasive tale)

Lesson 17: Chapter XVII

Focus: doubts and preparations

Teacher only · spoilers

Jane cannot believe ill of either man; Elizabeth sides with Wickham. Collins asks Elizabeth for the first two dances at the Netherfield ball.

Background: The two opening dances were the most significant of a ball.

Significance: Jane's charity contrasts with Elizabeth's certainty.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Whose response to Wickham's story is wiser—Jane's or Elizabeth's? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are misrepresented, ceremonious, assisting, mornings, repeatedly. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Interested people have perhaps misrepresented each to the other." Webster's says: To represent incorrectly (almost always, unfacorably). Now the word history: "misrepresent": mis- (Old English mis-, "wrongly") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "ceremonious": -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "assist": as- (Latin ad, "to") + sist (Latin sistere, "to stand"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. The two opening dances were the most significant of a ball. Why does this chapter matter? Jane's charity contrasts with Elizabeth's certainty. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to doubts and preparations.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "They have both," said she, "been deceived, I dare say, in some way or other, of which we can form no idea. Interested people have perhaps misrepresented each to the other. It is, in short, impossible for us to conjecture the causes or circumstances which may have alienated them, without actual blame on either side."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XVII," how does Austen show doubts and preparations? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about doubts and preparations, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes doubts and preparations. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
misrepresented	To represent incorrectly (almost always, unfacorably)	Interested people have perhaps misrepresented each to the other.	"misrepresent": mis- (Old English mis-, "wrongly") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

ceremonious	Consisting of outward forms and rites	Bingley himself, instead of a ceremonious card.	“ceremonious”: -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
assisting	To give support to in some undertaking or effort, or in time of distress	It now first struck her, that she was selected from among her sisters as worthy of being the mistress of Hunsford Parsonage, and of assisting to form a quadrille table at Rosings, in the absence of more eligible visitors.	“assist”: as- (Latin ad, "to") + sist (Latin sistere, "to stand"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
mornings	Pertaining to the first part or early part of the day	“While I can have my mornings to myself,” said she, “it is enough.	“morning”: -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
repeatedly	More than once	The two ladies were delighted to see their dear friend again, called it an age since they had met, and repeatedly asked what she had been doing with herself since their separation.	“repeatedly”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
profess	To make open declaration of, as of one's knowledge, belief, action, etc.; to avow or acknowledge	Society has claims on us all; and I profess myself one of those who consider intervals of recreation and amusement as desirable for everybody.”	“profess”: pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
delayed	A putting off or deferring	Wickham’s happiness and her own was per force delayed a little longer, and Mr.	“delay”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
anticipated	To be before in doing	The happiness anticipated by Catherine and Lydia, depended less on any single event, or any particular person, for though they each, like Elizabeth, meant to dance half the evening with Mr.	“anticipate”: anti- (Greek anti, "against") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
depended	To hang down	The happiness anticipated by Catherine and Lydia, depended less on any single event, or any particular person, for though they each, like Elizabeth, meant to dance half the evening with Mr.	“depend”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + pend (Latin pendere, "to hang, weigh"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
selected	Taken from a number by preferance	It now first struck her, that she was selected from among her sisters as worthy of being the mistress of Hunsford Parsonage, and of assisting to	“select”: se- (Latin se-, "apart"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		form a quadrille table at Rosings, in the absence of more eligible visitors.

Discussion questions

1. Whose response to Wickham's story is wiser—Jane's or Elizabeth's?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. How does Jane respond to Wickham's story?
   A. She believes Darcy
   B. She believes Wickham
   C. She is uninterested
   D. She refuses to think ill of either man
2. Whom does Elizabeth side with?
   A. Bingley
   B. Wickham
   C. Darcy
   D. Collins
3. Who claims Elizabeth for the first two dances?
   A. Darcy
   B. Wickham
   C. Mr. Collins
   D. Bingley
4. What event is coming?
   A. A wedding
   B. A funeral
   C. The Netherfield ball
   D. A trip to London
5. What feeling does Elizabeth have about the ball?
   A. Excitement about Darcy
   B. Dread of Collins only
   C. Hopes to see Wickham
   D. Boredom

6. In the line “Interested people have perhaps misrepresented each to the other.”, what does “misrepresented” most nearly mean?
   A. Pertaining to the first part or early part of the day
   B. Consisting of outward forms and rites
   C. To give support to in some undertaking or effort, or in time of distress
   D. To represent incorrectly (almost always, unfacorably)
7. In the line “Bingley himself, instead of a ceremonious card.”, what does “ceremonious” most nearly mean?
   A. Consisting of outward forms and rites
   B. To represent incorrectly (almost always, unfacorably)
   C. Pertaining to the first part or early part of the day
   D. To give support to in some undertaking or effort, or in time of distress

Answer key: 1. D (She refuses to think ill of either man); 2. B (Wickham); 3. C (Mr. Collins); 4. C (The Netherfield ball); 5. C (Hopes to see Wickham); 6. D (To represent incorrectly (almost always, unfacorably)); 7. A (Consisting of outward forms and rites)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XVII,” how does Austen show doubts and preparations? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XVII, how does Austen develop the idea of doubts and preparations? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XVII develops the idea of doubts and preparations. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XVII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of doubts and preparations. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XVII suggests about doubts and preparations. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XVII to complicate the reader's understanding of doubts and preparations. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XVII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of doubts and preparations responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XVII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of doubts and preparations follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XVII and its treatment of doubts and preparations. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XVII as evidence for a larger claim about doubts and preparations in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XVII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of doubts and preparations. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. It now first struck her, that she was selected from among her sisters as worthy of being the mistress of Hunsford Parsonage, and of assisting to form a quadrille table at Rosings, in the absence of more eligible visitors.

   As used in the text, what does the word “assisting” most nearly mean?

   A. To be before in doing

   B. To hang down

   C. To give support to in some undertaking or effort, or in time of distress

   D. Taken from a number by preferance

2. “They have both,” said she, “been deceived, I dare say, in some way or other, of which we can form no idea. Interested people have perhaps misrepresented each to the other. It is, in short, impossible for us to conjecture the causes or circumstances which may have alienated them, without actual blame on either side.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XVII”?

   A. Doubts and preparations

   B. Confiding and consent

   C. Recovery and false peace

   D. The final reckoning

SAT key: 1. C (To give support to in some undertaking or effort, or in time of distress); 2. A (Doubts and preparations)

Lesson 18: Chapter XVIII

Focus: a disastrous ball

Teacher only · spoilers

Wickham is absent from the ball. Elizabeth dances with Darcy and challenges him about Wickham. Her family embarrasses her: Mrs. Bennet boasts loudly of Jane's match, Mary sings badly, and Collins introduces himself to Darcy uninvited.

Background: Introductions had strict rules; speaking first to a superior was a breach.

Significance: Darcy observes the Bennets' impropriety, which later shapes his advice to Bingley.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: List each embarrassment and explain how it might affect Jane's prospects. No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are prefaced, ridiculing, testifying, hauteur, compatible. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Her cousin prefaced his speech with a solemn bow, and though she could not hear a word of it, she felt as if hearing it all, and saw in the motion of his lips the words “apology,”” Webster's says: Something spoken as introductory to a discourse, or written as introductory to a book or essay. Now the word history: “preface”: pre- (Latin prae, "before") + fac (Latin facere, "to make, do"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “ridicule”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “testify”: -ify (Latin -ficare, "to make"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Introductions had strict rules; speaking first to a superior was a breach. Why does this chapter matter? Darcy observes the Bennets' impropriety, which later shapes his advice to Bingley. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a disastrous ball.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> This part of his intelligence, though unheard by Lydia, was caught by Elizabeth, and as it assured her that Darcy was not less answerable for Wickham's absence than if her first surmise had been just, every feeling of displeasure against the former was so sharpened by immediate disappointment, that she could hardly reply with tolerable civility to the polite inquiries which he directly afterwards approached to make. Attention, forbearance, patience with Darcy, was injury to Wickham. She was resolved against any sort of conversation with him, and turned away with a degree of ill humour, which she could not wholly surmount even in speaking to Mr. Bingley, whose blind partiality provoked her.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XVIII," how does Austen show a disastrous ball? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a disastrous ball, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes a disastrous ball. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
prefaced	Something spoken as introductory to a discourse, or written as	Her cousin prefaced his speech with a solemn bow, and though she could not hear a word of it, she felt as if hearing	"preface": pre- (Latin prae, "before") + fac (Latin facere, "to make, do"). Teacher note from a introductory to a book or essay	it all, and saw in the motion of his lips the words "apology,"	root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

ridiculing	An object of sport or laughter	Darcy, however, should have such an opportunity of ridiculing her relations was bad enough, and she could not determine whether the silent contempt of the gentleman, or the insolent smiles of the ladies, were more intolerable.	"ridicule": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
testifying	To make a solemn declaration, verbal or written, to establish some fact	I cannot acquit him of that duty; nor could I think well of the man who should omit an occasion of testifying his respect towards anybody connected with the family."	"testify": -ify (Latin -ficare, "to make"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
hauteur	Haughty manner or spirit	A deeper shade of hauteur overspread his features, but he said not a word, and Elizabeth, though blaming herself for her own weakness, could not go on.	"hauteur": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
compatible	Capable of existing in harmony	Collins, "were so fortunate as to be able to sing, I should have great pleasure, I am sure, in obliging the company with an air; for I consider music as a very innocent diversion, and perfectly compatible with the profession of a clergyman.	"compatible": com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ible (Latin -ibilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
eclipsed	(Astron.) An interception or obscuration of the light of the sun, moon, or other luminous body, by the intervention…	Elizabeth was the least dear to her of all her children; and though the man and the match were quite good enough for her, the worth of each was eclipsed by Mr.	"eclipse": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
upbraiding	To charge with something wrong or disgraceful	You will not thank me for detaining you from the bewitching converse of that young lady, whose bright eyes are also upbraiding me."	"upbraid": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
preferment	The act of choosing, or the state of being chosen	And I do not think it of light importance that he should have attentive and conciliatory manners towards everybody, especially towards those to whom he owes his preferment.	"preferment": pre- (Latin prae, "before") + fer (Latin ferre, "to carry, bear") + -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
surmount	To rise above	She was resolved against any sort of conversation with him, and turned away with a degree of ill humour,	"surmount": no root in our classroom table; have students which she could not wholly surmount even in speaking to Mr.	look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

heighten	To make high	Elizabeth listened with delight to the happy, though modest hopes which Jane entertained of Bingley's regard, and said all in her power to heighten her confidence in it.	"heighten": ten (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. List each embarrassment and explain how it might affect Jane's prospects.
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who is missing from the ball?
   A. Collins
   B. Bingley
   C. Darcy
   D. Wickham
2. What does Elizabeth bring up while dancing with Darcy?
   A. Pemberley
   B. Her father
   C. Wickham
   D. Rosings
3. Who sings poorly?
   A. Mary
   B. Elizabeth
   C. Lydia
   D. Jane
4. What social rule does Collins break?
   A. Dancing twice
   B. Wearing boots
   C. Leaving early
   D. Introducing himself to Darcy uninvited

5. What does Mrs. Bennet boast about?
   A. Darcy
   B. Jane's expected marriage
   C. Her wealth
   D. Her cooking
6. In the line "Her cousin prefaced his speech with a solemn bow, and though she could not hear a word of it, she felt as if hearing it all, and saw in the motion of his lips the words "apology,"", what does "prefaced" most nearly mean?
   A. To make a solemn declaration, verbal or written, to establish some fact
   B. Haughty manner or spirit
   C. Something spoken as introductory to a discourse, or written as introductory to a book or essay
   D. An object of sport or laughter
7. In the line "Darcy, however, should have such an opportunity of ridiculing her relations was bad enough, and she could not determine whether the silent contempt of the gentleman, or the insolent smiles of the ladies, were more intolerable.", what does "ridiculing" most nearly mean?
   A. Haughty manner or spirit
   B. Something spoken as introductory to a discourse, or written as introductory to a book or essay
   C. An object of sport or laughter
   D. To make a solemn declaration, verbal or written, to establish some fact

Answer key: 1. D (Wickham); 2. C (Wickham); 3. A (Mary); 4. D (Introducing himself to Darcy uninvited); 5. B (Jane's expected marriage); 6. C (Something spoken as introductory to a discourse, or written as introductory to a book or essay); 7. C (An object of sport or laughter)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In "Chapter XVIII," how does Austen show a disastrous ball? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XVIII, how does Austen develop the idea of a disastrous ball? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XVIII develops the idea of a disastrous ball. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XVIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of a disastrous ball. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XVIII suggests about a disastrous ball. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter XVIII to complicate the reader's understanding of a disastrous ball. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XVIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a disastrous ball responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XVIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a disastrous ball follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XVIII and its treatment of a disastrous ball. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XVIII as evidence for a larger claim about a disastrous ball in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XVIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a disastrous ball. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. I cannot acquit him of that duty; nor could I think well of the man who should omit an occasion of testifying his respect towards anybody connected with the family."

   As used in the text, what does the word "testifying" most nearly mean?

   A. To rise above

   B. The act of choosing, or the state of being chosen

   C. To make high

   D. To make a solemn declaration, verbal or written, to establish some fact

2. This part of his intelligence, though unheard by Lydia, was caught by Elizabeth, and as it assured her that Darcy was not less answerable for Wickham's absence than if her first surmise had been just, every feeling of displeasure against the former was so sharpened by immediate disappointment, that she could hardly reply with tolerable civility to the polite inquiries which he directly afterwards approached to make. Attention, forbearance, patience with Darcy, was injury to Wickham. She was resolved against any sort of conversation with him, and turned away with a degree of ill humour, which she could not wholly surmount even in speaking to Mr. Bingley, whose blind partiality provoked her.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XVIII"?

A. Parental failure

B. A privileged childhood and family love

C. A disastrous ball

D. Puzzling visits

SAT key: 1. D (To make a solemn declaration, verbal or written, to establish some fact); 2. C (A disastrous ball)

Lesson 19: Chapter XIX

Focus: a ridiculous proposal

Teacher only · spoilers

Collins proposes to Elizabeth with a speech listing reasons, including Lady Catherine's advice. She refuses; he insists that elegant ladies always refuse at first and that she may never get another offer.

Background: A woman refusing a secure match was risky; Collins's offer would have saved her home.

Significance: Elizabeth's refusal asserts the right to marry for affection and respect.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Elizabeth refuse, even though marrying Collins would secure her family's home? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are dissemble, singled, sanctioned, disapprove, footstool. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "You can hardly doubt the purport of my discourse, however your natural delicacy may lead you to dissemble; my attentions have been too marked to be mistaken." Webster's says: To hide under a false semblance or seeming. Now the word history: "dissemble": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "single": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "sanction": -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. A woman refusing a secure match was risky; Collins's offer would have saved her home. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's refusal asserts the right to marry for affection and respect. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a ridiculous proposal.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "Upon my word, Sir," cried Elizabeth, "your hope is rather an extraordinary one after my declaration. I do assure you that I am not one of those young ladies (if such young ladies there are) who are so daring as to risk their happiness on the chance of being asked a second time. I am perfectly serious in my refusal. You could not make me happy, and I am convinced that I am the last woman in the world who would make you so. Nay, were your friend Lady Catherine to know me, I am persuaded she would find me in every respect ill qualified for the situation."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XIX," how does Austen show a ridiculous proposal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a ridiculous proposal, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes a ridiculous proposal. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
dissemble	To hide under a false semblance or seeming	You can hardly doubt the purport of my discourse, however your natural delicacy may lead you to dissemble; my attentions have been too marked to be mistaken.	"dissemble": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

singled	One only, as distinguished from more than one	Almost as soon as I entered the house, I singled you out as the companion of my future life.	"single": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
sanctioned	Solemn or ceremonious ratification	"You are uniformly charming!" cried he, with an air of awkward gallantry; "and I am persuaded that when sanctioned by the express authority of both your excellent parents, my proposals will not fail of being acceptable."	"sanction": -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
disapprove	To pass unfavorable judgment upon	Collins very gravely—"but I cannot imagine that her ladyship would at all disapprove of you.	"disapprove": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
footstool	A low stool to support the feet of one when sitting	Jenkinson was arranging Miss de Bourgh's footstool, that she said, 'Mr.	"footstool": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
purport	Design or tendency	You can hardly doubt the purport of my discourse, however your natural delicacy may lead you to dissemble; my attentions have been too marked to be mistaken.	"purport": port (Latin portare, "to carry"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
qualified	Fitted by accomplishments or endowments	Nay, were your friend Lady Catherine to know me, I am persuaded she would find me in every respect ill qualified for the situation."	"qualified": -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
arranging	To put in proper order	Jenkinson was arranging Miss de Bourgh's footstool, that she said, 'Mr.	"arrange": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
gentlewoman	A woman of good family or of good breeding	Choose properly, choose a gentlewoman for my sake; and for your own, let her be an active, useful sort of person, not brought up high, but able to make a small income go a good way.	"gentlewoman": man (Latin manus, "hand"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

females	An individual of the sex which conceives and brings forth young, or (in a wider sense) which has an ovary and…	As I must therefore conclude that you are not serious in your rejection of me, I shall choose to attribute it to your wish of increasing my love by suspense, according to the usual practice of elegant females."	"female": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Elizabeth refuse, even though marrying Collins would secure her family's home?
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. How does Collins explain why he wants to marry?
   A. He lists reasons, including Lady Catherine's advice
   B. He says he loves her passionately
   C. He is lonely
   D. He needs money
2. What does Collins think Elizabeth's refusal means?
   A. That she loves another
   B. That ladies refuse at first
   C. That she means it
   D. That she is ill
3. How does Mrs. Bennet react?
   A. She laughs
   B. She faints
   C. She is pleased
   D. She is furious
4. What does Collins compare his reasons to?
   A. A sermon on charity
   B. A love poem
   C. A legal case
   D. A carefully prepared list
5. What theme does the refusal highlight?
   A. Marriage for respect and affection

B. Obedience

C. Religion

D. Wealth above all

6. In the line “You can hardly doubt the purport of my discourse, however your natural delicacy may lead you to dissemble; my attentions have been too marked to be mistaken.”, what does “dissemble” most nearly mean?

   A. To hide under a false semblance or seeming

   B. Solemn or ceremonious ratification

   C. To pass unfavorable judgment upon

   D. One only, as distinguished from more than one

7. In the line “Almost as soon as I entered the house, I singled you out as the companion of my future life.”, what does “singled” most nearly mean?

   A. To hide under a false semblance or seeming

   B. Solemn or ceremonious ratification

   C. To pass unfavorable judgment upon

   D. One only, as distinguished from more than one

Answer key: 1. A (He lists reasons, including Lady Catherine's advice); 2. B (That ladies refuse at first); 3. D (She is furious); 4. D (A carefully prepared list); 5. A (Marriage for respect and affection); 6. A (To hide under a false semblance or seeming); 7. D (One only, as distinguished from more than one)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter XIX,” how does Austen show a ridiculous proposal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XIX, how does Austen develop the idea of a ridiculous proposal? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XIX develops the idea of a ridiculous proposal. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XIX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of a ridiculous proposal. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XIX suggests about a ridiculous proposal. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter XIX to complicate the reader's understanding of a ridiculous proposal. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XIX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a ridiculous proposal responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XIX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a ridiculous proposal follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XIX and its treatment of a ridiculous proposal. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XIX as evidence for a larger claim about a ridiculous proposal in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XIX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a ridiculous proposal. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. “You are uniformly charming!” cried he, with an air of awkward gallantry; “and I am persuaded that when sanctioned by the express authority of both your excellent parents, my proposals will not fail of being acceptable.”

   As used in the text, what does the word “sanctioned” most nearly mean?

   A. A woman of good family or of good breeding

   B. Solemn or ceremonious ratification

   C. An individual of the sex which conceives and brings forth young, or (in a wider sense) which has an ovary and…

   D. To put in proper order

2. “Upon my word, Sir,” cried Elizabeth, “your hope is rather an extraordinary one after my declaration. I do assure you that I am not one of those young ladies (if such young ladies there are) who are so daring as to risk their happiness on the chance of being asked a second time. I am perfectly serious in my refusal. You could not make me happy, and I am convinced that I am the last woman in the world who would make you so. Nay, were your friend Lady Catherine to know me, I am persuaded she would find me in every respect ill qualified for the situation."

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XIX"?

A. Scandal

B. The author's stated purpose

C. A ridiculous proposal

D. Embarrassing relations

SAT key: 1. B (Solemn or ceremonious ratification); 2. C (A ridiculous proposal)

Lesson 20: Chapter XX

Focus: parental conflict over the refusal

Teacher only · spoilers

Mrs. Bennet insists Elizabeth accept Collins and appeals to Mr. Bennet, who declares: 'Your mother will never see you again if you do not marry Mr. Collins, and I will never see you again if you do.' Collins, wounded in pride, withdraws his offer; Charlotte arrives and witnesses the commotion.

Background: Fathers held legal authority over unmarried daughters, which makes Mr. Bennet's support decisive.

Significance: Mr. Bennet's witty ultimatum is a rare moment of real parental backing, delivered as a joke.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Is Mr. Bennet's support of Elizabeth an act of love, of wit, or both? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are disrespect, persists, unconcern, requesting, interpose. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “You will not, I hope, consider me as showing any disrespect to your family, my dear Madam, by thus withdrawing my pretensions to your daughter’s favour, without having paid yourself and Mr.” Webster's says: Want of respect or reverence. Now the word history: “disrespect”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not") + spect (Latin specere, "to look"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “persist”: per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly") + sist (Latin sistere, "to stand"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “unconcern”: un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Fathers held legal authority over unmarried daughters, which makes Mr. Bennet's support decisive. Why does this chapter matter? Mr. Bennet's witty ultimatum is a rare moment of real parental backing, delivered as a joke. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to parental conflict over the refusal.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Conflict.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Mr. Collins was not left long to the silent contemplation of his successful love; for Mrs. Bennet, having dawdled about in the vestibule to watch for the end of the conference, no sooner saw Elizabeth open the door and with quick step pass her towards the staircase, than she entered the breakfast-room, and congratulated both him and herself in warm terms on the happy prospect of their nearer connection. Mr. Collins received and returned these felicitations with equal pleasure, and then proceeded to relate the particulars of their interview, with the result of which he trusted he had every reason to be satisfied, since the refusal which his cousin had steadfastly given him would naturally flow from her bashful modesty and the genuine delicacy of her character.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Conflict: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XX," how does Austen show parental conflict over the refusal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about parental conflict over the refusal, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes parental conflict over the refusal. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note disrespect

	Want of respect or reverence	You will not, I hope, consider me as showing any disrespect to your family, my dear Madam, by thus withdrawing my pretensions to your daughter's favour, without having paid yourself and Mr.	"disrespect": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not") + spect (Latin specere, "to look"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
persists	To stand firm	If therefore she actually persists in rejecting my suit, perhaps it were better not to force her into accepting me, because if liable to such defects of temper, she could not contribute much to my felicity."	"persist": per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly") + sist (Latin sistere, "to stand"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
unconcern	Want of concern	Bennet raised his eyes from his book as she entered, and fixed them on her face with a calm unconcern which was not in the least altered by her communication.	"unconcern": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
requesting	The act of asking for anything desired	Bennet the compliment of requesting you to interpose your authority in my behalf.	"request": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
interpose	To place between	Bennet the compliment of requesting you to interpose your authority in my behalf.	"interpose": inter- (Latin inter, "between") + pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
rejecting	To cast from one	If therefore she actually persists in rejecting my suit, perhaps it were better not to force her into accepting me, because if liable to such defects of temper, she could not contribute much to my felicity."	"reject": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + ject (Latin iacere, "to throw"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
interfering	To come in collision	She endeavoured to secure Jane in her interest, but Jane with all possible mildness declined interfering;—and Elizabeth sometimes with real earnestness and sometimes with playful gaiety replied to her attacks.	"interfere": inter- (Latin inter, "between") + fer (Latin ferre, "to carry, bear"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
mildness	The quality or state of being mild	She endeavoured to secure Jane in her interest, but Jane with all possible mildness declined interfering;—and Elizabeth sometimes with real earnestness and sometimes with playful gaiety replied to her attacks.	"mildness": mild (Old English milde, "gentle") + -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
vestibule	The porch or entrance into a house	She was met in the vestibule by Lydia, who, flying to her, cried in a half whisper, "I am glad you are come, for there is such fun here!—What do you think has happened this morning?—Mr.	"vestibule": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
entreating

	To treat, or conduct toward	Bennet was alone, than she likewise began on the subject, calling on Miss Lucas for her compassion, and entreating her to persuade her friend Lizzy to comply with the wishes of all her family.	“entreat”: en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Is Mr. Bennet's support of Elizabeth an act of love, of wit, or both?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Conflict: look for the forces, people or desires pulling against each other

Chapter quiz

1. What does Mrs. Bennet want Mr. Bennet to do?
   A. Send Collins away
   B. Write to Darcy
   C. Visit Netherfield
   D. Insist Elizabeth marry Collins
2. Which choice best paraphrases Mr. Bennet's ultimatum?
   A. He orders her to marry
   B. Whatever Elizabeth chooses, one parent will disown her
   C. He sides with Collins
   D. He threatens to leave home
3. How does Collins respond in the end?
   A. He withdraws his offer with wounded pride
   B. He proposes to Jane
   C. He leaves Longbourn at once
   D. He weeps
4. Who arrives during the commotion?
   A. Bingley
   B. Charlotte Lucas
   C. Wickham
   D. Lady Catherine
5. What conflict does this chapter center on?
   A. Darcy against Wickham
   B. Mother against daughter over marriage

C. Jane against Bingley

D. Town against army

6. In the line “You will not, I hope, consider me as showing any disrespect to your family, my dear Madam, by thus withdrawing my pretensions to your daughter’s favour, without having paid yourself and Mr.”, what does “disrespect” most nearly mean?

A. Want of respect or reverence

B. Want of concern

C. To stand firm

D. The act of asking for anything desired

7. In the line “If therefore she actually persists in rejecting my suit, perhaps it were better not to force her into accepting me, because if liable to such defects of temper, she could not contribute much to my felicity.””, what does “persists” most nearly mean?

A. Want of respect or reverence

B. To stand firm

C. Want of concern

D. The act of asking for anything desired

Answer key: 1. D (Insist Elizabeth marry Collins); 2. B (Whatever Elizabeth chooses, one parent will disown her); 3. A (He withdraws his offer with wounded pride); 4. B (Charlotte Lucas); 5. B (Mother against daughter over marriage); 6. A (Want of respect or reverence); 7. B (To stand firm)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XX,” how does Austen show parental conflict over the refusal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XX, how does Austen develop the idea of parental conflict over the refusal? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XX develops the idea of parental conflict over the refusal. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of parental conflict over the refusal. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XX suggests about parental conflict over the refusal. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XX to complicate the reader's understanding of parental conflict over the refusal. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of parental conflict over the refusal responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of parental conflict over the refusal follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XX and its treatment of parental conflict over the refusal. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XX as evidence for a larger claim about parental conflict over the refusal in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of parental conflict over the refusal. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Bennet raised his eyes from his book as she entered, and fixed them on her face with a calm unconcern which was not in the least altered by her communication.

   As used in the text, what does the word “unconcern” most nearly mean?

   A. The quality or state of being mild

   B. The porch or entrance into a house

   C. Want of concern

   D. To treat, or conduct toward

2. Mr. Collins was not left long to the silent contemplation of his successful love; for Mrs. Bennet, having dawdled about in the vestibule to watch for the end of the conference, no sooner saw Elizabeth open the door and with quick step pass her towards the staircase, than she entered the breakfast-room, and congratulated both him and herself in warm terms on the happy prospect of their nearer connection. Mr. Collins received and returned these felicitations with equal pleasure, and then proceeded to relate the particulars of their interview, with the result of which he trusted he had every reason to be satisfied, since the refusal which his cousin had steadfastly given him would naturally flow from her bashful modesty and the genuine delicacy of her character.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XX"?

A. Parental conflict over the refusal

B. The demand for a companion

C. Awakening to the world

D. Bingley returns

SAT key: 1. C (Want of concern); 2. A (Parental conflict over the refusal)

Lesson 21: Chapter XXI

Focus: consequences of refusal

Teacher only · spoilers

Collins turns his attention elsewhere. Charlotte draws him away. The Bingley party leaves for London, and Caroline writes that Bingley will not return and hints he may marry Darcy's sister, Georgiana.

Background: London's 'season' was the high point of social and marriage activity.

Significance: Caroline's letter deceives Jane and begins her heartbreak.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Is Caroline's letter honest? What might her motives be? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are desponding, inspires, indulging, dejection, introducing. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Jane’s temper was not desponding, and she was gradually led to hope, though the diffidence of affection sometimes overcame the hope, that Bingley would return to Netherfield and answer every wish of her heart.” Webster's says: To give up, the will, courage, or spirit. Now the word history: “despond”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + pon (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “inspire”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “indulge”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. London's 'season' was the high point of social and marriage activity. Why does this chapter matter? Caroline's letter deceives Jane and begins her heartbreak. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to consequences of refusal.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> The discussion of Mr. Collins's offer was now nearly at an end, and Elizabeth had only to suffer from the uncomfortable feelings necessarily attending it, and occasionally from some peevish allusion of her mother. As for the gentleman himself, his feelings were chiefly expressed, not by embarrassment or dejection, or by trying to avoid her, but by stiffness of manner and resentful silence. He scarcely ever spoke to her, and the assiduous attentions which he had been so sensible of himself, were transferred for the rest of the day to Miss Lucas, whose civility in listening to him, was a seasonable relief to them all, and especially to her friend.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXI," how does Austen show consequences of refusal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about consequences of refusal, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes consequences of refusal. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
desponding	To give up, the will, courage, or spirit	Jane's temper was not desponding, and she was gradually led to hope, though the diffidence of affection sometimes overcame the hope, that	"despond": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + pon (Latin ponere, "to place").

		Bingley would return to Netherfield and answer every wish of her heart.	Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
inspires	To breathe into	I really do not think Georgiana Darcy has her equal for beauty, elegance, and accomplishments; and the affection she inspires in Louisa and myself, is heightened into something still more interesting, from the hope we dare to entertain of her being hereafter our sister.	"inspire": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
indulging	To be complacent toward	With all these circumstances to favour an attachment and nothing to prevent it, am I wrong, my dearest Jane, in indulging the hope of an event which will secure the happiness of so many?"	"indulge": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
dejection	A casting down	As for the gentleman himself, his feelings were chiefly expressed, not by embarrassment or dejection, or by trying to avoid her, but by stiffness of manner and resentful silence.	"dejection": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
introducing	To lead or bring in	His accompanying them was a double advantage; she felt all the compliment it offered to herself, and it was most acceptable as an occasion of introducing him to her father and mother.	"introduce": intro- (Latin intro, "inward") + duc (Latin ducere, "to lead"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
deceiving	To lead into error	Caroline is incapable of wilfully deceiving anyone; and all that I can hope in this case is, that she is deceived herself."	"deceive": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + ceive (Latin capere, "to take"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
accompanying	To go with or attend as a companion or associate	His accompanying them was a double advantage; she felt all the compliment it offered to herself, and it was most acceptable as an occasion of introducing him to her father and mother.	"accompany": ac- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
accepting	To receive with a consenting mind (something offered)	"But, my dear sister, can I be happy, even supposing the best, in accepting a man whose sisters and friends are all wishing him to marry elsewhere?"	"accept": ac- (Latin ad, "to") + cept (Latin capere, "to take"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
courses		Bingley would be soon down again and soon dining at Longbourn, and the conclusion of all was the comfortable declaration that, though he	"course": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED)

	The act of moving from one point to another	had been invited only to a family dinner, she would take care to have two full courses.	and record the language of origin.
equivalent	Equal in wortir or value, force, power, effect, import, and the like	"You must decide for yourself," said Elizabeth, "and if upon mature deliberation, you find that the misery of disobliging his two sisters is more than equivalent to the happiness of being his wife, I advise you by all means to refuse him."	"equivalent": -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Is Caroline's letter honest? What might her motives be?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who distracts Collins after the refusal?
   A. Jane
   B. Lydia
   C. Mary
   D. Charlotte Lucas
2. Where do the Netherfield party go?
   A. Scotland
   B. Bath
   C. Pemberley
   D. London
3. Who writes to Jane?
   A. Georgiana
   B. Caroline Bingley
   C. Bingley
   D. Darcy
4. Whom does Caroline hint Bingley will marry?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Elizabeth
   C. Anne de Bourgh
   D. Georgiana Darcy

5. How does Jane respond?
   A. She laughs
   B. She goes to London at once
   C. She is angry
   D. She is hurt but believes Caroline
6. In the line “Jane’s temper was not desponding, and she was gradually led to hope, though the diffidence of affection sometimes overcame the hope, that Bingley would return to Netherfield and answer every wish of her heart.”, what does “desponding” most nearly mean?
   A. To be complacent toward
   B. To give up, the will, courage, or spirit
   C. A casting down
   D. To breathe into
7. In the line “I really do not think Georgiana Darcy has her equal for beauty, elegance, and accomplishments; and the affection she inspires in Louisa and myself, is heightened into something still more interesting, from the hope we dare to entertain of her being hereafter our sister.”, what does “inspires” most nearly mean?
   A. To give up, the will, courage, or spirit
   B. To be complacent toward
   C. A casting down
   D. To breathe into

Answer key: 1. D (Charlotte Lucas); 2. D (London); 3. B (Caroline Bingley); 4. D (Georgiana Darcy); 5. D (She is hurt but believes Caroline); 6. B (To give up, the will, courage, or spirit); 7. D (To breathe into)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXI,” how does Austen show consequences of refusal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXI, how does Austen develop the idea of consequences of refusal? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXI develops the idea of consequences of refusal. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and plot shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of consequences of refusal. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXI suggests about consequences of refusal. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and plot), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXI to complicate the reader's understanding of consequences of refusal. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of consequences of refusal responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of consequences of refusal follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXI and its treatment of consequences of refusal. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and plot, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXI as evidence for a larger claim about consequences of refusal in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of consequences of refusal. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. With all these circumstances to favour an attachment and nothing to prevent it, am I wrong, my dearest Jane, in indulging the hope of an event which will secure the happiness of so many?"

   As used in the text, what does the word "indulging" most nearly mean?

   A. The act of moving from one point to another

   B. Equal in wortir or value, force, power, effect, import, and the like

   C. To receive with a consenting mind (something offered)

   D. To be complacent toward

2. The discussion of Mr. Collins's offer was now nearly at an end, and Elizabeth had only to suffer from the uncomfortable feelings necessarily attending it, and occasionally from some peevish allusion of her mother. As for the gentleman himself, his feelings were chiefly expressed, not by embarrassment or dejection, or by trying to avoid her, but by stiffness of manner and resentful silence. He scarcely ever spoke to her, and the assiduous attentions which he had been so sensible of himself, were transferred for the rest of the day to Miss Lucas, whose civility in listening to him, was a seasonable relief to them all, and especially to her friend.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXI"?

A. Hearing the many voices

B. Disappointment and philosophy

C. Consequences of refusal

D. A persuasive tale

SAT key: 1. D (To be complacent toward); 2. C (Consequences of refusal)

Lesson 22: Chapter XXII

Focus: a practical marriage

Teacher only · spoilers

Collins proposes to Charlotte, who accepts for security. Elizabeth is shocked that her friend could marry so foolish a man. Charlotte says she is 'not romantic.'

Background: At 27, Charlotte had few prospects; marriage offered her home and status.

Significance: Charlotte's choice offers a realistic counterpoint to romantic ideals.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Is Charlotte's choice wise, sad, or both? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are slyness, overjoyed, thanking, calculate, offending. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “But here, she did injustice to the fire and independence of his character, for it led him to escape out of Longbourn House the next morning with admirable slyness, and hasten to Lucas Lodge to throw himself at her feet.” Webster's says: The quality or state of being sly. Now the word history: “slyness”: -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “overjoy”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “thank”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. At 27, Charlotte had few prospects; marriage offered her home and status. Why does this chapter matter? Charlotte's choice offers a realistic counterpoint to romantic ideals. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a practical marriage.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> As he was to begin his journey too early on the morrow to see any of the family, the ceremony of leave-taking was performed when the ladies moved for the night; and Mrs. Bennet with great politeness and cordiality said how happy they should be to see him at Longbourn again, whenever his other engagements might allow him to visit them.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXII," how does Austen show a practical marriage? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a practical marriage, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes a practical marriage. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
slyness	The quality or state of being sly	But here, she did injustice to the fire and independence of his character, for it led him to escape out of Longbourn House the next morning with admirable slyness, and	"slyness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		hasten to Lucas Lodge to throw himself at her feet.
overjoyed	To make excessively joyful	The whole family in short were properly overjoyed on the occasion.	"overjoy": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
thanking	A expression of gratitude	Elizabeth took an opportunity of thanking her.	"thank": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
calculate	To ascertain or determine by mathematical processes, usually by the ordinary rules of arithmetic	Lady Lucas began directly to calculate with more interest than the matter had ever excited before, how many years longer Mr.	"calculate": -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
offending	To strike against	"But is there not danger of Lady Catherine's disapprobation here, my good sir?—You had better neglect your relations, than run the risk of offending your patroness."	"offend": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
alacrity	A cheerful readiness, willingness, or promptitude	Sir William and Lady Lucas were speedily applied to for their consent; and it was bestowed with a most joyful alacrity.	"alacrity": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
cordiality	Relation to the heart	Bennet with great politeness and cordiality said how happy they should be to see him at Longbourn again, whenever his other engagements might allow him to visit them.	"cordiality": cor- (Latin com-, "with") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
humiliating	To reduce to a lower position in one's own eyes, or in the eyes of others	Collins, was a most humiliating picture!—And to the pang of a friend disgracing herself and sunk in her esteem, was added the distressing conviction that it was impossible for that friend to be tolerably happy in the lot she had chosen.	"humiliate": hum (Latin humus, "earth" / homo, "human") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
conference	The act of comparing two or more things together	Miss Lucas called soon after breakfast, and in a private conference with Elizabeth related the event of the day before.	"conference": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + fer (Latin ferre, "to carry, bear") + -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
regained	To gain anew

		The steady countenance which Miss Lucas had commanded in telling her story, gave way to a momentary confusion here on receiving so direct a reproach; though, as it was no more than she expected, she soon regained her composure, and calmly replied—	“regain”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Is Charlotte's choice wise, sad, or both?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Whom does Collins propose to next?
   A. Charlotte Lucas
   B. Kitty
   C. Mary Bennet
   D. Caroline
2. Why does Charlotte accept?
   A. For security and a home
   B. For love
   C. To spite Elizabeth
   D. Because she is rich
3. How does Elizabeth react?
   A. Shocked and disappointed
   B. Indifferent
   C. Jealous
   D. Delighted
4. What does Charlotte say she is not?
   A. Healthy
   B. Clever
   C. Proud
   D. Romantic

5. What does this chapter suggest about marriage?
   A. It was rare
   B. It always meant love
   C. It was illegal
   D. It was often an economic necessity
6. In the line “But here, she did injustice to the fire and independence of his character, for it led him to escape out of Longbourn House the next morning with admirable slyness, and hasten to Lucas Lodge to throw himself at her feet.”, what does “slyness” most nearly mean?
   A. The quality or state of being sly
   B. A expression of gratitude
   C. To make excessively joyful
   D. To ascertain or determine by mathematical processes, usually by the ordinary rules of arithmetic
7. In the line “The whole family in short were properly overjoyed on the occasion.”, what does “overjoyed” most nearly mean?
   A. To make excessively joyful
   B. The quality or state of being sly
   C. A expression of gratitude
   D. To ascertain or determine by mathematical processes, usually by the ordinary rules of arithmetic

Answer key: 1. A (Charlotte Lucas); 2. A (For security and a home); 3. A (Shocked and disappointed); 4. D (Romantic); 5. D (It was often an economic necessity); 6. A (The quality or state of being sly); 7. A (To make excessively joyful)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXII,” how does Austen show a practical marriage? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXII, how does Austen develop the idea of a practical marriage? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXII develops the idea of a practical marriage. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of a practical marriage. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXII suggests about a practical marriage. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXII to complicate the reader's understanding of a practical marriage. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a practical marriage responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a practical marriage follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXII and its treatment of a practical marriage. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXII as evidence for a larger claim about a practical marriage in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a practical marriage. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Elizabeth took an opportunity of thanking her.

   As used in the text, what does the word “thanking” most nearly mean?

   A. To reduce to a lower position in one's own eyes, or in the eyes of others

   B. A expression of gratitude

   C. To gain anew

   D. The act of comparing two or more things together

2. As he was to begin his journey too early on the morrow to see any of the family, the ceremony of leave-taking was performed when the ladies moved for the night; and Mrs. Bennet with great politeness and cordiality said how happy they should be to see him at Longbourn again, whenever his other engagements might allow him to visit them.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XXII”?

   A. Confiding and consent

B. Marriage as a social goal

C. Recovery and false peace

D. A practical marriage

SAT key: 1. B (A expression of gratitude); 2. D (A practical marriage)

Lesson 23: Chapter XXIII

Focus: family uproar

Teacher only · spoilers

Sir William announces the engagement; Mrs. Bennet is disbelieving and resentful. Jane receives no word from Bingley, and Elizabeth grows more suspicious of Darcy's and the sisters' influence.

Background: Engagements reshaped family alliances and resentments.

Significance: Elizabeth's distrust of Darcy deepens—partly earned, partly prejudice.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why is Mrs. Bennet especially bitter about Charlotte's engagement? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are stability, unfeeling, overpowering, luckily, resolving. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Unwilling as she was to admit an idea so destructive of Jane's happiness, and so dishonourable to the stability of her lover, she could not prevent its frequently recurring." Webster's says: The state or quality of being stable, or firm. Now the word history: "stability": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "unfeeling": un- (Old English un-, "not") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it. "overpowering": over- (Old English ofer, "over") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Engagements reshaped family alliances and resentments. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's distrust of Darcy deepens—partly earned, partly prejudice. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to family uproar.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Tone / mood, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Elizabeth was sitting with her mother and sisters, reflecting on what she had heard, and doubting whether she were authorised to mention it, when Sir William Lucas himself appeared, sent by his daughter to announce her engagement to the family. With many compliments to them, and much self-gratulation on the prospect of a connection between the houses, he unfolded the matter—to an audience not merely wondering, but incredulous; for Mrs. Bennet, with more perseverance than politeness, protested he must be entirely mistaken, and Lydia, always unguarded and often uncivil, boisterously exclaimed—

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Tone / mood, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXIII," how does Austen show family uproar? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about family uproar, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes family uproar. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
stability	The state or quality of being stable, or firm	Unwilling as she was to admit an idea so destructive of Jane's happiness, and so dishonourable to the stability of her lover,	"stability": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		she could not prevent its frequently recurring.
unfeeling	Destitute of feeling	The united efforts of his two unfeeling sisters and of his overpowering friend, assisted by the attractions of Miss Darcy and the amusements of London, might be too much, she feared, for the strength of his attachment.	“unfeeling”: un- (Old English un-, "not") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
overpowering	Excelling in power	The united efforts of his two unfeeling sisters and of his overpowering friend, assisted by the attractions of Miss Darcy and the amusements of London, might be too much, she feared, for the strength of his attachment.	“overpowering”: over- (Old English ofer, "over") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
luckily	In a lucky manner	He was too happy, however, to need much attention; and luckily for the others, the business of lovemaking relieved them from a great deal of his company.	“luckily”: luc (Latin lux, "light") + -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
resolving	To separate the component parts of	Collins, was convinced that they were talking of the Longbourn estate, and resolving to turn herself and her daughters out of the house, as soon as Mr.	“resolve”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + solv (Latin solvere, "to loosen"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
abhorrence	Extreme hatred or detestation	As her successor in that house, she regarded her with jealous abhorrence.	“abhorrence”: ab- (Latin ab, "away from") + -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
attractions	(Physics) An invisible power in a body by which it draws anything to itself	The united efforts of his two unfeeling sisters and of his overpowering friend, assisted by the attractions of Miss Darcy and the amusements of London, might be too much, she feared, for the strength of his attachment.	“attraction”: at- (Latin ad, "to") + -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
appease	To make quiet	Nothing could console and nothing appease her.	“appease”: ap- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
murmurs	A low, confused, and indistinct sound, like that of running water	Such were the gentle murmurs of Mrs.	“murmur”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
unfolded	To open the folds of	With many compliments to them, and much self-gratulation on the prospect of a connection between the houses, he unfolded the matter—to an audience not merely wondering, but incredulous; for Mrs.	“unfold”: un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why is Mrs. Bennet especially bitter about Charlotte's engagement?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Who announces the engagement?
   A. Collins
   B. Sir William Lucas
   C. Mr. Bennet
   D. Charlotte
2. How does Mrs. Bennet react?
   A. Joy
   B. Sympathy
   C. With disbelief and resentment
   D. Relief
3. What does Jane wait for?
   A. Lydia
   B. Money
   C. A letter from Darcy
   D. News from Bingley
4. Whom does Elizabeth suspect of separating Jane and Bingley?
   A. His sisters and Darcy
   B. Wickham
   C. Collins
   D. Charlotte
5. Why does Collins's engagement trouble Mrs. Bennet?
   A. It is too expensive
   B. She dislikes clergy
   C. Charlotte will become mistress of Longbourn

D. She wanted Collins herself

6. In the line “Unwilling as she was to admit an idea so destructive of Jane’s happiness, and so dishonourable to the stability of her lover, she could not prevent its frequently recurring.”, what does “stability” most nearly mean?
   A. Excelling in power
   B. Destitute of feeling
   C. The state or quality of being stable, or firm
   D. In a lucky manner
7. In the line “The united efforts of his two unfeeling sisters and of his overpowering friend, assisted by the attractions of Miss Darcy and the amusements of London, might be too much, she feared, for the strength of his attachment.”, what does “unfeeling” most nearly mean?
   A. The state or quality of being stable, or firm
   B. Excelling in power
   C. In a lucky manner
   D. Destitute of feeling

Answer key: 1. B (Sir William Lucas); 2. C (With disbelief and resentment); 3. D (News from Bingley); 4. A (His sisters and Darcy); 5. C (Charlotte will become mistress of Longbourn); 6. C (The state or quality of being stable, or firm); 7. D (Destitute of feeling)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXIII,” how does Austen show family uproar? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXIII, how does Austen develop the idea of family uproar? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXIII develops the idea of family uproar. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and tone / mood shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of family uproar. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXIII suggests about family uproar. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and tone / mood), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXIII to complicate the reader's understanding of family uproar. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of family uproar responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of family uproar follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXIII and its treatment of family uproar. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and tone / mood, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXIII as evidence for a larger claim about family uproar in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of family uproar. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. The united efforts of his two unfeeling sisters and of his overpowering friend, assisted by the attractions of Miss Darcy and the amusements of London, might be too much, she feared, for the strength of his attachment.

   As used in the text, what does the word “overpowering” most nearly mean?

   A. To make quiet

   B. To open the folds of

   C. A low, confused, and indistinct sound, like that of running water

   D. Excelling in power

2. Elizabeth was sitting with her mother and sisters, reflecting on what she had heard, and doubting whether she were authorised to mention it, when Sir William Lucas himself appeared, sent by his daughter to announce her engagement to the family. With many compliments to them, and much self-gratulation on the prospect of a connection between the houses, he unfolded the matter—to an audience not merely wondering, but incredulous; for Mrs. Bennet, with more perseverance than politeness, protested he must be entirely mistaken, and Lydia, always unguarded and often uncivil, boisterously exclaimed—

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXIII"?

A. Family uproar

B. Ambition and the hunger for discovery

C. An absurd cousin's letter

D. Darcy at Rosings

SAT key: 1. D (Excelling in power); 2. A (Family uproar)

Lesson 24: Chapter XXIV

Focus: disappointment and philosophy

Teacher only · spoilers

Caroline's letter confirms the Bingleys will stay in London. Jane bears it quietly. Elizabeth reflects bitterly on the 'inconsistency of all human characters.' Mr. Bennet jokes that Wickham would make a fine jilt.

Background: Women's feelings were expected to be hidden for propriety.

Significance: Elizabeth's cynicism shows how disappointment shapes judgment.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How does Jane's restraint compare with Elizabeth's response? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are disclaimed, extenuating, unreserve, encroaching, confirms. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Miss Bennet eagerly disclaimed all extraordinary merit, and threw back the praise on her sister's warm affection." Webster's says: To renounce all claim to deny. Now the word history: "disclaim": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "extenuate": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + ten (Latin tenere, "to hold") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "unreserve": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Women's feelings were expected to be hidden for propriety. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's cynicism shows how disappointment shapes judgment. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to disappointment and philosophy.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Hope was over, entirely over; and when Jane could attend to the rest of the letter, she found little, except the professed affection of the writer, that could give her any comfort. Miss Darcy's praise occupied the chief of it. Her many attractions were again dwelt on, and Caroline boasted joyfully of their increasing intimacy, and ventured to predict the accomplishment of the wishes which had been unfolded in her former letter. She wrote also with great pleasure of her brother's being an inmate of Mr. Darcy's house, and mentioned with raptures, some plans of the latter with regard to new furniture.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXIV," how does Austen show disappointment and philosophy? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about disappointment and philosophy, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes disappointment and philosophy. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
disclaimed	To renounce all claim to deny	Miss Bennet eagerly disclaimed all extraordinary merit, and threw back the praise on her sister's warm affection.	"disclaim": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

extenuating	To make thin or slender	Miss Bennet was the only creature who could suppose there might be any extenuating circumstances in the case, unknown to the society of Hertfordshire; her mild and steady candour always pleaded for allowances, and urged the possibility of mistakes—but by everybody else Mr.	“extenuate”: ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + ten (Latin tenere, "to hold") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
unreserve	Absence of reverse	They saw him often, and to his other recommendations was now added that of general unreserve.	“unreserve”: un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
encroaching	To enter by gradual steps or by stealth into the possessions or rights of another	Do not be afraid of my running into any excess, of my encroaching on your privilege of universal good will.	“encroach”: en- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
confirms	To make firm or firmer	The more I see of the world, the more am I dissatisfied with it; and every day confirms my belief of the inconsistency of all human characters, and of the little dependence that can be placed on the appearance of either merit or sense.	“confirm”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
predict	To tell or declare beforehand	Her many attractions were again dwelt on, and Caroline boasted joyfully of their increasing intimacy, and ventured to predict the accomplishment of the wishes which had been unfolded in her former letter.	“predict”: pre- (Latin prae, "before") + dict (Latin dicere, "to say"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
occurrences	A coming or happening	Wickham’s society was of material service in dispelling the gloom, which the late perverse occurrences had thrown on many of the Longbourn family.	“occurrence”: cur (Latin cura, "care") + -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
conjunction	The act of conjoining, or the state of being conjoined, united, or associated	“Yes, in conjunction with his friend.”	“conjunction”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
displease	To make not pleased	But if I go on, I shall displease you by saying what I think of persons you esteem.	“displease”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
integrity	The state or quality of being entire or complete	You shall not, for the sake of one individual, change the meaning of principle and integrity, nor endeavour to persuade yourself or me, that	“integrity”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		selfishness is prudence, and insensibility of danger, security for happiness."

Discussion questions

1. How does Jane's restraint compare with Elizabeth's response?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. What does Caroline's second letter say?
   A. Bingley is engaged to Jane
   B. They are coming back
   C. The Bingleys will stay in London
   D. Darcy is ill
2. How does Jane respond?
   A. She bears it quietly
   B. She leaves home
   C. She rages
   D. She writes to Darcy
3. What does Elizabeth reflect on?
   A. The weather
   B. The inconsistency of human character
   C. Her music
   D. Fashion
4. Whom does Mr. Bennet joke about?
   A. Bingley
   B. Darcy
   C. Collins
   D. Wickham
5. What tone does Mr. Bennet use?
   A. Fear
   B. Mocking humor
   C. Anger
   D. Deep sorrow

6. In the line “Miss Bennet eagerly disclaimed all extraordinary merit, and threw back the praise on her sister’s warm affection.”, what does “disclaimed” most nearly mean?
   A. To enter by gradual steps or by stealth into the possessions or rights of another
   B. To renounce all claim to deny
   C. Absence of reverse
   D. To make thin or slender
7. In the line “Miss Bennet was the only creature who could suppose there might be any extenuating circumstances in the case, unknown to the society of Hertfordshire; her mild and steady candour always pleaded for allowances, and urged the possibility of mistakes—but by everybody else Mr.”, what does “extenuating” most nearly mean?
   A. To make thin or slender
   B. Absence of reverse
   C. To enter by gradual steps or by stealth into the possessions or rights of another
   D. To renounce all claim to deny

Answer key: 1. C (The Bingleys will stay in London); 2. A (She bears it quietly); 3. B (The inconsistency of human character); 4. D (Wickham); 5. B (Mocking humor); 6. B (To renounce all claim to deny); 7. A (To make thin or slender)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXIV,” how does Austen show disappointment and philosophy? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXIV, how does Austen develop the idea of disappointment and philosophy? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXIV develops the idea of disappointment and philosophy. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXIV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of disappointment and philosophy. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXIV suggests about disappointment and philosophy. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXIV to complicate the reader's understanding of disappointment and philosophy.

Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXIV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of disappointment and philosophy responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXIV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of disappointment and philosophy follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXIV and its treatment of disappointment and philosophy. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXIV as evidence for a larger claim about disappointment and philosophy in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXIV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of disappointment and philosophy. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. They saw him often, and to his other recommendations was now added that of general unreserve.

   As used in the text, what does the word “unreserve” most nearly mean?

   A. The act of conjoining, or the state of being conjoined, united, or associated

   B. To make not pleased

   C. Absence of reverse

   D. The state or quality of being entire or complete

2. Hope was over, entirely over; and when Jane could attend to the rest of the letter, she found little, except the professed affection of the writer, that could give her any comfort. Miss Darcy’s praise occupied the chief of it. Her many attractions were again dwelt on, and Caroline boasted joyfully of their increasing intimacy, and ventured to predict the accomplishment of the wishes which had been unfolded in her former letter. She wrote also with great pleasure of her brother’s being an inmate of Mr. Darcy’s house, and mentioned with raptures, some plans of the latter with regard to new furniture.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XXIV”?

   A. The demand for a companion

B. Disappointment and philosophy

C. Letters of judgment

D. Language, knowledge and sorrow

SAT key: 1. C (Absence of reverse); 2. B (Disappointment and philosophy)

Lesson 25: Chapter XXV

Focus: trusted relatives

Teacher only · spoilers

The Gardiners, Mrs. Bennet's sensible brother and his wife, visit for Christmas. Mrs. Gardiner warns Elizabeth not to fall for Wickham, who lacks fortune, and invites Jane to London.

Background: The Gardiners live in Cheapside, a merchant area looked down on by the Bingley sisters.

Significance: The Gardiners show that good sense and manners are not tied to rank.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why are the Gardiners important despite their 'low' connections? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are ablution, reanimated, incivility, combated, hackneyed. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Darcy may perhaps have heard of such a place as Gracechurch Street, but he would hardly think a month’s ablution enough to cleanse him from its impurities, were he once to enter it; and depend upon it, Mr.” Webster's says: The act of washing or cleansing. Now the word history: “ablution”: ab- (Latin ab, "away from"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “reanimate”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + anim (Latin anima, "breath, soul") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “incivility”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + civ (Latin civis, "citizen") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. The Gardiners live in Cheapside, a merchant area looked down on by the Bingley sisters. Why does this chapter matter? The Gardiners show that good sense and manners are not tied to rank. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to trusted relatives.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Setting, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> On the following Monday, Mrs. Bennet had the pleasure of receiving her brother and his wife, who came as usual to spend the Christmas at Longbourn. Mr. Gardiner was a sensible, gentleman-like man, greatly superior to his sister, as well by nature as education. The Netherfield ladies would have had difficulty in believing that a man who lived by trade, and within view of his own warehouses, could have been so well bred and agreeable. Mrs. Gardiner, who was several years younger than Mrs. Bennet and Mrs. Philips, was an amiable, intelligent, elegant woman, and a great favourite with all her Longbourn nieces. Between the two eldest and herself especially, there subsisted a very particular regard. They had frequently been staying with her in town.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Setting, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXV," how does Austen show trusted relatives? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about trusted relatives, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes trusted relatives. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note

ablution	The act of washing or cleansing	Darcy may perhaps have heard of such a place as Gracechurch Street, but he would hardly think a month's ablution enough to cleanse him from its impurities, were he once to enter it; and depend upon it, Mr.	"ablution": ab- (Latin ab, "away from"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
reanimated	To animate anew	It was possible, and sometimes she thought it probable, that his affection might be reanimated, and the influence of his friends successfully combated by the more natural influence of Jane's attractions.	"reanimate": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + anim (Latin anima, "breath, soul") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
incivility	The quality or state of being uncivil	Is not general incivility the very essence of love?"	"incivility": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + civ (Latin civis, "citizen") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
combated	To struggle or contend, as with an opposing force	It was possible, and sometimes she thought it probable, that his affection might be reanimated, and the influence of his friends successfully combated by the more natural influence of Jane's attractions.	"combat": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
hackneyed	A horse for riding or driving	"But that expression of 'violently in love' is so hackneyed, so doubtful, so indefinite, that it gives me very little idea.	"hackney": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
warehouses	A storehouse for wares, or goods	The Netherfield ladies would have had difficulty in believing that a man who lived by trade, and within view of his own warehouses, could have been so well bred and agreeable.	"warehouse": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
grievances	A cause of uneasiness and complaint	Bennet had many grievances to relate, and much to complain of.	"grievance": -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
thwarted	Situated or placed across something else	It makes me very nervous and poorly, to be thwarted so in my own family, and to have neighbours who think of themselves before anybody else.	"thwart": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
custody	A keeping or guarding	"And that is quite impossible; for he is now in the custody of his friend, and Mr.	"custody": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

inexhaustible	Incapable of being exhausted, emptied, or used up	Here consequently was an inexhaustible subject of discourse.	“inexhaustible”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ible (Latin -ibilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why are the Gardiners important despite their 'low' connections?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Setting: look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. Who are the Gardiners?
   A. Collins's parents
   B. Darcy's cousins
   C. Mrs. Bennet's brother and his wife
   D. Neighbors
2. What does Mrs. Gardiner warn Elizabeth about?
   A. Falling for Wickham
   B. Collins
   C. Travel
   D. Darcy
3. Where do the Gardiners live?
   A. Derbyshire
   B. Kent
   C. Cheapside in London
   D. Bath
4. Who goes to London with them?
   A. Lydia
   B. Mary
   C. Jane
   D. Elizabeth
5. What do the Gardiners show about class?
   A. Merchants are foolish
   B. Good sense is not tied to rank
   C. Money is everything

D. Rank guarantees virtue

6. In the line “Darcy may perhaps have heard of such a place as Gracechurch Street, but he would hardly think a month’s ablution enough to cleanse him from its impurities, were he once to enter it; and depend upon it, Mr.”, what does “ablution” most nearly mean?
   A. The quality or state of being uncivil
   B. To struggle or contend, as with an opposing force
   C. The act of washing or cleansing
   D. To animate anew
7. In the line “It was possible, and sometimes she thought it probable, that his affection might be reanimated, and the influence of his friends successfully combated by the more natural influence of Jane’s attractions.”, what does “reanimated” most nearly mean?
   A. The quality or state of being uncivil
   B. To animate anew
   C. To struggle or contend, as with an opposing force
   D. The act of washing or cleansing

Answer key: 1. C (Mrs. Bennet's brother and his wife); 2. A (Falling for Wickham); 3. C (Cheapside in London); 4. C (Jane); 5. B (Good sense is not tied to rank); 6. C (The act of washing or cleansing); 7. B (To animate anew)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXV,” how does Austen show trusted relatives? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXV, how does Austen develop the idea of trusted relatives? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXV develops the idea of trusted relatives. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and setting shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of trusted relatives. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXV suggests about trusted relatives. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and setting), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXV to complicate the reader's understanding of trusted relatives. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of trusted relatives responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of trusted relatives follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXV and its treatment of trusted relatives. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and setting, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXV as evidence for a larger claim about trusted relatives in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of trusted relatives. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Is not general incivility the very essence of love?”

   As used in the text, what does the word “incivility” most nearly mean?

   A. Incapable of being exhausted, emptied, or used up

   B. The quality or state of being uncivil

   C. Situated or placed across something else

   D. A keeping or guarding

2. On the following Monday, Mrs. Bennet had the pleasure of receiving her brother and his wife, who came as usual to spend the Christmas at Longbourn. Mr. Gardiner was a sensible, gentleman-like man, greatly superior to his sister, as well by nature as education. The Netherfield ladies would have had difficulty in believing that a man who lived by trade, and within view of his own warehouses, could have been so well bred and agreeable. Mrs. Gardiner, who was several years younger than Mrs. Bennet and Mrs. Philips, was an amiable, intelligent, elegant woman, and a great favourite with all her Longbourn nieces. Between the two eldest and herself especially, there subsisted a very particular regard. They had frequently been staying with her in town.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XXV”?

   A. Trusted relatives

   B. Happiness for Jane

C. Detachment among the childlike people

D. An unhappy marriage observed

SAT key: 1. B (The quality or state of being uncivil); 2. A (Trusted relatives)

Lesson 26: Chapter XXVI

Focus: cold reception

Teacher only · spoilers

In London, Jane calls on Caroline, who receives her coldly and visits late. Jane finally admits Caroline's insincerity. Wickham's attention shifts to Miss King, who has inherited money.

Background: Return visits were social signals; delay meant rejection.

Significance: Wickham's quick switch to an heiress hints at his true motives.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does Wickham's interest in Miss King suggest about him? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are defection, relinquish, resented, abundantly, involve. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Kitty and Lydia take his defection much more to heart than I do.” Webster's says: Act of abandoning a person or cause to which one is bound by allegiance or duty, or to which one has attached himself. Now the word history: “defection”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “relinquish”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + quis (Latin quaerere, "to seek"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “resent”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + sent (Latin sentire, "to feel"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Return visits were social signals; delay meant rejection. Why does this chapter matter? Wickham's quick switch to an heiress hints at his true motives. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to cold reception.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "You are too sensible a girl, Lizzy, to fall in love merely because you are warned against it; and, therefore, I am not afraid of speaking openly. Seriously, I would have you be on your guard. Do not involve yourself, or endeavour to involve him in an affection which the want of fortune would make so very imprudent. I have nothing to say against him; he is a most interesting young man; and if he had the fortune he ought to have, I should think you could not do better. But as it is—you must not let your fancy run away with you. You have sense, and we all expect you to use it. Your father would depend on your resolution and good conduct, I am sure. You must not disappoint your father."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXVI," how does Austen show cold reception? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about cold reception, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes cold reception. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
defection	Act of abandoning a person or cause to which	Kitty and Lydia take his defection much more to heart than I do.	"defection": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + -tion

	one is bound by allegiance or duty, or to which one has attached himself		(Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
relinquish	To withdraw from	Nothing, on the contrary, could be more natural; and while able to suppose that it cost him a few struggles to relinquish her, she was ready to allow it a wise and desirable measure for both, and could very sincerely wish him happy.	"relinquish": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + quis (Latin quaerere, "to seek"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
resented	To be sensible of	Her aunt assured her that she was; and Elizabeth having thanked her for the kindness of her hints, they parted; a wonderful instance of advice being given on such a point, without being resented.	"resent": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + sent (Latin sentire, "to feel"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
abundantly	In a sufficient degree	Darcy's sister, as, by Wickham's account, she would make him abundantly regret what he had thrown away.	"abundantly": ab- (Latin ab, "away from") + -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
involve	To roll or fold up	Do not involve yourself, or endeavour to involve him in an affection which the want of fortune would make so very imprudent.	"involve": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
subsided	To sink or fall to the bottom	His apparent partiality had subsided, his attentions were over, he was the admirer of someone else.	"subside": sub- (Latin sub, "under"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
struggles	To strive, or to make efforts, with a twisting, or with contortions of the body	Nothing, on the contrary, could be more natural; and while able to suppose that it cost him a few struggles to relinquish her, she was ready to allow it a wise and desirable measure for both, and could very sincerely wish him happy.	"struggle": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
reproached	To come back to, or come home to, as a matter of blame	"I did not think Caroline in spirits," were her words, "but she was very glad to see me, and reproached me for giving her no notice of my coming to London.	"reproach": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
rewarded	To give in return, whether good or evil	Her impatience for this second letter was as well rewarded as impatience generally is.	"reward": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + ard (Latin ardere, "to burn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
bridegroom	A man newly married, or just about to be married	The wedding took place; the bride and bridegroom set off for Kent from the	"bridegroom": no root in our classroom table; have students church door, and everybody had as much to say or to hear on the subject as usual.	look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. What does Wickham's interest in Miss King suggest about him?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. How does Caroline treat Jane in London?
   A. She invites her to live with them
   B. Warmly
   C. Coldly
   D. She introduces her to Bingley
2. What does Jane finally realize?
   A. Darcy loves her
   B. Bingley is married
   C. She is ill
   D. Caroline was insincere
3. Whom does Wickham now pursue?
   A. Lydia
   B. Elizabeth
   C. Charlotte
   D. Miss King, an heiress
4. Why is Miss King attractive to Wickham?
   A. She has inherited money
   B. She is related to Darcy
   C. She is beautiful
   D. She is a duchess
5. How does Elizabeth take Wickham's switch?
   A. With fury
   B. With tears
   C. She challenges Miss King
   D. Calmly, without heartbreak

6. In the line “Kitty and Lydia take his defection much more to heart than I do.”, what does “defection” most nearly mean?
   A. Act of abandoning a person or cause to which one is bound by allegiance or duty, or to which one has attached himself
   B. In a sufficient degree
   C. To be sensible of
   D. To withdraw from
7. In the line “Nothing, on the contrary, could be more natural; and while able to suppose that it cost him a few struggles to relinquish her, she was ready to allow it a wise and desirable measure for both, and could very sincerely wish him happy.”, what does “relinquish” most nearly mean?
   A. In a sufficient degree
   B. To be sensible of
   C. Act of abandoning a person or cause to which one is bound by allegiance or duty, or to which one has attached himself
   D. To withdraw from

Answer key: 1. C (Coldly); 2. D (Caroline was insincere); 3. D (Miss King, an heiress); 4. A (She has inherited money); 5. D (Calmly, without heartbreak); 6. A (Act of abandoning a person or cause to which one is bound by allegiance or duty, or to which one has attached himself); 7. D (To withdraw from)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXVI,” how does Austen show cold reception? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXVI, how does Austen develop the idea of cold reception? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXVI develops the idea of cold reception. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXVI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of cold reception. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXVI suggests about cold reception. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXVI to complicate the reader's understanding of cold reception. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXVI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of cold reception responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXVI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of cold reception follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXVI and its treatment of cold reception. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXVI as evidence for a larger claim about cold reception in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXVI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of cold reception. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Her aunt assured her that she was; and Elizabeth having thanked her for the kindness of her hints, they parted; a wonderful instance of advice being given on such a point, without being resented.

   As used in the text, what does the word “resented” most nearly mean?

   A. To give in return, whether good or evil

   B. To come back to, or come home to, as a matter of blame

   C. A man newly married, or just about to be married

   D. To be sensible of

2. “You are too sensible a girl, Lizzy, to fall in love merely because you are warned against it; and, therefore, I am not afraid of speaking openly. Seriously, I would have you be on your guard. Do not involve yourself, or endeavour to involve him in an affection which the want of fortune would make so very imprudent. I have nothing to say against him; he is a most interesting young man; and if he had the fortune he ought to have, I should think you could not do better. But as it is—you must not let your fancy run away with you. You have sense, and we all expect you to use it. Your father would depend on your resolution and good conduct, I am sure. You must not disappoint your father.”

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXVI"?

A. Cold reception

B. Farewells at Hunsford

C. Self-denial as a path

D. Reflections on love

SAT key: 1. D (To be sensible of); 2. A (Cold reception)

Lesson 27: Chapter XXVII

Focus: a journey and a mercenary suitor

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth sets out for Hunsford with Sir William and Maria Lucas, stopping in London with the Gardiners. Discussing Wickham's pursuit of Miss King, Elizabeth and Mrs. Gardiner debate the line between prudence and greed. The Gardiners invite Elizabeth on a summer tour.

Background: Travel by post-chaise required overnight stops; families relied on relatives in town.

Significance: The debate about 'mercenary' versus 'prudent' motives sharpens the theme of marriage and money.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Where is the line between a prudent marriage and a mercenary one? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are jumbled, objecting, diversified, rallied, mercenary. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Lakes, mountains, and rivers, shall not be jumbled together in our imaginations; nor, when we attempt to describe any particular scene, will we begin quarrelling about its relative situation.” Webster's says: To mix in a confused mass. Now the word history: “jumble”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “object”: ob- (Latin ob, "against, toward") + ject (Latin iacere, "to throw"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “diversified”: vers (Latin vertere, "to turn") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Travel by post-chaise required overnight stops; families relied on relatives in town. Why does this chapter matter? The debate about 'mercenary' versus 'prudent' motives sharpens the theme of marriage and money. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a journey and a mercenary suitor.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> It was a journey of only twenty-four miles, and they began it so early as to be in Gracechurch-street by noon. As they drove to Mr. Gardiner's door, Jane was at a drawing-room window watching their arrival; when they entered the passage she was there to welcome them, and Elizabeth, looking earnestly in her face, was pleased to see it healthful and lovely as ever. On the stairs were a troop of little boys and girls, whose eagerness for their cousin's appearance would not allow them to wait in the drawing-room, and whose shyness, as they had not seen her for a twelvemonth, prevented their coming lower. All was joy and kindness. The day passed most pleasantly away; the morning in bustle and shopping, and the evening at one of the theatres.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXVII," how does Austen show a journey and a mercenary suitor? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a journey and a mercenary suitor, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes a journey and a mercenary suitor. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
jumbled	To mix in a confused mass	Lakes, mountains, and rivers, shall not be jumbled together in our imaginations; nor,	"jumble": no root in our classroom table; have students when we attempt to describe any particular scene, will we begin quarrelling about its relative situation.	look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

objecting	To set before or against	"Her not objecting, does not justify him.	"object": ob- (Latin ob, "against, toward") + ject (Latin iacere, "to throw"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
diversified	Distinguished by various forms, or by a variety of aspects or objects	With no greater events than these in the Longbourn family, and otherwise diversified by little beyond the walks to Meryton, sometimes dirty and sometimes cold, did January and February pass away.	"diversified": vers (Latin vertere, "to turn") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
rallied	To collect, and reduce to order, as troops dispersed or thrown into confusion	Gardiner then rallied her niece on Wickham's desertion, and complimented her on bearing it so well.	"rally": -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
mercenary	Acting for reward	I should be sorry to think our friend mercenary."	"mercenary": -ary (Latin -arius, "connected with"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
shyness	The quality or state of being shy	On the stairs were a troop of little boys and girls, whose eagerness for their cousin's appearance would not allow them to wait in the drawing-room, and whose shyness, as they had not seen her for a twelvemonth, prevented their coming lower.	"shyness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
theatres	An edifice in which dramatic performances or spectacles are exhibited for the amusement of spectators	The day passed most pleasantly away; the morning in bustle and shopping, and the evening at one of the theatres.	"theatre": the (Greek theos, "god"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
weakened	To make weak	Absence had increased her desire of seeing Charlotte again, and weakened her disgust of Mr.	"weaken": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
transport	To carry or bear from one place to another	Oh! what hours of transport we shall spend!	"transport": trans- (Latin trans, "across") + port (Latin portare, "to carry"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

accurate	In exact or careful conformity to truth, or to some standard of requirement, the result of care or pains	And when we do return, it shall not be like other travellers, without being able to give one accurate idea of anything.	“accurate”: ac- (Latin ad, "to") + cur (Latin cura, "care") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Where is the line between a prudent marriage and a mercenary one?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Where does Elizabeth stop on the way to Hunsford?
   A. Bath
   B. London, with the Gardiners
   C. Pemberley
   D. Brighton
2. Who travels with her?
   A. Mr. Collins
   B. Lydia
   C. Sir William and Maria Lucas
   D. Jane and Bingley
3. What do Elizabeth and Mrs. Gardiner debate?
   A. Lydia's manners
   B. Darcy's pride
   C. Whether Wickham is prudent or mercenary
   D. Charlotte's house
4. What do the Gardiners invite Elizabeth to?
   A. A wedding
   B. A ball
   C. A summer pleasure tour
   D. A season in Bath
5. How does Elizabeth speak of men after this?
   A. With fear

B. With weary mock cynicism

C. With joy

D. With silence

6. In the line “Lakes, mountains, and rivers, shall not be jumbled together in our imaginations; nor, when we attempt to describe any particular scene, will we begin quarrelling about its relative situation.”, what does “jumbled” most nearly mean?

A. To set before or against

B. Distinguished by various forms, or by a variety of aspects or objects

C. To mix in a confused mass

D. To collect, and reduce to order, as troops dispersed or thrown into confusion

7. In the line ““Her not objecting, does not justify him.”, what does “objecting” most nearly mean?

A. To collect, and reduce to order, as troops dispersed or thrown into confusion

B. To mix in a confused mass

C. To set before or against

D. Distinguished by various forms, or by a variety of aspects or objects

Answer key: 1. B (London, with the Gardiners); 2. C (Sir William and Maria Lucas); 3. C (Whether Wickham is prudent or mercenary); 4. C (A summer pleasure tour); 5. B (With weary mock cynicism); 6. C (To mix in a confused mass); 7. C (To set before or against)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXVII,” how does Austen show a journey and a mercenary suitor? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXVII, how does Austen develop the idea of a journey and a mercenary suitor? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXVII develops the idea of a journey and a mercenary suitor. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXVII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of a journey and a mercenary suitor. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXVII suggests about a journey and a mercenary suitor. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXVII to complicate the reader's understanding of a journey and a mercenary suitor. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXVII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a journey and a mercenary suitor responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXVII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a journey and a mercenary suitor follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXVII and its treatment of a journey and a mercenary suitor. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXVII as evidence for a larger claim about a journey and a mercenary suitor in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXVII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a journey and a mercenary suitor. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. With no greater events than these in the Longbourn family, and otherwise diversified by little beyond the walks to Meryton, sometimes dirty and sometimes cold, did January and February pass away.

   As used in the text, what does the word “diversified” most nearly mean?

   A. In exact or careful conformity to truth, or to some standard of requirement, the result of care or pains

   B. To make weak

   C. Distinguished by various forms, or by a variety of aspects or objects

   D. To carry or bear from one place to another

2. It was a journey of only twenty-four miles, and they began it so early as to be in Gracechurch-street by noon. As they drove to Mr. Gardiner’s door, Jane was at a drawing-room window watching their arrival; when they entered the passage she was there to welcome them, and Elizabeth, looking earnestly in her face, was pleased to see it healthful and lovely as ever. On the stairs were a troop of little boys and girls, whose eagerness for their cousin’s appearance would not allow them to wait in the drawing-room, and whose shyness, as they had not seen her for a twelvemonth, prevented their coming lower. All was joy and kindness. The day passed most pleasantly away; the morning in bustle and shopping, and the evening at one of the theatres.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXVII"?

A. A journey and a mercenary suitor

B. The Brighton plan

C. A misguided warning

D. Character flaws examined

SAT key: 1. C (Distinguished by various forms, or by a variety of aspects or objects); 2. A (A journey and a mercenary suitor)

Lesson 28: Chapter XXVIII

Focus: visit to Hunsford

Teacher only · spoilers

Arriving at Hunsford, Elizabeth is shown every room and the garden by Collins, who praises Lady Catherine constantly. Charlotte manages him skillfully and keeps her own sitting room. They glimpse Lady Catherine's sickly daughter, Anne.

Background: Rosings Park in Kent represents aristocratic wealth and patronage.

Significance: Charlotte has built a contented life by managing her husband's absurdity.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How has Charlotte made her marriage work? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are neatness, sideboard, stationed, sloping, consistency. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “It was rather small, but well built and convenient; and everything was fitted up and arranged with a neatness and consistency of which Elizabeth gave Charlotte all the credit.” Webster's says: The state or quality of being neat. Now the word history: “neatness”: -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “sideboard”: ard (Latin ardere, "to burn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “station”: -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Rosings Park in Kent represents aristocratic wealth and patronage. Why does this chapter matter? Charlotte has built a contented life by managing her husband's absurdity. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for setting.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see setting, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to visit to Hunsford.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Setting, Characterization, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of setting. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> From his garden, Mr. Collins would have led them round his two meadows, but the ladies not having shoes to encounter the remains of a white frost, turned back; and while Sir William accompanied him, Charlotte took her sister and friend over the house, extremely well pleased, probably, to have the opportunity of showing it without her husband's help. It was rather small, but well built and convenient; and everything was fitted up and arranged with a neatness and consistency of which Elizabeth gave Charlotte all the credit. When Mr. Collins could be forgotten, there was really a great air of comfort throughout, and by Charlotte's evident enjoyment of it, Elizabeth supposed he must be often forgotten.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Setting, Characterization, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXVIII," how does Austen show visit to Hunsford? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about visit to Hunsford, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how setting shapes visit to Hunsford. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
neatness	The state or quality of being neat	It was rather small, but well built and convenient; and everything was fitted up and arranged with a neatness and	"neatness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		consistency of which Elizabeth gave Charlotte all the credit.
sideboard	A piece of dining-room furniture having compartments and shelves for keeping or displaying articles of table service	After sitting long enough to admire every article of furniture in the room, from the sideboard to the fender, to give an account of their journey and of all that had happened in London, Mr.	“sideboard”: ard (Latin ardere, "to burn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
stationed	The act of standing	Collins and Charlotte were both standing at the gate in conversation with the ladies; and Sir William, to Elizabeth’s high diversion, was stationed in the doorway, in earnest contemplation of the greatness before him, and constantly bowing whenever Miss de Bourgh looked that way.	“station”: -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
sloping	Inclining or inclined from the plane of the horizon, or from a horizontal or other right line	The garden sloping to the road, the house standing in it, the green pales and the laurel hedge, everything declared they were arriving.	“sloping”: -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
consistency	The condition of standing or adhering together, or being fixed in union, as the parts of a body	It was rather small, but well built and convenient; and everything was fitted up and arranged with a neatness and consistency of which Elizabeth gave Charlotte all the credit.	“consistency”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + sist (Latin sistere, "to stand"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
deference	A yielding of judgment or preference from respect to the wishes or opinion of another	She is the sort of woman whom one cannot regard with too much deference.”	“deference”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + fer (Latin ferre, "to carry, bear") + -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
diversion	The act of turning aside from any course, occupation, or object	Collins and Charlotte were both standing at the gate in conversation with the ladies; and Sir William, to Elizabeth’s high diversion, was stationed in the doorway, in earnest contemplation of the greatness before him, and constantly bowing whenever Miss de Bourgh looked that way.	“diversion”: -sion (Latin -sio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
include	To confine within	I have scarcely any hesitation in saying that she will include you and my sister

		Maria in every invitation with which she honours us during your stay here.	"include": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
civility	The state of society in which the relations and duties of a citizen are recognized and obeyed	She saw instantly that her cousin's manners were not altered by his marriage; his formal civility was just what it had been, and he detained her some minutes at the gate to hear and satisfy his enquiries after all her family.	"civility": civ (Latin civis, "citizen") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
congratulate	To address with expressions of sympathetic pleasure on account of some happy event affecting the person addressed	Collins no sooner saw the two girls than he began to congratulate them on their good fortune, which Charlotte explained by letting them know that the whole party was asked to dine at Rosings the next day.	"congratulate": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. How has Charlotte made her marriage work?
2. Where does setting appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Setting: look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Where does Elizabeth visit Charlotte?
   A. Pemberley
   B. Hunsford parsonage
   C. Bath
   D. Netherfield
2. What room does Charlotte keep for herself?
   A. A back sitting room Collins rarely enters
   B. The garden
   C. The kitchen
   D. The library
3. What does Collins show off?
   A. His sermons
   B. His library
   C. His house and garden

D. His horses

4. How does Charlotte handle Collins?
   A. She leaves him
   B. She fights with him
   C. She ignores him
   D. She manages him skillfully
5. Who is Anne de Bourgh?
   A. A servant
   B. Darcy's sister
   C. Charlotte's sister
   D. Lady Catherine's sickly daughter
6. In the line "It was rather small, but well built and convenient; and everything was fitted up and arranged with a neatness and consistency of which Elizabeth gave Charlotte all the credit.", what does "neatness" most nearly mean?
   A. The state or quality of being neat
   B. The act of standing
   C. Inclining or inclined from the plane of the horizon, or from a horizontal or other right line
   D. A piece of dining-room furniture having compartments and shelves for keeping or displaying articles of table service
7. In the line "After sitting long enough to admire every article of furniture in the room, from the sideboard to the fender, to give an account of their journey and of all that had happened in London, Mr.", what does "sideboard" most nearly mean?
   A. The state or quality of being neat
   B. The act of standing
   C. A piece of dining-room furniture having compartments and shelves for keeping or displaying articles of table service
   D. Inclining or inclined from the plane of the horizon, or from a horizontal or other right line

Answer key: 1. B (Hunsford parsonage); 2. A (A back sitting room Collins rarely enters); 3. C (His house and garden); 4. D (She manages him skillfully); 5. D (Lady Catherine's sickly daughter); 6. A (The state or quality of being neat); 7. C (A piece of dining-room furniture having compartments and shelves for keeping or displaying articles of table service)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In "Chapter XXVIII," how does Austen show visit to Hunsford? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXVIII, how does Austen develop the idea of visit to Hunsford? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXVIII develops the idea of visit to Hunsford. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXVIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of visit to Hunsford. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXVIII suggests about visit to Hunsford. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's setting and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.3, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses setting in Chapter XXVIII to complicate the reader's understanding of visit to Hunsford. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.3, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXVIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of visit to Hunsford responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.3, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXVIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of visit to Hunsford follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.3, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXVIII and its treatment of visit to Hunsford. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's setting and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.3, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXVIII as evidence for a larger claim about visit to Hunsford in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.3, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXVIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of visit to Hunsford. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Collins and Charlotte were both standing at the gate in conversation with the ladies; and Sir William, to Elizabeth's high diversion, was stationed in the doorway, in earnest contemplation of the greatness before him, and constantly bowing whenever Miss de Bourgh looked that way.

As used in the text, what does the word "stationed" most nearly mean?

A. To address with expressions of sympathetic pleasure on account of some happy event affecting the person addressed

B. To confine within

C. The act of standing

D. The state of society in which the relations and duties of a citizen are recognized and obeyed

2. From his garden, Mr. Collins would have led them round his two meadows, but the ladies not having shoes to encounter the remains of a white frost, turned back; and while Sir William accompanied him, Charlotte took her sister and friend over the house, extremely well pleased, probably, to have the opportunity of showing it without her husband's help. It was rather small, but well built and convenient; and everything was fitted up and arranged with a neatness and consistency of which Elizabeth gave Charlotte all the credit. When Mr. Collins could be forgotten, there was really a great air of comfort throughout, and by Charlotte's evident enjoyment of it, Elizabeth supposed he must be often forgotten.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXVIII"?

A. A revelation from the colonel

B. Visit to Hunsford

C. A persuasive tale

D. The accomplished woman

SAT key: 1. C (The act of standing); 2. B (Visit to Hunsford)

Lesson 29: Chapter XXIX

Focus: an imperious hostess

Teacher only · spoilers

At Rosings, Lady Catherine dominates the conversation, questions Elizabeth about her family and education, and is surprised when Elizabeth answers boldly and will not state her age.

Background: Aristocrats expected deference; governesses and accomplishments signaled status.

Significance: Elizabeth's independence before rank sets up her later confrontation with Lady Catherine.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does Elizabeth's refusal to state her age show? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are cassino, glazing, conciliating, dictating, overpower. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Collins sat down to quadrille; and as Miss de Bourgh chose to play at cassino, the two girls had the honour of assisting Mrs." Webster's says: A game at cards, played by two or more persons, usually for twenty-one points. Now the word history: "cassino": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "glazing": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it. "conciliate": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Aristocrats expected deference; governesses and accomplishments signaled status. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's independence before rank sets up her later confrontation with Lady Catherine. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to an imperious hostess.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Setting.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Scarcely anything was talked of the whole day or next morning, but their visit to Rosings. Mr. Collins was carefully instructing them in what they were to expect, that the sight of such rooms, so many servants, and so splendid a dinner might not wholly overpower them.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Setting: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXIX," how does Austen show an imperious hostess? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about an imperious hostess, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes an imperious hostess. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
cassino	A game at cards, played by two or more persons, usually for twenty-one points	Collins sat down to quadrille; and as Miss de Bourgh chose to play at cassino, the two girls had the honour of assisting Mrs.	"cassino": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
glazing		Collins expected the scene to inspire, and was but slightly affected by his

	The act or art of setting glass	enumeration of the windows in front of the house, and his relation of what the glazing altogether had originally cost Sir Lewis de Bourgh.	"glazing": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
conciliating	To win ower	Her air was not conciliating, nor was her manner of receiving them, such as to make her visitors forget their inferior rank.	"conciliate": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
dictating	To tell or utter so that another may write down	Elizabeth found that nothing was beneath this great Lady's attention, which could furnish her with an occasion of dictating to others.	"dictate": dict (Latin dicere, "to say") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
overpower	To excel or exceed in power	Collins was carefully instructing them in what they were to expect, that the sight of such rooms, so many servants, and so splendid a dinner might not wholly overpower them.	"overpower": over- (Old English ofer, "over") + -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
strenuously	Eagerly pressing or urgent	"Aye, no doubt; but that is what a governess will prevent, and if I had known your mother, I should have advised her most strenuously to engage one.	"strenuous": -ous (Latin -osus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
indisposed	To render unfit or unsuited	Jenkinson was chiefly employed in watching how little Miss de Bourgh ate, pressing her to try some other dish, and fearing she were indisposed.	"indispose": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
trepidation	An involuntary trembling, sometimes an effect of paralysis, but usually caused by terror or fear	She had heard nothing of Lady Catherine that spoke her awful from any extraordinary talents or miraculous virtue, and the mere stateliness of money and rank, she thought she could witness without trepidation.	"trepidation": -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
composedly	Free from agitation	Elizabeth found herself quite equal to the scene, and could observe the three ladies before her composedly.	"composed": com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + pos (Latin ponere, "to place") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
antechamber	A chamber or apartment before the chief apartment and	Collins pointed out, with a rapturous air, the fine proportion and finished ornaments, they followed the servants

	leading into it, in which persons wait for audience	through an antechamber, to the room where Lady Catherine, her daughter, and Mrs.	“antechamber”: -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. What does Elizabeth's refusal to state her age show?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Setting: look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who dominates the conversation at Rosings?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Collins
   C. Lady Catherine
   D. Elizabeth
2. What surprises Lady Catherine?
   A. Maria's wit
   B. The food
   C. Elizabeth's bold answers
   D. Collins's silence
3. What does Lady Catherine ask about?
   A. Wickham
   B. Elizabeth's family and education
   C. Bingley
   D. Military news
4. What does Elizabeth decline to tell?
   A. Her name
   B. Her exact age
   C. Where she lives
   D. Her father's name
5. What does the dinner reveal about rank?
   A. Clergy ruled society
   B. Merchants led
   C. Aristocrats expected deference
   D. Everyone was equal

6. In the line “Collins sat down to quadrille; and as Miss de Bourgh chose to play at cassino, the two girls had the honour of assisting Mrs.”, what does “cassino” most nearly mean?
   A. The act or art of setting glass
   B. To tell or utter so that another may write down
   C. To win ower
   D. A game at cards, played by two or more persons, usually for twenty-one points
7. In the line “Collins expected the scene to inspire, and was but slightly affected by his enumeration of the windows in front of the house, and his relation of what the glazing altogether had originally cost Sir Lewis de Bourgh.”, what does “glazing” most nearly mean?
   A. A game at cards, played by two or more persons, usually for twenty-one points
   B. To win ower
   C. To tell or utter so that another may write down
   D. The act or art of setting glass

Answer key: 1. C (Lady Catherine); 2. C (Elizabeth's bold answers); 3. B (Elizabeth's family and education); 4. B (Her exact age); 5. C (Aristocrats expected deference); 6. D (A game at cards, played by two or more persons, usually for twenty-one points); 7. D (The act or art of setting glass)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXIX,” how does Austen show an imperious hostess? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXIX, how does Austen develop the idea of an imperious hostess? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXIX develops the idea of an imperious hostess. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXIX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of an imperious hostess. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXIX suggests about an imperious hostess. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXIX to complicate the reader's understanding of an imperious hostess. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXIX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of an imperious hostess responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXIX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of an imperious hostess follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXIX and its treatment of an imperious hostess. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXIX as evidence for a larger claim about an imperious hostess in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXIX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of an imperious hostess. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Her air was not conciliating, nor was her manner of receiving them, such as to make her visitors forget their inferior rank.

   As used in the text, what does the word “conciliating” most nearly mean?

   A. A chamber or apartment before the chief apartment and leading into it, in which persons wait for audience

   B. Free from agitation

   C. An involuntary trembling, sometimes an effect of paralysis, but usually caused by terror or fear

   D. To win ower

2. Scarcely anything was talked of the whole day or next morning, but their visit to Rosings. Mr. Collins was carefully instructing them in what they were to expect, that the sight of such rooms, so many servants, and so splendid a dinner might not wholly overpower them.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XXIX”?

   A. Departure and relief

   B. The cycle of desire

   C. Awakening to the world

   D. An imperious hostess

SAT key: 1. D (To win ower); 2. D (An imperious hostess)

Lesson 30: Chapter XXX

Focus: Darcy at Rosings

Teacher only · spoilers

Darcy and his cousin Colonel Fitzwilliam arrive at Rosings and promptly call at the parsonage. Fitzwilliam is pleasant and easy; Darcy is stiff and quiet. Charlotte guesses the visit is a compliment to Elizabeth.

Background: Younger sons like Fitzwilliam could not inherit and needed to marry money.

Significance: Darcy's repeated visits show his feelings while Elizabeth misreads them.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Darcy visit the parsonage so often? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are counterpart, nephews, sallied, indebted, possessing. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "The entertainment of dining at Rosings was repeated about twice a week; and, allowing for the loss of Sir William, and there being only one card table in the evening, every such entertainment was the counterpart of the first." Webster's says: A part corresponding to another part. Now the word history: "counterpart": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "nephew": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "sally": -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Younger sons like Fitzwilliam could not inherit and needed to marry money. Why does this chapter matter? Darcy's repeated visits show his feelings while Elizabeth misreads them. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to Darcy at Rosings.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> From the drawing-room they could distinguish nothing in the lane, and were indebted to Mr. Collins for the knowledge of what carriages went along, and how often especially Miss de Bourgh drove by in her phaeton, which he never failed coming to inform them of, though it happened almost every day. She not unfrequently stopped at the Parsonage, and had a few minutes' conversation with Charlotte, but was scarcely ever prevailed on to get out.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXX," how does Austen show Darcy at Rosings? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about Darcy at Rosings, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes Darcy at Rosings. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
counterpart	A part corresponding to another part	The entertainment of dining at Rosings was repeated about twice a week; and, allowing for the loss of Sir William, and there being only one	"counterpart": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

		card table in the evening, every such entertainment was the counterpart of the first.
nephews	A grandson or grandchild, or remoter lineal descendant	There were two nephews of Lady Catherine to require them, for Mr.	“nephew”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
sallied	To leap or rush out	Collins; and whenever any of the cottagers were disposed to be quarrelsome, discontented or too poor, she sallied forth into the village to settle their differences, silence their complaints, and scold them into harmony and plenty.	“sally”: -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
indebted	Brought into debt	From the drawing-room they could distinguish nothing in the lane, and were indebted to Mr.	“indebted”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
possessing	To occupy in person	Sir William stayed only a week at Hunsford; but his visit was long enough to convince him of his daughter’s being most comfortably settled, and of her possessing such a husband and such a neighbour as were not often met with.	“possess”: pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
complaints	Expression of grief, regret, pain, censure, or resentment	Collins; and whenever any of the cottagers were disposed to be quarrelsome, discontented or too poor, she sallied forth into the village to settle their differences, silence their complaints, and scold them into harmony and plenty.	“complaint”: com- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
backwards	With the back in advance or foremost	The room in which the ladies sat was backwards.	“backwards”: ard (Latin ardere, "to burn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
entertainment	The act of receiving as host, or of amusing, admitting, or cherishing	The entertainment of dining at Rosings was repeated about twice a week; and, allowing for the loss of Sir William, and there being only one card table in the evening, every such entertainment was the counterpart of the first.	“entertainment”: en- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into") + tain (Latin tenere, "to hold") + -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

readiness	The state or quality of being ready	Colonel Fitzwilliam entered into conversation directly with the readiness and ease of a well-bred man, and talked very pleasantly; but his cousin, after having addressed a slight observation on the house and garden to Mrs.	“readiness”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
magistrate	A person clothed with power as a public civil officer	Elizabeth soon perceived that though this great lady was not in the commission of the peace for the county, she was a most active magistrate in her own parish, the minutest concerns of which were carried to her by Mr.	“magistrate”: -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Darcy visit the parsonage so often?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. Who arrives with Darcy?
   A. Bingley
   B. Colonel Fitzwilliam
   C. Wickham
   D. Mr. Hurst
2. How is Fitzwilliam described?
   A. Foolish
   B. Rude
   C. Silent
   D. Pleasant and easy
3. Whom does Charlotte think the visit compliments?
   A. Herself
   B. Elizabeth
   C. Maria
   D. Collins

4. Why does Lady Catherine invite them less at first?
   A. She is ill
   B. She is away
   C. She dislikes Charlotte
   D. She has her nephews to entertain
5. How does Darcy behave on his first call?
   A. Rude
   B. Stiff and quiet
   C. Lively
   D. Flirtatious
6. In the line "The entertainment of dining at Rosings was repeated about twice a week; and, allowing for the loss of Sir William, and there being only one card table in the evening, every such entertainment was the counterpart of the first.", what does "counterpart" most nearly mean?
   A. To leap or rush out
   B. Brought into debt
   C. A grandson or grandchild, or remoter lineal descendant
   D. A part corresponding to another part
7. In the line "There were two nephews of Lady Catherine to require them, for Mr.", what does "nephews" most nearly mean?
   A. To leap or rush out
   B. A grandson or grandchild, or remoter lineal descendant
   C. Brought into debt
   D. A part corresponding to another part

Answer key: 1. B (Colonel Fitzwilliam); 2. D (Pleasant and easy); 3. B (Elizabeth); 4. D (She has her nephews to entertain); 5. B (Stiff and quiet); 6. D (A part corresponding to another part); 7. B (A grandson or grandchild, or remoter lineal descendant)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In "Chapter XXX," how does Austen show Darcy at Rosings? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXX, how does Austen develop the idea of Darcy at Rosings? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXX develops the idea of Darcy at Rosings. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of Darcy at Rosings. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXX suggests about Darcy at Rosings. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXX to complicate the reader's understanding of Darcy at Rosings. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of Darcy at Rosings responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of Darcy at Rosings follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXX and its treatment of Darcy at Rosings. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXX as evidence for a larger claim about Darcy at Rosings in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of Darcy at Rosings. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Collins; and whenever any of the cottagers were disposed to be quarrelsome, discontented or too poor, she sallied forth into the village to settle their differences, silence their complaints, and scold them into harmony and plenty.

   As used in the text, what does the word “sallied” most nearly mean?

   A. To leap or rush out

B. The state or quality of being ready

C. The act of receiving as host, or of amusing, admitting, or cherishing

D. A person clothed with power as a public civil officer

2. From the drawing-room they could distinguish nothing in the lane, and were indebted to Mr. Collins for the knowledge of what carriages went along, and how often especially Miss de Bourgh drove by in her phaeton, which he never failed coming to inform them of, though it happened almost every day. She not unfrequently stopped at the Parsonage, and had a few minutes' conversation with Charlotte, but was scarcely ever prevailed on to get out.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXX"?

A. The wedding night and its catastrophe

B. Delay and dread

C. Darcy at Rosings

D. Loss and vengeance

SAT key: 1. A (To leap or rush out); 2. C (Darcy at Rosings)

Lesson 31: Chapter XXXI

Focus: music, wit and manners

Teacher only · spoilers

At Rosings, Colonel Fitzwilliam's lively talk draws Elizabeth to the piano. Darcy stands near, and she teases him about refusing to dance at Meryton. Darcy says he lacks the talent of conversing easily with strangers; Elizabeth replies that her playing would improve with practice, as his manners might. Lady Catherine interrupts with loud opinions.

Background: Musical performance was a social display for marriageable young women.

Significance: Elizabeth's analogy about practice suggests manners, like skills, can be learned—an idea about self-improvement.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Elizabeth compares manners to piano practice. Is that a fair comparison? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are intimidate, proficient, retaliate, disadvantage, applying. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "My courage always rises with every attempt to intimidate me."" Webster's says: To make timid or fearful. Now the word history: "intimidate": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "proficient": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + fic (Latin facere, "to make") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "retaliate": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Musical performance was a social display for marriageable young women. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's analogy about practice suggests manners, like skills, can be learned—an idea about self-improvement. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to music, wit and manners.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Colonel Fitzwilliam's manners were very much admired at the parsonage, and the ladies all felt that he must add considerably to the pleasure of their engagements at Rosings. It was some days, however, before they received any invitation thither, for while there were visitors in the house, they could not be necessary; and it was not till Easter-day, almost a week after the gentlemen's arrival, that they were honoured by such an attention, and then they were merely asked on leaving church to come there in the evening. For the last week they had seen very little of either Lady Catherine or her daughter. Colonel Fitzwilliam had called at the parsonage more than once during the time, but Mr. Darcy they had only seen at church.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXI," how does Austen show music, wit and manners? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about music, wit and manners, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes music, wit and manners. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note intimidate	To make timid or fearful	My courage always rises with every attempt to intimidate me."	"intimidate": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

proficient	One who has made considerable advances in any business, art, science, or branch of learning	If I had ever learnt, I should have been a great proficient.	"proficient": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + fic (Latin facere, "to make") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
retaliate	To return the like for	Darcy, it is very ungenerous in you to mention all that you knew to my disadvantage in Hertfordshire—and, give me leave to say, very impolitic too—for it is provoking me to retaliate, and such things may come out, as will shock your relations to hear."	"retaliate": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
disadvantage	Deprivation of advantage	Darcy, it is very ungenerous in you to mention all that you knew to my disadvantage in Hertfordshire—and, give me leave to say, very impolitic too—for it is provoking me to retaliate, and such things may come out, as will shock your relations to hear."	"disadvantage": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
applying	To lay or place	"I can answer your question," said Fitzwilliam, "without applying to him.	"apply": -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
scruple	A weight of twenty grains	His eyes had been soon and repeatedly turned towards them with a look of curiosity; and that her ladyship after a while shared the feeling, was more openly acknowledged, for she did not scruple to call out—	"scruple": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
conversing	To keep company	"I certainly have not the talent which some people possess," said Darcy, "of conversing easily with those I have never seen before.	"converse": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + vers (Latin vertere, "to turn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
frighten	To disturb with fear	"You mean to frighten me, Mr.	"frighten": ten (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
considerably	In a manner or to a degree not trifling or unimportant	Colonel Fitzwilliam's manners were very much admired at the parsonage, and the ladies all felt that he must add	"considerably": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of").

		considerably to the pleasure of their engagements at Rosings.	Root not in our table: have students find it.
breeding	The act or process of generating or bearing	Darcy looked a little ashamed of his aunt's ill breeding, and made no answer.	"breeding": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Elizabeth compares manners to piano practice. Is that a fair comparison?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. Who draws Elizabeth into lively conversation?
   A. Colonel Fitzwilliam
   B. Sir William
   C. Mr. Collins
   D. Mr. Bingley
2. What instrument does Elizabeth play?
   A. The piano
   B. The harp
   C. The flute
   D. The violin
3. What earlier event does she tease Darcy about?
   A. His letter
   B. Not dancing at Meryton
   C. His wealth
   D. Wickham
4. What does Darcy say he lacks?
   A. Money
   B. Taste
   C. Courage
   D. The talent of easy conversation with strangers
5. What idea does Elizabeth's reply suggest?
   A. Manners can improve with practice
   B. Talent is fixed

C. Rank is everything

D. Music is useless

6. In the line “My courage always rises with every attempt to intimidate me.””, what does “intimidate” most nearly mean?

A. One who has made considerable advances in any business, art, science, or branch of learning

B. To make timid or fearful

C. To return the like for

D. Deprivation of advantage

7. In the line “If I had ever learnt, I should have been a great proficient.”, what does “proficient” most nearly mean?

A. To return the like for

B. Deprivation of advantage

C. One who has made considerable advances in any business, art, science, or branch of learning

D. To make timid or fearful

Answer key: 1. A (Colonel Fitzwilliam); 2. A (The piano); 3. B (Not dancing at Meryton); 4. D (The talent of easy conversation with strangers); 5. A (Manners can improve with practice); 6. B (To make timid or fearful); 7. C (One who has made considerable advances in any business, art, science, or branch of learning)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXI,” how does Austen show music, wit and manners? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXI, how does Austen develop the idea of music, wit and manners? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXI develops the idea of music, wit and manners. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of music, wit and manners. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXI suggests about music, wit and manners. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXXI to complicate the reader's understanding of music, wit and manners. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of music, wit and manners responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of music, wit and manners follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXI and its treatment of music, wit and manners. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXI as evidence for a larger claim about music, wit and manners in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of music, wit and manners. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Darcy, it is very ungenerous in you to mention all that you knew to my disadvantage in Hertfordshire—and, give me leave to say, very impolitic too—for it is provoking me to retaliate, and such things may come out, as will shock your relations to hear."

   As used in the text, what does the word "retaliate" most nearly mean?

   A. To return the like for

   B. In a manner or to a degree not trifling or unimportant

   C. To disturb with fear

   D. The act or process of generating or bearing

2. Colonel Fitzwilliam's manners were very much admired at the parsonage, and the ladies all felt that he must add considerably to the pleasure of their engagements at Rosings. It was some days, however, before they received any invitation thither, for while there were visitors in the house, they could not be necessary; and it was not till Easter-day, almost a week after the gentlemen's arrival, that they were honoured by such an attention, and then they were merely asked on leaving church to come there in the evening. For the last week they had seen very little of either Lady Catherine or her daughter. Colonel Fitzwilliam had called at the parsonage more than once during the time, but Mr. Darcy they had only seen at church.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXXI"?

A. Confiding and consent

B. Music, wit and manners

C. An absurd cousin's letter

D. The wedding night and its catastrophe

SAT key: 1. A (To return the like for); 2. B (Music, wit and manners)

Lesson 32: Chapter XXXII

Focus: puzzling visits

Teacher only · spoilers

Darcy calls on Elizabeth alone and is uneasy. Charlotte suspects he is in love; Elizabeth dismisses the idea. Darcy keeps meeting her on walks.

Background: Unchaperoned meetings were noticeable in a small community.

Significance: Dramatic irony: readers see what Elizabeth refuses to see.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What clues does Elizabeth miss? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are emergence, concise, counterbalance, patronage, journeys. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "It was absolutely necessary, therefore, to think of something, and in this emergence recollecting when she had seen him last in Hertfordshire, and feeling curious to know what he would say on the subject of their hasty departure, she observed—" Webster's says: The act of rising out of a fluid, or coming forth from envelopment or concealment, or of rising into view. Now the word history: "emergence": em- (French en-/Latin in-, "into") + -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "concise": con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "counterbalance": -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Unchaperoned meetings were noticeable in a small community. Why does this chapter matter? Dramatic irony: readers see what Elizabeth refuses to see. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to puzzling visits.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Foreshadowing.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> They then sat down, and when her enquiries after Rosings were made, seemed in danger of sinking into total silence. It was absolutely necessary, therefore, to think of something, and in this emergence recollecting when she had seen him last in Hertfordshire, and feeling curious to know what he would say on the subject of their hasty departure, she observed—

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Foreshadowing: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXII," how does Austen show puzzling visits? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about puzzling visits, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes puzzling visits. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
emergence	The act of rising out of a fluid, or coming forth from envelopment or concealment, or of rising into view	It was absolutely necessary, therefore, to think of something, and in this emergence recollecting when she had seen him last in Hertfordshire, and feeling curious to know what he would say on the	"emergence": em- (French en-/Latin in-, "into") + -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		subject of their hasty departure, she observed—concise	Expressing much in a few words	A short dialogue on the subject of the country ensued, on either side calm and concise—and soon put an end to by the entrance of Charlotte and her sister, just returned from their walk.	“concise”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
counterbalance	To oppose with an equal weight or power	He was beyond comparison the pleasantest man; he certainly admired her, and his situation in life was most eligible; but, to counterbalance these advantages, Mr.	“counterbalance”: -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
patronage	Special countenance or support	Darcy had considerable patronage in the church, and his cousin could have none at all.	“patronage”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
journeys	The travel or work of a day	Collins have a comfortable income, but not such a one as will allow of frequent journeys—and I am persuaded my friend would not call herself near her family under less than half the present distance.”	“journey”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
recollecting	To recover or recall the knowledge of	It was absolutely necessary, therefore, to think of something, and in this emergence recollecting when she had seen him last in Hertfordshire, and feeling curious to know what he would say on the subject of their hasty departure, she observed—	“recollect”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
steadfast	Firmly fixed or established	It was an earnest, steadfast gaze, but she often doubted whether there were much admiration in it, and sometimes it seemed nothing but absence of mind.	“steadfast”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
schemes	A combination of things connected and adjusted by design	In her kind schemes for Elizabeth, she sometimes planned her marrying Colonel Fitzwilliam.	“scheme”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
partial	Of, pertaining to, or affecting, a part only	She had once or twice suggested to Elizabeth the possibility of his being partial to her, but Elizabeth always laughed at the idea; and Mrs.	“partial”: -al (Latin -alis, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

newspaper	A sheet of paper printed and distributed, at stated intervals, for conveying intelligence of passing events,…	The gentleman experienced some change of feeling; he drew back his chair, took a newspaper from the table, and, glancing over it, said, in a colder voice—	“newspaper”: -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. What clues does Elizabeth miss?
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Foreshadowing: look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events

Chapter quiz

1. Who calls on Elizabeth unexpectedly?
   A. Collins
   B. Darcy
   C. Wickham
   D. Bingley
2. What does Charlotte suspect?
   A. Darcy dislikes Collins
   B. Darcy is in love with Elizabeth
   C. Darcy will marry Anne soon
   D. Darcy is ill
3. How does Elizabeth respond to the idea?
   A. She tells Jane
   B. She dismisses it
   C. She agrees
   D. She is thrilled
4. Where does Darcy keep meeting her?
   A. At church only
   B. In London
   C. At Pemberley
   D. On walks in the park
5. What device creates tension here?
   A. Flashback
   B. Comedy of errors with twins

C. Allegory

D. Dramatic irony

6. In the line “It was absolutely necessary, therefore, to think of something, and in this emergence recollecting when she had seen him last in Hertfordshire, and feeling curious to know what he would say on the subject of their hasty departure, she observed—”, what does “emergence” most nearly mean?

   A. The act of rising out of a fluid, or coming forth from envelopment or concealment, or of rising into view

   B. Special countenance or support

   C. To oppose with an equal weight or power

   D. Expressing much in a few words

7. In the line “A short dialogue on the subject of the country ensued, on either side calm and concise—and soon put an end to by the entrance of Charlotte and her sister, just returned from their walk.”, what does “concise” most nearly mean?

   A. Special countenance or support

   B. Expressing much in a few words

   C. To oppose with an equal weight or power

   D. The act of rising out of a fluid, or coming forth from envelopment or concealment, or of rising into view

Answer key: 1. B (Darcy); 2. B (Darcy is in love with Elizabeth); 3. B (She dismisses it); 4. D (On walks in the park); 5. D (Dramatic irony); 6. A (The act of rising out of a fluid, or coming forth from envelopment or concealment, or of rising into view); 7. B (Expressing much in a few words)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXII,” how does Austen show puzzling visits? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXII, how does Austen develop the idea of puzzling visits? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXII develops the idea of puzzling visits. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of puzzling visits. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXII suggests about puzzling visits. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter XXXII to complicate the reader's understanding of puzzling visits. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of puzzling visits responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of puzzling visits follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXII and its treatment of puzzling visits. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXII as evidence for a larger claim about puzzling visits in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of puzzling visits. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. He was beyond comparison the pleasantest man; he certainly admired her, and his situation in life was most eligible; but, to counterbalance these advantages, Mr.

   As used in the text, what does the word “counterbalance” most nearly mean?

   A. A sheet of paper printed and distributed, at stated intervals, for conveying intelligence of passing events,…

   B. A combination of things connected and adjusted by design

   C. To oppose with an equal weight or power

   D. Of, pertaining to, or affecting, a part only

2. They then sat down, and when her enquiries after Rosings were made, seemed in danger of sinking into total silence. It was absolutely necessary, therefore, to think of something, and in this emergence recollecting when she had seen him last in Hertfordshire, and feeling curious to know what he would say on the subject of their hasty departure, she observed—

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXXII"?

A. The meeting of two ambitious men

B. Wit as courtship

C. A changed Darcy

D. Puzzling visits

SAT key: 1. C (To oppose with an equal weight or power); 2. D (Puzzling visits)

Lesson 33: Chapter XXXIII

Focus: a revelation from the colonel

Teacher only · spoilers

Colonel Fitzwilliam mentions that Darcy recently saved a friend from an 'imprudent marriage.' Elizabeth realizes this means Jane and Bingley, and she weeps and stays home with a headache.

Background: Interfering in a friend's courtship was seen as a sign of loyalty or arrogance, depending on view.

Significance: The revelation primes Elizabeth's anger for the proposal to come.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Fitzwilliam's casual remark hurt Elizabeth so deeply? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are tractable, lessening, officious, procuring, hardships. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "I never heard any harm of her; and I dare say she is one of the most tractable creatures in the world." Webster's says: Capable of being easily led, taught, or managed. Now the word history: "tractable": tract (Latin trahere, "to draw, pull") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "lessen": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "officious": fic (Latin facere, "to make") + -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Interfering in a friend's courtship was seen as a sign of loyalty or arrogance, depending on view. Why does this chapter matter? The revelation primes Elizabeth's anger for the proposal to come. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for plot.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see plot, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a revelation from the colonel.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Plot, Irony, Characterization.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of plot. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> She was engaged one day as she walked, in re-perusing Jane's last letter, and dwelling on some passages which proved that Jane had not written in spirits, when, instead of being again surprised by Mr. Darcy, she saw on looking up that Colonel Fitzwilliam was meeting her. Putting away the letter immediately and forcing a smile, she said—

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Plot, Irony, Characterization: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXIII," how does Austen show a revelation from the colonel? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a revelation from the colonel, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how plot shapes a revelation from the colonel. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
tractable	Capable of being easily led, taught, or managed	I never heard any harm of her; and I dare say she is one of the most tractable creatures in the world.	"tractable": tract (Latin trahere, "to draw, pull") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

lessening	To make less	"That is not an unnatural surmise," said Fitzwilliam, "but it is lessening the honour of my cousin's triumph very sadly."	"lessen": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
officious	Pertaining to, or being in accordance with, duty	"You are rather disposed to call his interference officious?"	"officious": fic (Latin facere, "to make") + -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
procuring	To bring into possession	When have you been prevented by want of money from going wherever you chose, or procuring anything you had a fancy for?"	"procure": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + cur (Latin cura, "care"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
hardships	That which is hard to hear, as toil, privation, injury, injustice, etc	"These are home questions—and perhaps I cannot say that I have experienced many hardships of that nature.	"hardship": ard (Latin ardere, "to burn") + -ship (Old English -scipe, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
forcing	The accomplishing of any purpose violently, precipitately, prematurely, or with unusual expedition	Putting away the letter immediately and forcing a smile, she said—	"forcing": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
cousins	One collaterally related more remotely than a brother or sister	Darcy, it determined her not to attend her cousins to Rosings, where they were engaged to drink tea.	"cousin": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
recovering	To cover again	"Is this," thought Elizabeth, "meant for me?" and she coloured at the idea; but, recovering herself, said in a lively tone, "And pray, what is the usual price of an Earl's younger son?	"recover": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
interrupt	To break into, or between	To interrupt a silence which might make him fancy her affected with what had passed, she soon afterwards said—	"interrupt": inter- (Latin inter, "between") + rupt (Latin rumpere, "to break"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
mentioning	A speaking or notice of anything, -- usually in a brief or cursory manner	"You may depend upon my not mentioning it."	"mention": -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Fitzwilliam's casual remark hurt Elizabeth so deeply?

2. Where does plot appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them

Chapter quiz

1. What does Fitzwilliam reveal?
   A. Lydia eloped
   B. Darcy is engaged
   C. Wickham is a thief
   D. Darcy saved a friend from an imprudent marriage
2. Whom does Elizabeth realize the friend is?
   A. Wickham
   B. Bingley
   C. Collins
   D. Fitzwilliam
3. How does Elizabeth react?
   A. She confronts Lady Catherine
   B. She leaves Kent
   C. She laughs
   D. She weeps and stays home
4. Why does Fitzwilliam say he must marry money?
   A. He is a younger son
   B. His father insists
   C. He is in debt
   D. He is a clergyman
5. What effect does this chapter set up?
   A. A trip to Bath
   B. A new romance
   C. Jane's engagement
   D. Elizabeth's anger at the proposal
6. In the line “I never heard any harm of her; and I dare say she is one of the most tractable creatures in the world.”, what does “tractable” most nearly mean?
   A. Capable of being easily led, taught, or managed
   B. Pertaining to, or being in accordance with, duty
   C. To bring into possession

D. To make less

7. In the line ““That is not an unnatural surmise,” said Fitzwilliam, “but it is lessening the honour of my cousin’s triumph very sadly.””, what does “lessening” most nearly mean?

A. To bring into possession

B. Capable of being easily led, taught, or managed

C. To make less

D. Pertaining to, or being in accordance with, duty

Answer key: 1. D (Darcy saved a friend from an imprudent marriage); 2. B (Bingley); 3. D (She weeps and stays home); 4. A (He is a younger son); 5. D (Elizabeth's anger at the proposal); 6. A (Capable of being easily led, taught, or managed); 7. C (To make less)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXIII,” how does Austen show a revelation from the colonel? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXIII, how does Austen develop the idea of a revelation from the colonel? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the plot in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXIII develops the idea of a revelation from the colonel. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of plot and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its plot shape the reader's understanding of a revelation from the colonel. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXIII suggests about a revelation from the colonel. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's plot and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses plot in Chapter XXXIII to complicate the reader's understanding of a revelation from the colonel. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a revelation from the colonel responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a revelation from the colonel follows or bends those conventions, using the plot as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXIII and its treatment of a revelation from the colonel. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's plot and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXIII as evidence for a larger claim about a revelation from the colonel in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a revelation from the colonel. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. "You are rather disposed to call his interference officious?"

   As used in the text, what does the word "officious" most nearly mean?

   A. Pertaining to, or being in accordance with, duty

   B. A speaking or notice of anything, -- usually in a brief or cursory manner

   C. To cover again

   D. To break into, or between

2. She was engaged one day as she walked, in re-perusing Jane's last letter, and dwelling on some passages which proved that Jane had not written in spirits, when, instead of being again surprised by Mr. Darcy, she saw on looking up that Colonel Fitzwilliam was meeting her. Putting away the letter immediately and forcing a smile, she said—

   Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXXIII"?

   A. Character flaws examined

   B. Reflections on love

   C. Injustice and the burden of silence

   D. A revelation from the colonel

SAT key: 1. A (Pertaining to, or being in accordance with, duty); 2. D (A revelation from the colonel)

Lesson 34: Chapter XXXIV

Focus: the first proposal

Teacher only · spoilers

Darcy unexpectedly proposes, insulting her family and confessing he loves her against his will. Elizabeth rejects him angrily, accusing him of ruining Jane's happiness and wronging Wickham, and calling him ungentlemanly.

Background: A proposal from a man of Darcy's wealth was extraordinary for a woman of Elizabeth's means.

Significance: The climax of the first half: pride and prejudice collide openly.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Which of Elizabeth's accusations is fair, and which is mistaken? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are agitating, conveying, perusal, repressed, detailed. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "She continued in very agitating reflections till the sound of Lady Catherine's carriage made her feel how unequal she was to encounter Charlotte's observation, and hurried her away to her room." Webster's says: To move with a violent, irregular action. Now the word history: "agitate": -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "convey": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "perusal": per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. A proposal from a man of Darcy's wealth was extraordinary for a woman of Elizabeth's means. Why does this chapter matter? The climax of the first half: pride and prejudice collide openly. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for conflict.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see conflict, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the first proposal.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Conflict, Characterization, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of conflict. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Elizabeth's astonishment was beyond expression. She stared, coloured, doubted, and was silent. This he considered sufficient encouragement, and the avowal of all that he felt and had long felt for her, immediately followed. He spoke well, but there were feelings besides those of the heart to be detailed, and he was not more eloquent on the subject of tenderness than of pride. His sense of her inferiority—of its being a degradation—of the family obstacles which judgment had always opposed to inclination, were dwelt on with a warmth which seemed due to the consequence he was wounding, but was very unlikely to recommend his suit.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Conflict, Characterization, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXIV," how does Austen show the first proposal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the conflict you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the first proposal, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how conflict shapes the first proposal. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
agitating	To move with a violent, irregular action	She continued in very agitating reflections till the sound of Lady Catherine's carriage made her feel how unequal she was to	"agitate": -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		encounter Charlotte's observation, and hurried her away to her room.
conveying	To carry from one place to another	Elizabeth noticed every sentence conveying the idea of uneasiness, with an attention which it had hardly received on the first perusal.	"convey": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
perusal	The act of carefully viewing or examining	Elizabeth noticed every sentence conveying the idea of uneasiness, with an attention which it had hardly received on the first perusal.	"perusal": per- (Latin per, "through, thoroughly"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
repressed	To press again	My feelings will not be repressed.	"repress": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
detailed	A minute portion	He spoke well, but there were feelings besides those of the heart to be detailed, and he was not more eloquent on the subject of tenderness than of pride.	"detail": de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
inflict	To give, cause, or produce by striking, or as if by striking	Darcy's shameful boast of what misery he had been able to inflict, gave her a keener sense of her sister's sufferings.	"inflict": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
overlooked	To look down upon from a place that is over or above	But perhaps," added he, stopping in his walk, and turning towards her, "these offences might have been overlooked, had not your pride been hurt by my honest confession of the scruples that had long prevented my forming any serious design.	"overlook": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
obstacles	That which stands in the way, or opposes	His sense of her inferiority—of its being a degradation—of the family obstacles which judgment had always opposed to inclination, were dwelt on with a warmth which seemed due to the consequence he was wounding, but was very unlikely to recommend his suit.	"obstacle": ob- (Latin ob, "against, toward"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
degradation	The act of reducing in rank, character, or reputation, or of abasing	His sense of her inferiority—of its being a degradation—of the family obstacles which judgment had always opposed to inclination, were dwelt on with a warmth which seemed due to the consequence he was wounding, but was very unlikely to recommend his suit.	"degradation": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
disturbance	An interruption of a state of peace or quiet	His complexion became pale with anger, and the disturbance of his mind was visible in every feature.	"disturbance": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not") + urb (Latin urbs, "city") + -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Teacher note from a root

			table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Which of Elizabeth's accusations is fair, and which is mistaken?
2. Where does conflict appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Conflict: look for the forces, people or desires pulling against each other
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. What does Darcy do?
   A. Leaves England
   B. Proposes to Elizabeth
   C. Insults Charlotte
   D. Proposes to Anne
2. How does Darcy describe his love?
   A. Joyful
   B. Light
   C. Long-planned
   D. Against his will and judgment
3. What two charges does Elizabeth make?
   A. Cowardice and greed
   B. Ruining Jane's happiness and wronging Wickham
   C. Stealing money and lying
   D. Insulting Collins
4. What word stings Darcy most?
   A. Rich
   B. Ungentlemanly
   C. Dull
   D. Proud
5. What is ironic about the proposal?
   A. Darcy expects acceptance but is rejected
   B. Both agree
   C. It is a joke
   D. Elizabeth proposes

6. In the line “She continued in very agitating reflections till the sound of Lady Catherine’s carriage made her feel how unequal she was to encounter Charlotte’s observation, and hurried her away to her room.”, what does “agitating” most nearly mean?
   A. To move with a violent, irregular action
   B. To carry from one place to another
   C. To press again
   D. The act of carefully viewing or examining
7. In the line “Elizabeth noticed every sentence conveying the idea of uneasiness, with an attention which it had hardly received on the first perusal.”, what does “conveying” most nearly mean?
   A. The act of carefully viewing or examining
   B. To carry from one place to another
   C. To move with a violent, irregular action
   D. To press again

Answer key: 1. B (Proposes to Elizabeth); 2. D (Against his will and judgment); 3. B (Ruining Jane's happiness and wronging Wickham); 4. B (Ungentlemanly); 5. A (Darcy expects acceptance but is rejected); 6. A (To move with a violent, irregular action); 7. B (To carry from one place to another)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXIV,” how does Austen show the first proposal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the conflict you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXIV, how does Austen develop the idea of the first proposal? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the conflict in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXIV develops the idea of the first proposal. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of conflict and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXIV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its conflict shape the reader's understanding of the first proposal. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXIV suggests about the first proposal. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's conflict and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses conflict in Chapter XXXIV to complicate the reader's understanding of the first proposal. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXIV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the first proposal responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXIV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the first proposal follows or bends those conventions, using the conflict as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXIV and its treatment of the first proposal. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's conflict and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXIV as evidence for a larger claim about the first proposal in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXIV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the first proposal. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Elizabeth noticed every sentence conveying the idea of uneasiness, with an attention which it had hardly received on the first perusal.

   As used in the text, what does the word “perusal” most nearly mean?

   A. An interruption of a state of peace or quiet

   B. That which stands in the way, or opposes

   C. The act of reducing in rank, character, or reputation, or of abasing

   D. The act of carefully viewing or examining

2. Elizabeth’s astonishment was beyond expression. She stared, coloured, doubted, and was silent. This he considered sufficient encouragement, and the avowal of all that he felt and had long felt for her, immediately followed. He spoke well, but there were feelings besides those of the heart to be detailed, and he was not more eloquent on the subject of tenderness than of pride. His sense of her inferiority—of its being a degradation—of the family obstacles which judgment had always opposed to inclination, were dwelt on with a warmth which seemed due to the consequence he was wounding, but was very unlikely to recommend his suit.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XXXIV”?

   A. Reading and identity

   B. The cycle of desire

C. The wedding night and its catastrophe

D. The first proposal

SAT key: 1. D (The act of carefully viewing or examining); 2. D (The first proposal)

Lesson 35: Chapter XXXV

Focus: the letter

Teacher only · spoilers

Darcy hands Elizabeth a letter explaining himself: he separated Bingley and Jane believing Jane indifferent and the Bennets improper; and Wickham squandered money, demanded more, and tried to elope with Darcy's 15-year-old sister Georgiana for her fortune.

Background: Letters in novels allow characters to speak fully; here the epistolary form reverses the plot.

Significance: The letter shifts point of view, forcing Elizabeth (and readers) to re-examine the evidence.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How does the letter change what we know? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are obtruded, elopement, turnpike, benefited, decease. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “But last summer he was again most painfully obtruded on my notice.” Webster's says: To thrust impertinently. Now the word history: “obtrude”: ob- (Latin ob, "against, toward"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “elopement”: -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “turnpike”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Letters in novels allow characters to speak fully; here the epistolary form reverses the plot. Why does this chapter matter? The letter shifts point of view, forcing Elizabeth (and readers) to re-examine the evidence. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for point of view.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see point of view, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the letter.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Point of view, Characterization, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of point of view. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Elizabeth awoke the next morning to the same thoughts and meditations which had at length closed her eyes. She could not yet recover from the surprise of what had happened; it was impossible to think of anything else, and totally indisposed for employment, she resolved soon after breakfast to indulge herself in air and exercise. She was proceeding directly to her favourite walk, when the recollection of Mr. Darcy's sometimes coming there stopped her, and instead of entering the park, she turned up the lane, which led her farther from the turnpike road. The park paling was still the boundary on one side, and she soon passed one of the gates into the ground.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Point of view, Characterization, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXV," how does Austen show the letter? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the letter, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how point of view shapes the letter. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
obtruded	To thrust impertinently	But last summer he was again most painfully obtruded on my notice.	"obtrude": ob- (Latin ob, "against, toward"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

elopement	The act of eloping	I joined them unexpectedly a day or two before the intended elopement, and then Georgiana, unable to support the idea of grieving and offending a brother whom she almost looked up to as a father, acknowledged the whole to me.	"elopement": -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
turnpike	A frame consisting of two bars crossing each other at right angles and turning on a post or pin, to hinder the…	Darcy's sometimes coming there stopped her, and instead of entering the park, she turned up the lane, which led her farther from the turnpike road.	"turnpike": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
benefited	An act of kindness	Wickham wrote to inform me that, having finally resolved against taking orders, he hoped I should not think it unreasonable for him to expect some more immediate pecuniary advantage, in lieu of the preferment, by which he could not be benefited.	"benefit": be- (Old English be-, "thoroughly, about"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
decease	Departure, especially departure from this life	For about three years I heard little of him; but on the decease of the incumbent of the living which had been designed for him, he applied to me again by letter for the presentation.	"decease": de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
symptom	(Med.) Any affection which accompanies disease	Her look and manners were open, cheerful and engaging as ever, but without any symptom of peculiar regard, and I remained convinced from the evening's scrutiny, that though she received his attentions with pleasure, she did not invite them by any participation of sentiment.	"symptom": sym- (Greek syn, "together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
undecided	To reverse or recant, as a previous decision	He spoke of it as a certain event, of which the time alone could be undecided.	"undecide": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
stating	The act of one who states anything	She was then but fifteen, which must be her excuse; and after stating her imprudence, I am happy to add, that I owed the knowledge of it to herself.	"stating": stat (Latin stare, "to stand") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
coincidence		His sisters' uneasiness had been equally excited with my own; our coincidence of	"coincidence": -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Root not

	The condition of occupying the same place in space	feeling was soon discovered; and, alike sensible that no time was to be lost in detaching their brother, we shortly resolved on joining him directly in London.	in our table: have students find it.
pecuniary	Relating to money	Wickham wrote to inform me that, having finally resolved against taking orders, he hoped I should not think it unreasonable for him to expect some more immediate pecuniary advantage, in lieu of the preferment, by which he could not be benefited.	“pecuniary”: -ary (Latin -arius, "connected with"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. How does the letter change what we know?
2. Where does point of view appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Point of view: look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. How does Darcy respond to the rejection?
   A. He writes Elizabeth a letter
   B. He proposes again
   C. He challenges Wickham
   D. He leaves without a word
2. Why did Darcy separate Jane and Bingley?
   A. He believed Jane indifferent
   B. He loved Jane
   C. He wanted Bingley for Georgiana only
   D. He disliked Bingley
3. What did Wickham attempt with Georgiana?
   A. An elopement for her fortune
   B. Blackmail
   C. A theft
   D. A duel
4. How old was Georgiana then?
   A. Fifteen
   B. Eighteen

C. Twenty

D. Twelve

5. What does the letter change in the narrative?

A. The setting only

B. Nothing

C. The genre

D. Point of view and evidence

6. In the line “But last summer he was again most painfully obtruded on my notice.”, what does “obtruded” most nearly mean?

A. An act of kindness

B. The act of eloping

C. A frame consisting of two bars crossing each other at right angles and turning on a post or pin, to hinder the…

D. To thrust impertinently

7. In the line “I joined them unexpectedly a day or two before the intended elopement, and then Georgiana, unable to support the idea of grieving and offending a brother whom she almost looked up to as a father, acknowledged the whole to me.”, what does “elopement” most nearly mean?

A. To thrust impertinently

B. The act of eloping

C. A frame consisting of two bars crossing each other at right angles and turning on a post or pin, to hinder the…

D. An act of kindness

Answer key: 1. A (He writes Elizabeth a letter); 2. A (He believed Jane indifferent); 3. A (An elopement for her fortune); 4. A (Fifteen); 5. D (Point of view and evidence); 6. D (To thrust impertinently); 7. B (The act of eloping)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXV,” how does Austen show the letter? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXV, how does Austen develop the idea of the letter? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the point of view in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXV develops the idea of the letter. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of point of view and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its point of view shape the reader's understanding of the letter. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXV suggests about the letter. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's point of view and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.3, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses point of view in Chapter XXXV to complicate the reader's understanding of the letter. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.3, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the letter responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.3, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the letter follows or bends those conventions, using the point of view as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.3, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXV and its treatment of the letter. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's point of view and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.3, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXV as evidence for a larger claim about the letter in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.3, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the letter. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Darcy's sometimes coming there stopped her, and instead of entering the park, she turned up the lane, which led her farther from the turnpike road.

   As used in the text, what does the word "turnpike" most nearly mean?

   A. The condition of occupying the same place in space

   B. Relating to money

   C. A frame consisting of two bars crossing each other at right angles and turning on a post or pin, to hinder the…

   D. The act of one who states anything

2. Elizabeth awoke the next morning to the same thoughts and meditations which had at length closed her eyes. She could not yet recover from the surprise of what had happened; it was impossible to think of anything else, and totally indisposed for employment, she resolved soon after breakfast to indulge herself in air and exercise. She was proceeding directly to her favourite walk, when the recollection of Mr. Darcy's sometimes coming there stopped her, and instead of entering the park, she turned up the lane, which led her farther from the turnpike road. The park paling was still the boundary on one side, and she soon passed one of the gates into the ground.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXXV"?

A. The letter

B. A revelation from the colonel

C. Consequences of refusal

D. Delay and dread

SAT key: 1. C (A frame consisting of two bars crossing each other at right angles and turning on a post or pin, to hinder the…); 2. A (The letter)

Lesson 36: Chapter XXXVI

Focus: self-recognition

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth rereads the letter, recognizes that she has been prejudiced and blind, and exclaims, 'Till this moment I never knew myself.'

Background: Moral self-examination drew on Enlightenment ideals of reason over prejudice.

Significance: The turning point of the novel: Elizabeth's self-knowledge.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What exactly does Elizabeth realize about herself? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are hatefully, deliberated, befriended, resigning, hazarded. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “His attentions to Miss King were now the consequence of views solely and hatefully mercenary; and the mediocrity of her fortune proved no longer the moderation of his wishes, but his eagerness to grasp at anything.” Webster's says: Manifesting hate or hatred. Now the word history: “hateful”: -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “deliberate”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + lib (Latin liber, "free" / "book") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “befriend”: be- (Old English be-, "thoroughly, about"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Moral self-examination drew on Enlightenment ideals of reason over prejudice. Why does this chapter matter? The turning point of the novel: Elizabeth's self-knowledge. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to self-recognition.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "How despicably have I acted!" she cried. "I, who have prided myself on my discernment!—I, who have valued myself on my abilities! who have often disdained the generous candour of my sister, and gratified my vanity, in useless or blameable distrust. How humiliating is this discovery!—Yet, how just a humiliation!—Had I been in love, I could not have been more wretchedly blind. But vanity, not love, has been my folly. Pleased with the preference of one, and offended by the neglect of the other, on the very beginning of our acquaintance, I have courted prepossession and ignorance, and driven reason away, where either were concerned. Till this moment, I never knew myself."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXVI," how does Austen show self-recognition? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about self-recognition, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes self-recognition. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
hatefully	Manifesting hate or hatred	His attentions to Miss King were now the consequence of views solely and hatefully

		mercenary; and the mediocrity of her fortune proved no longer the moderation of his wishes, but his eagerness to grasp at anything.	“hateful”: -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
deliberated	Weighing facts and arguments with a view a choice or decision	She put down the letter, weighed every circumstance with what she meant to be impartiality—deliberated on the probability of each statement—but with little success.	“deliberate”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + lib (Latin liber, "free" / "book") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
befriended	To act as a friend to	But no such recollection befriended her.	“befriend”: be- (Old English be-, "thoroughly, about"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
resigning	To sign back	But when she read, and reread with the closest attention, the particulars immediately following of Wickham’s resigning all pretensions to the living, of his receiving in lieu, so considerable a sum as three thousand pounds, again was she forced to hesitate.	“resign”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
hazarded	A game of chance played with dice	Darcy would never have hazarded such a proposal, if he had not been well assured of his cousin’s corroboration.	“hazard”: ard (Latin ardere, "to burn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
courted	An inclosed space	Pleased with the preference of one, and offended by the neglect of the other, on the very beginning of our acquaintance, I have courted prepossession and ignorance, and driven reason away, where either were concerned.	“court”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
merited	The quality or state of deserving well or ill	When she came to that part of the letter in which her family were mentioned, in terms of such mortifying, yet merited reproach, her sense of shame was severe.	“merit”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
penitent	Feeling pain or sorrow on account of sins or offenses	He expressed no regret for what he had done which satisfied her; his style was not penitent, but haughty.	“penitent”: -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
boasted	To vaunt one's self	She remembered that he had boasted of having no fear of seeing Mr.	“boast”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
extravagance

	A wandering beyond proper limits	The extravagance and general profligacy which he scrupled not to lay to Mr.	“extravagance”: ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + vag (Latin vagari, "to wander") + -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. What exactly does Elizabeth realize about herself?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. What does Elizabeth do with the letter?
   A. Rereads it repeatedly
   B. Shows it to Charlotte
   C. Burns it
   D. Ignores it
2. What does she exclaim?
   A. I will marry Wickham
   B. Till this moment I never knew myself
   C. I am right
   D. I hate him more
3. What has Elizabeth been, she realizes?
   A. Too kind
   B. Prejudiced and blind
   C. Too shy
   D. Too rich
4. What does she now see about Wickham?
   A. He was rich
   B. He was a hero
   C. His story had inconsistencies
   D. He loved her
5. Why is this the turning point?
   A. Elizabeth gains self-knowledge

B. Darcy dies

C. Jane marries

D. Lydia elopes

6. In the line “His attentions to Miss King were now the consequence of views solely and hatefully mercenary; and the mediocrity of her fortune proved no longer the moderation of his wishes, but his eagerness to grasp at anything.”, what does “hatefully” most nearly mean?

   A. To sign back

   B. To act as a friend to

   C. Weighing facts and arguments with a view a choice or decision

   D. Manifesting hate or hatred

7. In the line “She put down the letter, weighed every circumstance with what she meant to be impartiality—deliberated on the probability of each statement—but with little success.”, what does “deliberated” most nearly mean?

   A. Manifesting hate or hatred

   B. To sign back

   C. To act as a friend to

   D. Weighing facts and arguments with a view a choice or decision

Answer key: 1. A (Rereads it repeatedly); 2. B (Till this moment I never knew myself); 3. B (Prejudiced and blind); 4. C (His story had inconsistencies); 5. A (Elizabeth gains self-knowledge); 6. D (Manifesting hate or hatred); 7. D (Weighing facts and arguments with a view a choice or decision)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXVI,” how does Austen show self-recognition? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXVI, how does Austen develop the idea of self-recognition? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXVI develops the idea of self-recognition. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXVI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of self-recognition. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXVI suggests about self-recognition. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXXVI to complicate the reader's understanding of self-recognition. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXVI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of self-recognition responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXVI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of self-recognition follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXVI and its treatment of self-recognition. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXVI as evidence for a larger claim about self-recognition in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXVI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of self-recognition. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. But no such recollection befriended her.

   As used in the text, what does the word “befriended” most nearly mean?

   A. To vaunt one's self

   B. Feeling pain or sorrow on account of sins or offenses

   C. A wandering beyond proper limits

   D. To act as a friend to

2. “How despicably have I acted!” she cried. “I, who have prided myself on my discernment!—I, who have valued myself on my abilities! who have often disdained the generous candour of my sister, and gratified my vanity, in useless or blameable distrust. How humiliating is this discovery!—Yet, how just a humiliation!—Had I been in love, I could not have been more wretchedly blind. But vanity, not love, has been my folly. Pleased with the preference of one, and offended by the neglect of the other, on the very beginning of our acquaintance, I have courted prepossession and ignorance, and driven reason away, where either were concerned. Till this moment, I never knew myself."

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXXVI"?

A. Self-recognition

B. Consequences of refusal

C. The first proposal

D. Detachment among the childlike people

SAT key: 1. D (To act as a friend to); 2. A (Self-recognition)

Lesson 37: Chapter XXXVII

Focus: leaving Kent

Teacher only · spoilers

Darcy and Fitzwilliam leave Rosings. Lady Catherine notes Elizabeth's low spirits. Elizabeth rereads Darcy's letter, ashamed of her family's conduct and sympathetic now to Darcy's objections.

Background: Travel by coach gave time for reflection and social mixing.

Significance: Elizabeth's quiet reflection marks her inner change.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How does Elizabeth seem different now? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are indecorum, manservant, giddiness, affronted, restoring. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “How grievous then was the thought that, of a situation so desirable in every respect, so replete with advantage, so promising for happiness, Jane had been deprived, by the folly and indecorum of her own family!” Webster's says: Want of decorum. Now the word history: “indecorum”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “manservant”: man (Latin manus, "hand") + -ant (Latin -ans, "one who, doing"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “giddiness”: -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Travel by coach gave time for reflection and social mixing. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's quiet reflection marks her inner change. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to leaving Kent.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Tone / mood, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Their first subject was the diminution of the Rosings party. "I assure you, I feel it exceedingly," said Lady Catherine; "I believe nobody feels the loss of friends so much as I do. But I am particularly attached to these young men; and know them to be so much attached to me!—They were excessively sorry to go! But so they always are. The dear colonel rallied his spirits tolerably till just at last; but Darcy seemed to feel it most acutely, more I think than last year. His attachment to Rosings certainly increases."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Tone / mood, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXVII," how does Austen show leaving Kent? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about leaving Kent, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes leaving Kent. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
indecorum	Want of decorum	How grievous then was the thought that, of a situation so desirable in every respect, so replete with advantage, so promising for	"indecorum": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		happiness, Jane had been deprived, by the folly and indecorum of her own family!
manservant	A male servant	"Oh!—Your uncle!—He keeps a manservant, does he?—I am very glad you have somebody who thinks of those things.	"manservant": man (Latin manus, "hand") + -ant (Latin -ans, "one who, doing"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
giddiness	The quality or state of being giddy	Her father, contented with laughing at them, would never exert himself to restrain the wild giddiness of his youngest daughters; and her mother, with manners so far from right herself, was entirely insensible of the evil.	"giddiness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
affronted	Face to face, or front to front	Catherine, weak-spirited, irritable, and completely under Lydia's guidance, had been always affronted by their advice; and Lydia, self-willed and careless, would scarcely give them a hearing.	"affronte": af- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
restoring	To bring back to its former state	Darcy's explanation, by restoring Bingley to all her former good opinion, heightened the sense of what Jane had lost.	"restore": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
prevailing	Having superior force or influence	Anxiety on Jane's behalf, was another prevailing concern, and Mr.	"prevailing": pre- (Latin prae, "before") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
exerted	To thrust forth	When they parted, Lady Catherine, with great condescension, wished them a good journey, and invited them to come to Hunsford again next year; and Miss de Bourgh exerted herself so far as to curtsey and hold out her hand to both.	"exert": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
unjustly	Acting contrary to the standard of right	When she remembered the style of his address, she was still full of indignation; but when she considered how unjustly she had condemned and upbraided him, her anger was turned against herself; and his disappointed feelings became the object of compassion.	"unjust": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
irritable	Capable of being irriated	Catherine, weak-spirited, irritable, and completely under Lydia's guidance, had been always affronted by their advice; and Lydia,	"irritable": ir- (Latin in-, "not") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		self-willed and careless, would scarcely give them a hearing.
increases	To become greater or more in size, quantity, number, degree, value, intensity, power, authority, reputation, wealth	His attachment to Rosings certainly increases."	"increase": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. How does Elizabeth seem different now?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. Who leaves Rosings first?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Elizabeth
   C. Darcy and Fitzwilliam
   D. Lady Catherine
2. How is Elizabeth's mood?
   A. Indifferent
   B. Joyful
   C. Thoughtful and subdued
   D. Angry
3. Who notices Elizabeth's low spirits?
   A. Collins
   B. Lady Catherine
   C. Darcy
   D. Jane
4. What does Elizabeth feel ashamed of?
   A. Her family's conduct
   B. Her letters
   C. Her muddy walk
   D. Her music

5. What does Elizabeth reread?
   A. Collins's sermon
   B. A novel
   C. Darcy's letter
   D. Jane's letter
6. In the line “How grievous then was the thought that, of a situation so desirable in every respect, so replete with advantage, so promising for happiness, Jane had been deprived, by the folly and indecorum of her own family!”, what does “indecorum” most nearly mean?
   A. A male servant
   B. Want of decorum
   C. The quality or state of being giddy
   D. Face to face, or front to front
7. In the line ““Oh!—Your uncle!—He keeps a manservant, does he?—I am very glad you have somebody who thinks of those things.”, what does “manservant” most nearly mean?
   A. A male servant
   B. The quality or state of being giddy
   C. Want of decorum
   D. Face to face, or front to front

Answer key: 1. C (Darcy and Fitzwilliam); 2. C (Thoughtful and subdued); 3. B (Lady Catherine); 4. A (Her family's conduct); 5. C (Darcy's letter); 6. B (Want of decorum); 7. A (A male servant)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXVII,” how does Austen show leaving Kent? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXVII, how does Austen develop the idea of leaving Kent? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXVII develops the idea of leaving Kent. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and tone / mood shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXVII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of leaving Kent. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXVII suggests about leaving Kent. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and tone / mood), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XXXVII to complicate the reader's understanding of leaving Kent. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXVII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of leaving Kent responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXVII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of leaving Kent follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXVII and its treatment of leaving Kent. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and tone / mood, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXVII as evidence for a larger claim about leaving Kent in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXVII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of leaving Kent. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Her father, contented with laughing at them, would never exert himself to restrain the wild giddiness of his youngest daughters; and her mother, with manners so far from right herself, was entirely insensible of the evil.

   As used in the text, what does the word “giddiness” most nearly mean?

   A. Capable of being irriated

   B. The quality or state of being giddy

   C. To become greater or more in size, quantity, number, degree, value, intensity, power, authority, reputation, wealth

   D. Acting contrary to the standard of right

2. Their first subject was the diminution of the Rosings party. “I assure you, I feel it exceedingly,” said Lady Catherine; “I believe nobody feels the loss of friends so much as I do. But I am particularly attached to these young men; and know them to be so much attached to me!—They were excessively sorry to go! But so they always are. The dear colonel rallied his spirits tolerably till just at last; but Darcy seemed to feel it most acutely, more I think than last year. His attachment to Rosings certainly increases."

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXXVII"?

A. Leaving Kent

B. Darcy at Rosings

C. A revelation from the colonel

D. Injustice and exile

SAT key: 1. B (The quality or state of being giddy); 2. A (Leaving Kent)

Lesson 38: Chapter XXXVIII

Focus: farewells at Hunsford

Teacher only · spoilers

On Elizabeth's last morning Collins gives a farewell speech praising his own humble home and his privileged connection with Rosings. Elizabeth pities Charlotte but sees she is content. Elizabeth and Maria travel to London to meet Jane.

Background: Departing guests received formal speeches of thanks and good wishes.

Significance: Collins's speech is comic self-praise disguised as humility.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Is Charlotte content or simply resigned? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are parcels, poultry, consternation, elevation, comforts. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "At length the chaise arrived, the trunks were fastened on, the parcels placed within, and it was pronounced to be ready." Webster's says: A portion of anything taken separately. Now the word history: "parcel": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "poultry": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "consternation": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Departing guests received formal speeches of thanks and good wishes. Why does this chapter matter? Collins's speech is comic self-praise disguised as humility. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to farewells at Hunsford.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Elizabeth was eager with her thanks and assurances of happiness. She had spent six weeks with great enjoyment; and the pleasure of being with Charlotte, and the kind attentions she had received, must make her feel the obliged. Mr. Collins was gratified; and with a more smiling solemnity replied—

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXVIII," how does Austen show farewells at Hunsford? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about farewells at Hunsford, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes farewells at Hunsford. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
parcels	A portion of anything taken separately	At length the chaise arrived, the trunks were fastened on, the parcels placed within, and it was pronounced to be ready.	"parcel": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
poultry	Domestic fowls reared for the table, or for their	Her home and her housekeeping, her parish and her poultry, and all their	"poultry": no root in our classroom table; have students

	eggs or feathers, such as cocks and hens, capons, turkeys, ducks,…	dependent concerns, had not yet lost their charms.	look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
consternation	Amazement or horror that confounds the faculties, and incapacitates for refletion	He then handed her in, Maria followed, and the door was on the point of being closed, when he suddenly reminded them, with some consternation, that they had hitherto forgotten to leave any message for the ladies of Rosings.	“consternation”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
elevation	The act of raising from a lower place, condition, or quality to a higher	Words were insufficient for the elevation of his feelings; and he was obliged to walk about the room, while Elizabeth tried to unite civility and truth in a few short sentences.	“elevation”: -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
comforts	To make strong	Elizabeth could safely say that it was a great happiness where that was the case, and with equal sincerity could add that she firmly believed and rejoiced in his domestic comforts.	“comfort”: com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + fort (Latin fortis, "strong"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
footing	Ground for the foot	You see on what a footing we are.	“footing”: -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
designed	To draw preliminary outline or main features of	We seem to have been designed for each other.”	“design”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
solemnity	A rite or ceremony performed with religious reverence	Collins was gratified; and with a more smiling solemnity replied—	“solemnity”: sol (Latin solus, "alone" / sol, "sun") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
studying	A setting of the mind or thoughts upon a subject	Jane looked well, and Elizabeth had little opportunity of studying her spirits, amidst the various engagements which the kindness of her aunt had reserved for them.	“study”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
rejoiced	To feel joy	Elizabeth could safely say that it was a great happiness where that was the case, and with equal sincerity could add that she firmly believed and rejoiced in his domestic comforts.	“rejoice”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Is Charlotte content or simply resigned?
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who gives a farewell speech?
   A. Darcy
   B. Mr. Collins
   C. Charlotte
   D. Lady Catherine
2. What does he praise?
   A. His home and his connection with Rosings
   B. Darcy's letter
   C. Elizabeth's wit
   D. Bingley
3. How does Elizabeth view Charlotte?
   A. She ignores her
   B. She pities her but sees contentment
   C. She dislikes her
   D. She envies her
4. Where do Elizabeth and Maria go next?
   A. Brighton
   B. London, to meet Jane
   C. Pemberley
   D. Bath
5. What is the tone of Collins's speech?
   A. Angry
   B. Comic self-praise
   C. Tragic
   D. Mysterious
6. In the line “At length the chaise arrived, the trunks were fastened on, the parcels placed within, and it was pronounced to be ready.”, what does “parcels” most nearly mean?
   A. Amazement or horror that confounds the faculties, and incapacitates for refletion

B. Domestic fowls reared for the table, or for their eggs or feathers, such as cocks and hens, capons, turkeys, ducks,…

C. The act of raising from a lower place, condition, or quality to a higher

D. A portion of anything taken separately

7. In the line “Her home and her housekeeping, her parish and her poultry, and all their dependent concerns, had not yet lost their charms.”, what does “poultry” most nearly mean?

A. A portion of anything taken separately

B. Amazement or horror that confounds the faculties, and incapacitates for refletion

C. Domestic fowls reared for the table, or for their eggs or feathers, such as cocks and hens, capons, turkeys, ducks,…

D. The act of raising from a lower place, condition, or quality to a higher

Answer key: 1. B (Mr. Collins); 2. A (His home and his connection with Rosings); 3. B (She pities her but sees contentment); 4. B (London, to meet Jane); 5. B (Comic self-praise); 6. D (A portion of anything taken separately); 7. C (Domestic fowls reared for the table, or for their eggs or feathers, such as cocks and hens, capons, turkeys, ducks,…)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter XXXVIII,” how does Austen show farewells at Hunsford? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXVIII, how does Austen develop the idea of farewells at Hunsford? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXVIII develops the idea of farewells at Hunsford. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXVIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of farewells at Hunsford. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXVIII suggests about farewells at Hunsford. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter XXXVIII to complicate the reader's understanding of farewells at Hunsford. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXVIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of farewells at Hunsford responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXVIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of farewells at Hunsford follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXVIII and its treatment of farewells at Hunsford. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXVIII as evidence for a larger claim about farewells at Hunsford in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXVIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of farewells at Hunsford. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. He then handed her in, Maria followed, and the door was on the point of being closed, when he suddenly reminded them, with some consternation, that they had hitherto forgotten to leave any message for the ladies of Rosings.

   As used in the text, what does the word “consternation” most nearly mean?

   A. A setting of the mind or thoughts upon a subject

   B. Amazement or horror that confounds the faculties, and incapacitates for refletion

   C. To feel joy

   D. A rite or ceremony performed with religious reverence

2. Elizabeth was eager with her thanks and assurances of happiness. She had spent six weeks with great enjoyment; and the pleasure of being with Charlotte, and the kind attentions she had received, must make her feel the obliged. Mr. Collins was gratified; and with a more smiling solemnity replied—

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XXXVIII”?

   A. A revelation from the colonel

   B. Despair and the sublime

   C. Farewells at Hunsford

   D. Bingley returns

SAT key: 1. B (Amazement or horror that confounds the faculties, and incapacitates for refletion); 2. C (Farewells at Hunsford)

Lesson 39: Chapter XXXIX

Focus: the Brighton plan

Teacher only · spoilers

Lydia and Kitty meet their sisters at an inn, chattering about officers and announcing that Miss King has gone. Lydia buys an ugly bonnet and dreams of Brighton, where the regiment is going.

Background: Brighton was a fashionable seaside resort with military camps.

Significance: The decision not to warn others has consequences.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Were Elizabeth and Jane right to keep Wickham's secret? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are workbags, depreciate, bandbox, overset, encamped. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "As soon as all had ate, and the elder ones paid, the carriage was ordered; and after some contrivance, the whole party, with all their boxes, workbags, and parcels, and the unwelcome addition of Kitty's and Lydia's purchases, were seated in it." Webster's says: A bag for holding implements or materials for work. Now the word history: "workbag": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "depreciate": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "bandbox": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Brighton was a fashionable seaside resort with military camps. Why does this chapter matter? The decision not to warn others has consequences. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for foreshadowing.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see foreshadowing, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the Brighton plan.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Foreshadowing, Characterization, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of foreshadowing. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "And we mean to treat you all," added Lydia; "but you must lend us the money, for we have just spent ours at the shop out there." Then showing her purchases: "Look here, I have bought this bonnet. I do not think it is very pretty; but I thought I might as well buy it as not. I shall pull it to pieces as soon as I get home, and see if I can make it up any better."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Foreshadowing, Characterization, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XXXIX," how does Austen show the Brighton plan? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the foreshadowing you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the Brighton plan, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how foreshadowing shapes the Brighton plan. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
workbags	A bag for holding implements or materials for work	As soon as all had ate, and the elder ones paid, the carriage was ordered; and after some contrivance, the whole party, with all their boxes, workbags, and parcels,	"workbag": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

		and the unwelcome addition of Kitty's and Lydia's purchases, were seated in it.
depreciate	To lessen in price or estimated value	To this, Mary very gravely replied, "Far be it from me, my dear sister, to depreciate such pleasures.	"depreciate": de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
bandbox	A light box of pasteboard or thin wood, usually cylindrical, for holding ruffs (the bands of the 17th century),…	"I am glad I bought my bonnet, if it is only for the fun of having another bandbox!	"bandbox": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
overset	To turn or tip (anything) over from an upright, or a proper, position so that it lies upon its side or bottom upwards	Brighton, and a whole campful of soldiers, to us, who have been overset already by one poor regiment of militia, and the monthly balls of Meryton."	"overset": vers (Latin vertere, "to turn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
encamped	To form and occupy a camp	"They are going to be encamped near Brighton; and I do so want papa to take us all there for the summer!	"encamp": en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
equivocal	(Literally, called equally one thing or the other	Elizabeth saw directly that her father had not the smallest intention of yielding; but his answers were at the same time so vague and equivocal, that her mother, though often disheartened, had never yet despaired of succeeding at last.	"equivocal": voc (Latin vocare, "to call") + -al (Latin -alis, "relating to"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
despaired	To be hopeless	Elizabeth saw directly that her father had not the smallest intention of yielding; but his answers were at the same time so vague and equivocal, that her mother, though often disheartened, had never yet despaired of succeeding at last.	"despair": de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
congenial	Partaking of the same nature	They would doubtless be congenial with the generality of female minds.	"congenial": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + gen (Latin/Greek genus, "birth, kind") + -al (Latin -alis, "relating to"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
additions	The act of adding two or more things together	With such kind of histories of their parties and good jokes, did Lydia, assisted by Kitty's hints and additions, endeavour to amuse her companions all the way to Longbourn.	"addition": ad- (Latin ad, "to, toward"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

purchases	To pursue and obtain	Then showing her purchases: "Look here, I have bought this bonnet.	"purchase": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. Were Elizabeth and Jane right to keep Wickham's secret?
2. Where does foreshadowing appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Foreshadowing: look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. Who chatter about officers?
   A. Lydia and Kitty
   B. Mrs. Gardiner
   C. Mary and Jane
   D. Charlotte
2. What happened to Miss King?
   A. She died
   B. She went away
   C. She married Wickham
   D. She came to Longbourn
3. What does Lydia buy?
   A. A dress for Jane
   B. An ugly bonnet
   C. A horse
   D. A book
4. Where do the sisters meet?
   A. At an inn
   B. At Pemberley
   C. At church
   D. At Rosings

5. Where does the regiment plan to go?
   A. Scotland
   B. Kent
   C. London
   D. Brighton
6. In the line "As soon as all had ate, and the elder ones paid, the carriage was ordered; and after some contrivance, the whole party, with all their boxes, workbags, and parcels, and the unwelcome addition of Kitty's and Lydia's purchases, were seated in it.", what does "workbags" most nearly mean?
   A. A light box of pasteboard or thin wood, usually cylindrical, for holding ruffs (the bands of the 17th century),…
   B. To turn or tip (anything) over from an upright, or a proper, position so that it lies upon its side or bottom upwards
   C. A bag for holding implements or materials for work
   D. To lessen in price or estimated value
7. In the line "To this, Mary very gravely replied, "Far be it from me, my dear sister, to depreciate such pleasures.", what does "depreciate" most nearly mean?
   A. To turn or tip (anything) over from an upright, or a proper, position so that it lies upon its side or bottom upwards
   B. A light box of pasteboard or thin wood, usually cylindrical, for holding ruffs (the bands of the 17th century),…
   C. A bag for holding implements or materials for work
   D. To lessen in price or estimated value

Answer key: 1. A (Lydia and Kitty); 2. B (She went away); 3. B (An ugly bonnet); 4. A (At an inn); 5. D (Brighton); 6. C (A bag for holding implements or materials for work); 7. D (To lessen in price or estimated value)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.5, W.7.1): In "Chapter XXXIX," how does Austen show the Brighton plan? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the foreshadowing you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.5, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XXXIX, how does Austen develop the idea of the Brighton plan? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the foreshadowing in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.5, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XXXIX develops the idea of the Brighton plan. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of foreshadowing and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.5, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XXXIX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its foreshadowing shape the reader's understanding of the Brighton plan. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.5, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XXXIX suggests about the Brighton plan. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's foreshadowing and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.3, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses foreshadowing in Chapter XXXIX to complicate the reader's understanding of the Brighton plan. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.3, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XXXIX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the Brighton plan responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.3, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XXXIX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the Brighton plan follows or bends those conventions, using the foreshadowing as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.3, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XXXIX and its treatment of the Brighton plan. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's foreshadowing and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.3, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XXXIX as evidence for a larger claim about the Brighton plan in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.3, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XXXIX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the Brighton plan. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. “I am glad I bought my bonnet, if it is only for the fun of having another bandbox!

   As used in the text, what does the word “bandbox” most nearly mean?

   A. To pursue and obtain

   B. The act of adding two or more things together

   C. Partaking of the same nature

   D. A light box of pasteboard or thin wood, usually cylindrical, for holding ruffs (the bands of the 17th century),…

2. "And we mean to treat you all," added Lydia; "but you must lend us the money, for we have just spent ours at the shop out there." Then showing her purchases: "Look here, I have bought this bonnet. I do not think it is very pretty; but I thought I might as well buy it as not. I shall pull it to pieces as soon as I get home, and see if I can make it up any better."

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XXXIX"?

A. The Brighton plan

B. Loss and leaving home

C. The hidden benefactor

D. Music, wit and manners

SAT key: 1. D (A light box of pasteboard or thin wood, usually cylindrical, for holding ruffs (the bands of the 17th century),…); 2. A (The Brighton plan)

Lesson 40: Chapter XL

Focus: keeping secrets

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth tells Jane of Darcy's proposal and of Wickham's true character. Jane is distressed for both men. The sisters agree not to expose Wickham publicly, since he is leaving soon. Elizabeth keeps back Darcy's part in separating Jane and Bingley.

Background: Damaging a man's reputation without proof could bring social consequences.

Significance: The decision to stay silent sets up the elopement crisis.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Was it right to keep Wickham's character secret? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are incumbrance, mismanagement, reestablish, allayed, undeceive. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Here was knowledge in which no one could partake; and she was sensible that nothing less than a perfect understanding between the parties could justify her in throwing off this last incumbrance of mystery.” Webster's says: A burdensome and troublesome load. Now the word history: “incumbrance”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “mismanagement”: mis- (Old English mis-, "wrongly") + man (Latin manus, "hand") + -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “reestablish”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Damaging a man's reputation without proof could bring social consequences. Why does this chapter matter? The decision to stay silent sets up the elopement crisis. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to keeping secrets.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Foreshadowing, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "This will not do," said Elizabeth. "You never will be able to make both of them good for anything. Take your choice, but you must be satisfied with only one. There is but such a quantity of merit between them; just enough to make one good sort of man; and of late it has been shifting about pretty much. For my part, I am inclined to believe it all Mr. Darcy's, but you shall do as you choose."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Foreshadowing, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XL," how does Austen show keeping secrets? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about keeping secrets, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes keeping secrets. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
incumbrance	A burdensome and troublesome load	Here was knowledge in which no one could partake; and she was sensible that nothing less than a perfect understanding between the parties could justify her in	"incumbrance": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		throwing off this last incumbrance of mystery.
mismanagement	Wrong or bad management	"There certainly was some great mismanagement in the education of those two young men.	"mismanagement": mis- (Old English mis-, "wrongly") + man (Latin manus, "hand") + -ment (Latin -mentum, "result or means of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
reestablish	To establish anew	He is now perhaps sorry for what he has done, and anxious to reestablish a character.	"reestablish": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
allayed	To make quiet or put at rest	The tumult of Elizabeth's mind was allayed by this conversation.	"allay": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
undeceive	To cause to be no longer deceived	On the contrary every particular relative to his sister, was meant to be kept as much as possible to myself; and if I endeavour to undeceive people as to the rest of his conduct, who will believe me?	"undeceive": un- (Old English un-, "not") + -ive (Latin -ivus, "tending to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
undeserved	To fail to deserve	Darcy, for now they do appear wholly undeserved."	"undeserve": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
extorted	To wrest from an unwilling person by physical force, menace, duress, torture, or any undue or illegal exercise of…	It was some time, however, before a smile could be extorted from Jane.	"extort": ex- (Latin ex, "out of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
lawfully	Conformable to law	Well, if they can be easy with an estate that is not lawfully their own, so much the better.	"lawful": -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
stumbling	To trip in walking or in moving in any way with the legs	One may be continually abusive without saying anything just; but one cannot be always laughing at a man without now and then stumbling on something witty."	"stumble": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
shifting	Changing in place, position, or direction	There is but such a quantity of merit between them; just enough to make one good sort of man; and of late it has been shifting about pretty much.	"shifting": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Was it right to keep Wickham's character secret?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Foreshadowing: look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. What does Elizabeth tell Jane?
   A. Nothing
   B. About Collins's debts
   C. About Darcy's proposal and Wickham
   D. About Pemberley
2. How does Jane respond?
   A. Angry at Darcy
   B. Distressed for both men
   C. Indifferent
   D. Pleased
3. What do the sisters decide?
   A. To write to Bingley
   B. Not to expose Wickham
   C. To tell their father
   D. To warn Lydia directly
4. What does Elizabeth hold back from Jane?
   A. Georgiana's name
   B. Wickham's debts
   C. The proposal
   D. Darcy's role in separating her from Bingley
5. What theme does the silence raise?
   A. Love of music
   B. Travel
   C. Responsibility to warn others
   D. Wealth

6. In the line “Here was knowledge in which no one could partake; and she was sensible that nothing less than a perfect understanding between the parties could justify her in throwing off this last incumbrance of mystery.”, what does “incumbrance” most nearly mean?
   A. A burdensome and troublesome load
   B. To make quiet or put at rest
   C. Wrong or bad management
   D. To establish anew
7. In the line ““There certainly was some great mismanagement in the education of those two young men.”, what does “mismanagement” most nearly mean?
   A. A burdensome and troublesome load
   B. To establish anew
   C. Wrong or bad management
   D. To make quiet or put at rest

Answer key: 1. C (About Darcy's proposal and Wickham); 2. B (Distressed for both men); 3. B (Not to expose Wickham); 4. D (Darcy's role in separating her from Bingley); 5. C (Responsibility to warn others); 6. A (A burdensome and troublesome load); 7. C (Wrong or bad management)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XL,” how does Austen show keeping secrets? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XL, how does Austen develop the idea of keeping secrets? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XL develops the idea of keeping secrets. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and foreshadowing shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XL (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of keeping secrets. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XL suggests about keeping secrets. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and foreshadowing), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XL to complicate the reader's understanding of keeping secrets. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XL within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of keeping secrets responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XL alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of keeping secrets follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XL and its treatment of keeping secrets. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and foreshadowing, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XL as evidence for a larger claim about keeping secrets in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XL as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of keeping secrets. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. He is now perhaps sorry for what he has done, and anxious to reestablish a character.

   As used in the text, what does the word “reestablish” most nearly mean?

   A. To trip in walking or in moving in any way with the legs

   B. To establish anew

   C. Conformable to law

   D. Changing in place, position, or direction

2. “This will not do,” said Elizabeth. “You never will be able to make both of them good for anything. Take your choice, but you must be satisfied with only one. There is but such a quantity of merit between them; just enough to make one good sort of man; and of late it has been shifting about pretty much. For my part, I am inclined to believe it all Mr. Darcy’s, but you shall do as you choose.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XL”?

   A. Keeping secrets

   B. Strategy in courtship

   C. Farewells at Hunsford

   D. Learning compassion by watching

SAT key: 1. B (To establish anew); 2. A (Keeping secrets)

Lesson 41: Chapter XLI

Focus: parental failure

Teacher only · spoilers

Lydia is invited to Brighton by Mrs. Forster. Elizabeth warns her father of the danger; Mr. Bennet lets Lydia go to keep peace. Elizabeth sees Wickham again and hints she knows the truth.

Background: Chaperones were expected to protect young women's reputations.

Significance: Mr. Bennet's indifference is a serious moral failing that leads to crisis.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Is Mr. Bennet responsible for what happens next? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are exuberant, vexations, squeamish, improves, operated. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "If you, my dear father, will not take the trouble of checking her exuberant spirits, and of teaching her that her present pursuits are not to be the business of her life, she will soon be beyond the reach of amendment." Webster's says: Characterized by abundance or superabundance. Now the word history: "exuberant": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + -ant (Latin -ans, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "vexation": -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "squeamish": ami (Latin amare, "to love"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Chaperones were expected to protect young women's reputations. Why does this chapter matter? Mr. Bennet's indifference is a serious moral failing that leads to crisis. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to parental failure.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Foreshadowing.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Such were the kind of lamentations resounding perpetually through Longbourn-house. Elizabeth tried to be diverted by them; but all sense of pleasure was lost in shame. She felt anew the justice of Mr. Darcy's objections; and never had she before been so much disposed to pardon his interference in the views of his friend.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Foreshadowing: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLI," how does Austen show parental failure? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about parental failure, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes parental failure. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
exuberant	Characterized by abundance or superabundance	If you, my dear father, will not take the trouble of checking her exuberant spirits, and of teaching her that her present pursuits are not to be the business of her life, she will soon be beyond the reach of amendment.	"exuberant": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + -ant (Latin -ans, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

vexations	The act of vexing, or the state of being vexed	It was not in her nature, however, to increase her vexations, by dwelling on them.	“vexation”: -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
squeamish	Having a stomach that is easily or nauseated	Such squeamish youths as cannot bear to be connected with a little absurdity, are not worth a regret.	“squeamish”: ami (Latin amare, "to love"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
improves	To disprove or make void	“And pray may I ask?” but checking himself, he added in a gayer tone, “Is it in address that he improves?	“improve”: im- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
operated	To perform a work or labor	His fear of her, has always operated, I know, when they were together; and a good deal is to be imputed to his wish of forwarding the match with Miss de Bourgh, which I am certain he has very much at heart.”	“operate”: -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
sameness	The state of being the same, identity	She had even learnt to detect, in the very gentleness which had first delighted her, an affectation and a sameness to disgust and weary.	“sameness”: -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
resounding	To sound loudly	Such were the kind of lamentations resounding perpetually through Longbourn-house.	“resound”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
alluding	To refer to something indirectly or by suggestion	I only fear that the sort of cautiousness, to which you, I imagine, have been alluding, is merely adopted on his visits to his aunt, of whose good opinion and judgment he stands much in awe.	“allude”: -ude (Latin -udo, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
invaluable	Valuable beyond estimation	This invaluable friend was a very young woman, and very lately married.	“invaluable”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
renewing	To make new again	In his present behaviour to herself, moreover, she had a fresh source of displeasure, for the inclination he soon testified of renewing those attentions which had marked the early part of their acquaintance, could only serve, after what had since passed, to provoke her.	“renew”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. Is Mr. Bennet responsible for what happens next?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Foreshadowing: look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events

Chapter quiz

1. Who invites Lydia to Brighton?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Mrs. Forster
   C. Mrs. Gardiner
   D. Lady Catherine
2. What does Elizabeth warn her father?
   A. The house is entailed
   B. Wickham is rich
   C. Lydia is ill
   D. Lydia is in danger of disgrace
3. Why does Mr. Bennet allow it?
   A. He wants her married
   B. He is ill
   C. He trusts Lydia
   D. To keep peace at home
4. How does Elizabeth behave toward Wickham?
   A. She ignores him
   B. She hints she knows the truth
   C. She flirts
   D. She accuses him openly
5. What theme does this chapter show?
   A. Military glory
   B. Love of travel
   C. Religion
   D. Parental neglect

6. In the line “If you, my dear father, will not take the trouble of checking her exuberant spirits, and of teaching her that her present pursuits are not to be the business of her life, she will soon be beyond the reach of amendment.”, what does “exuberant” most nearly mean?
   A. Having a stomach that is easily or nauseated
   B. Characterized by abundance or superabundance
   C. To disprove or make void
   D. The act of vexing, or the state of being vexed
7. In the line “It was not in her nature, however, to increase her vexations, by dwelling on them.”, what does “vexations” most nearly mean?
   A. To disprove or make void
   B. The act of vexing, or the state of being vexed
   C. Characterized by abundance or superabundance
   D. Having a stomach that is easily or nauseated

Answer key: 1. B (Mrs. Forster); 2. D (Lydia is in danger of disgrace); 3. D (To keep peace at home); 4. B (She hints she knows the truth); 5. D (Parental neglect); 6. B (Characterized by abundance or superabundance); 7. B (The act of vexing, or the state of being vexed)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLI,” how does Austen show parental failure? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLI, how does Austen develop the idea of parental failure? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLI develops the idea of parental failure. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of parental failure. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLI suggests about parental failure. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XLI to complicate the reader's understanding of parental failure. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of parental failure responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of parental failure follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLI and its treatment of parental failure. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLI as evidence for a larger claim about parental failure in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of parental failure. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Such squeamish youths as cannot bear to be connected with a little absurdity, are not worth a regret.

   As used in the text, what does the word “squeamish” most nearly mean?

   A. Having a stomach that is easily or nauseated

   B. To refer to something indirectly or by suggestion

   C. To make new again

   D. Valuable beyond estimation

2. Such were the kind of lamentations resounding perpetually through Longbourn-house. Elizabeth tried to be diverted by them; but all sense of pleasure was lost in shame. She felt anew the justice of Mr. Darcy’s objections; and never had she before been so much disposed to pardon his interference in the views of his friend.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XLI”?

   A. Sisters and judgment

   B. A revelation from the colonel

   C. Parental failure

   D. Pemberley

SAT key: 1. A (Having a stomach that is easily or nauseated); 2. C (Parental failure)

Lesson 42: Chapter XLII

Focus: an unhappy marriage observed

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth reflects on her parents' poorly matched marriage. She tours with the Gardiners to Derbyshire, near Pemberley, Darcy's estate.

Background: Country house tourism was common; housekeepers guided visitors when owners were away.

Significance: The parents' marriage illustrates the cost of choosing on looks alone.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What has Elizabeth learned from her parents' marriage? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are curtailed, enhance, acquiesce, captivated, conjugal. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Gardiner, which at once delayed its commencement and curtailed its extent.” Webster's says: To cut off the end or tail, or any part, of. Now the word history: “curtail”: cur (Latin cura, "care"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “enhance”: en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “acquiesce”: ac- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Country house tourism was common; housekeepers guided visitors when owners were away. Why does this chapter matter? The parents' marriage illustrates the cost of choosing on looks alone. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to an unhappy marriage observed.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Setting.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Elizabeth, however, had never been blind to the impropriety of her father's behaviour as a husband. She had always seen it with pain; but respecting his abilities, and grateful for his affectionate treatment of herself, she endeavoured to forget what she could not overlook, and to banish from her thoughts that continual breach of conjugal obligation and decorum which, in exposing his wife to the contempt of her own children, was so highly reprehensible. But she had never felt so strongly as now the disadvantages which must attend the children of so unsuitable a marriage, nor ever been so fully aware of the evils arising from so ill-judged a direction of talents; talents which rightly used, might at least have preserved the respectability of his daughters, even if incapable of enlarging the mind of his wife.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Setting: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLII," how does Austen show an unhappy marriage observed? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about an unhappy marriage observed, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes an unhappy marriage observed. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note

curtailed	To cut off the end or tail, or any part, of	Gardiner, which at once delayed its commencement and curtailed its extent.	“curtail”: cur (Latin cura, "care"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
enhance	To raise or lift up	One enjoyment was certain—that of suitableness as companions; a suitableness which comprehended health and temper to bear inconveniences—cheerfulness to enhance every pleasure—and affection and intelligence, which might supply it among themselves if there were disappointments abroad.	“enhance”: en- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
acquiesce	To rest satisfied, or apparently satisfied, or to rest without opposition and discontent (usually implying previous…	Elizabeth said no more—but her mind could not acquiesce.	“acquiesce”: ac- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
captivated	To take prisoner	Her father, captivated by youth and beauty, and that appearance of good humour which youth and beauty generally give, had married a woman whose weak understanding and illiberal mind, had very early in their marriage put an end to all real affection for her.	“captivate”: cap (Latin capere, "to take") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
conjugal	Belonging to marriage	Had Elizabeth’s opinion been all drawn from her own family, she could not have formed a very pleasing picture of conjugal felicity or domestic comfort.	“conjugal”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -al (Latin -alis, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
reappear	To appear again	After the first fortnight or three weeks of her absence, health, good humour and cheerfulness began to reappear at Longbourn.	“reappear”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
carpets	A heavy woven or felted fabric, usually of wool, but also of cotton, hemp, straw, etc.; esp	She must own that she was tired of great houses; after going over so many, she really had no pleasure in fine carpets or satin curtains.	“carpet”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
petrified	To convert, as any animal or vegetable matter, into stone or stony substance	“But surely,” said she, “I may enter his county with impunity, and rob it of a few petrified spars without his perceiving me.”	“petrify”: -ify (Latin -ficare, "to make"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
ceaseless	Without pause or end

		But here, by carrying with me one ceaseless source of regret in my sister's absence, I may reasonably hope to have all my expectations of pleasure realized.	"ceaseless": -less (Old English -leas, "without"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
impunity	Exemption or freedom from punishment, harm, or loss	"But surely," said she, "I may enter his county with impunity, and rob it of a few petrified spars without his perceiving me."	"impunity": im- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. What has Elizabeth learned from her parents' marriage?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Setting: look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling

Chapter quiz

1. What does Elizabeth reflect on?
   A. Her parents' poorly matched marriage
   B. Collins's sermons
   C. Jane's wedding
   D. Fashion
2. Where does Elizabeth travel?
   A. Derbyshire
   B. Ireland
   C. Scotland
   D. Bath
3. Whose estate is nearby?
   A. Lady Catherine's Rosings
   B. Collins's Hunsford
   C. Darcy's Pemberley
   D. Bingley's Netherfield
4. With whom does she travel?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Lydia
   C. Jane

D. The Gardiners

5. Why did Mr. Bennet marry his wife?
   A. For money
   B. For rank
   C. By arrangement
   D. He was captivated by youth and beauty
6. In the line “Gardiner, which at once delayed its commencement and curtailed its extent.”, what does “curtailed” most nearly mean?
   A. To take prisoner
   B. To cut off the end or tail, or any part, of
   C. To raise or lift up
   D. To rest satisfied, or apparently satisfied, or to rest without opposition and discontent (usually implying previous…
7. In the line “One enjoyment was certain—that of suitableness as companions; a suitableness which comprehended health and temper to bear inconveniences—cheerfulness to enhance every pleasure—and affection and intelligence, which might supply it among themselves if there were disappointments abroad.”, what does “enhance” most nearly mean?
   A. To rest satisfied, or apparently satisfied, or to rest without opposition and discontent (usually implying previous…
   B. To cut off the end or tail, or any part, of
   C. To raise or lift up
   D. To take prisoner

Answer key: 1. A (Her parents' poorly matched marriage); 2. A (Derbyshire); 3. C (Darcy's Pemberley); 4. D (The Gardiners); 5. D (He was captivated by youth and beauty); 6. B (To cut off the end or tail, or any part, of); 7. C (To raise or lift up)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLII,” how does Austen show an unhappy marriage observed? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLII, how does Austen develop the idea of an unhappy marriage observed? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLII develops the idea of an unhappy marriage observed. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of an unhappy marriage observed.

Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLII suggests about an unhappy marriage observed. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XLII to complicate the reader's understanding of an unhappy marriage observed. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of an unhappy marriage observed responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of an unhappy marriage observed follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLII and its treatment of an unhappy marriage observed. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLII as evidence for a larger claim about an unhappy marriage observed in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of an unhappy marriage observed. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Elizabeth said no more—but her mind could not acquiesce.

   As used in the text, what does the word “acquiesce” most nearly mean?

   A. Without pause or end

   B. To rest satisfied, or apparently satisfied, or to rest without opposition and discontent (usually implying previous…

   C. To convert, as any animal or vegetable matter, into stone or stony substance

D. Exemption or freedom from punishment, harm, or loss

2. Elizabeth, however, had never been blind to the impropriety of her father's behaviour as a husband. She had always seen it with pain; but respecting his abilities, and grateful for his affectionate treatment of herself, she endeavoured to forget what she could not overlook, and to banish from her thoughts that continual breach of conjugal obligation and decorum which, in exposing his wife to the contempt of her own children, was so highly reprehensible. But she had never felt so strongly as now the disadvantages which must attend the children of so unsuitable a marriage, nor ever been so fully aware of the evils arising from so ill-judged a direction of talents; talents which rightly used, might at least have preserved the respectability of his daughters, even if incapable of enlarging the mind of his wife.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XLII"?

A. Self-recognition

B. Leaving Kent

C. An unhappy marriage observed

D. Hearing the many voices

SAT key: 1. B (To rest satisfied, or apparently satisfied, or to rest without opposition and discontent (usually implying previous…); 2. C (An unhappy marriage observed)

Lesson 43: Chapter XLIII

Focus: Pemberley

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth tours Pemberley, admires its natural taste, and hears the housekeeper praise Darcy as kind and generous. Darcy unexpectedly appears and is courteous; Elizabeth is mortified but impressed.

Background: Landscape style ('natural' rather than formal) was thought to reveal the owner's character.

Significance: Pemberley symbolizes Darcy's true self; Elizabeth's thought 'to be mistress of Pemberley might be something!'

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How does Pemberley represent Darcy? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are embargo, miniatures, uselessly, bedrooms, affable. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “She wanted to talk, but there seemed an embargo on every subject.” Webster's says: An edict or order of the government prohibiting the departure of ships of commerce from some or all of the ports.... Now the word history: “embargo”: em- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “miniature”: min (Latin minor, "smaller") + -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “useless”: -less (Old English -leas, "without"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Landscape style ('natural' rather than formal) was thought to reveal the owner's character. Why does this chapter matter? Pemberley symbolizes Darcy's true self; Elizabeth's thought 'to be mistress of Pemberley might be something!' Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for setting.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see setting, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to Pemberley.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Setting, Symbolism, Characterization.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of setting. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Her aunt now called her to look at a picture. She approached, and saw the likeness of Mr. Wickham suspended, amongst several other miniatures, over the mantelpiece. Her aunt asked her, smilingly, how she liked it. The housekeeper came forward, and told them it was the picture of a young gentleman, the son of her late master's steward, who had been brought up by him at his own expense. "He is now gone into the army," she added, "but I am afraid he has turned out very wild."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Setting, Symbolism, Characterization: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLIII," how does Austen show Pemberley? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about Pemberley, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how setting shapes Pemberley. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
embargo	An edict or order of the government prohibiting the departure of ships of commerce from some or all of the ports…	She wanted to talk, but there seemed an embargo on every subject.	"embargo": em- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

miniatures	Originally, a painting in colors such as those in mediæval manuscripts	Wickham suspended, amongst several other miniatures, over the mantelpiece.	“miniature”: min (Latin minor, "smaller") + -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
uselessly	Having, or being of, no use	The rooms were lofty and handsome, and their furniture suitable to the fortune of their proprietor; but Elizabeth saw, with admiration of his taste, that it was neither gaudy nor uselessly fine; with less of splendor, and more real elegance, than the furniture of Rosings.	“useless”: -less (Old English -leas, "without"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
bedrooms	A room or apartment intended or used for a bed	The picture gallery, and two or three of the principal bedrooms, were all that remained to be shown.	“bedroom”: be- (Old English be-, "thoroughly, about"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
affable	Easy to be spoken to or addressed	“Yes, Ma’am, that he was indeed; and his son will be just like him—just as affable to the poor.”	“affable”: af- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
windings	A call by the boatswain's whistle	Elizabeth longed to explore its windings; but when they had crossed the bridge, and perceived their distance from the house, Mrs.	“winding”: -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
consigned	(a) A countersign	When all of the house that was open to general inspection had been seen, they returned downstairs, and taking leave of the housekeeper, were consigned over to the gardener, who met them at the hall door.	“consigne”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
revolted	To turn away	This was a stroke of civility for which she was quite unprepared; and she could hardly suppress a smile, at his being now seeking the acquaintance of some of those very people, against whom his pride had revolted, in his offer to herself.	“revolt”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
overspread	To spread over	Their eyes instantly met, and the cheeks of each were overspread with the deepest blush.	“overspread”: over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
explore	To seek for or after	Elizabeth longed to explore its windings; but when they had crossed the bridge, and perceived their distance from the house, Mrs.	“explore”: ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + plor (Latin plorare, "to wail"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. How does Pemberley represent Darcy?
2. Where does setting appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Setting: look for where and when events happen and how place shapes action or feeling
- Symbolism: look for objects, places or actions that stand for larger ideas
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them

Chapter quiz

1. Who praises Darcy at Pemberley?
   A. Lady Catherine
   B. Wickham
   C. The housekeeper, Mrs. Reynolds
   D. Bingley
2. How is Pemberley's landscape described?
   A. Natural and tasteful
   B. Neglected
   C. Formal and stiff
   D. Gaudy
3. What surprises Elizabeth?
   A. The house is ruined
   B. Darcy appears unexpectedly
   C. Jane is there
   D. Wickham is there
4. How does Darcy behave?
   A. Cold
   B. Courteous and kind
   C. Silent
   D. Rude
5. What does Pemberley symbolize?
   A. Wickham's fortune
   B. Wealth only
   C. The church
   D. Darcy's true character
6. In the line “She wanted to talk, but there seemed an embargo on every subject.”, what does “embargo” most nearly mean?
   A. A room or apartment intended or used for a bed

B. Originally, a painting in colors such as those in mediæval manuscripts

C. Having, or being of, no use

D. An edict or order of the government prohibiting the departure of ships of commerce from some or all of the ports…

7. In the line “Wickham suspended, amongst several other miniatures, over the mantelpiece.”, what does “miniatures” most nearly mean?

A. An edict or order of the government prohibiting the departure of ships of commerce from some or all of the ports…

B. Having, or being of, no use

C. A room or apartment intended or used for a bed

D. Originally, a painting in colors such as those in mediæval manuscripts

Answer key: 1. C (The housekeeper, Mrs. Reynolds); 2. A (Natural and tasteful); 3. B (Darcy appears unexpectedly); 4. B (Courteous and kind); 5. D (Darcy's true character); 6. D (An edict or order of the government prohibiting the departure of ships of commerce from some or all of the ports…); 7. D (Originally, a painting in colors such as those in mediæval manuscripts)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLIII,” how does Austen show Pemberley? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLIII, how does Austen develop the idea of Pemberley? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLIII develops the idea of Pemberley. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of Pemberley. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLIII suggests about Pemberley. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's setting and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.3, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses setting in Chapter XLIII to complicate the reader's understanding of Pemberley. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.3, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of Pemberley responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.3, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of Pemberley follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.3, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLIII and its treatment of Pemberley. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's setting and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.3, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLIII as evidence for a larger claim about Pemberley in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.3, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of Pemberley. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. The rooms were lofty and handsome, and their furniture suitable to the fortune of their proprietor; but Elizabeth saw, with admiration of his taste, that it was neither gaudy nor uselessly fine; with less of splendor, and more real elegance, than the furniture of Rosings.

   As used in the text, what does the word “uselessly” most nearly mean?

   A. To seek for or after

   B. Having, or being of, no use

   C. To spread over

   D. To turn away

2. Her aunt now called her to look at a picture. She approached, and saw the likeness of Mr. Wickham suspended, amongst several other miniatures, over the mantelpiece. Her aunt asked her, smilingly, how she liked it. The housekeeper came forward, and told them it was the picture of a young gentleman, the son of her late master’s steward, who had been brought up by him at his own expense. “He is now gone into the army,” she added, “but I am afraid he has turned out very wild.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XLIII”?

   A. The pain of a father's love

   B. Farewells at Hunsford

   C. A costly solution

   D. Pemberley

SAT key: 1. B (Having, or being of, no use); 2. D (Pemberley)

Lesson 44: Chapter XLIV

Focus: a changed Darcy

Teacher only · spoilers

Darcy brings Georgiana and Bingley to meet Elizabeth. Georgiana is shy, not proud. Bingley seems to remember Jane. The Gardiners notice Darcy's affection.

Background: Introducing a sister was a sign of serious intentions.

Significance: Darcy's courtesy to the Gardiners proves he has changed.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What evidence shows Darcy has changed? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are acrimony, monosyllable, imparted, retreated, compose. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Gratitude, not merely for having once loved her, but for loving her still well enough, to forgive all the petulance and acrimony of her manner in rejecting him, and all the unjust accusations accompanying her rejection.” Webster's says: A quality of bodies which corrodes or destroys others. Now the word history: “acrimony”: ac- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “monosyllable”: mono- (Greek monos, "single") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “imparted”: im- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Introducing a sister was a sign of serious intentions. Why does this chapter matter? Darcy's courtesy to the Gardiners proves he has changed. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a changed Darcy.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Miss Darcy and her brother appeared, and this formidable introduction took place. With astonishment did Elizabeth see, that her new acquaintance was at least as much embarrassed as herself. Since her being at Lambton, she had heard that Miss Darcy was exceedingly proud; but the observation of a very few minutes convinced her, that she was only exceedingly shy. She found it difficult to obtain even a word from her beyond a monosyllable.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLIV," how does Austen show a changed Darcy? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a changed Darcy, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes a changed Darcy. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
acrimony	A quality of bodies which corrodes or destroys others	Gratitude, not merely for having once loved her, but for loving her still well enough, to forgive all the petulance and acrimony of her manner in rejecting	"acrimony": ac- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		him, and all the unjust accusations accompanying her rejection.
monosyllable	A word of one syllable	She found it difficult to obtain even a word from her beyond a monosyllable.	“monosyllable”: mono- (Greek monos, "single") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
imparted	To bestow a share or portion of	Elizabeth immediately recognising the livery, guessed what it meant, and imparted no small degree of surprise to her relations, by acquainting them with the honour which she expected.	“impart”: im- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
retreated	The act of retiring or withdrawing one's self, especially from what is dangerous or disagreeable	She retreated from the window, fearful of being seen; and as she walked up and down the room, endeavouring to compose herself, saw such looks of enquiring surprise in her uncle and aunt, as made everything worse.	“retreat”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
compose	To form by putting together two or more things or parts	She retreated from the window, fearful of being seen; and as she walked up and down the room, endeavouring to compose herself, saw such looks of enquiring surprise in her uncle and aunt, as made everything worse.	“compose”: com- (Latin com-, "with, together") + pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
fishing	The act, practice, or art of one who fishes	The fishing scheme had been renewed the day before, and a positive engagement made of his meeting some of the gentlemen at Pemberley by noon.	“fishing”: -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
formidable	Exciting fear or apprehension	Miss Darcy and her brother appeared, and this formidable introduction took place.	“formidable”: form (Latin forma, "shape") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
suspicions	The act of suspecting	The suspicions which had just arisen of Mr.	“suspicion”: spic (Latin specere, "to look"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
sixteen	Six and ten	Miss Darcy was tall, and on a larger scale than Elizabeth; and, though little more than sixteen, her figure was formed, and her appearance womanly and graceful.	“sixteen”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
embarrassed

	To hinder from freedom of thought, speech, or action by something which impedes or confuses mental action	With astonishment did Elizabeth see, that her new acquaintance was at least as much embarrassed as herself.	“embarrass”: em- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. What evidence shows Darcy has changed?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Whom does Darcy introduce to Elizabeth?
   A. Fitzwilliam
   B. Caroline
   C. Anne de Bourgh
   D. Georgiana
2. How is Georgiana described?
   A. Shy
   B. Rude
   C. Loud
   D. Proud
3. Who seems to remember Jane fondly?
   A. Bingley
   B. Collins
   C. Wickham
   D. Darcy
4. What do the Gardiners notice?
   A. Elizabeth's dislike
   B. Bingley's engagement
   C. Wickham's arrival
   D. Darcy's affection for Elizabeth
5. How does Darcy treat the Gardiners?
   A. Rudely
   B. He ignores them

C. Courteously

D. Coldly

6. In the line “Gratitude, not merely for having once loved her, but for loving her still well enough, to forgive all the petulance and acrimony of her manner in rejecting him, and all the unjust accusations accompanying her rejection.”, what does “acrimony” most nearly mean?

A. To bestow a share or portion of

B. The act of retiring or withdrawing one's self, especially from what is dangerous or disagreeable

C. A quality of bodies which corrodes or destroys others

D. A word of one syllable

7. In the line “She found it difficult to obtain even a word from her beyond a monosyllable.”, what does “monosyllable” most nearly mean?

A. A quality of bodies which corrodes or destroys others

B. The act of retiring or withdrawing one's self, especially from what is dangerous or disagreeable

C. A word of one syllable

D. To bestow a share or portion of

Answer key: 1. D (Georgiana); 2. A (Shy); 3. A (Bingley); 4. D (Darcy's affection for Elizabeth); 5. C (Courteously); 6. C (A quality of bodies which corrodes or destroys others); 7. C (A word of one syllable)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLIV,” how does Austen show a changed Darcy? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLIV, how does Austen develop the idea of a changed Darcy? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLIV develops the idea of a changed Darcy. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLIV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of a changed Darcy. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLIV suggests about a changed Darcy. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XLIV to complicate the reader's understanding of a changed Darcy. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLIV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a changed Darcy responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLIV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a changed Darcy follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLIV and its treatment of a changed Darcy. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLIV as evidence for a larger claim about a changed Darcy in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLIV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a changed Darcy. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Elizabeth immediately recognising the livery, guessed what it meant, and imparted no small degree of surprise to her relations, by acquainting them with the honour which she expected.

   As used in the text, what does the word “imparted” most nearly mean?

   A. Six and ten

   B. To bestow a share or portion of

   C. To hinder from freedom of thought, speech, or action by something which impedes or confuses mental action

   D. The act of suspecting

2. Miss Darcy and her brother appeared, and this formidable introduction took place. With astonishment did Elizabeth see, that her new acquaintance was at least as much embarrassed as herself. Since her being at Lambton, she had heard that Miss Darcy was exceedingly proud; but the observation of a very few minutes convinced her, that she was only exceedingly shy. She found it difficult to obtain even a word from her beyond a monosyllable.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XLIV”?

   A. A changed Darcy

   B. Reflections on love

C. A revelation from the colonel

D. Parental conflict over the refusal

SAT key: 1. B (To bestow a share or portion of); 2. A (A changed Darcy)

Lesson 45: Chapter XLV

Focus: jealousy at Pemberley

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth and Mrs. Gardiner visit Pemberley. Caroline Bingley tries to provoke Elizabeth by mentioning the militia (Wickham), embarrassing Georgiana. Darcy defends Elizabeth, calling her one of the handsomest women he knows.

Background: Polite visits were also contests of status and wit.

Significance: Caroline's spite backfires, revealing Darcy's devotion.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Caroline's attack backfire? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are predominate, peaches, nettled, pyramids, chestnuts. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Darcy, by the feelings which prevailed on his entering the room; and then, though but a moment before she had believed her wishes to predominate, she began to regret that he came.” Webster's says: To be superior in number, strength, influence, or authority. Now the word history: “predominate”: pre- (Latin prae, "before") + min (Latin minor, "smaller") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “peach”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “nettle”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Polite visits were also contests of status and wit. Why does this chapter matter? Caroline's spite backfires, revealing Darcy's devotion. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to jealousy at Pemberley.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> On reaching the house, they were shown through the hall into the saloon, whose northern aspect rendered it delightful for summer. Its windows opening to the ground, admitted a most refreshing view of the high woody hills behind the house, and of the beautiful oaks and Spanish chestnuts which were scattered over the intermediate lawn.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLV," how does Austen show jealousy at Pemberley? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about jealousy at Pemberley, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes jealousy at Pemberley. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
predominate	To be superior in number, strength, influence, or authority	Darcy, by the feelings which prevailed on his entering the room; and then, though but a moment before she had believed her wishes to predominate, she began to regret that he came.	"predominate": pre- (Latin prae, "before") + min (Latin minor, "smaller") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

peaches	To accuse of crime	There was now employment for the whole party; for though they could not all talk, they could all eat; and the beautiful pyramids of grapes, nectarines, and peaches, soon collected them round the table.	“peach”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
nettled	A plant of the genus Urtica, covered with minute sharp hairs containing a poison that produces a stinging sensation	Persuaded as Miss Bingley was that Darcy admired Elizabeth, this was not the best method of recommending herself; but angry people are not always wise; and in seeing him at last look somewhat nettled, she had all the success she expected.	“nettle”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
pyramids	A solid body standing on a triangular, square, or polygonal base, and terminating in a point at the top	There was now employment for the whole party; for though they could not all talk, they could all eat; and the beautiful pyramids of grapes, nectarines, and peaches, soon collected them round the table.	“pyramid”: ami (Latin amare, "to love"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
chestnuts	(Bot.) The edible nut of a forest tree (Castanea vesce) of Europe and America	Its windows opening to the ground, admitted a most refreshing view of the high woody hills behind the house, and of the beautiful oaks and Spanish chestnuts which were scattered over the intermediate lawn.	“chestnut”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
sneering	To show contempt by turning up the nose, or by a particular facial expression	Miss Bingley saw all this likewise; and, in the imprudence of anger, took the first opportunity of saying, with sneering civility—	“sneer”: -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
brevity	Shortness of duration	She answered with equal indifference and brevity, and the other said no more.	“brevity”: -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
deciding	To cut off	While thus engaged, Elizabeth had a fair opportunity of deciding whether she most feared or wished for the appearance of Mr.	“decide”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
agreeing	In good part	Louisa and I were agreeing that we should not have known her again.”	“agree”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
replying

	To make a return in words or writing	Darcy might have liked such an address, he contented himself with coolly replying, that he perceived no other alteration than her being rather tanned —no miraculous consequence of travelling in the summer.	“reply”: -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Caroline's attack backfire?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. Who visits Pemberley with Elizabeth?
   A. Jane
   B. Mrs. Gardiner
   C. Lydia
   D. Charlotte
2. What does Caroline mention to provoke Elizabeth?
   A. The militia
   B. Her muddy walk
   C. Rosings
   D. Collins
3. Who is embarrassed by the remark?
   A. Georgiana
   B. Mrs. Gardiner
   C. Bingley
   D. Darcy
4. What does Darcy say about Elizabeth?
   A. She is tolerable
   B. One of the handsomest women he knows
   C. She is poor
   D. She is foolish
5. What does Caroline's behavior reveal?
   A. Fear

B. Kindness

C. Jealousy

D. Shyness

6. In the line “Darcy, by the feelings which prevailed on his entering the room; and then, though but a moment before she had believed her wishes to predominate, she began to regret that he came.”, what does “predominate” most nearly mean?

   A. To be superior in number, strength, influence, or authority

   B. A plant of the genus Urtica, covered with minute sharp hairs containing a poison that produces a stinging sensation

   C. To accuse of crime

   D. A solid body standing on a triangular, square, or polygonal base, and terminating in a point at the top

7. In the line “There was now employment for the whole party; for though they could not all talk, they could all eat; and the beautiful pyramids of grapes, nectarines, and peaches, soon collected them round the table.”, what does “peaches” most nearly mean?

   A. To be superior in number, strength, influence, or authority

   B. To accuse of crime

   C. A solid body standing on a triangular, square, or polygonal base, and terminating in a point at the top

   D. A plant of the genus Urtica, covered with minute sharp hairs containing a poison that produces a stinging sensation

Answer key: 1. B (Mrs. Gardiner); 2. A (The militia); 3. A (Georgiana); 4. B (One of the handsomest women he knows); 5. C (Jealousy); 6. A (To be superior in number, strength, influence, or authority); 7. B (To accuse of crime)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLV,” how does Austen show jealousy at Pemberley? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLV, how does Austen develop the idea of jealousy at Pemberley? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLV develops the idea of jealousy at Pemberley. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of jealousy at Pemberley. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLV suggests about jealousy at Pemberley. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XLV to complicate the reader's understanding of jealousy at Pemberley. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of jealousy at Pemberley responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of jealousy at Pemberley follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLV and its treatment of jealousy at Pemberley. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLV as evidence for a larger claim about jealousy at Pemberley in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of jealousy at Pemberley. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Persuaded as Miss Bingley was that Darcy admired Elizabeth, this was not the best method of recommending herself; but angry people are not always wise; and in seeing him at last look somewhat nettled, she had all the success she expected.

   As used in the text, what does the word “nettled” most nearly mean?

   A. To make a return in words or writing

   B. To cut off

   C. A plant of the genus Urtica, covered with minute sharp hairs containing a poison that produces a stinging sensation

   D. In good part

2. On reaching the house, they were shown through the hall into the saloon, whose northern aspect rendered it delightful for summer. Its windows opening to the ground, admitted a most refreshing view of the high woody hills behind the house, and of the beautiful oaks and Spanish chestnuts which were scattered over the intermediate lawn.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XLV"?

A. The demand for a companion

B. The Brighton plan

C. Reading and identity

D. Jealousy at Pemberley

SAT key: 1. C (A plant of the genus Urtica, covered with minute sharp hairs containing a poison that produces a stinging sensation); 2. D (Jealousy at Pemberley)

Lesson 46: Chapter XLVI

Focus: scandal

Teacher only · spoilers

Letters from Jane report that Lydia has run off with Wickham, possibly not married. Darcy finds Elizabeth distraught; she confides in him. Elizabeth and the Gardiners hurry home.

Background: An unmarried elopement could ruin the reputation of an entire family.

Significance: The crisis tests Darcy's love and reveals Elizabeth's change of heart.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Elizabeth tell Darcy, and what does she fear? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are fluctuating, actuated, superseded, informing, darting. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Her affections had been continually fluctuating, but never without an object.” Webster's says: To move as a wave. Now the word history: “fluctuate”: luc (Latin lux, "light") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “actuate”: ac- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “supersede”: super- (Latin super, "above"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. An unmarried elopement could ruin the reputation of an entire family. Why does this chapter matter? The crisis tests Darcy's love and reveals Elizabeth's change of heart. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for plot.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see plot, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to scandal.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Plot, Conflict, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of plot. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Without allowing herself time for consideration, and scarcely knowing what she felt, Elizabeth on finishing this letter instantly seized the other, and opening it with the utmost impatience, read as follows: it had been written a day later than the conclusion of the first.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Plot, Conflict, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLVI," how does Austen show scandal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about scandal, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how plot shapes scandal. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
fluctuating	To move as a wave	Her affections had been continually fluctuating, but never without an object.	"fluctuate": luc (Latin lux, "light") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
actuated	To put into action or motion	Elizabeth, though expecting no less, thanked him with tears of gratitude; and all three	"actuate": ac- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		being actuated by one spirit, everything relating to their journey was speedily settled.
superseded	To come, or be placed, in the room of	Her pale face and impetuous manner made him start, and before he could recover himself enough to speak, she, in whose mind every idea was superseded by Lydia's situation, hastily exclaimed, "I beg your pardon, but I must leave you.	"supersede": super- (Latin super, "above"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
informing	Without regular form	Lydia left a few lines for his wife, informing her of their intention.	"inform": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + form (Latin forma, "shape"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
darting	A pointed missile weapon, intended to be thrown by the hand	"Oh! where, where is my uncle?" cried Elizabeth, darting from her seat as she finished the letter, in eagerness to follow him, without losing a moment of the time so precious; but as she reached the door, it was opened by a servant, and Mr.	"dart": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
impetuous	Rushing with force and violence	Her pale face and impetuous manner made him start, and before he could recover himself enough to speak, she, in whose mind every idea was superseded by Lydia's situation, hastily exclaimed, "I beg your pardon, but I must leave you.	"impetuous": im- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ous (Latin -osus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
apprehensions	The act of seizing or taking hold of	With the kindest concern he came on to Longbourn, and broke his apprehensions to us in a manner most creditable to his heart.	"apprehension": ap- (Latin ad, "to") + -sion (Latin -sio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
finishing	The act or process of completing or perfecting	Without allowing herself time for consideration, and scarcely knowing what she felt, Elizabeth on finishing this letter instantly seized the other, and opening it with the utmost impatience, read as follows: it had been written a day later than the conclusion of the first.	"finishing": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
secrecy	The state or quality of being hidden	He readily assured her of his secrecy—again expressed his sorrow for her distress, wished it a happier conclusion than there was at present reason to hope, and leaving his compliments for her relations, with only one serious, parting, look, went away.	"secrecy": se- (Latin se-, "apart"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
attempting			"attempt": at- (Latin ad, "to") + tempt (Latin temptare, "to try").

	To make trial or experiment of	Elizabeth hesitated, but her knees trembled under her, and she felt how little would be gained by her attempting to pursue them.	Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Elizabeth tell Darcy, and what does she fear?
2. Where does plot appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Conflict: look for the forces, people or desires pulling against each other
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. What news does Jane send?
   A. Father died
   B. Bingley proposed
   C. Lydia has run off with Wickham
   D. Collins is ill
2. Where were Lydia and Wickham thought to go?
   A. Pemberley
   B. Paris
   C. Gretna Green or London
   D. Bath
3. Whom does Elizabeth confide in?
   A. Fitzwilliam
   B. Darcy
   C. Caroline
   D. Georgiana
4. What does she fear?
   A. War
   B. Illness
   C. Her family's disgrace and Darcy's loss
   D. Losing money
5. How do they react?
   A. Do nothing
   B. Go to Brighton
   C. Hurry home
   D. Stay at Pemberley

6. In the line “Her affections had been continually fluctuating, but never without an object.”, what does “fluctuating” most nearly mean?
   A. To move as a wave
   B. To put into action or motion
   C. To come, or be placed, in the room of
   D. Without regular form
7. In the line “Elizabeth, though expecting no less, thanked him with tears of gratitude; and all three being actuated by one spirit, everything relating to their journey was speedily settled.”, what does “actuated” most nearly mean?
   A. To move as a wave
   B. To put into action or motion
   C. To come, or be placed, in the room of
   D. Without regular form

Answer key: 1. C (Lydia has run off with Wickham); 2. C (Gretna Green or London); 3. B (Darcy); 4. C (Her family's disgrace and Darcy's loss); 5. C (Hurry home); 6. A (To move as a wave); 7. B (To put into action or motion)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLVI,” how does Austen show scandal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLVI, how does Austen develop the idea of scandal? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the plot in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLVI develops the idea of scandal. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of plot and conflict shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLVI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its plot shape the reader's understanding of scandal. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLVI suggests about scandal. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's plot and conflict), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses plot in Chapter XLVI to complicate the reader's understanding of scandal. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLVI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of scandal responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLVI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of scandal follows or bends those conventions, using the plot as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLVI and its treatment of scandal. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's plot and conflict, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLVI as evidence for a larger claim about scandal in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLVI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of scandal. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Her pale face and impetuous manner made him start, and before he could recover himself enough to speak, she, in whose mind every idea was superseded by Lydia's situation, hastily exclaimed, "I beg your pardon, but I must leave you.

   As used in the text, what does the word "superseded" most nearly mean?

   A. The state or quality of being hidden

   B. The act or process of completing or perfecting

   C. To come, or be placed, in the room of

   D. To make trial or experiment of

2. Without allowing herself time for consideration, and scarcely knowing what she felt, Elizabeth on finishing this letter instantly seized the other, and opening it with the utmost impatience, read as follows: it had been written a day later than the conclusion of the first.

   Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter XLVI"?

   A. Keeping secrets

   B. Leaving Kent

   C. Confiding and consent

   D. Scandal

SAT key: 1. C (To come, or be placed, in the room of); 2. D (Scandal)

Lesson 47: Chapter XLVII

Focus: family in crisis

Teacher only · spoilers

The Gardiners and Elizabeth return to Longbourn. Mrs. Bennet is hysterical; Mr. Bennet goes to London to search. Lydia's careless letter to Mrs. Forster shows she thinks it a joke.

Background: Lydia's reputation affected her sisters' marriage prospects too.

Significance: Lydia's thoughtlessness exposes the results of indulgence and neglect.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does Lydia's letter reveal about her? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are overruled, condole, postilions, flirtation, insinuating. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “I always thought they were very unfit to have the charge of her; but I was overruled, as I always am.” Webster's says: To rule over. Now the word history: “overrule”: over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “condole”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + dol (Latin dolere, "to grieve"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “postilion”: pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Lydia's reputation affected her sisters' marriage prospects too. Why does this chapter matter? Lydia's thoughtlessness exposes the results of indulgence and neglect. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to family in crisis.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "I have been thinking it over again, Elizabeth," said her uncle, as they drove from the town; "and really, upon serious consideration, I am much more inclined than I was to judge as your eldest sister does of the matter. It appears to me so very unlikely that any young man should form such a design against a girl who is by no means unprotected or friendless, and who was actually staying in his colonel's family, that I am strongly inclined to hope the best. Could he expect that her friends would not step forward? Could he expect to be noticed again by the regiment, after such an affront to Colonel Forster? His temptation is not adequate to the risk."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLVII," how does Austen show family in crisis? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about family in crisis, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes family in crisis. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
overruled	To rule over

		I always thought they were very unfit to have the charge of her; but I was overruled, as I always am.	"overrule": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
condole	To express sympathetic sorrow	She was of great use and comfort to us all, and lady Lucas has been very kind; she walked here on Wednesday morning to condole with us, and offered her services, or any of her daughters, if they could be of use to us."	"condole": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + dol (Latin dolere, "to grieve"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
postilions	One who rides and guides the first pair of horses of a coach or post chaise	"He meant, I believe," replied Jane, "to go to Epsom, the place where they last changed horses, see the postilions, and try if anything could be made out from them.	"postilion": pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
flirtation	Playing at courtship	Since the ——shire were first quartered in Meryton, nothing but love, flirtation, and officers, have been in her head.	"flirtation": -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
insinuating	Winding, creeping, or flowing in, quietly or stealthily	That he is as false and deceitful, as he is insinuating."	"insinuating": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
alternate	Being or succeeding by turns	Jane ran to her uncle and aunt, and welcomed and thanked them both, with alternate smiles and tears.	"alternate": -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
availed	To turn to the advantage of	In the afternoon, the two elder Miss Bennets were able to be for half an hour by themselves; and Elizabeth instantly availed herself of the opportunity of making many enquiries, which Jane was equally eager to satisfy.	"avail": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
adequate	Equal to some requirement	His temptation is not adequate to the risk."	"adequate": ad- (Latin ad, "to, toward") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
excuses	To free from accusation, or the imputation of fault or blame	Pray make my excuses to Pratt, for not keeping my engagement, and dancing with him tonight.	"excuse": ex- (Latin ex, "out of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
shocking	Causing to shake or tremble, as by a blow	"It does seem, and it is most shocking indeed," replied Elizabeth, with tears in her eyes, "that a sister's sense of decency and virtue in such a point should admit of doubt.	"shocking": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. What does Lydia's letter reveal about her?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who goes to London to search?
   A. Darcy openly
   B. Mr. Bennet
   C. Collins
   D. Bingley
2. How does Mrs. Bennet react?
   A. Silently
   B. Joyfully
   C. Hysterically
   D. Calmly
3. What is Lydia's attitude in her letter?
   A. She is ashamed
   B. She is terrified
   C. She thinks it a joke
   D. She apologizes
4. Who wrote to Mrs. Forster?
   A. Wickham
   B. Lydia
   C. Kitty
   D. Jane
5. What theme does the crisis show?
   A. Poverty only
   B. Love of nature
   C. Effects of neglect and indulgence
   D. Science
6. In the line “I always thought they were very unfit to have the charge of her; but I was overruled, as I always am.”, what does “overruled” most nearly mean?
   A. Playing at courtship

B. To rule over

C. One who rides and guides the first pair of horses of a coach or post chaise

D. To express sympathetic sorrow

7. In the line “She was of great use and comfort to us all, and lady Lucas has been very kind; she walked here on Wednesday morning to condole with us, and offered her services, or any of her daughters, if they could be of use to us.””, what does “condole” most nearly mean?

A. One who rides and guides the first pair of horses of a coach or post chaise

B. Playing at courtship

C. To express sympathetic sorrow

D. To rule over

Answer key: 1. B (Mr. Bennet); 2. C (Hysterically); 3. C (She thinks it a joke); 4. B (Lydia); 5. C (Effects of neglect and indulgence); 6. B (To rule over); 7. C (To express sympathetic sorrow)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLVII,” how does Austen show family in crisis? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLVII, how does Austen develop the idea of family in crisis? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLVII develops the idea of family in crisis. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLVII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of family in crisis. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLVII suggests about family in crisis. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter XLVII to complicate the reader's understanding of family in crisis. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLVII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of family in crisis responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLVII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of family in crisis follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLVII and its treatment of family in crisis. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLVII as evidence for a larger claim about family in crisis in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLVII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of family in crisis. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. “He meant, I believe,” replied Jane, “to go to Epsom, the place where they last changed horses, see the postilions, and try if anything could be made out from them.

   As used in the text, what does the word “postilions” most nearly mean?

   A. Causing to shake or tremble, as by a blow

   B. One who rides and guides the first pair of horses of a coach or post chaise

   C. To free from accusation, or the imputation of fault or blame

   D. Equal to some requirement

2. “I have been thinking it over again, Elizabeth,” said her uncle, as they drove from the town; “and really, upon serious consideration, I am much more inclined than I was to judge as your eldest sister does of the matter. It appears to me so very unlikely that any young man should form such a design against a girl who is by no means unprotected or friendless, and who was actually staying in his colonel’s family, that I am strongly inclined to hope the best. Could he expect that her friends would not step forward? Could he expect to be noticed again by the regiment, after such an affront to Colonel Forster? His temptation is not adequate to the risk.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XLVII”?

   A. Endings and futures

   B. Destroying the companion

   C. Family in crisis

   D. Self-denial as a path

SAT key: 1. B (One who rides and guides the first pair of horses of a coach or post chaise); 2. C (Family in crisis)

Lesson 48: Chapter XLVIII

Focus: letters of judgment

Teacher only · spoilers

Mr. Collins sends a letter of 'condolence' saying Lydia's death would have been better. Mr. Bennet returns, admitting his fault but joking bitterly; Wickham's debts are exposed.

Background: Moralizing letters were a social genre; Collins's is hypocritical.

Significance: Collins's cruel 'comfort' satirizes self-righteous religion.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why is Collins's letter so offensive? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are transpired, dilatory, enormity, finances, alleviate. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “And in the wretched state of his own finances, there was a very powerful motive for secrecy, in addition to his fear of discovery by Lydia's relations, for it had just transpired that he had left gaming debts behind him, to a very considerable amount.” Webster's says: (Physiol.) To pass off in the form of vapor or insensible perspiration. Now the word history: “transpire”: trans- (Latin trans, "across"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “dilatory”: -ory (Latin -orius, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “enormity”: en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Moralizing letters were a social genre; Collins's is hypocritical. Why does this chapter matter? Collins's cruel 'comfort' satirizes self-righteous religion. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to letters of judgment.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> The whole party were in hopes of a letter from Mr. Bennet the next morning, but the post came in without bringing a single line from him. His family knew him to be on all common occasions, a most negligent and dilatory correspondent, but at such a time, they had hoped for exertion. They were forced to conclude that he had no pleasing intelligence to send, but even of that they would have been glad to be certain. Mr. Gardiner had waited only for the letters before he set off.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLVIII," how does Austen show letters of judgment? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about letters of judgment, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes letters of judgment. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
transpired	(Physiol.) To pass off in the form of vapor or insensible perspiration	And in the wretched state of his own finances, there was a very powerful motive for secrecy, in addition to his fear of discovery by Lydia's relations, for it had just transpired that he	"transpire": trans- (Latin trans, "across"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		had left gaming debts behind him, to a very considerable amount.
dilatory	Inclined to defer or put off what ought to be done at once	His family knew him to be on all common occasions, a most negligent and dilatory correspondent, but at such a time, they had hoped for exertion.	“dilatory”: -ory (Latin -orius, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
enormity	The state or quality of exceeding a measure or rule, or of being immoderate, monstrous, or outrageous	Bennet, I am inclined to think that her own disposition must be naturally bad, or she could not be guilty of such an enormity, at so early an age.	“enormity”: en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into") + -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
finances	The income of a ruler or of a state	And in the wretched state of his own finances, there was a very powerful motive for secrecy, in addition to his fear of discovery by Lydia's relations, for it had just transpired that he had left gaming debts behind him, to a very considerable amount.	“finance”: -ance (Latin -antia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
alleviate	To lighten or lessen the force or weight of	No arguments shall be wanting on my part, that can alleviate so severe a misfortune; or that may comfort you, under a circumstance that must be of all others most afflicting to a parent's mind.	“alleviate”: -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
apprehending	To take or seize	They agree with me in apprehending that this false step in one daughter, will be injurious to the fortunes of all the others, for who, as Lady Catherine herself condescendingly says, will connect themselves with such a family.	“apprehend”: ap- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
distrusted	To feel absence of trust in	Everybody declared that he was the wickedest young man in the world; and everybody began to find out, that they had always distrusted the appearance of his goodness.	“distrust”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
disinclined	To incline away the affections of	Bennet seemed wholly disinclined at present to leave London, and promised to write again very soon.	“disincline”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
negligent	Apt to neglect	His family knew him to be on all common occasions, a most negligent and dilatory correspondent, but at such a time, they had hoped for exertion.	“negligent”: -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
intrigues	To form a plot or scheme	He was declared to be in debt to every tradesman in the place, and his intrigues, all	“intrigue”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in honoured with the title of seduction, had been extended into every tradesman's family.	our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why is Collins's letter so offensive?
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. What does Collins say about Lydia?
   A. She is brave
   B. Her death would be better
   C. She should be forgiven
   D. He will marry her
2. What does Mr. Bennet admit?
   A. He is ill
   B. It was his fault
   C. He will leave home
   D. Lydia is innocent
3. What is revealed about Wickham?
   A. He is a hero
   B. He is rich
   C. He has large debts
   D. He is married
4. How does Mr. Bennet treat Kitty?
   A. He sends her away
   B. He praises her
   C. He ignores her
   D. He jokes harshly about confining her
5. What does Collins's letter satirize?
   A. Science
   B. Hypocritical moralizing
   C. True kindness
   D. Law

6. In the line "And in the wretched state of his own finances, there was a very powerful motive for secrecy, in addition to his fear of discovery by Lydia's relations, for it had just transpired that he had left gaming debts behind him, to a very considerable amount.", what does "transpired" most nearly mean?
   A. Inclined to defer or put off what ought to be done at once
   B. (Physiol.) To pass off in the form of vapor or insensible perspiration
   C. The state or quality of exceeding a measure or rule, or of being immoderate, monstrous, or outrageous
   D. The income of a ruler or of a state
7. In the line "His family knew him to be on all common occasions, a most negligent and dilatory correspondent, but at such a time, they had hoped for exertion.", what does "dilatory" most nearly mean?
   A. Inclined to defer or put off what ought to be done at once
   B. The income of a ruler or of a state
   C. (Physiol.) To pass off in the form of vapor or insensible perspiration
   D. The state or quality of exceeding a measure or rule, or of being immoderate, monstrous, or outrageous

Answer key: 1. B (Her death would be better); 2. B (It was his fault); 3. C (He has large debts); 4. D (He jokes harshly about confining her); 5. B (Hypocritical moralizing); 6. B ((Physiol.) To pass off in the form of vapor or insensible perspiration); 7. A (Inclined to defer or put off what ought to be done at once)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In "Chapter XLVIII," how does Austen show letters of judgment? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLVIII, how does Austen develop the idea of letters of judgment? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLVIII develops the idea of letters of judgment. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLVIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of letters of judgment. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLVIII suggests about letters of judgment. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter XLVIII to complicate the reader's understanding of letters of judgment. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLVIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of letters of judgment responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLVIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of letters of judgment follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLVIII and its treatment of letters of judgment. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLVIII as evidence for a larger claim about letters of judgment in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLVIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of letters of judgment. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Bennet, I am inclined to think that her own disposition must be naturally bad, or she could not be guilty of such an enormity, at so early an age.

   As used in the text, what does the word “enormity” most nearly mean?

   A. Apt to neglect

   B. To incline away the affections of

   C. The state or quality of exceeding a measure or rule, or of being immoderate, monstrous, or outrageous

   D. To form a plot or scheme

2. The whole party were in hopes of a letter from Mr. Bennet the next morning, but the post came in without bringing a single line from him. His family knew him to be on all common occasions, a most negligent and dilatory correspondent, but at such a time, they had hoped for exertion. They were forced to conclude that he had no pleasing intelligence to send, but even of that they would have been glad to be certain. Mr. Gardiner had waited only for the letters before he set off.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XLVIII”?

   A. Pemberley

   B. Letters of judgment

   C. Visit to Hunsford

D. Disappointment and philosophy

SAT key: 1. C (The state or quality of exceeding a measure or rule, or of being immoderate, monstrous, or outrageous); 2. B (Letters of judgment)

Lesson 49: Chapter XLIX

Focus: a costly solution

Teacher only · spoilers

Mr. Gardiner writes that Lydia and Wickham have been found and will marry on modest terms. Mr. Bennet suspects Gardiner paid a great deal. Mrs. Bennet is overjoyed.

Background: Settlements guaranteed income in marriage; paying a man to marry was a way to restore honor.

Significance: Mrs. Bennet's joy ironically ignores the shame and cost.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why is Mrs. Bennet's reaction ironic? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are paddock, cambric, consenting, affording, humbled. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Upon this information, they instantly passed through the hall once more, and ran across the lawn after their father, who was deliberately pursuing his way towards a small wood on one side of the paddock.” Webster's says: A toad or frog. Now the word history: “paddock”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “cambric”: -ic (Greek -ikos, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “consent”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + sent (Latin sentire, "to feel"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Settlements guaranteed income in marriage; paying a man to marry was a way to restore honor. Why does this chapter matter? Mrs. Bennet's joy ironically ignores the shame and cost. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for plot.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see plot, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a costly solution.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Plot, Irony, Characterization.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of plot. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "That is very true," said Elizabeth; "though it had not occurred to me before. His debts to be discharged, and something still to remain! Oh! it must be my uncle's doings! Generous, good man, I am afraid he has distressed himself. A small sum could not do all this."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Plot, Irony, Characterization: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter XLIX," how does Austen show a costly solution? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a costly solution, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how plot shapes a costly solution. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
paddock	A toad or frog	Upon this information, they instantly passed through the hall once more, and ran across the lawn after their father, who was deliberately pursuing his way towards a small wood on one side of the paddock.	"paddock": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
cambric		She was then proceeding to all the particulars of calico, muslin, and cambric,

	A fine, thin, and white fabric made of flax or linen	and would shortly have dictated some very plentiful orders, had not Jane, though with some difficulty, persuaded her to wait, till her father was at leisure to be consulted.	“cambric”: -ic (Greek -ikos, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
consenting	To agree in opinion or sentiment	His consenting to marry her is a proof, I will believe, that he is come to a right way of thinking.	“consent”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + sent (Latin sentire, "to feel"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
affording	To give forth	Their taking her home, and affording her their personal protection and countenance, is such a sacrifice to her advantage as years of gratitude cannot enough acknowledge.	“afford”: af- (Latin ad, "to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
humbled	Near the ground	She was disturbed by no fear for her felicity, nor humbled by any remembrance of her misconduct.	“humble”: hum (Latin humus, "earth" / homo, "human"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
sixpence	An English silver coin of the value of six pennies	Gardiner has done for them, because Wickham has not sixpence of his own.	“sixpence”: -ence (Latin -entia, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
pledged	(Law) The transfer of possession of personal property from a debtor to a creditor as security for a debt or engagement	We are persuaded that he has pledged himself to assist Mr.	“pledge”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
flutter	To vibrate or move quickly	My dear Jane, I am in such a flutter, that I am sure I can’t write; so I will dictate, and you write for me.	“flutter”: flu (Latin fluere, "to flow") + -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
discharged	To relieve of a charge, load, or burden	The world has been deceived in that respect; and I am happy to say, there will be some little money, even when all his debts are discharged, to settle on my niece, in addition to her own fortune.	“discharge”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
consulted	To seek the opinion or advice of another	She was then proceeding to all the particulars of calico, muslin, and cambric, and would shortly have dictated some very plentiful orders, had not Jane, though with some difficulty, persuaded her to wait, till her father was at leisure to be consulted.	“consult”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why is Mrs. Bennet's reaction ironic?
2. Where does plot appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them

Chapter quiz

1. Who writes with news?
   A. Darcy
   B. Wickham
   C. Mr. Gardiner
   D. Collins
2. What is agreed?
   A. Lydia joins a convent
   B. Wickham goes to prison
   C. Lydia and Wickham will marry
   D. Lydia returns unmarried
3. What does Mr. Bennet suspect?
   A. Wickham is rich
   B. Mr. Gardiner paid much money
   C. Darcy is dead
   D. Lydia lied
4. How does Mrs. Bennet react?
   A. Overjoyed
   B. Angry
   C. Silent
   D. Ashamed
5. Why was money needed?
   A. To pay Lydia's school
   B. To buy a house
   C. To persuade Wickham to marry
   D. To pay the doctor

6. In the line “Upon this information, they instantly passed through the hall once more, and ran across the lawn after their father, who was deliberately pursuing his way towards a small wood on one side of the paddock.”, what does “paddock” most nearly mean?
   A. To agree in opinion or sentiment
   B. A fine, thin, and white fabric made of flax or linen
   C. A toad or frog
   D. To give forth
7. In the line “She was then proceeding to all the particulars of calico, muslin, and cambric, and would shortly have dictated some very plentiful orders, had not Jane, though with some difficulty, persuaded her to wait, till her father was at leisure to be consulted.”, what does “cambric” most nearly mean?
   A. A fine, thin, and white fabric made of flax or linen
   B. To give forth
   C. To agree in opinion or sentiment
   D. A toad or frog

Answer key: 1. C (Mr. Gardiner); 2. C (Lydia and Wickham will marry); 3. B (Mr. Gardiner paid much money); 4. A (Overjoyed); 5. C (To persuade Wickham to marry); 6. C (A toad or frog); 7. A (A fine, thin, and white fabric made of flax or linen)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter XLIX,” how does Austen show a costly solution? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter XLIX, how does Austen develop the idea of a costly solution? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the plot in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter XLIX develops the idea of a costly solution. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of plot and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter XLIX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its plot shape the reader's understanding of a costly solution. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter XLIX suggests about a costly solution. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's plot and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses plot in Chapter XLIX to complicate the reader's understanding of a costly solution. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter XLIX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a costly solution responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter XLIX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a costly solution follows or bends those conventions, using the plot as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter XLIX and its treatment of a costly solution. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's plot and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter XLIX as evidence for a larger claim about a costly solution in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter XLIX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a costly solution. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. His consenting to marry her is a proof, I will believe, that he is come to a right way of thinking.

   As used in the text, what does the word “consenting” most nearly mean?

   A. To agree in opinion or sentiment

   B. To seek the opinion or advice of another

   C. To vibrate or move quickly

   D. To relieve of a charge, load, or burden

2. “That is very true,” said Elizabeth; “though it had not occurred to me before. His debts to be discharged, and something still to remain! Oh! it must be my uncle’s doings! Generous, good man, I am afraid he has distressed himself. A small sum could not do all this.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter XLIX”?

   A. Loss and leaving home

   B. A costly solution

   C. Rejection and the turn to revenge

   D. Injustice and the burden of silence

SAT key: 1. A (To agree in opinion or sentiment); 2. B (A costly solution)

Lesson 50: Chapter L

Focus: too late

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth realizes Darcy is the man who would have suited her best, just as she believes the family disgrace has ended her chances. Wickham is to join the regulars in the north.

Background: Austen often places realization at the point where hope seems lost.

Significance: Elizabeth's longing reflects her full change of heart.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Elizabeth recognize her love only now? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are precluding, eloping, regulars, subjoin, muslins. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "An union of a different tendency, and precluding the possibility of the other, was soon to be formed in their family." Webster's says: To put a barrier before. Now the word history: "preclude": pre- (Latin prae, "before"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "elope": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "regular": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Austen often places realization at the point where hope seems lost. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's longing reflects her full change of heart. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to too late.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> The good news quickly spread through the house; and with proportionate speed through the neighbourhood. It was borne in the latter with decent philosophy. To be sure it would have been more for the advantage of conversation, had Miss Lydia Bennet come upon the town; or, as the happiest alternative, been secluded from the world, in some distant farm house. But there was much to be talked of, in marrying her; and the good-natured wishes for her well-doing, which had proceeded before, from all the spiteful old ladies in Meryton, lost but little of their spirit in this change of circumstances, because with such a husband, her misery was considered certain.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter L," how does Austen show too late? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about too late, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes too late. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
precluding	To put a barrier before

		An union of a different tendency, and precluding the possibility of the other, was soon to be formed in their family.	"preclude": pre- (Latin prae, "before"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
eloping	To run away, or escape privately, from the place or station to which one is bound by duty	She was more alive to the disgrace, which the want of new clothes must reflect on her daughter's nuptials, than to any sense of shame at her eloping and living with Wickham, a fortnight before they took place.	"elope": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
regulars	Conformed to a rule	Wickham's intention to go into the regulars; and, among his former friends, there are still some who are able and willing to assist him in the army.	"regular": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
subjoin	To add after something else has been said or written	And will you give yourself the trouble of carrying similar assurances to his creditors in Meryton, of whom I shall subjoin a list, according to his information.	"subjoin": sub- (Latin sub, "under"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
muslins	A thin cotton, white, dyed, or printed	The marriage of a daughter, which had been the first object of her wishes since Jane was sixteen, was now on the point of accomplishment, and her thoughts and her words ran wholly on those attendants of elegant nuptials, fine muslins, new carriages, and servants.	"muslin": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
dutifully	Performing, or ready to perform, the duties required by one who has the right to claim submission, obedience, or…	She is well, and begs to be dutifully remembered to you and her mother.	"dutiful": -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
spurned	To drive back or away, as with the foot	What a triumph for him, as she often thought, could he know that the proposals which she had proudly spurned only four months ago, would now have been gladly and gratefully received!	"spurn": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
impassable	Incapable of being passed	Not, however, from any fear of disadvantage from it, individually to herself; for at any rate, there seemed a gulf impassable between them.	"impassable": im- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + pass (Latin passus, "step") + -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
secluded	To shut up apart from others	To be sure it would have been more for the advantage of conversation, had Miss Lydia Bennet come upon the town; or, as the happiest alternative, been secluded from the world, in some distant farm house.	"seclude": se- (Latin se-, "apart"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

scorned	Extreme and lofty contempt	Darcy would connect himself with a family, where to every other objection would now be added, an alliance and relationship of the nearest kind with the man whom he so justly scorned.	"scorn": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Elizabeth recognize her love only now?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. What does Elizabeth realize?
   A. She loves Wickham
   B. She will marry Collins
   C. Darcy suits her best
   D. She hates Darcy
2. Why does she think it is too late?
   A. She is poor
   B. The family disgrace
   C. She is ill
   D. Darcy is married
3. Where will Wickham be stationed?
   A. In Brighton
   B. In the north
   C. In London
   D. In India
4. How does Mrs. Bennet plan for Lydia?
   A. Wants her to work
   B. Wants her sent away
   C. Wants nothing
   D. Wants a grand house for her

5. What does Mr. Bennet refuse?
   A. To pay anything
   B. To speak to Jane
   C. To receive the couple at first
   D. To read letters
6. In the line “An union of a different tendency, and precluding the possibility of the other, was soon to be formed in their family.”, what does “precluding” most nearly mean?
   A. Conformed to a rule
   B. To run away, or escape privately, from the place or station to which one is bound by duty
   C. To add after something else has been said or written
   D. To put a barrier before
7. In the line “She was more alive to the disgrace, which the want of new clothes must reflect on her daughter’s nuptials, than to any sense of shame at her eloping and living with Wickham, a fortnight before they took place.”, what does “eloping” most nearly mean?
   A. Conformed to a rule
   B. To put a barrier before
   C. To add after something else has been said or written
   D. To run away, or escape privately, from the place or station to which one is bound by duty

Answer key: 1. C (Darcy suits her best); 2. B (The family disgrace); 3. B (In the north); 4. D (Wants a grand house for her); 5. C (To receive the couple at first); 6. D (To put a barrier before); 7. D (To run away, or escape privately, from the place or station to which one is bound by duty)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter L,” how does Austen show too late? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter L, how does Austen develop the idea of too late? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter L develops the idea of too late. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter L (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of too late. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter L suggests about too late. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter L to complicate the reader's understanding of too late. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter L within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of too late responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter L alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of too late follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter L and its treatment of too late. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter L as evidence for a larger claim about too late in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter L as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of too late. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Wickham's intention to go into the regulars; and, among his former friends, there are still some who are able and willing to assist him in the army.

   As used in the text, what does the word "regulars" most nearly mean?

   A. Incapable of being passed

   B. To shut up apart from others

   C. Conformed to a rule

   D. Extreme and lofty contempt

2. The good news quickly spread through the house; and with proportionate speed through the neighbourhood. It was borne in the latter with decent philosophy. To be sure it would have been more for the advantage of conversation, had Miss Lydia Bennet come upon the town; or, as the happiest alternative, been secluded from the world, in some distant farm house. But there was much to be talked of, in marrying her; and the good-natured wishes for her well-doing, which had proceeded before, from all the spiteful old ladies in Meryton, lost but little of their spirit in this change of circumstances, because with such a husband, her misery was considered certain.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter L"?

A. Too late

B. An unhappy marriage observed

C. A charming stranger

D. Visit to Hunsford

SAT key: 1. C (Conformed to a rule); 2. A (Too late)

Lesson 51: Chapter LI

Focus: shameless return

Teacher only · spoilers

Lydia and Wickham visit Longbourn, unashamed. Lydia boasts of being married and lets slip that Darcy attended her wedding.

Background: A married woman outranked her unmarried sisters socially, which Lydia flaunts.

Significance: The slip reveals Darcy's secret role.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does Lydia's boasting show about her values? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are stratagems, hereabouts, austerity, breakfasted, partners. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""Not that I shall though," she added to herself, as she finished the letter; "and my dear aunt, if you do not tell me in an honourable manner, I shall certainly be reduced to tricks and stratagems to find it out."" Webster's says: An artifice or trick in war for deceiving the enemy. Now the word history: "stratagem": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "hereabouts": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "austerity": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. A married woman outranked her unmarried sisters socially, which Lydia flaunts. Why does this chapter matter? The slip reveals Darcy's secret role. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to shameless return.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Irony, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Lydia's voice was heard in the vestibule; the door was thrown open, and she ran into the room. Her mother stepped forwards, embraced her, and welcomed her with rapture; gave her hand with an affectionate smile to Wickham, who followed his lady, and wished them both joy, with an alacrity which showed no doubt of their happiness.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Irony, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LI," how does Austen show shameless return? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about shameless return, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes shameless return. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
stratagems	An artifice or trick in war for deceiving the enemy	"Not that I shall though," she added to herself, as she finished the letter; "and my dear aunt, if you do not tell me in an honourable manner, I shall certainly be reduced to tricks and stratagems to find it out."	"stratagem": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

hereabouts	About this place	Elizabeth looked expressively at Lydia; but she, who never heard nor saw anything of which she chose to be insensible, gaily continued, "Oh! mamma, do the people hereabouts know I am married today?	"hereabouts": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
austerity	Sourness and harshness to the taste	His countenance rather gained in austerity; and he scarcely opened his lips.	"austerity": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
breakfasted	The first meal in the day, or that which is eaten at the first meal	"Well, and so we breakfasted at ten as usual; I thought it would never be over; for, by the by, you are to understand, that my uncle and aunt were horrid unpleasant all the time I was with them.	"breakfast": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
partners	One who has a part in anything with an other	We shall be at Newcastle all the winter, and I dare say there will be some balls, and I will take care to get good partners for them all."	"partner": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
fearless	Free from fear	Lydia was Lydia still; untamed, unabashed, wild, noisy, and fearless.	"fearless": -less (Old English -leas, "without"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
preaching	The act of delivering a religious discourse	And there was my aunt, all the time I was dressing, preaching and talking away just as if she was reading a sermon.	"preaching": pre- (Latin prae, "before") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
provoke	To call forth	The easy assurance of the young couple, indeed, was enough to provoke him.	"provoke": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + vok (Latin vocare, "to call"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
impudent	Bold, with contempt or disregard	Elizabeth had not before believed him quite equal to such assurance; but she sat down, resolving within herself, to draw no limits in future to the impudence of an impudent man.	"impudent": im- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
forwards	Toward a part or place before or in front	Her mother stepped forwards, embraced her, and welcomed her with rapture; gave her hand with an affectionate smile to Wickham, who followed his lady, and wished them both joy, with an alacrity which showed no doubt of their happiness.	"forwards": ard (Latin ardere, "to burn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. What does Lydia's boasting show about her values?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.

3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. How do Lydia and Wickham behave?
   A. Unashamed
   B. Silent
   C. Tearful
   D. Repentant
2. What does Lydia boast about?
   A. Her wealth
   B. Being married first
   C. Her travel
   D. Her education
3. Who does Lydia say attended her wedding?
   A. Collins
   B. Darcy
   C. Lady Catherine
   D. Bingley
4. What social privilege does Lydia flaunt?
   A. A carriage
   B. A title
   C. Owning land
   D. Precedence as a married woman
5. How does Elizabeth respond to the slip?
   A. She confronts Wickham
   B. She writes to Mrs. Gardiner
   C. She tells her mother
   D. She ignores it
6. In the line ""Not that I shall though," she added to herself, as she finished the letter; "and my dear aunt, if you do not tell me in an honourable manner, I shall certainly be reduced to tricks and stratagems to find it out."", what does "stratagems" most nearly mean?
   A. Sourness and harshness to the taste
   B. The first meal in the day, or that which is eaten at the first meal
   C. About this place

D. An artifice or trick in war for deceiving the enemy

7. In the line “Elizabeth looked expressively at Lydia; but she, who never heard nor saw anything of which she chose to be insensible, gaily continued, “Oh! mamma, do the people hereabouts know I am married today?”, what does “hereabouts” most nearly mean?

   A. Sourness and harshness to the taste

   B. About this place

   C. An artifice or trick in war for deceiving the enemy

   D. The first meal in the day, or that which is eaten at the first meal

Answer key: 1. A (Unashamed); 2. B (Being married first); 3. B (Darcy); 4. D (Precedence as a married woman); 5. B (She writes to Mrs. Gardiner); 6. D (An artifice or trick in war for deceiving the enemy); 7. B (About this place)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LI,” how does Austen show shameless return? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LI, how does Austen develop the idea of shameless return? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LI develops the idea of shameless return. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of shameless return. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LI suggests about shameless return. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter LI to complicate the reader's understanding of shameless return. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of shameless return responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of shameless return follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LI and its treatment of shameless return. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LI as evidence for a larger claim about shameless return in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of shameless return. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. His countenance rather gained in austerity; and he scarcely opened his lips.

   As used in the text, what does the word “austerity” most nearly mean?

   A. Toward a part or place before or in front

   B. Sourness and harshness to the taste

   C. Bold, with contempt or disregard

   D. To call forth

2. Lydia’s voice was heard in the vestibule; the door was thrown open, and she ran into the room. Her mother stepped forwards, embraced her, and welcomed her with rapture; gave her hand with an affectionate smile to Wickham, who followed his lady, and wished them both joy, with an alacrity which showed no doubt of their happiness.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LI”?

   A. Learning from the river

   B. Neighbors and gossip

   C. An imperious hostess

   D. Shameless return

SAT key: 1. B (Sourness and harshness to the taste); 2. D (Shameless return)

Lesson 52: Chapter LII

Focus: the hidden benefactor

Teacher only · spoilers

Mrs. Gardiner's letter reveals Darcy found the couple, paid Wickham's debts and settled the marriage, insisting on secrecy. Elizabeth speaks gently but pointedly to Wickham.

Background: Darcy's act protected the reputation of all the Bennet daughters.

Significance: Darcy's generosity proves his change and love.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why did Darcy want his role kept secret? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are expedite, amounting, compromised, presuming, postponed. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Since such were her feelings, it only remained, he thought, to secure and expedite a marriage, which, in his very first conversation with Wickham, he easily learnt, had never been his design.” Webster's says: Free of impediment. Now the word history: “expedite”: ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + ped (Latin pes/pedis, "foot"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “amount”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “compromise”: com- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Darcy's act protected the reputation of all the Bennet daughters. Why does this chapter matter? Darcy's generosity proves his change and love. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for plot.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see plot, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the hidden benefactor.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Plot, Characterization, Theme.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of plot. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "I did hear, too, that there was a time, when sermon-making was not so palatable to you as it seems to be at present; that you actually declared your resolution of never taking orders, and that the business had been compromised accordingly."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Plot, Characterization, Theme: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LII," how does Austen show the hidden benefactor? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the hidden benefactor, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how plot shapes the hidden benefactor. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
expedite	Free of impediment	Since such were her feelings, it only remained, he thought, to secure and expedite a marriage, which, in his very first conversation with Wickham, he easily learnt, had never been his design.	"expedite": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + ped (Latin pes/pedis, "foot"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
amounting	To go up	His debts are to be paid, amounting, I believe, to considerably more than a	"amount": no root in our classroom table; have students thousand pounds, another thousand in addition to her own settled upon her, and his commission purchased.	look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

compromised	A mutual agreement to refer matters in dispute to the decision of arbitrators	"I did hear, too, that there was a time, when sermon-making was not so palatable to you as it seems to be at present; that you actually declared your resolution of never taking orders, and that the business had been compromised accordingly."	"compromise": com- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
presuming	To assume or take beforehand	Pray forgive me, if I have been very presuming, or at least do not punish me so far, as to exclude me from P.	"presume": pre- (Latin prae, "before"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
postponed	To defer to a future or later time	He did not judge your father to be a person whom he could so properly consult as your uncle, and therefore readily postponed seeing him, till after the departure of the former.	"postpone": pos (Latin ponere, "to place"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
explicit	A word formerly used (as finis is now) at the conclusion of a book to indicate the end	But if you are really innocent and ignorant, I must be more explicit.	"explicit": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + plic (Latin plicare, "to fold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
unsettled	To move or loosen from a settled position or state	The vague and unsettled suspicions which uncertainty had produced of what Mr.	"unsettle": un- (Old English un-, "not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
confide	To put faith (in)	The motive professed was his conviction of its being owing to himself that Wickham's worthlessness had not been so well known, as to make it impossible for any young woman of character to love or confide in him.	"confide": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + fid (Latin fides, "faith"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
sermons	A discourse or address	"How should you have liked making sermons?"	"sermon": se- (Latin se-, "apart"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
foresee	To see beforehand	"I have just received your letter, and shall devote this whole morning to answering it, as I foresee that a little writing will not comprise what I have to tell you.	"foresee": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. Why did Darcy want his role kept secret?
2. Where does plot appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.

3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas

Chapter quiz

1. Who reveals Darcy's role?
   A. Jane
   B. Mrs. Gardiner
   C. Lydia
   D. Wickham
2. What did Darcy do?
   A. Sent soldiers
   B. Paid Collins
   C. Nothing
   D. Found them, paid debts, arranged the marriage
3. Why did Darcy act, he said?
   A. He loves Lydia
   B. He wanted praise
   C. He owed money
   D. He felt partly responsible
4. What did Darcy insist on?
   A. Elizabeth's hand
   B. Public thanks
   C. A reward
   D. Secrecy
5. How does Elizabeth treat Wickham afterward?
   A. Gently but pointedly
   B. She refuses to speak
   C. Flirtatiously
   D. With rage
6. In the line “Since such were her feelings, it only remained, he thought, to secure and expedite a marriage, which, in his very first conversation with Wickham, he easily learnt, had never been his design.”, what does “expedite” most nearly mean?
   A. To assume or take beforehand
   B. Free of impediment
   C. To go up

D. A mutual agreement to refer matters in dispute to the decision of arbitrators

7. In the line “His debts are to be paid, amounting, I believe, to considerably more than a thousand pounds, another thousand in addition to her own settled upon her, and his commission purchased.”, what does “amounting” most nearly mean?

A. To go up

B. A mutual agreement to refer matters in dispute to the decision of arbitrators

C. Free of impediment

D. To assume or take beforehand

Answer key: 1. B (Mrs. Gardiner); 2. D (Found them, paid debts, arranged the marriage); 3. D (He felt partly responsible); 4. D (Secrecy); 5. A (Gently but pointedly); 6. B (Free of impediment); 7. A (To go up)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LII,” how does Austen show the hidden benefactor? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LII, how does Austen develop the idea of the hidden benefactor? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the plot in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LII develops the idea of the hidden benefactor. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of plot and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its plot shape the reader's understanding of the hidden benefactor. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LII suggests about the hidden benefactor. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's plot and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses plot in Chapter LII to complicate the reader's understanding of the hidden benefactor. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the hidden benefactor responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the hidden benefactor follows or bends those conventions, using the plot as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LII and its treatment of the hidden benefactor. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's plot and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LII as evidence for a larger claim about the hidden benefactor in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the hidden benefactor. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. "I did hear, too, that there was a time, when sermon-making was not so palatable to you as it seems to be at present; that you actually declared your resolution of never taking orders, and that the business had been compromised accordingly."

   As used in the text, what does the word "compromised" most nearly mean?

   A. To see beforehand

   B. A mutual agreement to refer matters in dispute to the decision of arbitrators

   C. A discourse or address

   D. To put faith (in)

2. "I did hear, too, that there was a time, when sermon-making was not so palatable to you as it seems to be at present; that you actually declared your resolution of never taking orders, and that the business had been compromised accordingly."

   Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter LII"?

   A. Consequences of refusal

   B. The hidden benefactor

   C. Self-denial as a path

   D. Awakening to the world

SAT key: 1. B (A mutual agreement to refer matters in dispute to the decision of arbitrators); 2. B (The hidden benefactor)

Lesson 53: Chapter LIII

Focus: Bingley returns

Teacher only · spoilers

Bingley returns to Netherfield and calls at Longbourn with Darcy. Mrs. Bennet is rude to Darcy and gushing to Bingley. Darcy is silent; Elizabeth is anxious.

Background: Calls and returns of calls signal renewed courtship.

Significance: Mrs. Bennet's rudeness to Darcy is ironic since he saved her daughter.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why is Mrs. Bennet's rudeness ironic? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are fidgets, rekindled, intervene, witnessing, etiquette. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Bennet was quite in the fidgets.” Webster's says: To move uneasily one way and the other. Now the word history: “fidget”: fid (Latin fides, "faith"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “rekindle”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “intervene”: inter- (Latin inter, "between") + ven (Latin venire, "to come"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Calls and returns of calls signal renewed courtship. Why does this chapter matter? Mrs. Bennet's rudeness to Darcy is ironic since he saved her daughter. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to Bingley returns.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> But the spiritless condition which this event threw her into was shortly relieved, and her mind opened again to the agitation of hope by an article of news, which then began to be in circulation. The housekeeper at Netherfield had received orders to prepare for the arrival of her master, who was coming down in a day or two, to shoot there for several weeks. Mrs. Bennet was quite in the fidgets. She looked at Jane, and smiled, and shook her head by turns.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LIII," how does Austen show Bingley returns? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about Bingley returns, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes Bingley returns. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
fidgets	To move uneasily one way and the other	Bennet was quite in the fidgets.	"fidget": fid (Latin fides, "faith"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

rekindled	To kindle again	Yet the misery, for which years of happiness were to offer no compensation, received soon afterwards material relief, from observing how much the beauty of her sister rekindled the admiration of her former lover.	"rekindle": re- (Latin re-, "back, again"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
intervene	To come between, or to be between, persons or things	She counted the days that must intervene before their invitation could be sent; hopeless of seeing him before.	"intervene": inter- (Latin inter, "between") + ven (Latin venire, "to come"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
witnessing	Attestation of a fact or an event	Her astonishment at his coming—at his coming to Netherfield, to Longbourn, and voluntarily seeking her again, was almost equal to what she had known on first witnessing his altered behaviour in Derbyshire.	"witness": -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
etiquette	The forms required by good breeding, or prescribed by authority, to be observed in social or official life	" 'Tis an etiquette I despise," said he.	"etiquette": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
contrasted	To stand in opposition	Bennet with a degree of civility, which made her two daughters ashamed, especially when contrasted with the cold and ceremonious politeness of her curtsey and address to his friend.	"contrast": con- (Latin com-, "with, together"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
mindful	Bearing in mind	Bennet was mindful of her intended civility, and they were invited and engaged to dine at Longbourn in a few days' time.	"mindful": min (Latin minor, "smaller") + -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
sources	The act of rising	But Elizabeth had sources of uneasiness which could not be suspected by Jane, to whom she had never yet had courage to show Mrs.	"source": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
syllable	An elementary sound, or a combination of elementary sounds, uttered together, or with a single effort or impulse of…	It was only said, 'Lately, George Wickham, Esq. to Miss Lydia Bennet,' without there being a syllable said of her father, or the place where she lived, or anything.	"syllable": -able (Latin -abilis, "able to be"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
circulation

	The act of moving in a circle, or in a course which brings the moving body to the place where its motion began	But the spiritless condition which this event threw her into was shortly relieved, and her mind opened again to the agitation of hope by an article of news, which then began to be in circulation.	"circulation": -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. Why is Mrs. Bennet's rudeness ironic?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who returns to Netherfield?
   A. Bingley
   B. Fitzwilliam
   C. Wickham
   D. Collins
2. Who comes with Bingley to Longbourn?
   A. Caroline
   B. Darcy
   C. Mr. Hurst
   D. Georgiana
3. How does Mrs. Bennet treat Darcy?
   A. Silently
   B. Graciously
   C. Lovingly
   D. Rudely
4. How does Elizabeth feel?
   A. Relieved
   B. Bored
   C. Furious
   D. Anxious
5. What does Darcy do during the visit?
   A. Proposes
   B. Leaves early angrily

C. Plays piano

D. Speaks little

6. In the line “Bennet was quite in the fidgets.”, what does “fidgets” most nearly mean?

A. Attestation of a fact or an event

B. To come between, or to be between, persons or things

C. To kindle again

D. To move uneasily one way and the other

7. In the line “Yet the misery, for which years of happiness were to offer no compensation, received soon afterwards material relief, from observing how much the beauty of her sister rekindled the admiration of her former lover.”, what does “rekindled” most nearly mean?

A. Attestation of a fact or an event

B. To move uneasily one way and the other

C. To kindle again

D. To come between, or to be between, persons or things

Answer key: 1. A (Bingley); 2. B (Darcy); 3. D (Rudely); 4. D (Anxious); 5. D (Speaks little); 6. D (To move uneasily one way and the other); 7. C (To kindle again)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LIII,” how does Austen show Bingley returns? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LIII, how does Austen develop the idea of Bingley returns? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LIII develops the idea of Bingley returns. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and plot shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of Bingley returns. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LIII suggests about Bingley returns. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and plot), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter LIII to complicate the reader's understanding of Bingley returns. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of Bingley returns responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of Bingley returns follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LIII and its treatment of Bingley returns. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and plot, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LIII as evidence for a larger claim about Bingley returns in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of Bingley returns. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. She counted the days that must intervene before their invitation could be sent; hopeless of seeing him before.

   As used in the text, what does the word “intervene” most nearly mean?

   A. The act of moving in a circle, or in a course which brings the moving body to the place where its motion began

   B. The act of rising

   C. To come between, or to be between, persons or things

   D. An elementary sound, or a combination of elementary sounds, uttered together, or with a single effort or impulse of…

2. But the spiritless condition which this event threw her into was shortly relieved, and her mind opened again to the agitation of hope by an article of news, which then began to be in circulation. The housekeeper at Netherfield had received orders to prepare for the arrival of her master, who was coming down in a day or two, to shoot there for several weeks. Mrs. Bennet was quite in the fidgets. She looked at Jane, and smiled, and shook her head by turns.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LIII”?

   A. Obsession and the discovery of life

   B. The letter

C. Self-recognition

D. Bingley returns

SAT key: 1. C (To come between, or to be between, persons or things); 2. D (Bingley returns)

Lesson 54: Chapter LIV

Focus: renewed hope

Teacher only · spoilers

At dinner Bingley sits by Jane. Darcy is distant and seated far from Elizabeth. Jane claims she and Bingley are only friends; Elizabeth doubts it.

Background: Seating at dinner revealed intentions and status.

Significance: Restraint and miscommunication delay resolution.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why is Jane insisting she is indifferent? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are partridges, detaining, enabling, venison, roasted. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Darcy acknowledged, that the partridges were remarkably well done; and I suppose he has two or three French cooks at least.” Webster's says: Any one of numerous species of small gallinaceous birds of the genus Perdix and several related genera of the family.... Now the word history: “partridge”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. “detain”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + tain (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. “enable”: en- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Seating at dinner revealed intentions and status. Why does this chapter matter? Restraint and miscommunication delay resolution. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to renewed hope.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "Now," said she, "that this first meeting is over, I feel perfectly easy. I know my own strength, and I shall never be embarrassed again by his coming. I am glad he dines here on Tuesday. It will then be publicly seen, that on both sides, we meet only as common and indifferent acquaintance."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Plot, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LIV," how does Austen show renewed hope? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about renewed hope, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes renewed hope. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
partridges	Any one of numerous species of small gallinaceous birds of the genus Perdix and several related genera of the family…	Darcy acknowledged, that the partridges were remarkably well done; and I suppose he has two or three French cooks at least.	"partridge": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

detaining	To keep back or from	Bennet had designed to keep the two Netherfield gentlemen to supper; but their carriage was unluckily ordered before any of the others, and she had no opportunity of detaining them.	“detain”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away") + tain (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
enabling	To give strength or ability to	She was in hopes that the evening would afford some opportunity of bringing them together; that the whole of the visit would not pass away without enabling them to enter into something more of conversation, than the mere ceremonious salutation attending his entrance.	“enable”: en- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
venison	Beasts of the chase	The venison was roasted to a turn—and everybody said they never saw so fat a haunch.	“venison”: ven (Latin venire, "to come"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
roasted	To cook by exposure to radiant heat before a fire	The venison was roasted to a turn—and everybody said they never saw so fat a haunch.	“roast”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
enraged	To fill with rage	She followed him with her eyes, envied everyone to whom he spoke, had scarcely patience enough to help anybody to coffee; and then was enraged against herself for being so silly!	“enrage”: en- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
engaging	Tending to draw the attention or affections	I am perfectly satisfied from what his manners now are, that he never had any design of engaging my affection.	“engaging”: en- (French en-/ Latin in-, "into") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
publicly	With exposure to popular view or notice	It will then be publicly seen, that on both sides, we meet only as common and indifferent acquaintance.”	“publicly”: -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
hesitate	To stop or pause respecting decision or action	On entering the room, he seemed to hesitate; but Jane happened to look round, and happened to smile: it was decided.	“hesitate”: -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
revived	To return to life	Bennet, in the meanwhile, was giving way to all the happy schemes, which the good humour,	“revive”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + viv (Latin vivere, "to live"). Teacher note from and common politeness of Bingley, in half an hour's visit, had revived.	a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Why is Jane insisting she is indifferent?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who sits by Jane at dinner?
   A. Bingley
   B. Collins
   C. Darcy
   D. Wickham
2. Where is Darcy seated?
   A. Beside Elizabeth
   B. Far from Elizabeth
   C. He leaves
   D. Beside Jane
3. What does Jane claim?
   A. They are engaged
   B. She will leave
   C. She and Bingley are only friends
   D. She dislikes him
4. How does Elizabeth respond?
   A. She scolds her
   B. She laughs
   C. She doubts Jane
   D. She believes her
5. What delays the resolution?
   A. Money
   B. War
   C. Illness
   D. Restraint and miscommunication

6. In the line “Darcy acknowledged, that the partridges were remarkably well done; and I suppose he has two or three French cooks at least.”, what does “partridges” most nearly mean?
   A. To keep back or from
   B. To give strength or ability to
   C. Any one of numerous species of small gallinaceous birds of the genus Perdix and several related genera of the family…
   D. Beasts of the chase
7. In the line “Bennet had designed to keep the two Netherfield gentlemen to supper; but their carriage was unluckily ordered before any of the others, and she had no opportunity of detaining them.”, what does “detaining” most nearly mean?
   A. To keep back or from
   B. Any one of numerous species of small gallinaceous birds of the genus Perdix and several related genera of the family…
   C. Beasts of the chase
   D. To give strength or ability to Answer key: 1. A (Bingley); 2. B (Far from Elizabeth); 3. C (She and Bingley are only friends); 4. C (She doubts Jane); 5. D (Restraint and miscommunication); 6. C (Any one of numerous species of small gallinaceous birds of the genus Perdix and several related genera of the family…); 7. A (To keep back or from)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LIV,” how does Austen show renewed hope? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LIV, how does Austen develop the idea of renewed hope? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LIV develops the idea of renewed hope. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and plot shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LIV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of renewed hope. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LIV suggests about renewed hope. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and plot), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter LIV to complicate the reader's understanding of renewed hope. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LIV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of renewed hope responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LIV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of renewed hope follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LIV and its treatment of renewed hope. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and plot, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LIV as evidence for a larger claim about renewed hope in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LIV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of renewed hope. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. She was in hopes that the evening would afford some opportunity of bringing them together; that the whole of the visit would not pass away without enabling them to enter into something more of conversation, than the mere ceremonious salutation attending his entrance.

   As used in the text, what does the word “enabling” most nearly mean?

   A. To give strength or ability to

   B. To return to life

   C. To stop or pause respecting decision or action

   D. With exposure to popular view or notice

2. “Now,” said she, “that this first meeting is over, I feel perfectly easy. I know my own strength, and I shall never be embarrassed again by his coming. I am glad he dines here on Tuesday. It will then be publicly seen, that on both sides, we meet only as common and indifferent acquaintance.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LIV”?

   A. Renewed hope

   B. The first spark of obsession

C. The first proposal

D. Obsession and the discovery of life

SAT key: 1. A (To give strength or ability to); 2. A (Renewed hope)

Lesson 55: Chapter LV

Focus: happiness for Jane

Teacher only · spoilers

Bingley proposes to Jane, who is overjoyed. Mr. Bennet jokes that they are so easy-going every servant will cheat them. The family celebrates.

Background: Engagements needed the father's consent.

Significance: Jane's happiness rewards her patience and goodness.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Do Jane and Bingley deserve each other? Why? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are simpered, panegyric, premeditation, tempers, dispense. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Kitty simpered and smiled, and hoped her turn was coming soon.” Webster's says: To smile in a silly, affected, or conceited manner. Now the word history: “simper”: -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “panegyric”: -ic (Greek -ikos, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “premeditation”: pre- (Latin prae, "before") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Engagements needed the father's consent. Why does this chapter matter? Jane's happiness rewards her patience and goodness. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for plot.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see plot, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to happiness for Jane.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Plot, Characterization, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of plot. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> She then sat still five minutes longer; but unable to waste such a precious occasion, she suddenly got up, and saying to Kitty, "Come here, my love, I want to speak to you," took her out of the room. Jane instantly gave a look at Elizabeth, which spoke her distress at such premeditation, and her entreaty that she would not give into it.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Plot, Characterization, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LV," how does Austen show happiness for Jane? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about happiness for Jane, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how plot shapes happiness for Jane. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
simpered	To smile in a silly, affected, or conceited manner	Kitty simpered and smiled, and hoped her turn was coming soon.	"simper": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
panegyric	An oration or eulogy in praise of some	This naturally introduced a panegyric from Jane on his diffidence, and the person or achievement	little value he put on his own good qualities.	“panegyric”: -ic (Greek -ikos, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

premeditation	The act of meditating or contriving beforehand	Jane instantly gave a look at Elizabeth, which spoke her distress at such premeditation, and her entreaty that she would not give into it.	“premeditation”: pre- (Latin prae, "before") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
tempers	To mingle in due proportion	Your tempers are by no means unlike.	“temper”: temp (Latin tempus, "time") + -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
dispense	To deal out in portions	Her younger sisters soon began to make interest with her for objects of happiness which she might in future be able to dispense.	“dispense”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not") + pens (Latin pendere, "to weigh, pay"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
eccentric	Deviating or departing from the center, or from the line of a circle	There was nothing of presumption or folly in Bingley that could provoke his ridicule, or disgust him into silence; and he was more communicative, and less eccentric than the other had ever seen him.	“eccentric”: -ic (Greek -ikos, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
professed	Openly declared, avowed, acknowledged, or claimed	Bingley was everything that was charming, except the professed lover of her daughter.	“professed”: pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
embracing	To fasten on, as armor	Jane could have no reserves from Elizabeth, where confidence would give pleasure; and instantly embracing her, acknowledged, with the liveliest emotion, that she was the happiest creature in the world.	“embrace”: em- (French en-/Latin in-, "into"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
allusion	A figurative or symbolical reference	Not a word, however, passed his lips in allusion to it, till their visitor took his leave for the night; but as soon as he was gone, he turned to his daughter and said—	“allusion”: -sion (Latin -sio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
ingenious	Possessed of genius, or the faculty of invention	But on returning to the drawing-room, when her letter was finished, she saw, to her infinite surprise, there was reason to fear that her mother had been too ingenious for her.	“ingenious”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in") + gen (Latin/Greek genus, "birth, kind") + -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Teacher note from a root

			table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Do Jane and Bingley deserve each other? Why?
2. Where does plot appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who proposes to Jane?
   A. Darcy
   B. Collins
   C. Bingley
   D. Wickham
2. How does Jane react?
   A. Upset
   B. Overjoyed
   C. Unsure
   D. Angry
3. What does Mr. Bennet joke?
   A. Every servant will cheat them
   B. They will move abroad
   C. They will be poor
   D. They will fight
4. Who must consent?
   A. Mr. Bennet
   B. Lady Catherine
   C. Darcy
   D. Caroline
5. What does Jane's engagement reward?
   A. Scheming
   B. Wit
   C. Patience and goodness
   D. Wealth

6. In the line “Kitty simpered and smiled, and hoped her turn was coming soon.”, what does “simpered” most nearly mean?
   A. To smile in a silly, affected, or conceited manner
   B. The act of meditating or contriving beforehand
   C. An oration or eulogy in praise of some person or achievement
   D. To mingle in due proportion
7. In the line “This naturally introduced a panegyric from Jane on his diffidence, and the little value he put on his own good qualities.”, what does “panegyric” most nearly mean?
   A. To mingle in due proportion
   B. The act of meditating or contriving beforehand
   C. An oration or eulogy in praise of some person or achievement
   D. To smile in a silly, affected, or conceited manner

Answer key: 1. C (Bingley); 2. B (Overjoyed); 3. A (Every servant will cheat them); 4. A (Mr. Bennet); 5. C (Patience and goodness); 6. A (To smile in a silly, affected, or conceited manner); 7. C (An oration or eulogy in praise of some person or achievement)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LV,” how does Austen show happiness for Jane? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the plot you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LV, how does Austen develop the idea of happiness for Jane? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the plot in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LV develops the idea of happiness for Jane. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of plot and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LV (where it begins, turns and ends) and its plot shape the reader's understanding of happiness for Jane. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LV suggests about happiness for Jane. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's plot and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses plot in Chapter LV to complicate the reader's understanding of happiness for Jane. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LV within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of happiness for Jane responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LV alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of happiness for Jane follows or bends those conventions, using the plot as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LV and its treatment of happiness for Jane. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's plot and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LV as evidence for a larger claim about happiness for Jane in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LV as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of happiness for Jane. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Jane instantly gave a look at Elizabeth, which spoke her distress at such premeditation, and her entreaty that she would not give into it.

   As used in the text, what does the word “premeditation” most nearly mean?

   A. Possessed of genius, or the faculty of invention

   B. To fasten on, as armor

   C. A figurative or symbolical reference

   D. The act of meditating or contriving beforehand

2. She then sat still five minutes longer; but unable to waste such a precious occasion, she suddenly got up, and saying to Kitty, “Come here, my love, I want to speak to you,” took her out of the room. Jane instantly gave a look at Elizabeth, which spoke her distress at such premeditation, and her entreaty that she would not give into it.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LV”?

   A. Letters of judgment

   B. A privileged childhood and family love

   C. Happiness for Jane

   D. Learning from the river

SAT key: 1. D (The act of meditating or contriving beforehand); 2. C (Happiness for Jane)

Lesson 56: Chapter LVI

Focus: the great confrontation

Teacher only · spoilers

Lady Catherine arrives unexpectedly and demands that Elizabeth promise never to marry Darcy, claiming he is engaged to Anne. Elizabeth refuses to promise anything, defending her right to choose.

Background: Aristocratic marriages were often arranged to keep wealth in families.

Significance: Elizabeth's defiance is a high point of independence against rank.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What gives Elizabeth the courage to defy Lady Catherine? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are dissuaded, upstart, trifled, equipage, patched. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "You are to understand, Miss Bennet, that I came here with the determined resolution of carrying my purpose; nor will I be dissuaded from it." Webster's says: To advise or exhort against. Now the word history: "dissuade": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "upstart": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. "trifle": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Aristocratic marriages were often arranged to keep wealth in families. Why does this chapter matter? Elizabeth's defiance is a high point of independence against rank. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for conflict.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see conflict, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the great confrontation.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Conflict, Characterization, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of conflict. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Elizabeth obeyed, and running into her own room for her parasol, attended her noble guest downstairs. As they passed through the hall, Lady Catherine opened the doors into the dining-parlour and drawing-room, and pronouncing them, after a short survey, to be decent looking rooms, walked on.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Conflict, Characterization, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LVI," how does Austen show the great confrontation? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the conflict you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the great confrontation, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how conflict shapes the great confrontation. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
dissuaded	To advise or exhort against	You are to understand, Miss Bennet, that I came here with the determined resolution of carrying my purpose; nor will I be dissuaded from it.	"dissuade": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
upstart	To start or spring up suddenly		"upstart": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED)

		The upstart pretensions of a young woman without family, connections, or fortune.	and record the language of origin.
trifled	A thing of very little value or importance	"Miss Bennet," replied her ladyship, in an angry tone, "you ought to know that I am not to be trifled with.	"trifle": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
equipage	Furniture or outfit, whether useful or ornamental	It was too early in the morning for visitors, and besides, the equipage did not answer to that of any of their neighbours.	"equipage": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
patched	A piece of cloth, or other suitable material, sewed or otherwise fixed upon a garment to repair or strengthen it, esp	I know it all; that the young man's marrying her, was a patched-up business, at the expense of your father and uncle.	"patch": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
retains	To continue to hold	"It ought to be so; it must be so, while he retains the use of his reason.	"retain": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + tain (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
pronouncing	Pertaining to, or indicating, pronunciation	As they passed through the hall, Lady Catherine opened the doors into the dining-parlour and drawing-room, and pronouncing them, after a short survey, to be decent looking rooms, walked on.	"pronouncing": pro- (Latin pro, "forward, for") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
violated	To treat in a violent manner	No principle of either, would be violated by my marriage with Mr.	"violate": -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
decorum	Propriety of manner or conduct	"Because honour, decorum, prudence, nay, interest, forbid it.	"decorum": de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
parasol	A kind of small umbrella used by women as a protection from the sun	Elizabeth obeyed, and running into her own room for her parasol, attended her noble guest downstairs.	"parasol": sol (Latin solus, "alone" / sol, "sun"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. What gives Elizabeth the courage to defy Lady Catherine?

2. Where does conflict appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Conflict: look for the forces, people or desires pulling against each other
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. Who visits Longbourn unexpectedly?
   A. Georgiana
   B. Caroline
   C. Collins
   D. Lady Catherine
2. What does she demand?
   A. A visit to Rosings
   B. Money
   C. An apology
   D. A promise not to marry Darcy
3. Whom does she claim Darcy will marry?
   A. Anne de Bourgh
   B. Caroline
   C. Georgiana
   D. Charlotte
4. How does Elizabeth respond?
   A. Faints
   B. Cries
   C. Refuses to promise
   D. Agrees
5. What is ironic about this visit?
   A. It gives Darcy hope
   B. It is friendly
   C. It ends the romance
   D. It brings Collins
6. In the line “You are to understand, Miss Bennet, that I came here with the determined resolution of carrying my purpose; nor will I be dissuaded from it.”, what does “dissuaded” most nearly mean?
   A. Furniture or outfit, whether useful or ornamental
   B. To advise or exhort against
   C. A thing of very little value or importance

D. To start or spring up suddenly

7. In the line “The upstart pretensions of a young woman without family, connections, or fortune.”, what does “upstart” most nearly mean?

A. Furniture or outfit, whether useful or ornamental

B. To advise or exhort against

C. A thing of very little value or importance

D. To start or spring up suddenly

Answer key: 1. D (Lady Catherine); 2. D (A promise not to marry Darcy); 3. A (Anne de Bourgh); 4. C (Refuses to promise); 5. A (It gives Darcy hope); 6. B (To advise or exhort against); 7. D (To start or spring up suddenly)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LVI,” how does Austen show the great confrontation? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the conflict you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LVI, how does Austen develop the idea of the great confrontation? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the conflict in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LVI develops the idea of the great confrontation. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of conflict and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LVI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its conflict shape the reader's understanding of the great confrontation. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LVI suggests about the great confrontation. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's conflict and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses conflict in Chapter LVI to complicate the reader's understanding of the great confrontation. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LVI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the great confrontation responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LVI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the great confrontation follows or bends those conventions, using the conflict as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LVI and its treatment of the great confrontation. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's conflict and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LVI as evidence for a larger claim about the great confrontation in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LVI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the great confrontation. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. "Miss Bennet," replied her ladyship, in an angry tone, "you ought to know that I am not to be trifled with.

   As used in the text, what does the word "trifled" most nearly mean?

   A. Propriety of manner or conduct

   B. To treat in a violent manner

   C. A kind of small umbrella used by women as a protection from the sun

   D. A thing of very little value or importance

2. Elizabeth obeyed, and running into her own room for her parasol, attended her noble guest downstairs. As they passed through the hall, Lady Catherine opened the doors into the dining-parlour and drawing-room, and pronouncing them, after a short survey, to be decent looking rooms, walked on.

   Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter LVI"?

   A. Reading and identity

   B. Neighbors and gossip

   C. Injustice and the burden of silence

   D. The great confrontation

SAT key: 1. D (A thing of very little value or importance); 2. D (The great confrontation)

Lesson 57: Chapter LVII

Focus: a misguided warning

Teacher only · spoilers

Mr. Bennet reads Elizabeth a letter from Collins warning against an engagement with Darcy and laughs at the idea, not knowing her feelings. Elizabeth must hide her pain.

Background: News traveled quickly through gossip networks in the gentry.

Significance: Mr. Bennet's laughter is painful dramatic irony.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why can't Elizabeth tell her father the truth? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are cautioning, closure, abominate, advertised, blemish. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "" 'My motive for cautioning you is as follows." Webster's says: A careful attention to the probable effects of an act, in order that failure or harm may be avoided. Now the word history: "caution": -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "closure": -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "abominate": ab- (Latin ab, "away from") + min (Latin minor, "smaller") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. News traveled quickly through gossip networks in the gentry. Why does this chapter matter? Mr. Bennet's laughter is painful dramatic irony. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for irony.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see irony, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to a misguided warning.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of irony. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> If he had been wavering before as to what he should do, which had often seemed likely, the advice and entreaty of so near a relation might settle every doubt, and determine him at once to be as happy, as dignity unblemished could make him. In that case he would return no more. Lady Catherine might see him in her way through town; and his engagement to Bingley of coming again to Netherfield must give way.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Irony, Characterization, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LVII," how does Austen show a misguided warning? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about a misguided warning, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how irony shapes a misguided warning. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
cautioning	A careful attention to the probable effects of an act, in order that failure or harm may be avoided	" My motive for cautioning you is as follows.	"caution": -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

closure	The act of shutting	Yet in spite of all these temptations, let me warn my cousin Elizabeth, and yourself, of what evils you may incur, by a precipitate closure with this gentleman's proposals, which, of course, you will be inclined to take immediate advantage of.'	"closure": -ure (Latin -ura, "act, result"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
abominate	To turn from as ill-omened	Much as I abominate writing, I would not give up Mr.	"abominate": ab- (Latin ab, "away from") + min (Latin minor, "smaller") + -ate (Latin -atus, "to make, having"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
advertised	To give notice to	Collins and myself on this happy event, let me now add a short hint on the subject of another: of which we have been advertised by the same authority.	"advertise": ad- (Latin ad, "to, toward") + vert (Latin vertere, "to turn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
blemish	To mark with deformity	Darcy, who never looks at any woman but to see a blemish, and who probably never looked at you in his life!	"blemish": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
wavering	To play or move to and fro	If he had been wavering before as to what he should do, which had often seemed likely, the advice and entreaty of so near a relation might settle every doubt, and determine him at once to be as happy, as dignity unblemished could make him.	"waver": -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
diverted	To turn aside	"Oh!" cried Elizabeth, "I am excessively diverted.	"divert": vert (Latin vertere, "to turn"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
consequent	Following as a result, inference, or natural effect	It suddenly struck her that it might be from Lady Catherine; and she anticipated with dismay all the consequent explanations.	"consequent": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ent (Latin -ens, "one who, doing"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
pitched	A thick, black, lustrous, and sticky substance obtained by boiling down tar	Could he, or the Lucases, have pitched on any man within the circle of our acquaintance, whose name would have given the lie more effectually to what they related?	"pitch": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
declaring	To make clear	I must not, however, neglect the duties of my station, or refrain from declaring my amazement, at hearing that you received	"declare": de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		the young couple into your house as soon as they were married.

Discussion questions

1. Why can't Elizabeth tell her father the truth?
2. Where does irony appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with pride and self-knowledge?

Annotation focus

- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Who sends a warning letter?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Mr. Collins
   C. Wickham
   D. Lady Catherine
2. What is the warning about?
   A. Jane
   B. Lydia
   C. An engagement with Darcy
   D. The entail
3. How does Mr. Bennet react?
   A. He laughs
   B. He is sad
   C. He is angry
   D. He is silent
4. How does Elizabeth feel?
   A. Indifferent
   B. She must hide her pain
   C. Relieved
   D. Delighted
5. What device does Austen use?
   A. Dramatic irony
   B. Allegory
   C. Foreshadowing only
   D. Flashback

6. In the line “‘ ‘My motive for cautioning you is as follows.”, what does “cautioning” most nearly mean?
   A. The act of shutting
   B. To give notice to
   C. A careful attention to the probable effects of an act, in order that failure or harm may be avoided
   D. To turn from as ill-omened
7. In the line “Yet in spite of all these temptations, let me warn my cousin Elizabeth, and yourself, of what evils you may incur, by a precipitate closure with this gentleman’s proposals, which, of course, you will be inclined to take immediate advantage of.’”, what does “closure” most nearly mean?
   A. The act of shutting
   B. A careful attention to the probable effects of an act, in order that failure or harm may be avoided
   C. To give notice to
   D. To turn from as ill-omened

Answer key: 1. B (Mr. Collins); 2. C (An engagement with Darcy); 3. A (He laughs); 4. B (She must hide her pain); 5. A (Dramatic irony); 6. C (A careful attention to the probable effects of an act, in order that failure or harm may be avoided); 7. A (The act of shutting)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.6, W.7.1): In “Chapter LVII,” how does Austen show a misguided warning? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LVII, how does Austen develop the idea of a misguided warning? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.6, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LVII develops the idea of a misguided warning. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LVII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of a misguided warning. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.6, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LVII suggests about a misguided warning. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.1, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses irony in Chapter LVII to complicate the reader's understanding of a misguided warning. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.1, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LVII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of a misguided warning responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.1, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LVII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of a misguided warning follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.1, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LVII and its treatment of a misguided warning. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.1, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LVII as evidence for a larger claim about a misguided warning in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.1, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LVII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of a misguided warning. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Much as I abominate writing, I would not give up Mr.

   As used in the text, what does the word “abominate” most nearly mean?

   A. To turn from as ill-omened

   B. A thick, black, lustrous, and sticky substance obtained by boiling down tar

   C. Following as a result, inference, or natural effect

   D. To make clear

2. If he had been wavering before as to what he should do, which had often seemed likely, the advice and entreaty of so near a relation might settle every doubt, and determine him at once to be as happy, as dignity unblemished could make him. In that case he would return no more. Lady Catherine might see him in her way through town; and his engagement to Bingley of coming again to Netherfield must give way.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LVII”?

   A. Departure and relief

   B. Leaving Kent

   C. The entail and the officers

   D. A misguided warning

SAT key: 1. A (To turn from as ill-omened); 2. D (A misguided warning)

Lesson 58: Chapter LVIII

Focus: the second proposal

Teacher only · spoilers

Walking out together, Elizabeth thanks Darcy for what he did for Lydia. He says he thought only of her, and renews his proposal; she accepts. They admit how each has changed: he was proud and selfish, she prejudiced. Lady Catherine's visit, he says, gave him hope.

Background: Proposals during walks were among the few private moments a courting couple had.

Significance: Mutual change makes the resolution earned rather than merely romantic.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: How have both characters changed, and who changed more? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are retrospections, outstrip, unexampled, annexed, narrowly. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “Your retrospections must be so totally void of reproach, that the contentment arising from them, is not of philosophy, but what is much better, of ignorance.” Webster's says: The act, or the faculty, of looking back on things past. Now the word history: “retrospection”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “outstrip”: out- (Old English ut, "out"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “unexampled”: un- (Old English un-, "not") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Proposals during walks were among the few private moments a courting couple had. Why does this chapter matter? Mutual change makes the resolution earned rather than merely romantic. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to the second proposal.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Plot.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> They walked towards the Lucases, because Kitty wished to call upon Maria; and as Elizabeth saw no occasion for making it a general concern, when Kitty left them, she went boldly on with him alone. Now was the moment for her resolution to be executed, and, while her courage was high, she immediately said—

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Plot: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LVIII," how does Austen show the second proposal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about the second proposal, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes the second proposal. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
retrospections	The act, or the faculty, of looking back on things past	Your retrospections must be so totally void of reproach, that the contentment arising from them, is not of philosophy, but what is much better, of ignorance.	"retrospection": re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + -tion (Latin -tio, "the act of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
outstrip	To go faster than

		Bingley and Jane, however, soon allowed the others to outstrip them.	"outstrip": out- (Old English ut, "out"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
unexampled	Having no example or similar case	I can no longer help thanking you for your unexampled kindness to my poor sister.	"unexampled": un- (Old English un-, "not") + -ed (Old English -ed, past or "having"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
annexed	To join or attach	"We will not quarrel for the greater share of blame annexed to that evening," said Elizabeth.	"annex": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
narrowly	With little breadth	I had narrowly observed her during the two visits which I had lately made her here; and I was convinced of her affection."	"narrowly": -ly (Old English -lice, "in the manner of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
abusing	To put to a wrong use	After abusing you so abominably to your face, I could have no scruple in abusing you to all your relations."	"abuse": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
gratefully	Having a due sense of benefits received	Ever since I have known it, I have been most anxious to acknowledge to you how gratefully I feel it.	"grateful": -ful (Old English -full, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
watches	The leaves of Sarace	After walking several miles in a leisurely manner, and too busy to know anything about it, they found at last, on examining their watches, that it was time to be at home.	"watches": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
premises	A proposition antecedently supposed or proved	For though your accusations were ill-founded, formed on mistaken premises, my behaviour to you at the time had merited the severest reproof.	"premise": pre- (Latin prae, "before"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
executed	To follow out or through to the end	Now was the moment for her resolution to be executed, and, while her courage was high, she immediately said—	"execute": ex- (Latin ex, "out of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

Discussion questions

1. How have both characters changed, and who changed more?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with marriage and money?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them

- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them

Chapter quiz

1. What does Elizabeth thank Darcy for?
   A. Leaving
   B. Showing her Pemberley
   C. His letter
   D. Helping Lydia
2. What does Darcy do?
   A. Insults her family
   B. Renews his proposal
   C. Says goodbye forever
   D. Leaves for London
3. How does Elizabeth respond?
   A. Laughs
   B. Accepts
   C. Refuses
   D. Asks for time
4. What do they admit?
   A. He was proud, she was prejudiced
   B. They are poor
   C. They do not care
   D. They should never have met
5. What gave Darcy hope?
   A. Bingley's advice
   B. Lady Catherine's report of Elizabeth's refusal to promise
   C. A letter from Jane
   D. Lydia's slip
6. In the line “Your retrospections must be so totally void of reproach, that the contentment arising from them, is not of philosophy, but what is much better, of ignorance.”, what does “retrospections” most nearly mean?
   A. To go faster than
   B. Having no example or similar case
   C. The act, or the faculty, of looking back on things past
   D. To join or attach
7. In the line “Bingley and Jane, however, soon allowed the others to outstrip them.”, what does “outstrip” most nearly mean?
   A. To join or attach

B. The act, or the faculty, of looking back on things past

C. To go faster than

D. Having no example or similar case

Answer key: 1. D (Helping Lydia); 2. B (Renews his proposal); 3. B (Accepts); 4. A (He was proud, she was prejudiced); 5. B (Lady Catherine's report of Elizabeth's refusal to promise); 6. C (The act, or the faculty, of looking back on things past); 7. C (To go faster than)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In "Chapter LVIII," how does Austen show the second proposal? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LVIII, how does Austen develop the idea of the second proposal? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LVIII develops the idea of the second proposal. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LVIII (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of the second proposal. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LVIII suggests about the second proposal. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter LVIII to complicate the reader's understanding of the second proposal. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LVIII within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of the second proposal responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LVIII alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of the second proposal follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LVIII and its treatment of the second proposal.

State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LVIII as evidence for a larger claim about the second proposal in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LVIII as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of the second proposal. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. I can no longer help thanking you for your unexampled kindness to my poor sister.

   As used in the text, what does the word “unexampled” most nearly mean?

   A. A proposition antecedently supposed or proved

   B. The leaves of Sarace

   C. To follow out or through to the end

   D. Having no example or similar case

2. They walked towards the Lucases, because Kitty wished to call upon Maria; and as Elizabeth saw no occasion for making it a general concern, when Kitty left them, she went boldly on with him alone. Now was the moment for her resolution to be executed, and, while her courage was high, she immediately said—

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LVIII”?

   A. Confiding and consent

   B. Destroying the companion

   C. Reflections on love

   D. The second proposal

SAT key: 1. D (Having no example or similar case); 2. D (The second proposal)

Lesson 59: Chapter LIX

Focus: confiding and consent

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth tells Jane, who is astonished; Elizabeth jokes she began to love Darcy on seeing Pemberley's grounds. Darcy asks Mr. Bennet's consent; Mr. Bennet questions Elizabeth seriously, fearing she might marry without respect. She explains Darcy's goodness and his role in Lydia's marriage. Mrs. Bennet is dazzled by his wealth.

Background: A father's consent was legally and socially central.

Significance: Mr. Bennet finally acts like a caring father.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Why does Mr. Bennet worry about Elizabeth? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are overflows, epithet, doubting, economy, deserves. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: "Darcy was not of a disposition in which happiness overflows in mirth; and Elizabeth, agitated and confused, rather knew that she was happy, than felt herself to be so; for, besides the immediate embarrassment, there were other evils before her." Webster's says: To flow over. Now the word history: "overflow": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "epithet": the (Greek theos, "god"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "doubting": -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. A father's consent was legally and socially central. Why does this chapter matter? Mr. Bennet finally acts like a caring father. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to confiding and consent.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Plot, Irony.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> The evening passed quietly, unmarked by anything extraordinary. The acknowledged lovers talked and laughed, the unacknowledged were silent. Darcy was not of a disposition in which happiness overflows in mirth; and Elizabeth, agitated and confused, rather knew that she was happy, than felt herself to be so; for, besides the immediate embarrassment, there were other evils before her. She anticipated what would be felt in the family when her situation became known; she was aware that no one liked him but Jane; and even feared that with the others it was a dislike which not all his fortune and consequence might do away.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Plot, Irony: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LIX," how does Austen show confiding and consent? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about confiding and consent, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes confiding and consent. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
overflows	To flow over	Darcy was not of a disposition in which happiness overflows in mirth; and Elizabeth, agitated and confused, rather	"overflow": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it.

		knew that she was happy, than felt herself to be so; for, besides the immediate embarrassment, there were other evils before her.
epithet	An adjective expressing some quality, attribute, or relation, that is properly or specially appropriate to a person…	Elizabeth could hardly help laughing at so convenient a proposal; yet was really vexed that her mother should be always giving him such an epithet.	“epithet”: the (Greek theos, "god"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
doubting	That is uncertain	She could not determine how her mother would take it; sometimes doubting whether all his wealth and grandeur would be enough to overcome her abhorrence of the man.	“doubting”: -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
economy	The management of domestic affairs	It will save me a world of trouble and economy.	“economy”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
deserves	To earn by service	If this be the case, he deserves you.	“deserve”: de- (Latin de, "down from, away"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
esteemed	To set a value on	Were it for nothing but his love of you, I must always have esteemed him; but now, as Bingley's friend and your husband, there can be only Bingley and yourself more dear to me.	“esteem”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
wonders	That emotion which is excited by novelty, or the presentation to the sight or mind of something new, unusual,…	“This is an evening of wonders, indeed!	“wonder”: -er (Old English -ere, "one who"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
dreaded	To fear in a great degree	Everything was too recent for gaiety, but the evening passed tranquilly away; there was no longer anything material to be dreaded, and the comfort of ease and familiarity would come in time.	“dread”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
application	The act of applying or laying on, in a literal sense	Elizabeth reserved to herself the application for her mother's.	“application”: ap- (Latin ad, "to") + plic (Latin plicare, "to fold") + -ation (Latin -atio, "the act or result of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

motives	That which moves	Elizabeth told her the motives of her secrecy.	“motive”: mot (Latin movere, "to move") + -ive (Latin -ivus, "tending to"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. Why does Mr. Bennet worry about Elizabeth?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with class and social mobility?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Plot: look for key events and the causes linking them
- Irony: look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true

Chapter quiz

1. How does Elizabeth respond?
   A. Laughs
   B. Hesitates
   C. Refuses
   D. Accepts
2. How does Jane react?
   A. Astonished
   B. Tearful
   C. Angry
   D. Indifferent
3. Whom does Darcy ask for consent?
   A. Mr. Bennet
   B. Lady Catherine
   C. Jane
   D. Mrs. Bennet
4. What does Mr. Bennet fear?
   A. Darcy is poor
   B. She will marry without respect
   C. Lydia will object
   D. She will move abroad

5. How does Mrs. Bennet react?
   A. Sad
   B. Calm
   C. Dazzled by his wealth
   D. Angry
6. In the line “Darcy was not of a disposition in which happiness overflows in mirth; and Elizabeth, agitated and confused, rather knew that she was happy, than felt herself to be so; for, besides the immediate embarrassment, there were other evils before her.”, what does “overflows” most nearly mean?
   A. An adjective expressing some quality, attribute, or relation, that is properly or specially appropriate to a person…
   B. To flow over
   C. That is uncertain
   D. The management of domestic affairs
7. In the line “Elizabeth could hardly help laughing at so convenient a proposal; yet was really vexed that her mother should be always giving him such an epithet.”, what does “epithet” most nearly mean?
   A. An adjective expressing some quality, attribute, or relation, that is properly or specially appropriate to a person…
   B. That is uncertain
   C. The management of domestic affairs
   D. To flow over

Answer key: 1. D (Accepts); 2. A (Astonished); 3. A (Mr. Bennet); 4. B (She will marry without respect); 5. C (Dazzled by his wealth); 6. B (To flow over); 7. A (An adjective expressing some quality, attribute, or relation, that is properly or specially appropriate to a person…)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LIX,” how does Austen show confiding and consent? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LIX, how does Austen develop the idea of confiding and consent? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LIX develops the idea of confiding and consent. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and plot shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LIX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of confiding and consent. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LIX suggests about confiding and consent. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and plot), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter LIX to complicate the reader's understanding of confiding and consent. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LIX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of confiding and consent responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LIX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of confiding and consent follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LIX and its treatment of confiding and consent. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and plot, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LIX as evidence for a larger claim about confiding and consent in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LIX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of confiding and consent. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. She could not determine how her mother would take it; sometimes doubting whether all his wealth and grandeur would be enough to overcome her abhorrence of the man.

   As used in the text, what does the word “doubting” most nearly mean?

   A. To fear in a great degree

   B. The act of applying or laying on, in a literal sense

   C. That is uncertain

   D. That which moves

2. The evening passed quietly, unmarked by anything extraordinary. The acknowledged lovers talked and laughed, the unacknowledged were silent. Darcy was not of a disposition in which happiness overflows in mirth; and Elizabeth, agitated and confused, rather knew that she was happy, than felt herself to be so; for, besides the immediate embarrassment, there were other evils before her. She anticipated what would be felt in the family when her situation became known; she was aware that no one liked him but Jane; and even feared that with the others it was a dislike which not all his fortune and consequence might do away.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Chapter LIX"?

A. Confidence before danger

B. Confiding and consent

C. Leaving Kent

D. Wit as courtship

SAT key: 1. C (That is uncertain); 2. B (Confiding and consent)

Lesson 60: Chapter LX

Focus: reflections on love

Teacher only · spoilers

Elizabeth asks Darcy when he fell in love; he says he was in the middle before he knew he had begun. They discuss her impertinence. Darcy writes to Lady Catherine.

Background: Courtship conversation allowed reflection on character.

Significance: The answer emphasizes gradual, rational love over sudden passion.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: What does Darcy's answer suggest about love? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are evenness, overrated, parading, assiduously, obsequious. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: ""And if I had not a letter to write myself, I might sit by you, and admire the evenness of your writing, as another young lady once did." Webster's says: The state of being ven, level, or disturbed. Now the word history: "evenness": ven (Latin venire, "to come") + -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary. "overrate": over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it. "parade": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Courtship conversation allowed reflection on character. Why does this chapter matter? The answer emphasizes gradual, rational love over sudden passion. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to reflections on love.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> "You need not distress yourself. The moral will be perfectly fair. Lady Catherine's unjustifiable endeavours to separate us, were the means of removing all my doubts. I am not indebted for my present happiness to your eager desire of expressing your gratitude. I was not in a humour to wait for any opening of yours. My aunt's intelligence had given me hope, and I was determined at once to know everything."

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LX," how does Austen show reflections on love? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about reflections on love, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes reflections on love. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
evenness	The state of being ven, level, or disturbed	"And if I had not a letter to write myself, I might sit by you, and admire the evenness of your writing, as another young lady once did.	"evenness": ven (Latin venire, "to come") + -ness (Old English -ness, "state of"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

overrated	To rate or value too highly	Darcy had been overrated, Elizabeth had never yet answered Mrs.	“overrate”: over- (Old English ofer, "over"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
parading	The ground where a military display is held, or where troops are drilled	Darcy exposed to all the parading and obsequious civility of her husband.	“parade”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
assiduously	Constant in application or attention	Had you not been really amiable you would have hated me for it; but in spite of the pains you took to disguise yourself, your feelings were always noble and just; and in your heart, you thoroughly despised the persons who so assiduously courted you.	“assiduous”: as- (Latin ad, "to") + -ous (Latin -osus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
obsequious	Promptly obedient, or submissive, to the will of another	Darcy exposed to all the parading and obsequious civility of her husband.	“obsequious”: ob- (Latin ob, "against, toward") + -ious (Latin -iosus, "full of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
meetings	A coming together	At such a moment, the arrival of her friend was a sincere pleasure to Elizabeth, though in the course of their meetings she must sometimes think the pleasure dearly bought, when she saw Mr.	“meeting”: -ing (Old English -ing, action). Root not in our table: have students find it.
removing	To move away from the position occupied	Lady Catherine’s unjustifiable endeavours to separate us, were the means of removing all my doubts.	“remove”: re- (Latin re-, "back, again") + mov (Latin movere, "to move"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
announce	To give public notice, or first notice of	“Shall you ever have courage to announce to Lady Catherine, what is to befall her?”	“announce”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
disguise	To change the guise or appearance of	Had you not been really amiable you would have hated me for it; but in spite of the pains you took to disguise yourself, your feelings were always noble and just; and in your heart, you thoroughly despised the persons who so assiduously courted you.	“disguise”: dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
contents	Contained within limits	Lady Catherine had been rendered so exceedingly angry by the contents of her nephew’s letter that Charlotte, really rejoicing	“content”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + ten (Latin tenere, "to hold"). Teacher note in the match, was anxious to get away till the storm was blown over.	from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.

Discussion questions

1. What does Darcy's answer suggest about love?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with women's limited choices?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. What does Elizabeth ask Darcy?
   A. If he likes Jane
   B. How rich he is
   C. Where he lives
   D. When he fell in love
2. What is Darcy's answer?
   A. He was in the middle before he knew he had begun
   B. Never
   C. At first sight
   D. After the letter
3. What quality of hers does she joke about?
   A. Beauty
   B. Impertinence
   C. Wealth
   D. Shyness
4. Whom does Darcy write to?
   A. Collins
   B. Wickham
   C. Lady Catherine
   D. Bingley
5. What kind of love does the novel value?
   A. Gradual and rational
   B. Secret
   C. Sudden passion
   D. Arranged

6. In the line ““And if I had not a letter to write myself, I might sit by you, and admire the evenness of your writing, as another young lady once did.”, what does “evenness” most nearly mean?
   A. The ground where a military display is held, or where troops are drilled
   B. Constant in application or attention
   C. The state of being ven, level, or disturbed
   D. To rate or value too highly
7. In the line “Darcy had been overrated, Elizabeth had never yet answered Mrs.”, what does “overrated” most nearly mean?
   A. To rate or value too highly
   B. Constant in application or attention
   C. The ground where a military display is held, or where troops are drilled
   D. The state of being ven, level, or disturbed

Answer key: 1. D (When he fell in love); 2. A (He was in the middle before he knew he had begun); 3. B (Impertinence); 4. C (Lady Catherine); 5. A (Gradual and rational); 6. C (The state of being ven, level, or disturbed); 7. A (To rate or value too highly)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In “Chapter LX,” how does Austen show reflections on love? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LX, how does Austen develop the idea of reflections on love? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LX develops the idea of reflections on love. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LX (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of reflections on love. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LX suggests about reflections on love. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter LX to complicate the reader's understanding of reflections on love. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LX within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of reflections on love responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LX alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of reflections on love follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LX and its treatment of reflections on love. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LX as evidence for a larger claim about reflections on love in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LX as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of reflections on love. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Darcy exposed to all the parading and obsequious civility of her husband.

   As used in the text, what does the word “parading” most nearly mean?

   A. To give public notice, or first notice of

   B. To change the guise or appearance of

   C. Contained within limits

   D. The ground where a military display is held, or where troops are drilled

2. “You need not distress yourself. The moral will be perfectly fair. Lady Catherine’s unjustifiable endeavours to separate us, were the means of removing all my doubts. I am not indebted for my present happiness to your eager desire of expressing your gratitude. I was not in a humour to wait for any opening of yours. My aunt’s intelligence had given me hope, and I was determined at once to know everything.”

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LX”?

   A. Reflections on love

   B. The cycle of desire

   C. Neighbors and gossip

   D. The meeting of two ambitious men

SAT key: 1. D (The ground where a military display is held, or where troops are drilled); 2. A (Reflections on love)

Lesson 61: Chapter LXI

Focus: endings and futures

Teacher only · spoilers

The epilogue: Jane and Bingley move near Pemberley; Kitty improves under her sisters' care; Mary stays home; Lydia and Wickham remain reckless. Lady Catherine eventually reconciles, and the Gardiners stay dear to the Darcys.

Background: Novel epilogues often 'settle' each character's fate.

Significance: The ending rewards growth and quietly punishes folly, affirming the novel's moral design.

Lesson plan and lecture script (90 minutes)

0–8 min · Bell-ringer · You do (8 min)
Respond in writing to the bell-ringer, then pair-share.
Settle in and write for five minutes: Which ending surprised you most, and why? No wrong answers yet; we will test these ideas against the text. Two volunteers share, and I note key words on the board.

8–18 min · Vocabulary with etymology notes · I do (10 min)
Introduce 5 key words: pronounce, define from context, then the word's history.
Today's words are congratulatory, insipid, uniting, vicinity, cherished. For each one we read the sentence, guess from context and then check Webster's. Here is the first: “The congratulatory letter which Elizabeth received from Lydia on her marriage explained to her that, by his wife at least, if not by himself, such a hope was cherished.” Webster's says: Expressive of sympathetic joy. Now the word history: “congratulatory”: con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ory (Latin -orius, "relating to"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “insipid”: in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it. “unit”: no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin. Add each root to your etymology log.

18–28 min · Background and context · I do (10 min)
Present the historical and literary background.
Here is what the first readers of Pride and Prejudice would have known. Novel epilogues often 'settle' each character's fate. Why does this chapter matter? The ending rewards growth and quietly punishes folly, affirming the novel's moral design. Write down one question you want answered.

28–40 min · I do: modeled close reading · I do (12 min)
Teacher models a think-aloud on the anchor passage for characterization.
Watch me read this the way a careful reader does. I read a sentence, stop, and ask what the author is doing. When I see characterization, I underline it and write in the margin what effect it has. Here I notice the diction and the sentence rhythm, and I connect them to endings and futures.

40–55 min · We do: guided annotation · We do (15 min)
Read the anchor passage aloud together; annotate for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood.
Now we do it together. I read the first sentence and you track along. Mark every example of characterization. Turn to a partner: what does the author want us to notice? I will collect three ideas and we choose the strongest using evidence.

> Happy for all her maternal feelings was the day on which Mrs. Bennet got rid of her two most deserving daughters. With what delighted pride she afterwards visited Mrs. Bingley and talked of Mrs. Darcy may be guessed. I wish I could say, for the sake of her family, that the accomplishment of her earnest desire in the establishment of so many of her children, produced so happy an effect as to make her a sensible, amiable, well-informed woman for the rest of her life; though perhaps it was lucky for her husband, who might not have relished domestic felicity in so unusual a form, that she still was occasionally nervous and invariably silly.

55–70 min · You do: independent annotation · You do (15 min)
Students annotate a new passage independently in the reader, then begin the writing prompt at their rigor.
Your turn. Annotate the next page in the app for Characterization, Theme, Tone / mood: at least three marks with a margin note each. Then open your writing prompt; your level is already set. Middle-school version: In "Chapter LXI," how does Austen show endings and futures? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence. I will circulate and conference.

70–80 min · Discussion · We do (10 min)
Structured discussion (think-pair-share or a short Socratic circle).
Let's talk. Our question: How does this chapter connect to first impressions and prejudice? Every claim needs a page reference. Respond to the person before you by agreeing, extending or challenging with evidence.

80–87 min · Exit ticket / chapter quiz · You do (7 min)
Chapter quiz in the app, then a one-sentence exit ticket.
Take the chapter quiz in the app. Then, in one sentence, tell me what this chapter suggests about endings and futures, backed by one short quotation.

87–90 min · Closure · I do (3 min)
Summarize the lesson and preview the next reading.
Today we saw how characterization shapes endings and futures. Tonight, read the next chapter and add two words to your etymology log.

Total: 90 minutes.

Vocabulary with etymology notes

Word	Definition (Webster's 1913)	In context	Etymology note
congratulatory	Expressive of sympathetic joy	The congratulatory letter which Elizabeth received from Lydia on her marriage explained to her that, by his	"congratulatory": con- (Latin com-, "with, together") + -ory (Latin -orius, "relating to"). Root wife at least, if not by himself, such a hope was cherished.	not in our table: have students find it.

insipid	Wanting in the qualities which affect the organs of taste	She was not of so ungovernable a temper as Lydia, and, removed from the influence of Lydia's example, she became, by proper attention and management, less irritable, less ignorant, and less insipid.	"insipid": in- (Latin in-, "not" or "in"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
uniting	A single thing or person	Darcy, as well as Elizabeth, really loved them; and they were both ever sensible of the warmest gratitude towards the persons who, by bringing her into Derbyshire, had been the means of uniting them.	"unit": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
vicinity	The quality or state of being near, or not remote	So near a vicinity to her mother and Meryton relations was not desirable even to his easy temper, or her affectionate heart.	"vicinity": -ity (Latin -itas, "quality of"). Root not in our table: have students find it.
cherished	To treat with tenderness and affection	The congratulatory letter which Elizabeth received from Lydia on her marriage explained to her that, by his wife at least, if not by himself, such a hope was cherished.	"cherish": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.
spending	The act of expending	They were always moving from place to place in quest of a cheap situation, and always spending more than they ought.	"spending": pend (Latin pendere, "to hang, weigh") + -ing (Old English -ing, action). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
expenses	A spending or consuming	Such relief, however, as it was in her power to afford, by the practice of what might be called economy in her own private expenses, she frequently sent them.	"expense": ex- (Latin ex, "out of") + pens (Latin pendere, "to weigh, pay"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
dismissed	To send away	Their manner of living, even when the restoration of peace dismissed them to a home, was unsettled in the extreme.	"dismiss": dis- (Latin dis-, "apart, not") + miss (Latin mittere, "to send"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
visited	A light cape or short cloak of silk or lace worn by women in summer	With what delighted pride she afterwards visited Mrs.	"visite": vis (Latin videre, "to see"). Teacher note from a root table; verify in an etymological dictionary.
pursuit

	The act of following or going after	Mary was the only daughter who remained at home; and she was necessarily drawn from the pursuit of accomplishments by Mrs.	"pursuit": no root in our classroom table; have students look it up (Etymonline, OED) and record the language of origin.

Discussion questions

1. Which ending surprised you most, and why?
2. Where does characterization appear in this chapter, and what effect does it have? Point to one passage.
3. How does this chapter connect to the book's larger concern with first impressions and prejudice?

Annotation focus

- Characterization: look for what characters say, do and think, and how others react to them
- Theme: look for statements or moments that connect to the book's big ideas
- Tone / mood: look for word choices that reveal the narrator's attitude or the scene's feeling

Chapter quiz

1. Where do Jane and Bingley eventually live?
   A. Near Pemberley
   B. In London
   C. In Brighton
   D. At Longbourn
2. Who improves under her sisters' care?
   A. Mary
   B. Charlotte
   C. Kitty
   D. Lydia
3. How do Lydia and Wickham end up?
   A. Rich and wise
   B. In prison
   C. Still reckless
   D. Separated
4. Who remains dear to the Darcys?
   A. The Gardiners
   B. The Forsters
   C. The Collinses
   D. The Phillipses
5. What does the ending affirm?
   A. Pride wins
   B. Wealth rules
   C. Nothing changes

D. Growth is rewarded

6. In the line "The congratulatory letter which Elizabeth received from Lydia on her marriage explained to her that, by his wife at least, if not by himself, such a hope was cherished.", what does "congratulatory" most nearly mean?
   A. Expressive of sympathetic joy
   B. A single thing or person
   C. Wanting in the qualities which affect the organs of taste
   D. The quality or state of being near, or not remote
7. In the line "She was not of so ungovernable a temper as Lydia, and, removed from the influence of Lydia's example, she became, by proper attention and management, less irritable, less ignorant, and less insipid.", what does "insipid" most nearly mean?
   A. Wanting in the qualities which affect the organs of taste
   B. The quality or state of being near, or not remote
   C. A single thing or person
   D. Expressive of sympathetic joy

Answer key: 1. A (Near Pemberley); 2. C (Kitty); 3. C (Still reckless); 4. A (The Gardiners); 5. D (Growth is rewarded); 6. A (Expressive of sympathetic joy); 7. A (Wanting in the qualities which affect the organs of taste)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Middle School (250 words; RL.7.3, W.7.1): In "Chapter LXI," how does Austen show endings and futures? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the chapter, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the characterization you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In Chapter LXI, how does Austen develop the idea of endings and futures? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the characterization in the chapter helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how Chapter LXI develops the idea of endings and futures. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of characterization and theme shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Analyze how the structure of Chapter LXI (where it begins, turns and ends) and its characterization shape the reader's understanding of endings and futures. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Two readers disagree about what Chapter LXI suggests about endings and futures. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the chapter's characterization and theme), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP.RL.2, AP.W.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jane Austen uses characterization in Chapter LXI to complicate the reader's understanding of endings and futures. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; CF.RL.2, CF.W.1): Situate Chapter LXI within its historical and literary context and argue how the chapter's treatment of endings and futures responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; C2.RL.2, C2.W.1): Read Chapter LXI alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the chapter's handling of endings and futures follows or bends those conventions, using the characterization as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; C3.RL.2, C3.W.1): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Chapter LXI and its treatment of endings and futures. State your method, show what it reveals in the chapter's characterization and theme, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; C4.RL.2, C4.W.1): Develop a research argument that reads Chapter LXI as evidence for a larger claim about endings and futures in Pride and Prejudice. Connect close reading of the chapter to the whole novel, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; GR.RL.2, GR.W.1): Develop an original argument that reads Chapter LXI as a hinge in the novel's larger treatment of endings and futures. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Pride and Prejudice.

SAT-style questions

1. Darcy, as well as Elizabeth, really loved them; and they were both ever sensible of the warmest gratitude towards the persons who, by bringing her into Derbyshire, had been the means of uniting them.

   As used in the text, what does the word “uniting” most nearly mean?

   A. A single thing or person

   B. A light cape or short cloak of silk or lace worn by women in summer

   C. To send away

   D. The act of following or going after

2. Happy for all her maternal feelings was the day on which Mrs. Bennet got rid of her two most deserving daughters. With what delighted pride she afterwards visited Mrs. Bingley and talked of Mrs. Darcy may be guessed. I wish I could say, for the sake of her family, that the accomplishment of her earnest desire in the establishment of so many of her children, produced so happy an effect as to make her a sensible, amiable, well-informed woman for the rest of her life; though perhaps it was lucky for her husband, who might not have relished domestic felicity in so unusual a form, that she still was occasionally nervous and invariably silly.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Chapter LXI”?

   A. Endings and futures

   B. Trusted relatives

C. Parental failure

D. The accomplished woman

SAT key: 1. A (A single thing or person); 2. A (Endings and futures)

Whole-book test

Pride and Prejudice: whole-book test · 90 minutes

Part I: Multiple choice

1. Who has rented Netherfield Park?
   A. Mr. Darcy
   B. Mr. Bingley
   C. Mr. Wickham
   D. Mr. Collins
2. Whom does Bingley dance with twice?
   A. Lydia
   B. Elizabeth
   C. Charlotte
   D. Jane
3. Who is Charlotte Lucas?
   A. A servant
   B. Darcy's sister
   C. Elizabeth's practical friend
   D. Bingley's sister
4. What is an entail?
   A. A kind of carriage
   B. A dance
   C. A legal limit passing property to a set heir
   D. A marriage contract
5. Who visits Netherfield to check on Jane?
   A. Charlotte
   B. Mrs. Bennet with Lydia and Kitty
   C. Mr. Collins
   D. Mr. Bennet alone
6. What fault does Darcy admit?
   A. Greed
   B. Cowardice
   C. Laziness
   D. A resentful temper
7. Who will inherit Longbourn?
   A. Sir William

B. Mr. Bingley

C. Mr. Collins

D. Mr. Darcy

8. Why did Collins come to Longbourn?

A. To preach

B. To meet Darcy

C. To sell land

D. To choose a wife among the daughters

9. How does Jane respond to Wickham's story?

A. She believes Darcy

B. She believes Wickham

C. She is uninterested

D. She refuses to think ill of either man

10. How does Collins explain why he wants to marry?

A. He lists reasons, including Lady Catherine's advice

B. He says he loves her passionately

C. He is lonely

D. He needs money

11. Who distracts Collins after the refusal?

A. Jane

B. Lydia

C. Mary

D. Charlotte Lucas

12. Who announces the engagement?

A. Collins

B. Sir William Lucas

C. Mr. Bennet

D. Charlotte

13. Who are the Gardiners?

A. Collins's parents

B. Darcy's cousins

C. Mrs. Bennet's brother and his wife

D. Neighbors

14. Where does Elizabeth stop on the way to Hunsford?

A. Bath

B. London, with the Gardiners

C. Pemberley

D. Brighton

15. Who dominates the conversation at Rosings?
    A. Charlotte
    B. Collins
    C. Lady Catherine
    D. Elizabeth
16. Who draws Elizabeth into lively conversation?
    A. Colonel Fitzwilliam
    B. Sir William
    C. Mr. Collins
    D. Mr. Bingley
17. What does Fitzwilliam reveal?
    A. Lydia eloped
    B. Darcy is engaged
    C. Wickham is a thief
    D. Darcy saved a friend from an imprudent marriage
18. How does Darcy respond to the rejection?
    A. He writes Elizabeth a letter
    B. He proposes again
    C. He challenges Wickham
    D. He leaves without a word
19. Who leaves Rosings first?
    A. Charlotte
    B. Elizabeth
    C. Darcy and Fitzwilliam
    D. Lady Catherine
20. Who chatter about officers?
    A. Lydia and Kitty
    B. Mrs. Gardiner
    C. Mary and Jane
    D. Charlotte
21. Who invites Lydia to Brighton?
    A. Charlotte
    B. Mrs. Forster
    C. Mrs. Gardiner
    D. Lady Catherine
22. Who praises Darcy at Pemberley?
    A. Lady Catherine
    B. Wickham
    C. The housekeeper, Mrs. Reynolds

D. Bingley

23. Who visits Pemberley with Elizabeth?
    A. Jane
    B. Mrs. Gardiner
    C. Lydia
    D. Charlotte
24. Who goes to London to search?
    A. Darcy openly
    B. Mr. Bennet
    C. Collins
    D. Bingley
25. Who writes with news?
    A. Darcy
    B. Wickham
    C. Mr. Gardiner
    D. Collins
26. How do Lydia and Wickham behave?
    A. Unashamed
    B. Silent
    C. Tearful
    D. Repentant
27. Who returns to Netherfield?
    A. Bingley
    B. Fitzwilliam
    C. Wickham
    D. Collins
28. Who proposes to Jane?
    A. Darcy
    B. Collins
    C. Bingley
    D. Wickham
29. Who sends a warning letter?
    A. Charlotte
    B. Mr. Collins
    C. Wickham
    D. Lady Catherine
30. How does Elizabeth respond?
    A. Laughs
    B. Hesitates

C. Refuses

D. Accepts

31. Where do Jane and Bingley eventually live?

A. Near Pemberley

B. In London

C. In Brighton

D. At Longbourn

Part II: Short answer

1. Explain how first impressions and prejudice develops from the beginning of the novel to the end. Use two chapters.
2. Explain how pride and self-knowledge develops from the beginning of the novel to the end. Use two chapters.
3. Explain how marriage and money develops from the beginning of the novel to the end. Use two chapters.

Part III: Essay

Choose one of the novel's central concerns (first impressions and prejudice, pride and self-knowledge, marriage and money, class and social mobility, women's limited choices) and argue how the ending reframes it.

Answer key

Answer key: 1. B (Mr. Bingley); 2. D (Jane); 3. C (Elizabeth's practical friend); 4. C (A legal limit passing property to a set heir); 5. B (Mrs. Bennet with Lydia and Kitty); 6. D (A resentful temper); 7. C (Mr. Collins); 8. D (To choose a wife among the daughters); 9. D (She refuses to think ill of either man); 10. A (He lists reasons, including Lady Catherine's advice); 11. D (Charlotte Lucas); 12. B (Sir William Lucas); 13. C (Mrs. Bennet's brother and his wife); 14. B (London, with the Gardiners); 15. C (Lady Catherine); 16. A (Colonel Fitzwilliam); 17. D (Darcy saved a friend from an imprudent marriage); 18. A (He writes Elizabeth a letter); 19. C (Darcy and Fitzwilliam); 20. A (Lydia and Kitty); 21. B (Mrs. Forster); 22. C (The housekeeper, Mrs. Reynolds); 23. B (Mrs. Gardiner); 24. B (Mr. Bennet); 25. C (Mr. Gardiner); 26. A (Unashamed); 27. A (Bingley); 28. C (Bingley); 29. B (Mr. Collins); 30. D (Accepts); 31. A (Near Pemberley)

Essay assignments

Essay: First impressions and prejudice

Middle School (600 words; W.7.1, RL.7.2): Write a five-paragraph essay explaining what Pride and Prejudice teaches about first impressions and prejudice. Use at least three quotations from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Jane Austen develops first impressions and prejudice in Pride and Prejudice. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Jane Austen develops first impressions and prejudice across Pride and Prejudice. Trace the idea through at least three chapters and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of Pride and Prejudice (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of first impressions and prejudice. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of first impressions and prejudice in Pride and Prejudice. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (900 words; AP.W.1, AP.RL.2): In a well-organized essay, analyze how Jane Austen uses a recurring literary element to shape the meaning of first impressions and prejudice in Pride and Prejudice. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; CF.W.1, CF.RL.2): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places Pride and Prejudice's treatment of first impressions and prejudice in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; C2.W.1, C2.RL.2): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on first impressions and prejudice in Pride and Prejudice that reads the novel against its genre and period and engages two published critics.

College Junior (2800 words; C3.W.1, C3.RL.2): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on first impressions and prejudice in Pride and Prejudice. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits.

College Senior (4000 words; C4.W.1, C4.RL.2): Write a capstone research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about first impressions and prejudice in Pride and Prejudice, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; GR.W.1, GR.RL.2): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on first impressions and prejudice in Pride and Prejudice, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history.

Rubric: Claim · Evidence · Analysis · Organization · Conventions

Essay: Pride and self-knowledge

Middle School (600 words; W.7.1, RL.7.2): Write a five-paragraph essay explaining what Pride and Prejudice teaches about pride and self-knowledge. Use at least three quotations from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Jane Austen develops pride and self-knowledge in Pride and Prejudice. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Jane Austen develops pride and self-knowledge across Pride and Prejudice. Trace the idea through at least three chapters and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of Pride and Prejudice (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of pride and self-knowledge. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of pride and self-knowledge in Pride and Prejudice. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (900 words; AP.W.1, AP.RL.2): In a well-organized essay, analyze how Jane Austen uses a recurring literary element to shape the meaning of pride and self-knowledge in Pride and Prejudice. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; CF.W.1, CF.RL.2): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places Pride and Prejudice's treatment of pride and self-knowledge in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; C2.W.1, C2.RL.2): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on pride and self-knowledge in Pride and Prejudice that reads the novel against its genre and period and engages two published critics.

College Junior (2800 words; C3.W.1, C3.RL.2): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on pride and self-knowledge in Pride and Prejudice. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits.

College Senior (4000 words; C4.W.1, C4.RL.2): Write a capstone research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about pride and self-knowledge in Pride and Prejudice, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; GR.W.1, GR.RL.2): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on pride and self-knowledge in Pride and Prejudice, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history.

Rubric: Claim · Evidence · Analysis · Organization · Conventions

Essay: Marriage and money

Middle School (600 words; W.7.1, RL.7.2): Write a five-paragraph essay explaining what Pride and Prejudice teaches about marriage and money. Use at least three quotations from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Jane Austen develops marriage and money in Pride and Prejudice. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Jane Austen develops marriage and money across Pride and Prejudice. Trace the idea through at least three chapters and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of Pride and Prejudice (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of marriage and money. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of marriage and money in Pride and Prejudice. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (900 words; AP.W.1, AP.RL.2): In a well-organized essay, analyze how Jane Austen uses a recurring literary element to shape the meaning of marriage and money in Pride and Prejudice. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; CF.W.1, CF.RL.2): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places Pride and Prejudice's treatment of marriage and money in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; C2.W.1, C2.RL.2): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on marriage and money in Pride and Prejudice that reads the novel against its genre and period and engages two published critics.

College Junior (2800 words; C3.W.1, C3.RL.2): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on marriage and money in Pride and Prejudice. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits.

College Senior (4000 words; C4.W.1, C4.RL.2): Write a capstone research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about marriage and money in Pride and Prejudice, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; GR.W.1, GR.RL.2): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on marriage and money in Pride and Prejudice, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history.

Rubric: Claim · Evidence · Analysis · Organization · Conventions

Essay: Class and social mobility

Middle School (600 words; W.7.1, RL.7.2): Write a five-paragraph essay explaining what Pride and Prejudice teaches about class and social mobility. Use at least three quotations from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Jane Austen develops class and social mobility in Pride and Prejudice. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Jane Austen develops class and social mobility across Pride and Prejudice. Trace the idea through at least three chapters and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of Pride and Prejudice (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of class and social mobility. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of class and social mobility in Pride and Prejudice. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (900 words; AP.W.1, AP.RL.2): In a well-organized essay, analyze how Jane Austen uses a recurring literary element to shape the meaning of class and social mobility in Pride and Prejudice. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; CF.W.1, CF.RL.2): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places Pride and Prejudice's treatment of class and social mobility in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; C2.W.1, C2.RL.2): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on class and social mobility in Pride and Prejudice that reads the novel against its genre and period and engages two published critics.

College Junior (2800 words; C3.W.1, C3.RL.2): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on class and social mobility in Pride and Prejudice. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits.

College Senior (4000 words; C4.W.1, C4.RL.2): Write a capstone research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about class and social mobility in Pride and Prejudice, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; GR.W.1, GR.RL.2): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on class and social mobility in Pride and Prejudice, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history.

Rubric: Claim · Evidence · Analysis · Organization · Conventions

Essay: Women's limited choices

Middle School (600 words; W.7.1, RL.7.2): Write a five-paragraph essay explaining what Pride and Prejudice teaches about women's limited choices. Use at least three quotations from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Jane Austen develops women's limited choices in Pride and Prejudice. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Jane Austen develops women's limited choices across Pride and Prejudice. Trace the idea through at least three chapters and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of Pride and Prejudice (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of women's limited choices. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of women's limited choices in Pride and Prejudice. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (900 words; AP.W.1, AP.RL.2): In a well-organized essay, analyze how Jane Austen uses a recurring literary element to shape the meaning of women's limited choices in Pride and Prejudice. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; CF.W.1, CF.RL.2): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places Pride and Prejudice's treatment of women's limited choices in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; C2.W.1, C2.RL.2): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on women's limited choices in Pride and Prejudice that reads the novel against its genre and period and engages two published critics.

College Junior (2800 words; C3.W.1, C3.RL.2): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on women's limited choices in Pride and Prejudice. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits.

College Senior (4000 words; C4.W.1, C4.RL.2): Write a capstone research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about women's limited choices in Pride and Prejudice, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; GR.W.1, GR.RL.2): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on women's limited choices in Pride and Prejudice, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history.

Rubric: Claim · Evidence · Analysis · Organization · Conventions

Original Liber et Libri curriculum. Quotations from the public-domain text; definitions from Webster's Revised Unabridged Dictionary (1913). Etymology notes are generated from a classroom root table; verify before teaching. Included with every curriculum purchase and with Classroom Pro.