Essential questions

- What does The Black Cat suggest about guilt and perversity?
- What does The Black Cat suggest about alcohol and violence?
- What does The Black Cat suggest about confession?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Edgar Allan Poe was born in Boston on 19 January 1809 to touring actors; orphaned before he was three, he was raised in Richmond, Virginia, by the merchant John Allan, with whom he later quarrelled bitterly. He attended the University of Virginia, served in the U.S. Army and was dismissed from West Point, then lived by his pen as a poet, critic and magazine editor (the Southern Literary Messenger, Graham's Magazine) in Richmond, Philadelphia and New York. He married his young cousin Virginia Clemm, who died of tuberculosis in 1847. "The Raven" (1845) made him famous but never prosperous. He is credited with inventing the modern detective story ("The Murders in the Rue Morgue," 1841) and argued that a short story should create a single "unity of effect." He died in Baltimore on 7 October 1849; the cause of his death is unknown.

Historical and cultural context

The temperance movement was strong in 1840s America, and stories of men ruined by drink were a popular genre; Poe, who struggled with alcohol himself, gives the genre a psychological twist. The cat's name, Pluto, is that of the Roman god of the underworld, and black cats carried old folk associations with witchcraft.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in the United States Saturday Post (Philadelphia) on 19 August 1843.

Then: Popular with readers of sensational fiction.

Now: Read alongside "The Tell-Tale Heart" as a study of guilt, perversity and the unreliable narrator.

Overview (spoiler-free)

On the night before his execution, a narrator tells how he went from a gentle animal lover to a violent drunk, and how his cruelty toward his cat Pluto led to worse crimes.

Main themes

- perversity: the urge to do wrong "for the wrong's sake."
- guilt and self-betrayal: as in "Tell-Tale," he exposes himself.
- alcohol and violence: domestic abuse is presented without excuse.

Why it matters

Students examine how a narrator excuses himself, and how a story can show the progression of abuse.

Spoilers · teacher only

He hangs Pluto, a second cat with a gallows-shaped mark appears, and when he tries to kill it he murders his wife instead and walls her up in the cellar; the cat, walled in with her, screams and betrays him to the police.

First, meaning. I read "For the most wild, yet most homely narrative which I am about to pen, I neither expect nor solicit belief" slowly and put it in my own words: Before he tells his story, the narrator says it is both wild and homely, and he does not expect belief. Next, craft. I notice the paradox "most wild, yet most homely," strange and ordinary at once. The strongest word is "homely": it means plain, everyday, and it warns us that the horror will happen inside an ordinary house. Then, effect. Why does the narrator say he neither expects nor asks us to believe him? My answer: Poe opens with an unreliable narrator who protests too much; refusing to ask for belief makes us lean in and doubt him at the same time.

In an 1842 review of Hawthorne's Twice-Told Tales, Poe argued that a short tale should build one "single effect," and he published "The Black Cat" in the Saturday Evening Post in 1843. What effect do you expect Poe to aim for, and why would magazine readers want it? Answer: Accept answers such as: a single feeling like horror or dread built from the first sentence; short, gripping tales sold magazines like the Post and could be read in one sitting.

On the night before his execution, the narrator recounts how drink turned him from a gentle animal-lover into a violent man. He blinds and then hangs his cat Pluto; his house burns, leaving the image of a cat on a wall. A second, similar cat appears, with a white patch that slowly takes the shape of a gallows. Trying to kill it, he murders his wife with an axe and walls her body up in the cellar. When police search, he raps on the wall, and the cat's howl reveals the corpse; he had walled the cat in with her.

Background: Published in 1843 in the Saturday Evening Post, it appeared amid the temperance movement, which blamed alcohol for domestic violence.

Significance: Poe's idea of 'perverseness', the urge to do wrong because it is wrong, anticipates later psychology.

Published in 1843 in the Saturday Evening Post, it appeared amid the temperance movement, which blamed alcohol for domestic violence. Poe's idea of 'perverseness', the urge to do wrong because it is wrong, anticipates later psychology. Point of view: A condemned man narrates; he calls the events "homely," yet they are monstrous, and he blames forces outside himself. Foreshadowing: The wife's mention of witches who take the form of cats, and the gallows-shaped white patch, foreshadow his end. Irony: His boastful rapping on the wall that hides the corpse summons the cat's cry. Watch for the cat: conscience and retribution; Pluto, god of the dead.

First, meaning. I read “And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness” slowly and put it in my own words: He says his final downfall came from a spirit of perverseness, an urge to do wrong just because it is wrong. Next, craft. I notice he capitalizes Perverseness and calls it a "spirit," as if it were a force outside him. The strongest word is “irrevocable”: it means beyond undoing, so he admits the damage was permanent. Then, effect. Why does the narrator blame "the spirit of Perverseness" for what he did? My answer: Blaming a named spirit lets him avoid admitting that he chose to do it; Poe shows a narrator explaining his cruelty away, and we should trust him less because of it.

> And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness (The Black Cat, paragraph 9)

10. Reread: "This circumstance, however, only endeared it to my wife, who, as I have already said, possessed, in a high degree, that humanity of feeling which had once been my distinguishing trait, and the source of many of my…" What does "endeared" mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: endeared: made loved or liked.

Inferential / analytical

1. What does "The Black Cat" suggest about self-destruction and the urge to do wrong? State the inference and the line that supports it. [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Poe's idea of 'perverseness', the urge to do wrong because it is wrong, anticipates later psychology.
2. Find one example of point of view in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know.
3. How does the symbolism in this story shape what we understand about self-destruction and the urge to do wrong? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for objects, places or actions that stand for larger ideas.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. Useful evidence: "And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness" (The Black Cat, paragraph 9): His theory of motive. Theme link: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins "I married early, and was happy to find in my wife a disposition not uncongenial with my own.", why might Poe have chosen these particular words? Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.

5. What causes the main turn in “The Black Cat”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: On the night before his execution, the narrator recounts how drink turned him from a gentle animal-lover into a violent man. He blinds and then hangs his cat Pluto; his house burns, leaving the image of a cat on a wall. A second, similar cat appears, with a white patch that slowly takes the shape…
6. As the opening story, what does “The Black Cat” set up that the rest of The Black Cat will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. Useful evidence: “I had walled the monster up within the tomb” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32): The final line. Theme link: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. Useful evidence: “the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32): He blames the cat for his own crime. Theme link: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “Why do people sometimes do things they know are wrong?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does irony appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with guilt and perversity? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. Useful evidence: “And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness” (The Black Cat, paragraph 9): His theory of motive. On irony: His boastful rapping on the wall that hides the corpse summons the cat's cry. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Published in 1843 in the Saturday Evening Post, it appeared amid the temperance movement, which blamed alcohol for domestic violence. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. Useful evidence: “I had walled the monster up within the tomb” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32): The final line. Theme link: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “Poe's idea of 'perverseness', the urge to do wrong because it is wrong, anticipates later psychology.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.

Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. Useful evidence: “the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32): He blames the cat for his own crime. Theme link: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

2. Which character in this story acts most wisely, and which least? Judge them by a standard you name. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: An evaluation using an explicit criterion and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. Useful evidence: “And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness” (The Black Cat, paragraph 9): His theory of motive.     Key: procuring
11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage most clearly show? “the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32) Answer in two or three sentences, quoting one word or phrase.
    Sample answer: He blames the cat for his own crime. The evidence is “the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32). This develops perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse.
12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 1 reveal about the character or situation? “Yet, mad am I not—and very surely do I not dream.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 1) shows the situation turning on guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words “surely” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.
13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 12 reveal about the character or situation? “But at length reflection came to my aid.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 12) shows the situation turning on guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words “reflection” and “length” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.
14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 15 shapes its tone: “Upon my touching him, he immediately arose, purred loudly, rubbed against my hand, and appeared delighted with my notice.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “immediately” and “delighted” (paragraph 15) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 19 shapes its tone: “It followed my footsteps with a pertinacity which it would be difficult to make the reader comprehend.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “pertinacity” and “comprehend” (paragraph 19) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 9 to the story's treatment of guilt and perversity: “I had so much of my old heart left, as to be at first grieved by this evident dislike on the part of a creature which had once so loved me.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 9) develops guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “creature” and “evident” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Have we not a perpetual inclination, in the teeth of our best judgment, to violate that which is Law, merely because we…”

(paragraph 9), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and perversity as central.

17. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 11? “There was a rope about the _____'s neck.”

    A. particular
    B. disposition
    C. animal
    D. consequently

    Key: C (animal)

18. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What shape does the white patch on the second cat take?

    A. A heart
    B. A key
    C. A gallows

    Key: C (A gallows)

19. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “I avoided the creature; a certain sense of shame, and the remembrance of my former deed of cruelty, preventing me from physically _____ it.” Word bank: allayed, deliberated, abusing, endeared

    Key: abusing

20. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 2? “This _____ of character grew with my growth, and, in my manhood, I derived from it one of my principal sources of pleasure.”

    A. animal
    B. particular
    C. consequently
    D. peculiarity

    Key: D (peculiarity)

21. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Black Cat, paragraph 9: “And then came, as if to my final and _____ overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness”

    Key: irrevocable

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 2 shapes its tone: “There is something in the unselfish and self-sacrificing love of a brute, which goes directly to the heart of him who has had frequent occasion to test the paltry friendship and gossamer fidelity of mere Man.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “sacrificing” and “friendship” (paragraph 2) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

23. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 6 shapes its tone: “My pets, of course, were made to feel the change in my disposition.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “disposition” and “change” (paragraph 6) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 11 to the story's treatment of guilt and perversity: “Iam above the weakness of seeking to establish a sequence of cause and effect, between the disaster and the atrocity.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 11) develops guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “establish” and “weakness” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “This exception was found in a compartment wall, not very thick, which stood about the middle of the house, and against…” (paragraph 11), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and perversity as central.
25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 24 to the story's treatment of guilt and perversity: “Finally I hit upon what I considered a far better expedient than either of these.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 24) develops guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “considered” and “expedient” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Moreover, in one of the walls was a projection, caused by a false chimney, or fireplace, that had been filled up, and…” (paragraph 25), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and perversity as central.
26. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] What appears on the wall after the fire?
    A. A door
    B. The image of a gigantic cat with a rope around its neck
    C. His initials

    Key: B (The image of a gigantic cat with a rope around its neck)
27. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “Upon its head, with red extended mouth and solitary eye of fire, sat the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder, and whose informing voice had _____ me to the hangman.” Word bank: deliberated, consigned, allayed, endeared
    Key: consigned
28. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze the word choice in “the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.
    Sample answer: He blames the cat for his own crime. The evidence is “the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32). This develops perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words “hideous” and “seduced” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.
29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Synthesis: trace how perversity develops from the opening of “The Black Cat” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Near the start, “And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness” (The Black Cat, paragraph 9), which shows his theory of motive. Later, “the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32), which shows he blames the cat for his own crime. He names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse.
30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 22 to the story's treatment of guilt and perversity: “Evil thoughts became my sole intimates—the darkest and most evil of thoughts.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 22) develops guilt and perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “intimates” and “thoughts” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Uplifting an axe, and forgetting, in my wrath, the childish dread which had hitherto stayed my hand, I aimed a blow at…” (paragraph 23), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and perversity as central.

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] In the line “‘Gentlemen,’ I said at last, as the party ascended the steps, ‘I delight to have allayed your suspicions.”, what does “allayed” most nearly mean?

    A. an executioner who hangs the condemned person

    B. made loved or liked

    C. thought carefully about

    D. lessen the intensity of or calm

    Key: D (lessen the intensity of or calm)

32. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] What can you infer from this line? “I had walled the monster up within the tomb” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The final line. The evidence is “I had walled the monster up within the tomb” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32). This develops perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse.

33. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Which choice best states a central concern of “The Black Cat”?

    A. Reason defeating a hidden crime

    B. The loss of faith in human goodness

    C. Self-destruction and the urge to do wrong

    D. A story so convincing it becomes real

    Key: C (Self-destruction and the urge to do wrong)

34. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Which literary element does this describe in “The Black Cat”? The wife's mention of witches who take the form of cats, and the gallows-shaped white patch, foreshadow his end.

    A. Imagery

    B. Diction / vocabulary

    C. Alliteration

    D. Foreshadowing

    Key: D (Foreshadowing)

35. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] Complete the quotation from The Black Cat, paragraph 32: “the _____ beast whose craft had seduced me into murder”

    Key: hideous

36. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C4-LIT-1] In the line “Upon its head, with red extended mouth and solitary eye of fire, sat the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder, and whose informing voice had consigned me to the hangman.”, what does “hangman” most nearly mean?

    A. made loved or liked

D. an executioner who hangs the condemned person

Key: D (an executioner who hangs the condemned person)

37. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Program outcome: LeL-C4-LIT-1] Which literary element does this describe in “The Black Cat”? A condemned man narrates; he calls the events ‘homely,’ yet they are monstrous, and he blames forces outside himself.

    A. Hyperbole

    D. Alliteration

    Key: C (Point of view)

38. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-GR-LIT-1] In the line “Again, I deliberated about casting it in the well in the yard—about packing it in a box, as if merchandize, with the usual arrangements, and so getting a porter to take it from the house.”, what does “deliberated” most nearly mean?

    A. made loved or liked

    C. an executioner who hangs the condemned person

    Key: B (thought carefully about)

39. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-GR-LIT-1] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “I had walled the monster up within the tomb” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: The final line. The evidence is “I had walled the monster up within the tomb” (The Black Cat, paragraph 32). This develops perversity: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words “monster” and “within” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. He calls perverseness a force that came "as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow," as though it acted on him, yet he chooses every act, and his own boast brings the police to the wall where "I had walled the monster up within the tomb.".

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Black Cat,” how does Poe show self-destruction and the urge to do wrong? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Black Cat, how does Poe develop the idea of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the point of view in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Black Cat develops the idea of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of point of view and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Black Cat (where it begins, turns and ends) and its point of view shape the reader's understanding of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Black Cat suggests about self-destruction and the urge to do wrong. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's point of view and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Edgar Allan Poe uses point of view in The Black Cat to complicate the reader's understanding of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Black Cat within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Black Cat alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong follows or bends those conventions, using the point of view as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Black Cat and its treatment of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's point of view and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Black Cat as evidence for a larger claim about self-destruction and the urge to do wrong in The Black Cat. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Black Cat as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of self-destruction and the urge to do wrong. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Black Cat.

SAT-style questions

1. "Gentlemen," I said at last, as the party ascended the steps, "I delight to have allayed your suspicions.

   As used in the text, what does the word “allayed” most nearly mean?

   A. lessen the intensity of or calm

   B. easily irritated or annoyed

   D. impart knowledge of some fact, state or affairs, or event to

2. I married early, and was happy to find in my wife a disposition not uncongenial with my own. Observing my partiality for domestic pets, she lost no opportunity of procuring those of the most agreeable kind. We had birds, gold-fish, a fine dog, rabbits, a small monkey, and a cat.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “The Black Cat”?

   A. Science that poisons love

   B. Self-destruction and the urge to do wrong

   C. A girl choosing nature over a stranger's approval

   D. The loss of faith in human goodness

SAT key: 1. A (lessen the intensity of or calm); 2. B (Self-destruction and the urge to do wrong)

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

10. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 7: "I took from my waistcoat-pocket a pen-knife, opened it, grasped the poor beast by the throat, and _____ cut one of its eyes from the socket!" Word bank: intemperate, consequently, deliberately, appearance

    Key: deliberately

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 9 reveal about the character or situation? "Have we not a perpetual inclination, in the teeth of our best judgment, to violate that which is Law, merely because we understand it to be such?" Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 9) shows the situation turning on alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words "inclination" and "understand" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 5 reveal about the character or situation? "It was even with difficulty that I could prevent him from following me through the streets." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 5) shows the situation turning on confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words "difficulty" and "following" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “From my infancy I was noted for the docility and humanity of my disposition.”

    B. “There is something in the unselfish and self-sacrificing love of a brute, which goes directly to the heart of him who has had frequent…”

    C. “This peculiarity of character grew with my growth, and, in my manhood, I derived from it one of my principal sources of pleasure.”

    D. “I was especially fond of animals, and was indulged by my parents with a great variety of pets.”

    Key: A (“From my infancy I was noted for the docility and humanity of my disposition.”)

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 23 reveal about the character or situation? “Uplifting an axe, and forgetting, in my wrath, the childish dread which had hitherto stayed my hand, I aimed a blow at the animal which, of course, would have proved instantly fatal had it descended as I wished.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 23) shows the situation turning on alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words “forgetting” and “instantly” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 11 shapes its tone: “This exception was found in a compartment wall, not very thick, which stood about the middle of the house, and against which had rested the head of my bed.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “compartment” and “exception” (paragraph 11) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 8 shapes its tone: “When reason returned with the morning—when I had slept off the fumes of the night's debauch—I experienced a sentiment half of horror, half of remorse, for the crime of which I had been guilty” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “experienced” and “sentiment” (paragraph 8) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 11 to the story's treatment of confession: “I approached and saw, as if graven in bas relief upon the white surface, the figure of a gigantic cat.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 11) develops confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “approached” and “gigantic” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “But at length reflection came to my aid.” (paragraph 12), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating confession as central.

18. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 24 shapes its tone: “This hideous murder accomplished, I set myself forthwith, and with entire deliberation, to the task of concealing the body.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “accomplished” and “deliberation” (paragraph 24) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 1 shapes its tone: “Yet I will not attempt to expound them.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: The words “expound” and “attempt” (paragraph 1) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

20. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 26 to the story's treatment of confession: “Having procured mortar, sand, and hair, with every possible precaution, I prepared a plaster which could not be distinguished from the old, and with this I very carefully went over the new brick-work.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 26) develops confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “distinguished” and “precaution” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Yet, mad am I not—and very surely do I not dream.” (paragraph 1), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating confession as central.

21. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 17 reveal about the character or situation? “By slow degrees, these feelings of disgust and annoyance rose into the bitterness of hatred.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 17) shows the situation turning on confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The words “bitterness” and “annoyance” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 12 shapes its tone: “The falling of other walls had compressed the victim of my cruelty into the substance of the freshly-spread plaster; the lime of which, with the flames, and the ammonia from the carcass, had then accomplished the portraiture as I saw it.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “accomplished” and “portraiture” (paragraph 12) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 20 to the story's treatment of alcohol and violence: “This dread was not exactly a dread of physical evil—and yet I should be at a loss how otherwise to define it.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 20) develops alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “otherwise” and “physical” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “And now was I indeed wretched beyond the wretchedness of mere Humanity.” (paragraph 21), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating alcohol and violence as central.

24. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 25 shapes its tone: “Moreover, in one of the walls was a projection, caused by a false chimney, or fireplace, that had been filled up, and made to resemble the rest of the cellar.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “projection” and “fireplace” (paragraph 25) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 10 shapes its tone: “On the night of the day on which this cruel deed was done, I was aroused from sleep by the cry of fire.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “aroused” (paragraph 10) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 2 to the story's treatment of confession: “I was especially fond of animals, and was indulged by my parents with a great variety of pets.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 2) develops confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “especially” and “indulged” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “There is something in the unselfish and self-sacrificing love of a brute, which goes directly to the heart of him who…” (paragraph 2), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating confession as central.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 14 to the story's treatment of confession: “I had been looking steadily at the top of this hogshead for some minutes, and what now caused me surprise was the fact that I had not sooner perceived the object thereupon.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 14) develops confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “thereupon” and “perceived” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Upon my touching him, he immediately arose, purred loudly, rubbed against my hand, and appeared delighted with my…” (paragraph 15), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating confession as central.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 7 to the story's treatment of alcohol and violence: “I seized him; when, in his fright at my violence, he inflicted a slight wound upon my hand with his teeth.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 7) develops alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “inflicted” and “violence” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “When reason returned with the morning—when I had slept off the fumes of the night's debauch—I experienced a sentiment…” (paragraph 8), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating alcohol and violence as central.

29. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 21 shapes its tone: “And now was I indeed wretched beyond the wretchedness of mere Humanity.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “wretchedness” and “wretched” (paragraph 21) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to confession: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 16 to the story's treatment of alcohol and violence: “I permitted it to do so; occasionally stooping and patting it as I proceeded.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 16) develops alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “occasionally” and “permitted” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “By slow degrees, these feelings of disgust and annoyance rose into the bitterness of hatred.” (paragraph 17), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating alcohol and violence as central.

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 4 to the story's treatment of alcohol and violence: “In speaking of his intelligence, my wife, who at heart was not a little tinctured with superstition, made frequent allusion to the ancient popular notion, which regarded all black cats as witches in disguise.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 4) develops alcohol and violence: he names "the spirit of PERVERSENESS" as a basic human impulse. Its words “intelligence” and “superstition” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “It was even with difficulty that I could prevent him from following me through the streets.” (paragraph 5), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating alcohol and violence as central.

32. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “This circumstance, however, only endeared it to my wife, who, as I have already said, possessed, in a high degree, that humanity of feeling which had once been my distinguishing trait, and the source of many of my…”, what does “endeared” most nearly mean?

    A. thought carefully about

    B. an executioner who hangs the condemned person

    C. lessen the intensity of or calm

    D. made loved or liked

    Key: D (made loved or liked)

Final paper

The Black Cat: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Edgar Allan Poe develops guilt and perversity across The Black Cat. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Black Cat and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to alcohol and violence.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Black Cat. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Black Cat finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of confession. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words

Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.
Organization	15

		Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: The narrator blames outside forces, but the story shows his crimes come from his own choices. The text makes this visible when it says “And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of Perverseness” (The Black Cat, paragraph 9). He calls perverseness a force that came "as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow," as though it acted on him, yet he chooses every act, and his own boast brings the police to the wall where "I had walled the monster up within the tomb.". A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.

Essay assignments
