Grades: Grades 9–12 (scales to graduate via rigor levels). Short story: read whole in one 90-minute lesson (assign longer stories as pre-reading). The scaffolded-support track works from the full text with scaffolds. Weeks: 1. Class days: 2 × 90 minutes (1 chapter lessons plus seminar, test and essay days).

Essential questions

- What does The Pit and the Pendulum suggest about terror and endurance?
- What does The Pit and the Pendulum suggest about the mind under torture?
- What does The Pit and the Pendulum suggest about rescue and hope?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Edgar Allan Poe was born in Boston on 19 January 1809 to touring actors; orphaned before he was three, he was raised in Richmond, Virginia, by the merchant John Allan, with whom he later quarrelled bitterly. He attended the University of Virginia, served in the U.S. Army and was dismissed from West Point, then lived by his pen as a poet, critic and magazine editor (the Southern Literary Messenger, Graham's Magazine) in Richmond, Philadelphia and New York. He married his young cousin Virginia Clemm, who died of tuberculosis in 1847. "The Raven" (1845) made him famous but never prosperous. He is credited with inventing the modern detective story ("The Murders in the Rue Morgue," 1841) and argued that a short story should create a single "unity of effect." He died in Baltimore on 7 October 1849; the cause of his death is unknown.

Historical and cultural context

The story is set in Toledo, Spain, during the Spanish Inquisition, which tried heretics from 1478 until its abolition in 1834. Poe drew on popular (often exaggerated) Protestant accounts of Inquisition tortures. The ending refers to the French General Lasalle entering Toledo during the Napoleonic wars (1808).

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in The Gift: A Christmas and New Year's Present for 1843 (an annual issued in late 1842).

Then: Admired for its sustained suspense.

Now: A model of suspense built through sensory detail and pacing; often adapted for film.

Overview (spoiler-free)

A prisoner condemned by the Inquisition wakes in total darkness and must work out the shape of his cell and the traps designed to kill him.

Main themes

- fear and suspense: the story is an experiment in terror.
- reason against terror: he survives by observation and thought.
- cruelty of institutions: the torturers are never seen.

Why it matters

It teaches how writers control pacing, and it raises questions about torture and the abuse of power.

Spoilers · teacher only

He avoids a pit, escapes a slowly descending blade by letting rats chew his bonds, and as heated walls force him toward the pit he is rescued by the French army.

Model a close reading of one passage using the written think-aloud below.
First, meaning. I read "sick unto death with that long agony" slowly and put it in my own words: The narrator says he was sick to death with long agony. Next, craft. I notice the old-fashioned "unto," which sounds biblical and grave. The strongest word is "agony": it is extreme pain of body and mind, the subject of the whole story. Then, effect. What does this phrase tell us about the narrator's state? My answer: Poe starts from exhaustion and suffering; the story will put us inside the mind of someone pushed to the edge of what a person can endure.

This story is set during the Spanish Inquisition, centuries before Poe wrote it. Why might Poe choose such a distant historical setting? Lesson 2: The Pit and the Pendulum

Focus: reason struggling against terror

Objective: Students will analyze how imagery develops in “The Pit and the Pendulum” by writing a claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph that cites at least 2 quotations from the section, and will score at least 80% on the section quiz.

Standards: Cambridge International: see the unit standards

Content note (torture, rats, alcohol or drugs (mentioned), suicide (mentioned in lesson text)): Sensitive content: Torture; rats. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. This section mentions drinking or a drug (“…ght. It must have been drugged—for scarcely had I drunk, before I became irresistibly drowsy. A…”). Treat it as period custom or plot detail; name it plainly and don't glamorize it. This lesson mentions suicide or self-harm. Discuss the character's despair and what the text does with it; do not dwell on methods. Before the lesson, remind students that support is available and how to reach the counselor. Check in privately with any student who seems affected and follow your school's referral protocol.

Teacher only · spoilers

Condemned by the Spanish Inquisition in Toledo, the narrator wakes in a pitch-dark cell. He narrowly avoids falling into a central pit, then wakes strapped beneath a razor-edged pendulum descending toward his heart. He smears food on his bonds so rats chew them free. The walls then glow red-hot and close in, forcing him toward the pit, until a French army takes Toledo and General Lasalle catches his arm.

Background: The Spanish Inquisition was ended by Napoleon's forces in 1808, and French troops did occupy Toledo. Poe's details are invented gothic horror, not history.

Significance: It is a sustained study of suspense built through sensory detail and the narrator's attempts to reason.

The Spanish Inquisition was ended by Napoleon's forces in 1808, and French troops did occupy Toledo. Poe's details are invented gothic horror, not history. It is a sustained study of suspense built through sensory detail and the narrator's attempts to reason. Pacing: Long sentences slow time as the blade descends ("Down—steadily down it crept"); the countdown makes the reader count too. Model the close reading of the anchor quotation using the written think-aloud below.
First, meaning. I read "Down—steadily down it crept" slowly and put it in my own words: The narrator watches the blade come lower and lower, steadily. Next, craft. I notice the dash and the repetition of "down," which make the sentence itself drop in slow steps. The strongest word is "crept": creeping is slow and sly, and it makes the blade seem alive and patient. Then, effect. How does Poe make the pendulum's movement feel slow? My answer: Poe makes the pendulum's movement feel slow by repeating "down" and stretching the sentence, so we feel every inch; the slowness is the torture, and the suspense comes from waiting, not speed.

> Down—steadily down it crept (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31)

Annotate the story for pacing, imagery (three marks with a margin note each), then write one claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph: what does this story suggest about reason struggling against terror? Then start your writing prompt at your assigned level (HS Sophomore: Analyze how The Pit and the Pendulum develops the idea of reason struggling against terror. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of imagery and structure shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. When the text says "Down—steadily down it crept" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31), it shows this directly. The repeated "Down—steadily down it crept" makes the reader endure each swing, so the escape feels earned even though the final rescue, "An outstretched arm caught my own," comes from outside.

Teacher analysis (spoilers)

Literary elements

- Pacing: Long sentences slow time as the blade descends ("Down—steadily down it crept"); the countdown makes the reader count too.
- Imagery: Darkness, smell, touch and sound dominate before sight returns.
- Plot: Each escape leads to a worse trap, building to the walls' squeeze.

Themes and how they develop

- reason against terror: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair.

Symbols and motifs

- the pendulum: time as an executioner.

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "Down—steadily down it crept" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31) Pacing of the descent.
- "The Inquisition was in the hands of its enemies" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44) The last line: history, not reason, delivers him.
- "An outstretched arm caught my own as I fell, fainting, into the abyss" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44) The rescue.

Model claim-evidence-reasoning

> Claim: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade.
> Evidence: "Down—steadily down it crept" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31)
> Reasoning: The repeated "Down—steadily down it crept" makes the reader endure each swing, so the escape feels earned even though the final rescue, "An outstretched arm caught my own," comes from outside.

7. Which characters appear or are mentioned in “The Pit and the Pendulum”? Name two and one thing each says or does. [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: Names and actions taken from the story; check against the teacher summary.
8. Where and when does “The Pit and the Pendulum” take place? Point to the line that tells you. [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: A place/time detail quoted from the story.
9. Reread: “I might as well have attempted to arrest an avalanche!” What does “avalanche” mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: avalanche: a slide of large masses of snow and ice and mud down a mountain.
10. Reread: “The entire surface of this metallic enclosure was rudely daubed in all the hideous and repulsive devices to which the charnel superstition of the monks has given rise.” What does “charnel” mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: charnel: full of corpses, like a burial vault.

Inferential / analytical

1. What does “The Pit and the Pendulum” suggest about reason struggling against terror? State the inference and the line that supports it. [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: It is a sustained study of suspense built through sensory detail and the narrator's attempts to reason.
2. Find one example of imagery in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create.
3. How does the structure in this story shape what we understand about reason struggling against terror? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for how the story is ordered and why it begins and ends where it does.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. Useful evidence: “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31): Pacing of the descent. Theme link: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins “And now, as I still continued to step cautiously onward, there came thronging upon my recollection a thousand vague rumors of the horrors of Toledo.”, why might Poe have chosen these particular words? Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.
5. What causes the main turn in “The Pit and the Pendulum”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Condemned by the Spanish Inquisition in Toledo, the narrator wakes in a pitch-dark cell. He narrowly avoids falling into a central pit, then wakes strapped beneath a razor-edged pendulum descending toward his heart. He smears food on his bonds so rats chew them free. The walls then glow red-hot and…
6. As the opening story, what does “The Pit and the Pendulum” set up that the rest of The Pit and the Pendulum will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. Useful evidence: “The Inquisition was in the hands of its enemies” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44): The last line: history, not reason, delivers him. Theme link: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. Useful evidence: “An outstretched arm caught my own as I fell, fainting, into the abyss” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44): The rescue. Theme link: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “When you are afraid, what helps you think clearly?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.

9. Where does point of view appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with terror and endurance? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. Useful evidence: “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31): Pacing of the descent. Theme link: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: The Spanish Inquisition was ended by Napoleon's forces in 1808, and French troops did occupy Toledo. Poe's details are invented gothic horror, not history. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. 11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 7 reveal about the character or situation? “After that, the sound of the inquisitorial voices seemed merged in one dreamy indeterminate hum.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 7) shows the situation turning on terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words “indeterminate” and “inquisitorial” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: Pacing of the descent. The evidence is “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31). This develops reason against terror: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 20 reveal about the character or situation? “By a wild, sulphurous lustre, the origin of which I could not at first determine, I was enabled to see the extent and aspect of the prison." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 20) shows the situation turning on terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words "sulphurous" and "determine" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 10 shapes its tone: "Then the mere consciousness of existence, without thought—a condition which lasted long." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "consciousness" and "condition" (paragraph 10) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze the word choice in "An outstretched arm caught my own as I fell, fainting, into the abyss" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: The rescue. The evidence is "An outstretched arm caught my own as I fell, fainting, into the abyss" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44). This develops reason against terror: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words "outstretched" and "fainting" carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.

16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 16 to the story's treatment of terror and endurance: "Quitting the wall, I resolved to cross the area of the enclosure." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 16) develops terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words "enclosure" and "resolved" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "In the confusion attending my fall, I did not immediately apprehend a somewhat startling circumstance, which yet, in a…" (paragraph 17), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating terror and endurance as central.

17. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "At first, the ravenous animals were startled and terrified at the change—at the _____ of movement." Word bank: charnel, avalanche, cessation, dungeons

    Key: cessation

18. [mc · recall · DOK 1] How does the narrator first discover the pit?

    A. He trips and falls with his face at its edge
    B. A guard shows him
    C. He sees it by torchlight
    D. He hears water drip

    Key: A (He trips and falls with his face at its edge)

19. [mc · recall · DOK 1] How does he escape the pendulum?

    A. He rubs food on his straps so rats gnaw them
    B. He breaks the chains
    C. A guard frees him
    D. He stops the gear

    Key: A (He rubs food on his straps so rats gnaw them)

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Claim: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: "Down—steadily down it crept" (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph

Sample answer: The repeated "Down—steadily down it crept" makes the reader endure each swing, so the escape feels earned even though the final rescue, "An outstretched arm caught my own," comes from outside. The evidence is “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31) — Pacing of the descent. This develops reason against terror: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair.

21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 26 shapes its tone: “I now observed—with what horror it is needless to say—that its nether extremity was formed of a crescent of glittering steel, about a foot in length from horn to horn; the horns upward, and the under edge evidently as keen as that of a…” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “glittering” and “extremity” (paragraph 26) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 18 to the story's treatment of terror and endurance: “Another step before my fall, and the world had seen me no more.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 18) develops terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “before” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Shaking in every limb, I groped my way back to the wall—resolving there to perish rather than risk the terrors of the…” (paragraph 19), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating terror and endurance as central.

23. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 15? “I had met, however, with many angles in the wall, and thus I could form no guess at the shape of the vault; for vault I could not help _____ it to be.”

    A. supposing
    B. interminableness
    C. consciousness
    D. irresistibly

    Key: A (supposing)

24. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Who has condemned the narrator?

    A. The Inquisition
    B. A king
    C. A rival family
    D. A pirate captain

    Key: A (The Inquisition)

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 24 shapes its tone: “It was the painted figure of Time as he is commonly represented, save that, in lieu of a scythe, he held what, at a casual glance, I supposed to be the pictured image of a huge pendulum, such as we see on antique clocks.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “represented” and “pendulum” (paragraph 24) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 8 shapes its tone: “Arousing from the most profound of slumbers, we break the gossamer web of some dream.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “slumbers” and “profound” (paragraph 8) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 30 to the story's treatment of terror and endurance: “It would fray the serge of my robe—it would return and repeat its operations—again—and again.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 30) develops terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “operations” and “return” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “I pondered upon all this frivolity until my teeth were on edge.” (paragraph 30), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating terror and endurance as central.
28. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “This process, however, afforded me no means of _____ the dimensions of my dungeon; as I might make its circuit, and return to the point whence I set out, without being aware of the fact; so perfectly uniform seemed the wall.” Word bank: avalanche, dungeons, charnel, ascertaining
    Key: ascertaining
29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 28 to the story's treatment of terror and endurance: “I grew frantically mad, and struggled to force myself upward against the sweep of the fearful scimitar.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 28) develops terror and endurance: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “frantically” and “struggled” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Upon my recovery, too, I felt very—oh, inexpressibly—sick and weak, as if through long inanition.” (paragraph 29), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating terror and endurance as central.
30. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “A fearful idea now suddenly drove the blood in _____ upon my heart, and for a brief period, I once more relapsed into insensibility.” Word bank: charnel, avalanche, torrents, dungeons
    Key: torrents
31. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] What does this passage most clearly show? “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31) Answer in two or three sentences, quoting one word or phrase.
    Sample answer: Pacing of the descent. The evidence is “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31). This develops reason against terror: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair.
32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Synthesis: trace how reason against terror develops from the opening of “The Pit and the Pendulum” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Near the start, “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31) — Pacing of the descent. Later, “An outstretched arm caught my own as I fell, fainting, into the abyss” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44) — The rescue. Measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair.
33. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] In the line “I might as well have attempted to arrest an avalanche!”, what does “avalanche” most nearly mean?

    A. dark underground prison cells

C. forced (its way) with a struggle

Key: B (a slide of large masses of snow and ice and mud down a mountain)

34. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] In the line “The entire surface of this metallic enclosure was rudely daubed in all the hideous and repulsive devices to which the charnel superstition of the monks has given rise.”, what does “charnel” most nearly mean?

A. a slide of large masses of snow and ice and mud down a mountain

B. forced (its way) with a struggle

C. dark underground prison cells

Key: D (full of corpses, like a burial vault)

36. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Which literary element does this describe in “The Pit and the Pendulum”? Long sentences slow time as the blade descends (‘Down—steadily down it crept’); the countdown makes the reader count too.

B. Conflict

C. Pacing

D. Allusion

Key: C (Pacing)

37. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “The Inquisition was in the hands of its enemies” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

Sample answer: The last line: history, not reason, delivers him. The evidence is “The Inquisition was in the hands of its enemies” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 44). This develops reason against terror: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words “enemies” and “hands” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. The repeated "Down—steadily down it crept" makes the reader endure each swing, so the escape feels earned even though the final rescue, "An outstretched arm caught my own," comes from outside.

38. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

Sample answer: Pacing of the descent. The evidence is “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31). This develops reason against terror: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Pit and the Pendulum,” how does Poe show reason struggling against terror? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the imagery you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Pit and the Pendulum, how does Poe develop the idea of reason struggling against terror? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the imagery in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Pit and the Pendulum develops the idea of reason struggling against terror. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of imagery and structure shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Pit and the Pendulum (where it begins, turns and ends) and its imagery shape the reader's understanding of reason struggling against terror. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Pit and the Pendulum suggests about reason struggling against terror. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's imagery and structure), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Edgar Allan Poe uses imagery in The Pit and the Pendulum to complicate the reader's understanding of reason struggling against terror. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Pit and the Pendulum within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of reason struggling against terror responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Pit and the Pendulum alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of reason struggling against terror follows or bends those conventions, using the imagery as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Pit and the Pendulum and its treatment of reason struggling against terror. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's imagery and structure, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Pit and the Pendulum as evidence for a larger claim about reason struggling against terror in The Pit and the Pendulum. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Pit and the Pendulum as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of reason struggling against terror. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Pit and the Pendulum.

SAT-style questions

1. Of the dungeons there had been strange things narrated—fables I had always deemed them—but yet strange, and too ghastly to repeat, save in a whisper.

   As used in the text, what does the word "dungeons" most nearly mean?

   A. provide commentary for a film, for example
   B. dark underground prison cells
   C. a stopping
   D. a structure or object that impedes free movement

2. And now, as I still continued to step cautiously onward, there came thronging upon my recollection a thousand vague rumors of the horrors of Toledo. Of the dungeons there had been strange things narrated—fables I had always deemed them—but yet strange, and too ghastly to repeat, save in a whisper. Was I left to perish of starvation in this subterranean world of darkness; or what fate, perhaps even more fearful, awaited me? That the result would be death, and a death of more than customary bitterness, I knew too well the character of my judges to doubt. The mode and the hour were all that occupied or distracted me.

   Which choice best states a central concern of "The Pit and the Pendulum"?

   A. A reversal that punishes a change of heart
   B. Science that poisons love
   C. Reason struggling against terror
   D. The foolishness of wishing to be young again

SAT key: 1. B (dark underground prison cells); 2. C (Reason struggling against terror)

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 29 reveal about the character or situation? "Upon my recovery, too, I felt very—oh, inexpressibly—sick and weak, as if through long inanition." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 29) shows the situation turning on the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words "inexpressibly" and "inanition" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.
12. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?
    A. "They appeared to me white—whiter than the sheet upon which I trace these words—and thin even to grotesqueness; thin with the intensity of…"
    B. "Iwas sick—sick unto death with that long agony; and when they at length unbound me, and I was permitted to sit, I felt that my senses were…"
    C. "After that, the sound of the inquisitorial voices seemed merged in one dreamy indeterminate hum."

D. “This only for a brief period; for presently I heard no more.”

Key: B (“Iwas sick—sick unto death with that long agony; and when they at length unbound me, and I was permitted to sit, I felt that my senses were…”)

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 25 reveal about the character or situation? “From this it required much effort and attention to scare them away.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 25) shows the situation turning on rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words “attention” and “required” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 17 reveal about the character or situation? “In the confusion attending my fall, I did not immediately apprehend a somewhat startling circumstance, which yet, in a few seconds afterward, and while I still lay prostrate, arrested my attention.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 17) shows the situation turning on the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words “circumstance” and “immediately” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

15. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 9 reveal about the character or situation? “Then comes a sense of sudden motionlessness throughout all things; as if those who bore me (a ghastly train!) had outrun, in their descent, the limits of the limitless, and paused from the wearisomeness of their toil.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 9) shows the situation turning on rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The words “motionlessness” and “wearisomeness” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 29 shapes its tone: “It was, as I say, a half-formed thought—man has many such, which are never completed.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “completed” and “thought” (paragraph 29) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 17 shapes its tone: “Groping about the masonry just below the margin, I succeeded in dislodging a small fragment, and let it fall into the abyss.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “dislodging” and “succeeded” (paragraph 17) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 10 to the story's treatment of the mind under torture: “Then entire forgetfulness of all that followed; of all that a later day and much earnestness of endeavor have enabled me vaguely to recall.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 10) develops the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “forgetfulness” and “earnestness” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Up to the period when I fell, I had counted fifty-two paces, and, upon resuming my walk, I had counted forty-eight…” (paragraph 15), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the mind under torture as central.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 21 shapes its tone: “I then slept—and, upon awaking, I must have returned upon my steps—thus supposing the circuit nearly double what it actually was.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “supposing” and “actually” (paragraph 21) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 30 shapes its tone: “I pondered upon all this frivolity until my teeth were on edge.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “frivolity” and “pondered” (paragraph 30) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 28 shapes its tone: “What boots it to tell of the long, long hours of horror more than mortal, during which I counted the rushing oscillations of the steel!” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “oscillations” and “rushing” (paragraph 28) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 23 to the story's treatment of rescue and hope: “To this I was securely bound by a long strap resembling a surcingle.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 23) develops rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “resembling” and “surcingle” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “It was the painted figure of Time as he is commonly represented, save that, in lieu of a scythe, he held what, at a…” (paragraph 24), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating rescue and hope as central.
23. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 15 shapes its tone: “Up to the period when I fell, I had counted fifty-two paces, and, upon resuming my walk, I had counted forty-eight more—when I arrived at the rag.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “resuming” and “arrived” (paragraph 15) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 20 to the story's treatment of rescue and hope: “Upon arousing, I found by my side, as before, a loaf and a pitcher of water.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 20) develops rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “arousing” and “pitcher” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “By a wild, sulphurous lustre, the origin of which I could not at first determine, I was enabled to see the extent and…” (paragraph 20), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating rescue and hope as central.
25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 33 to the story's treatment of rescue and hope: “It was hope—the hope that triumphs on the rack—that whispers to the death-condemned even in the dungeons of the Inquisition.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 33) develops rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “condemned” and “triumphs” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “After that, the sound of the inquisitorial voices seemed merged in one dreamy indeterminate hum.” (paragraph 7), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating rescue and hope as central.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 19 shapes its tone: “Shaking in every limb, I groped my way back to the wall—resolving there to perish rather than risk the terrors of the wells, of which my imagination now pictured many in various positions about the dungeon.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: The words “imagination” and “positions” (paragraph 19) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

27. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 7 shapes its tone: “They appeared to me white—whiter than the sheet upon which I trace these words—and thin even to grotesqueness; thin with the intensity of their expression of firmness—of immoveable resolution—of stern contempt of human torture.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: The words “grotesqueness” and “expression” (paragraph 7) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 8 to the story's treatment of the mind under torture: “How at least shall we distinguish its shadows from those of the tomb?” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 8) develops the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “distinguish” and “shadows” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Then comes a sense of sudden motionlessness throughout all things; as if those who bore me (a ghastly train!) had…” (paragraph 9), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the mind under torture as central.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 7 to the story's treatment of rescue and hope: “And then my vision fell upon the seven tall candles upon the table.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 7) develops rescue and hope: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “candles” and “vision” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Arousing from the most profound of slumbers, we break the gossamer web of some dream.” (paragraph 8), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating rescue and hope as central.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 27 to the story's treatment of the mind under torture: “My cognizance of the pit had become known to the inquisitorial agents—the pit, whose horrors had been destined for so bold a recusant as myself—the pit, typical of hell, and regarded by rumor as the Ultima Thule of all their punishments.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 27) develops the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “inquisitorial” and “punishments” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “What boots it to tell of the long, long hours of horror more than mortal, during which I counted the rushing…” (paragraph 28), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the mind under torture as central.

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “Of the dungeons there had been strange things narrated—fables I had always deemed them—but yet strange, and too ghastly to repeat, save in a whisper.”, what does “dungeons” most nearly mean?

    A. full of corpses, like a burial vault

    B. a slide of large masses of snow and ice and mud down a mountain

    C. forced (its way) with a struggle

    D. dark underground prison cells

    Key: D (dark underground prison cells)

32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Connect this passage from paragraph 24 to the story's treatment of the mind under torture: “Wearied at length with observing its dull movement, I turned my eyes upon the other objects in the cell.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 24) develops the mind under torture: measuring the cell and using the rats show reason defeating despair. Its words “observing” and “movement” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “From this it required much effort and attention to scare them away.” (paragraph 25), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the mind under torture as central.

Final paper

The Pit and the Pendulum: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Edgar Allan Poe develops terror and endurance across The Pit and the Pendulum. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Pit and the Pendulum and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to the mind under torture.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Pit and the Pendulum. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Pit and the Pendulum finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of rescue and hope. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words

Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.

Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Poe builds suspense by slowing time to the speed of the blade. The text makes this visible when it says “Down—steadily down it crept” (The Pit and the Pendulum, paragraph 31). The repeated "Down—steadily down it crept" makes the reader endure each swing, so the escape feels earned even though the final rescue, "An outstretched arm caught my own," comes from outside. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.
