Essential questions

- What does The Tell-Tale Heart suggest about guilt and conscience?
- What does The Tell-Tale Heart suggest about the unreliable mind?
- What does The Tell-Tale Heart suggest about obsession?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Edgar Allan Poe was born in Boston on 19 January 1809 to touring actors; orphaned before he was three, he was raised in Richmond, Virginia, by the merchant John Allan, with whom he later quarrelled bitterly. He attended the University of Virginia, served in the U.S. Army and was dismissed from West Point, then lived by his pen as a poet, critic and magazine editor (the Southern Literary Messenger, Graham's Magazine) in Richmond, Philadelphia and New York. He married his young cousin Virginia Clemm, who died of tuberculosis in 1847. "The Raven" (1845) made him famous but never prosperous. He is credited with inventing the modern detective story ("The Murders in the Rue Morgue," 1841) and argued that a short story should create a single "unity of effect." He died in Baltimore on 7 October 1849; the cause of his death is unknown.

Historical and cultural context

Poe wrote in the 1840s, when American magazines were hungry for sensational tales and the new "insanity defense" was making headlines (the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the legal test for madness). He was fascinated by the workings of a guilty mind and by narrators who reveal more than they mean to.

Publication and reception, then and now

"The Tell-Tale Heart" first appeared in The Pioneer, a short-lived Boston magazine edited by James Russell Lowell, in January 1843; Poe was paid about ten dollars. A revised text appeared in the Broadway Journal in 1845.

Then: The story drew little notice in its own day; Poe's reputation rested more on "The Raven" and his criticism.

Now: It is one of the most anthologized American short stories and a standard text for teaching the unreliable narrator, often a student's first encounter with Poe.

Overview (spoiler-free)

A narrator insists he is not mad and sets out to prove it by calmly describing how he decided to kill an old man whose eye disturbed him, and what happened afterward. The story is a confession.

Main themes

- guilt and conscience: the "heart" he hears is the story's central puzzle: the old man's, or his own?
- the unreliable mind: the narrator's every argument for his sanity is evidence against it.

- obsession: a single feature, the eye, takes over his mind.

Why it matters

Students meet unreliable narrators everywhere (in advertising, social media and politics as well as fiction); this story trains them to read a speaker against himself.

Spoilers · teacher only

He kills the old man, dismembers him and hides him under the floorboards; when police call, he is calm until he hears (or imagines) the dead man's heart beating louder and louder, and he confesses.

First, meaning. I read "True!—nervous—very, very dreadfully nervous I had been and am; but why will you say that I am mad" slowly and put it in my own words: The narrator admits he was and is very nervous but demands to know why we call him mad. Next, craft. I notice dashes and exclamations breaking the sentence, which sounds like panicky speech. The strongest word is "dreadfully": it piles extra emphasis onto nervousness and makes him sound more unstable while he argues he is not. Then, effect. What does the narrator's opening outburst show? My answer: He is trying to prove his sanity, and the jerky way he speaks proves the opposite; this is Poe's classic unreliable narrator.

Teacher only · spoilers

An unnamed narrator insists he is sane while describing how the old man's pale blue 'vulture eye' drove him to murder. He spies on the old man for seven nights, kills him on the eighth, dismembers the body and hides it under the floorboards. When police arrive he chats calmly, but a beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart grows louder until he shrieks a confession.

Background: Poe published the story in 1843. Insanity was a live legal question: the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the test for an insanity defense in the same year. Poe's narrators often argue their own case.

Significance: It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself.

Poe published the story in 1843. Insanity was a live legal question: the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the test for an insanity defense in the same year. Poe's narrators often argue their own case. It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself. Point of view: A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him. Irony: Dramatic irony runs through the whole: he says the police "chatted pleasantly" while he grows frantic; he boasts of his "wisdom" and caution while describing a murder. Imagery: The "vulture" eye, the lantern's single ray, the heartbeat like "a watch enveloped in cotton": sound and sight narrowed to a point, as his mind is. Watch for the eye: the "Evil Eye" stands for being seen and judged; the narrator kills to escape a gaze.

First, meaning. I read "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult" slowly and put it in my own words: The narrator admits he loved the old man and had no injury or insult to avenge. Next, craft. I notice three short sentences in a row, each denying a motive, like a list he is ticking off. The strongest word is "wronged": it is the word we expect a revenge story to use, and he denies it, which makes the murder stranger. Then, effect. Why does the narrator insist the old man had never wronged him? My answer: The narrator insists the old man had never wronged him to show he had no motive except the eye; by ruling out motives he proves, without meaning to, that he is not acting sanely.

> I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2)

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable.
- "One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying.
- "it is the beating of his hideous heart" (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18) The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound.

Classroom discussion questions (30, tiered)

Wait time after every question (3 s for DOK 1, 5 s for DOK 2, 8 to 10 s for DOK 3 and 4); think-pair-share on DOK 3 and 4; answer each response with a follow-up probe; close with student-generated questions. Focus sets by rigor level: Scaffolded support: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 11, 12, 13, 14, 21, 22; HS Freshman: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 12, 13, 14, 15, 22, 23, 24; HS Sophomore: 1, 2, 3, 4, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 23, 24, 25; HS Junior: 1, 2, 3, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 24, 25, 26, 27; HS Senior: 1, 2, 3, 15, 16, 17, 18, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29; AP: 1, 2, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30; College Freshman: 1, 2, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29, 30; College Sophomore: 1, 2, 11, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 28, 29, 30; College Junior: 1, 11, 12, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 29, 30; College Senior: 1, 11, 12, 13, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 30; Graduate / PhD: 1, 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28

Literal / recall

1. What does the narrator say drove him to kill the old man? [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: The old man's pale 'vulture' eye
2. How many nights does the narrator watch the old man before acting? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: Seven, killing him on the eighth

3. Where does the narrator hide the body? [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: Under the floorboards of the chamber
4. Why do the police come to the house? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: A neighbor heard a shriek in the night
5. What makes the narrator confess? [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: A beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart
6. Retell the three most important events of “The Tell-Tale Heart” in order, in one sentence each. [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: An unnamed narrator insists he is sane while describing how the old man's pale blue 'vulture eye' drove him to murder. He spies on the old man for seven nights, kills him on the eighth, dismembers the body and hides it under the floorboards. When police arrive he chats calmly, but a beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart grows louder until he shrieks a confession.
7. Which characters appear or are mentioned in “The Tell-Tale Heart”? Name two and one thing each says or does. [DOK 1 · coldCallWithSupport · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: Names and actions taken from the story; check against the teacher summary.
8. Where and when does “The Tell-Tale Heart” take place? Point to the line that tells you. [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: A place/time detail quoted from the story.
9. Reread: “First of all I dismembered the corpse.” What does “dismembered” mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: dismembered: cut a body into pieces.
10. Reread: “There entered three men, who introduced themselves, with perfect suavity, as officers of the police.” What does “suavity” mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · CAIE-9695.AO1] Look for: suavity: smooth, polished politeness.

Inferential / analytical

1. What does “The Tell-Tale Heart” suggest about guilt that the mind cannot hide? State the inference and the line that supports it. [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself.
2. Find one example of point of view in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know.
3. How does the irony in this story shape what we understand about guilt that the mind cannot hide? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. On irony: Dramatic irony runs through the whole: he says the police "chatted pleasantly" while he grows frantic; he boasts of his "wisdom" and caution while describing a murder. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins “If still you think me mad, you will think so no longer when I describe the wise precautions I took for the concealment of the body.”, why might Poe have chosen these particular words?

Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.

5. What causes the main turn in “The Tell-Tale Heart”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An unnamed narrator insists he is sane while describing how the old man's pale blue 'vulture eye' drove him to murder. He spies on the old man for seven nights, kills him on the eighth, dismembers the body and hides it under the floorboards. When police arrive he chats calmly, but a beating sound…
6. As the opening story, what does “The Tell-Tale Heart” set up that the rest of The Tell-Tale Heart will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “The narrator keeps telling us he is not mad. Why might someone insist so hard on a point?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does imagery appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with guilt and conscience? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. On imagery: The "vulture" eye, the lantern's single ray, the heartbeat like "a watch enveloped in cotton": sound and sight narrowed to a point, as his mind is. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Poe published the story in 1843. Insanity was a live legal question: the 1843 M'Naghten case in Britain set the test for an insanity defense in the same year. Poe's narrators often argue their own case. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “It is one of the most taught examples of an unreliable first-person narrator; every claim of calm reason undercuts itself.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
2. Which character in this story acts most wisely, and which least? Judge them by a standard you name. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: An evaluation using an explicit criterion and evidence.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
3. Rewrite one moment of “The Tell-Tale Heart” from the point of view of a different character. What does the new angle reveal or hide about guilt that the mind cannot hide? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A creative product with a rationale tied to the text.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. On point of view: A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. Write three questions of your own about “The Tell-Tale Heart”: one recall, one “why/how”, and one “should/what if”. Trade with a partner and answer theirs. [DOK 3 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: Student-generated questions at three levels.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

5. Connect this story to the unreliable mind: is the link strong or weak so far? What would Poe need to show next to strengthen it? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A judgment of thematic development across the work.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

6. Is the point of view in this story effective, or does it feel heavy-handed? Evaluate it as a reader would in a review. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: An evaluative judgment with criteria and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. On point of view: A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed "you," perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

7. Compare how “The Tell-Tale Heart” treats guilt that the mind cannot hide with how another text, film or event you know treats a similar idea. What does The Tell-Tale Heart see that the other misses? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A cross-text synthesis.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

8. As the final story, does this ending resolve guilt and conscience? Argue whether the ending is earned. [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A prediction or judgment justified with textual clues.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): He admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

9. Design a one-paragraph modern adaptation of this story (setting, characters, conflict). What must stay the same for it to still be about guilt that the mind cannot hide? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A creative transfer that keeps the core idea.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2): The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying.

Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

10. What question would you most like to ask Edgar Allan Poe about this story, and what answer do you think the text itself gives? [DOK 4 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A student-generated question answered from evidence.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Useful evidence: “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18): The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. Theme link: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Annotation focus

- Point of view: look for who is telling the story and what that narrator can and cannot know (anchor passage in the We do segment)
- Also notice Irony: gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true
- Also notice Imagery: sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create

Chapter quiz: item bank (all eleven rigor versions)

1. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What makes the narrator confess?
   A. A witness accuses him
   B. He finds the old man's will
   C. The police find the body
   D. A beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart

   Key: D (A beating sound he believes is the dead man's heart)
2. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 1: “True!—nervous—very, very _____ nervous I had been and am; but why will you say that I am mad?” Word bank: dreadfully, kinder, quickly, hearing
   Key: dreadfully
3. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 3: “Ha!—would a _____ have been so wise as this?” Word bank: dreadfully, madman, hearing, healthily
   Key: madman
4. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “Anything was more _____ than this derision!” Word bank: dissemble, dismembered, suavity, tolerable
   Key: tolerable
5. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 3? “I was never _____ to the old man than during the whole week before I killed him.”
   A. kinder
   B. dreadfully
   C. muscle
   D. scarcely

Key: A (kinder)

6. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2: “One of his eyes _____ that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it”

   Key: resembled

7. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What does the narrator say drove him to kill the old man?

   A. An insult from the old man

   B. The old man's pale 'vulture' eye

   C. A quarrel over rent

   D. The old man's money

   Key: B (The old man's pale 'vulture' eye)

8. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 4: “His room was as black as pitch with the thick _____, (for the shutters were close fastened, through fear of robbers,) and so I knew that he could not see the opening of the door, and I kept pushing it on steadily, steadily.” Word bank: darkness, slight, profound, healthily

   Key: darkness

9. [mc · recall · DOK 1] How many nights does the narrator watch the old man before acting?

   A. One

   B. Thirty

   C. Seven, killing him on the eighth

   D. Three

   Key: C (Seven, killing him on the eighth)

10. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “The disease had sharpened my senses—not destroyed—not dulled them.”

    B. “True!—nervous—very, very dreadfully nervous I had been and am; but why will you say that I am mad?”

    C. “I heard all things in the heaven and in the earth.”

    D. “Above all was the sense of hearing acute.”

    Key: B (“True!—nervous—very, very dreadfully nervous I had been and am; but why will you say that I am mad?”)

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage most clearly show? “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) Answer in two or three sentences, quoting one word or phrase.

    Sample answer: The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. The evidence is “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2).

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 4 reveal about the character or situation? “Never before that night, had I felt the extent of my own powers—of my sagacity.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 4) shows the situation turning on the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words “sagacity” and “extent” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 11 reveal about the character or situation? "The old man's terror must have been extreme!" Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 11) shows the situation turning on the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words "extreme" and "terror" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.
14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 7 shapes its tone: "I knew what the old man felt, and pitied him, although I chuckled at heart." Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words "although" and "chuckled" (paragraph 7) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 1 shapes its tone: "I heard all things in the heaven and in the earth." Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words "heaven" and "things" (paragraph 1) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 7 to the story's treatment of the unreliable mind: "And it was the mournful influence of the unperceived shadow that caused him to feel—although he neither saw nor heard—to feel the presence of my head within the room." Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 7) develops the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words "unperceived" and "influence" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "So I opened it—you cannot imagine how stealthily, stealthily—until, at length, a single dim ray, like the thread of the…" (paragraph 8), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the unreliable mind as central.
17. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Why do the police come to the house?

    A. A neighbor heard a shriek in the night
    B. The old man's son reports him missing
    C. They are searching for a thief
    D. The narrator calls them

    Key: A (A neighbor heard a shriek in the night)
18. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "And now at the dead hour of the night, amid the dreadful silence of that old house, so strange a noise as this excited me to _____ terror."
    Word bank: suavity, dismembered, dissemble, uncontrollable
    Key: uncontrollable
19. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "A shriek had been heard by a neighbor during the night; suspicion of foul play had been aroused; information had been lodged at the police office, and they (the officers) had been deputed to search the _____." Word bank: dismembered, suavity, premises, dissemble
    Key: premises

20. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18: “it is the _____ of his hideous heart”

    Key: beating

21. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 4? “A watch's minute hand moves more _____ than did mine.”

    A. healthily

    B. muscle

    C. quickly

    D. sufficient

    Key: C (quickly)

22. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. The evidence is “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2).

23. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Claim: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2).

    Sample answer: He says "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me," so the murder has no rational motive, yet he calls his own planning "wisdom"; the gap between his reasons and his act exposes him. The evidence is “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2), which shows he admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. This develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation.

24. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 5 shapes its tone: “Ihad my head in, and was about to open the lantern, when my thumb slipped upon the tin fastening, and the old man sprang up in the bed, crying out—‘Who's there?’” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “fastening” and “lantern” (paragraph 5) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Synthesis: trace how guilt and conscience develops from the opening of “The Tell-Tale Heart” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.

    Sample answer: Near the start, “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2), which shows he admits there is no motive, which undermines his claim to be reasonable. Later, “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18), which shows the final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. The heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation.

26. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage most clearly show? “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18) Answer in two or three sentences, quoting one word or phrase.

    Sample answer: The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. The evidence is “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18). This develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation.

27. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 11 shapes its tone: “In an instant I dragged him to the floor, and pulled the heavy bed over him.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “dragged” and “instant” (paragraph 11) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 3 to the story's treatment of the unreliable mind: “And then, when my head was well in the room, I undid the lantern cautiously—oh, so cautiously—cautiously (for the hinges creaked)—I undid it just so much that a single thin ray fell upon the vulture eye.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 3) develops the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “cautiously” and “lantern” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “And every morning, when the day broke, I went boldly into the chamber, and spoke courageously to him, calling him by…” (paragraph 3), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the unreliable mind as central.
29. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “I paced the floor to and fro with heavy _____, as if excited to fury by the observations of the men—but the noise steadily increased.” Word bank: strides, dissemble, dismembered, suavity
    Key: strides
30. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze the word choice in “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.
    Sample answer: The final confession; "hideous" transfers his horror to the sound. The evidence is “it is the beating of his hideous heart” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 18). This develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words “beating” and “hideous” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.
31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 10 to the story's treatment of the unreliable mind: “It was the beating of the old man's heart.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 10) develops the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “beating” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “But even yet I refrained and kept still.” (paragraph 11), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the unreliable mind as central.
32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 3 to the story's treatment of the unreliable mind: “And every night, about midnight, I turned the latch of his door and opened it—oh, so gently!” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 3) develops the unreliable mind: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “midnight” and “gently” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Oh, you would have laughed to see how cunningly I thrust it in!” (paragraph 3), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the unreliable mind as central.

33. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] In the line “You should have seen how wisely I proceeded—with what caution—with what foresight—with what dissimulation I went to work!”, what does “dissimulation” most nearly mean?

    A. hiding one's true feelings or intentions

    B. difficult to solve or alleviate

    C. cut a body into pieces

    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: A (hiding one's true feelings or intentions)

34. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Tell-Tale Heart”? Dramatic this device runs through the whole: he says the police ‘chatted pleasantly’ while he grows frantic; he boasts of his ‘wisdom’ and caution while describing a murder.

    A. Tone / mood

    B. Irony

    C. Diction / vocabulary

    D. Allusion

    Key: B (Irony)

35. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Where does the narrator hide the body?

    A. Under the floorboards of the chamber

    B. In the cellar wall

    C. In the garden

    D. In the river

    Key: A (Under the floorboards of the chamber)

36. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: The obsession; the vulture suggests death and preying. The evidence is “One of his eyes resembled that of a vulture—a pale blue eye, with a film over it” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2). This develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words “resembled” and “vulture” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. He says "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me," so the murder has no rational motive, yet he calls his own planning "wisdom"; the gap between his reasons and his act exposes him.

37. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Program outcome: LeL-C4-LIT-1] Which literary element does this describe in “The Tell-Tale Heart”? A first-person narrator speaks to an unnamed ‘you,’ perhaps a judge, doctor or jailer. His insistence on his sanity is the story's main irony: the more carefully he argues, the less we believe him.

    A. Metaphor

    B. Point of view

    C. Plot

    D. Setting

    Key: B (Point of view)

38. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · Program outcome: LeL-GR-LIT-1] Which choice best states a central concern of "The Tell-Tale Heart"?

A. Reason struggling against terror

B. Enemies reconciled too late

C. The futile attempt to shut out death

D. Guilt that the mind cannot hide

Key: D (Guilt that the mind cannot hide)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In "The Tell-Tale Heart," how does Poe show guilt that the mind cannot hide? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the point of view you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Tell-Tale Heart, how does Poe develop the idea of guilt that the mind cannot hide? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the point of view in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Tell-Tale Heart develops the idea of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of point of view and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Tell-Tale Heart (where it begins, turns and ends) and its point of view shape the reader's understanding of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Tell-Tale Heart suggests about guilt that the mind cannot hide. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's point of view and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Edgar Allan Poe uses point of view in The Tell-Tale Heart to complicate the reader's understanding of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Tell-Tale Heart within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of guilt that the mind cannot hide responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Tell-Tale Heart alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of guilt that the mind cannot hide follows or bends those conventions, using the point of view as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Tell-Tale Heart and its treatment of guilt that the mind cannot hide. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's point of view and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Tell-Tale Heart as evidence for a larger claim about guilt that the mind cannot hide in The Tell-Tale Heart. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Tell-Tale Heart as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of guilt that the mind cannot hide. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Tell-Tale Heart.

SAT-style questions

1. "Villains!" I shrieked, "dissemble no more!

   As used in the text, what does the word “dissemble” most nearly mean?

   A. to hide one's true feelings

   B. capable of being borne or endured

   C. a house or building together with its grounds

   D. a step in walking or running

2. If still you think me mad, you will think so no longer when I describe the wise precautions I took for the concealment of the body. The night waned, and I worked hastily, but in silence. First of all I dismembered the corpse. I cut off the head and the arms and the legs.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “The Tell-Tale Heart”?

   A. Guilt that the mind cannot hide

   B. Revenge carried out with perfect control

   C. A girl's first encounter with death across the class line

   D. The cost of wanting to seem richer than you are

SAT key: 1. A (to hide one's true feelings); 2. A (Guilt that the mind cannot hide)

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

1. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 3? “And this I did for seven long nights—every night just at midnight—but I found the eye always closed; and so it was _____ to do the work; for it was not the old man who vexed me, but his Evil Eye.”

   A. impossible

   B. kinder

   C. madman

   D. sufficient

   Key: A (impossible)

2. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 1? “Above all was the sense of _____ acute.”

   A. disturb

   B. profound

   C. hearing

   D. scarcely

   Key: C (hearing)

3. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 4? “I fairly _____ at the idea; and perhaps he heard me; for he moved on the bed suddenly, as if startled.”

   A. madman

   B. chuckled

   C. muscle

   D. slight

   Key: B (chuckled)

4. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 3: “So you see he would have been a very _____ old man, indeed, to suspect that every night, just at twelve, I looked in upon him while he slept.” Word bank: profound, kinder, muscle, madman

   Key: profound

5. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 4: “I could _____ contain my feelings of triumph.” Word bank: profound, scarcely, slight, kinder

   Key: scarcely

6. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 3? “I moved it slowly—very, very slowly, so that I might not _____ the old man's sleep.”

   A. darkness

   B. disturb

   C. quickly

   D. impossible

   Key: B (disturb)

7. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 1: “Hearken! and observe how _____—how calmly I can tell you the whole story.” Word bank: quickly, scarcely, kinder, healthily

   Key: healthily

8. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 3: “And then, when I had made an opening _____ for my head, I put in a dark lantern, all closed, closed, so that no light shone out, and then I thrust in my head.” Word bank: healthily, muscle, kinder, sufficient

   Key: sufficient

9. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 6? “For a whole hour I did not move a _____, and in the mean time I did not hear him lie down.”

   A. chuckled

   B. muscle

   C. disturb

   D. slight

   Key: B (muscle)

10. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 7: “Presently I heard a _____ groan, and I knew it was the groan of mortal terror.” Word bank: slight, dreadfully, darkness, sufficient

    Key: slight

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 3 reveal about the character or situation? “Oh, you would have laughed to see how cunningly I thrust it in!” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 3) shows the situation turning on obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words “cunningly” and “laughed” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 8 reveal about the character or situation? “So I opened it—you cannot imagine how stealthily, stealthily—until, at length, a single dim ray, like the thread of the spider, shot from out the crevice and fell upon the vulture eye.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 8) shows the situation turning on obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words “stealthily” and “imagine” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 7 reveal about the character or situation? “It was not a groan of pain or of grief—oh, no!—it was the low stifled sound that arises from the bottom of the soul when overcharged with awe.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 7) shows the situation turning on guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words “overcharged” and “stifled” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 1 reveal about the character or situation? “The disease had sharpened my senses—not destroyed—not dulled them.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 1) shows the situation turning on guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The words “destroyed” and “sharpened” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 3 shapes its tone: “It took me an hour to place my whole head within the opening so far that I could see him as he lay upon his bed.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “opening” and “within” (paragraph 3) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 2 shapes its tone: “Whenever it fell upon me, my blood ran cold; and so by degrees—very gradually—I made up my mind to take the life of the old man, and thus rid myself of the eye for ever.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “gradually” and “degrees” (paragraph 2) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 7 shapes its tone: “He had been saying to himself—‘It is nothing but the wind in the chimney—it is only a mouse crossing the floor,’ or ‘it is merely a cricket which has made a single chirp.’ Yes, he has been trying to comfort himself with these suppositions” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “suppositions” and “crossing” (paragraph 7) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 11 to the story's treatment of guilt and conscience: “Meantime the hellish tattoo of the heart increased.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 11) develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “increased” and “hellish” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The old man's terror must have been extreme!”

(paragraph 11), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and conscience as central.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 4 shapes its tone: “To think that there I was, opening the door, little by little, and he not even to dream of my secret deeds or thoughts.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “thoughts” and “opening” (paragraph 4) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 3 shapes its tone: “And every morning, when the day broke, I went boldly into the chamber, and spoke courageously to him, calling him by name in a hearty tone, and inquiring how he had passed the night.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “courageously” and “inquiring” (paragraph 3) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 11 shapes its tone: “But even yet I refrained and kept still.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “refrained” (paragraph 11) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 2 to the story's treatment of obsession: “It is impossible to say how first the idea entered my brain; but once conceived, it haunted me day and night.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 2) develops obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “impossible” and “conceived” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Whenever it fell upon me, my blood ran cold; and so by degrees—very gradually—I made up my mind to take the life of the…” (paragraph 2), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating obsession as central.
23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 4 to the story's treatment of guilt and conscience: “Now you may think that I drew back—but no.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 4) develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words its wording carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Ihad my head in, and was about to open the lantern, when my thumb slipped upon the tin fastening, and the old man…” (paragraph 5), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and conscience as central.
24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 7 to the story's treatment of obsession: “His fears had been ever since growing upon him.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 7) develops obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “growing” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He had been saying to himself—‘It is nothing but the wind in the chimney—it is only a mouse crossing the floor,' or 'it…" (paragraph 7), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating obsession as central.

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 11 shapes its tone: "I have told you that I am nervous: so I am." Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words "nervous" (paragraph 11) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 9 shapes its tone: "I saw it with perfect distinctness—all a dull blue, with a hideous veil over it that chilled the very marrow in my bones" Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words "distinctness" and "perfect" (paragraph 9) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

27. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] In the line "There entered three men, who introduced themselves, with perfect suavity, as officers of the police.", what does "suavity" most nearly mean?

    A. to hide one's true feelings
    B. smooth, polished politeness
    C. cut a body into pieces
    D. difficult to solve or alleviate

    Key: B (smooth, polished politeness)

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 6 to the story's treatment of obsession: "He was still sitting up in the bed, listening;—just as I have done, night after night, hearkening to the death watches in the wall." Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 6) develops obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words "hearkening" and "listening" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "It was not a groan of pain or of grief—oh, no!—it was the low stifled sound that arises from the bottom of the soul…" (paragraph 7), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating obsession as central.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 11 to the story's treatment of obsession: "But, for many minutes, the heart beat on with a muffled sound." Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 11) develops obsession: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words "minutes" and "muffled" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "The disease had sharpened my senses—not destroyed—not dulled them." (paragraph 1), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating obsession as central.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 4 to the story's treatment of guilt and conscience: "Upon the eighth night I was more than usually cautious in opening the door." Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 4) develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “cautious” and “usually” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Never before that night, had I felt the extent of my own powers—of my sagacity.” (paragraph 4), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and conscience as central.

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “First of all I dismembered the corpse.”, what does “dismembered” most nearly mean?

    A. cut a body into pieces

    B. difficult to solve or alleviate

    C. to hide one's true feelings

    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: A (cut a body into pieces)

32. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “‘Villains!’ I shrieked, ‘dissemble no more!”, what does “dissemble” most nearly mean?

    A. difficult to solve or alleviate

    B. to hide one's true feelings

    C. cut a body into pieces

    D. smooth, polished politeness

    Key: B (to hide one's true feelings)

33. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Connect this passage from paragraph 11 to the story's treatment of guilt and conscience: “And now a new anxiety seized me—the sound would be heard by a neighbor!” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 11) develops guilt and conscience: the heartbeat he hears can be read as the old man's (supernatural) or his own (psychological guilt); either way, conscience defeats his calculation. Its words “neighbor” and “anxiety” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “In an instant I dragged him to the floor, and pulled the heavy bed over him.” (paragraph 11), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating guilt and conscience as central.

Final paper

The Tell-Tale Heart: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Edgar Allan Poe develops guilt and conscience across The Tell-Tale Heart. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Tell-Tale Heart and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to the unreliable mind.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Tell-Tale Heart. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Tell-Tale Heart finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of obsession. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words

Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.
Organization	15

		Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: The narrator's attempt to prove his sanity is what reveals his madness. The text makes this visible when it says “I loved the old man. He had never wronged me. He had never given me insult” (The Tell-Tale Heart, paragraph 2). He says "I loved the old man. He had never wronged me," so the murder has no rational motive, yet he calls his own planning "wisdom"; the gap between his reasons and his act exposes him. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.
