Essential questions

- What does Blood-Burning Moon suggest about racial violence in the South?
- What does Blood-Burning Moon suggest about love and rivalry?
- What does Blood-Burning Moon suggest about folk song and omen?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Jean Toomer was born Nathan Pinchback Toomer in Washington, D.C., on 26 December 1894, the grandson of P. B. S. Pinchback, a Reconstruction-era governor of Louisiana. In 1921 he spent two months as a substitute school principal in Sparta, Georgia, an experience that inspired Cane (1923), a mixture of stories, poems and drama that became a landmark of the Harlem Renaissance. He later resisted being classified by race, became a follower of the mystic G. I. Gurdjieff and later a Quaker, and died on 30 March 1967.

Historical and cultural context

Set in a Georgia mill town in the early 1920s, the story reflects the Jim Crow South, where racial terror, including lynching, enforced segregation. Toomer wrote Cane after working as a substitute school principal in Sparta, Georgia, in 1921.

Publication and reception, then and now

Published in Cane (1923), a mix of stories, poems and drama; it had appeared earlier in the magazine Prairie (1923).

Then: Cane was praised by critics and fellow writers but sold poorly.

Now: Cane is a landmark of the Harlem Renaissance and modernism; this story is one of its most powerful sections.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Louisa, a young Black woman who works in a white family's kitchen, is loved by two men: Tom Burwell, a Black field worker, and Bob Stone, the son of the white family she works for. Under a blood-red moon, the rivalry turns violent.

Main themes

- racial violence and injustice.
- love and possession.
- fate and omen.

Why it matters

The story confronts the history of lynching and its roots in the economics and sexual politics of the post-slavery South.

Spoilers · teacher only

Tom kills Bob in a knife fight; a white mob lynches Tom by burning him alive in the old factory, and Louisa, dazed, sings at her doorstep.

First, meaning. I read "Up from the skeleton stone walls, up from the rotting floor boards and the solid hand-hewn beams of oak of the pre-war cotton factory,..." slowly and put it in my own words: Dusk rises up out of the ruined walls and rotting floors of an old cotton factory from before the Civil War. Next, craft. I notice the sentence makes us wait through two "up from" phrases before its subject, "dusk," finally arrives. The strongest word is "pre-war": it ties the setting directly to slavery and the old South, so the past is literally the ground the story stands on. Then, effect. What does the slow build of this opening sentence do? My answer: Toomer roots the story in the ruins of slavery; the darkness rises out of that history, which predicts that the violence to come grows from it.

Toomer wrote Cane (1923) after a few months teaching in rural Georgia, a trip that showed him the Southern Black life his family had left behind. How might an outsider's visit shape the book? Answer: Accept answers such as: he saw the beauty of Black folk songs and land and feared it was disappearing; he also saw lynching and racial violence; Cane mixes poetry and prose to capture a vanishing world.

Louisa, a Black woman in a Georgia factory town, is loved by Tom Burwell, a Black field worker, and Bob Stone, the son of the white family she works for. Under a full moon that the women read as an omen, Bob confronts Tom and is killed by Tom's knife. A white mob lynches Tom, burning him at the old factory. Louisa, unaware, sings to the moon.

Background: Published in Cane (1923), Toomer's experimental book of stories, poems and sketches rooted in rural Georgia; US copyright term has expired.

Significance: A major Harlem Renaissance and modernist text; its lyric repetition ties folk song to violence.

Five key words in context, with verified word histories.
Today's words: canebrake — a thicket of tall cane plants; heralding — announcing that something is coming; jumbled — mixed up in a confused way; trickle — to flow in drops; cookery — the act of preparing something (as food) by the application of heat. "canebrake": Origin: an English formation from cane + brake. "jumbled": Origin of "jumble": uncertain; perhaps coined in the 1500s on the model of words like stumble and tumble. "trickle": Origin: probably Middle English triklen, a variant of striklen ("to flow gently"); the history is not certain. "cookery": Origin: an English formation from cook + -ery.

Published in Cane (1923), Toomer's experimental book of stories, poems and sketches rooted in rural Georgia; US copyright term has expired. A major Harlem Renaissance and modernist text; its lyric repetition ties folk song to violence. Refrain: The song ("Blood-burning moon. Sinner!") recurs, like a chorus. Imagery: Red, fire and blood saturate the story, from the moon to the burning factory. Structure: Three numbered parts in Cane (our reading text runs them together): Louisa and Tom Burwell's declaration; Bob Stone's jealous walk to the factory; the fight and the mob. Watch for the moon: omen of violence.

Model the close reading of the anchor quotation using the written think-aloud below.
First, meaning. I read "Blood-burning moon. Sinner" slowly and put it in my own words: The women of the factory town sing a refrain that names the red moon and calls out "Sinner." Next, craft. I notice the clipped, chant-like fragments, which sound like a spiritual or a warning rather than a sentence. The strongest word is "Sinner": it turns the song into a judgment, so the community seems to sense violence coming. Then, effect. Why do the women sing about a "blood-burning moon"? My answer: The red moon is an omen of the bloodshed to come; the refrain lets the community voice dread that no one says outright.

> Blood-burning moon. Sinner (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5)

Annotate the story for refrain, imagery (three marks with a margin note each), then write one claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph: what does this story suggest about love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence? Then start your writing prompt at your assigned level (HS Sophomore: Analyze how Blood-Burning Moon develops the idea of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of imagery and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. When the text says “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55), it shows this directly. The song "Blood-burning moon. Sinner!" recurs as the conflict builds, so when "a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat," the reader feels the omen fulfilled.

Teacher analysis (spoilers)

Literary elements

- Refrain: The song ("Blood-burning moon. Sinner!") recurs, like a chorus.
- Imagery: Red, fire and blood saturate the story, from the moon to the burning factory.
- Structure: Three numbered parts in Cane (our reading text runs them together): Louisa and Tom Burwell's declaration; Bob Stone's jealous walk to the factory; the fight and the mob.

Themes and how they develop

- racial violence and injustice: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged.

Symbols and motifs

- the moon: omen of violence.

Key quotations (checked against the reading text)

- "Blood-burning moon. Sinner" (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5) The omen.
- "Louisa sang as she came over the crest of the hill from the white folks' kitchen" (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 2) Her divided world.
- "Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat" (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55) The violence.

Model claim-evidence-reasoning

Claim: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal.
Evidence: "Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat" (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55)
Reasoning: The song "Blood-burning moon. Sinner!" recurs as the conflict builds, so when "a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat," the reader feels the omen fulfilled.

Reread: “Intermittently, all over the countryside dogs barked and roosters crowed as if heralding a weird dawn or some ungodly awakening.” What does “heralding” mean here, and what is literally happening in this line? [DOK 1 · turnAndTalk · wait 3 s · AP: unit standards] Look for: heralding: announcing that something is coming.

Inferential / analytical

1. What does “Blood-Burning Moon” suggest about love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence? State the inference and the line that supports it. [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A major Harlem Renaissance and modernist text; its lyric repetition ties folk song to violence.
2. Find one example of imagery in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.FIG] Look for: Look for sensory details (sight, sound, cold, light) and what mood they create.
3. How does the symbolism in this story shape what we understand about love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.FIG] Look for: Look for objects, places or actions that stand for larger ideas.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5): The omen. Theme link: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins “Up from the skeleton stone walls, up from the rotting floor boards and the solid hand-hewn beams of oak of the pre-war cotton factory, dusk came.”, why might Toomer have chosen these particular words? Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.FIG] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.
5. What causes the main turn in “Blood-Burning Moon”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.STR] Look for: Louisa, a Black woman in a Georgia factory town, is loved by Tom Burwell, a Black field worker, and Bob Stone, the son of the white family she works for. Under a full moon that the women read as an omen, Bob confronts Tom and is killed by Tom's knife. A white mob lynches Tom, burning him at the old…
6. As the opening story, what does “Blood-Burning Moon” set up that the rest of Blood-Burning Moon will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.STR] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Louisa sang as she came over the crest of the hill from the white folks' kitchen” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 2): Her divided world. On structure: Three numbered parts in Cane (our reading text runs them together): Louisa and Tom Burwell's declaration; Bob Stone's jealous walk to the factory; the fight and the mob. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.CHR] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55): The violence. Theme link: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
8. The bell-ringer asked: “How can a song or image foreshadow danger?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does foreshadowing appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with racial violence in the South? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.STR] Look for: Look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events.

Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5): The omen. Theme link: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

10. Background: Published in Cane (1923), Toomer's experimental book of stories, poems and sketches rooted in rural Georgia; US copyright term has expired. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.SET] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Louisa sang as she came over the crest of the hill from the white folks' kitchen” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 2): Her divided world. Theme link: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “A major Harlem Renaissance and modernist text; its lyric repetition ties folk song to violence.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. 4. Write three questions of your own about “Blood-Burning Moon”: one recall, one “why/how”, and one “should/what if”. Trade with a partner and answer theirs. [DOK 3 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: Student-generated questions at three levels.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55): The violence. Theme link: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

5. Connect this story to love and rivalry: is the link strong or weak so far? What would Toomer need to show next to strengthen it? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A judgment of thematic development across the work.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5): The omen. Theme link: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

6. Is the imagery in this story effective, or does it feel heavy-handed? Evaluate it as a reader would in a review. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.FIG, AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: An evaluative judgment with criteria and evidence.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Useful evidence: “Louisa sang as she came over the crest of the hill from the white folks' kitchen” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 2): Her divided world. On imagery: Red, fire and blood saturate the story, from the moon to the burning factory. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

7. Compare how “Blood-Burning Moon” treats love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence with how another text, film or event you know treats a similar idea. What does Blood-Burning Moon see that the other misses? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · AP-LIT.LAN] Look for: A cross-text synthesis.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. 11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The omen. The evidence is “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5). This develops racial violence and injustice: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 23 reveal about the character or situation? “Sing, honey Louisa, an while I'm listenin t y I'll be makin love.’” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 23) shows the situation turning on love and rivalry: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The words “listenin” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “Up from the deep dusk of a cleared spot on the edge of the forest a mellow glow arose and spread fan-wise into the low-hanging heavens.”

    B. “Up from the skeleton stone walls, up from the rotting floor boards and the solid hand-hewn beams of oak of the pre-war cotton factory, dusk…”

    C. “And all around the air was heavy with the scent of boiling cane.”

    D. “Glowing like a fired pine-knot, it illumined the great door and soft showered the Negro shanties aligned along the single street of factory…”

Key: B (“Up from the skeleton stone walls, up from the rotting floor boards and the solid hand-hewn beams of oak of the pre-war cotton factory, dusk…”)

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 24 shapes its tone: “The old woman lifted the well-lid, took hold the chain, and began drawing up the heavy bucket.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “drawing” and “lifted” (paragraph 24) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to love and rivalry: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 48 shapes its tone: “A few dark figures, drawn by the sound of scuffle, stood about them.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “scuffle” and “figures” (paragraph 48) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to love and rivalry: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 10 to the story's treatment of love and rivalry: “Some of them chewed at the white pulp of stalks, but there was no need for them to, if all they wanted was to taste the cane.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 10) develops love and rivalry: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Its words “stalks” and “chewed” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “An here I is, but that aint ahelpin none, all th same.” (paragraph 15), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating love and rivalry as central.
17. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 2: “Louisa sang as she came over the crest of the hill from the white folks' _____”
    Key: kitchen
18. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What do the women read the full moon as?
    A. Nothing
    B. A sign of rain
    C. An omen
    D. A blessing

    Key: C (An omen)
19. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55: “Blue flash, a steel blade _____ across Bob Stone's throat”
    Key: slashed
20. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What building dominates the setting?
    A. A school
    B. An old pre-war cotton factory
    C. A church
    D. A courthouse

    Key: B (An old pre-war cotton factory)
21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 10 shapes its tone: “A fat boy waddled pails of fresh ground juice between the grinder and the boiling stove.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “between” and “waddled” (paragraph 10) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral.

That weight points the reader to love and rivalry: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.
    Sample answer: The omen. The evidence is “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5). This develops racial violence and injustice: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The words “burning” and “moon” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. The song "Blood-burning moon. Sinner!" recurs as the conflict builds, so when "a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat," the reader feels the omen fulfilled.

23. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “He went towards her, _____, touched the brim of a marvelously shaped, spotted, felt hat, said he wanted to say something to her, and then found that he didnt know what he had to say, or if he did, that he couldnt say it.” Word bank: jumbled, heralding, ambling, canebrake
    Key: ambling

24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 17 to the story's treatment of love and rivalry: “Lil gal, Ise watched y from them first days when youall sat right here befo yo door befo th well an sang sometimes in a way that like t broke m heart.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 17) develops love and rivalry: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Its words “sometimes” and “watched” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Seems like th love I feels fo yo done stole m tongue.” (paragraph 17), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating love and rivalry as central.

25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Synthesis: trace how racial violence and injustice develops from the opening of “Blood-Burning Moon” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Near the start, “Blood-burning moon. Sinner” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 5) — The omen. Later, “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55) — The violence. The mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Claim: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55).
    Sample answer: The song "Blood-burning moon. Sinner!" recurs as the conflict builds, so when "a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat," the reader feels the omen fulfilled. The evidence is “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55) — The violence. This develops racial violence and injustice: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged.

27. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] In the line “Nails scratches let little lines of blood trickle down and mat into the hair.”, what does “trickle” most nearly mean?

    A. to flow in drops
    B. announcing that something is coming
    C. mixed up in a confused way
    D. a thicket of tall cane plants

    Key: A (to flow in drops)

28. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Analyze the word choice in “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

Sample answer: The violence. The evidence is “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55). This develops racial violence and injustice: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The words “slashed” and “throat” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.

    A. Refrain
    B. Foreshadowing
    C. Personification
    D. Metaphor

    Key: A (Refrain)

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Louisa sang as she came over the crest of the hill from the white folks' kitchen” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 2) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: Her divided world. The evidence is “Louisa sang as she came over the crest of the hill from the white folks' kitchen” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 2). This develops racial violence and injustice: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The words “kitchen” and “folks'” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. The song "Blood-burning moon. Sinner!" recurs as the conflict builds, so when "a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat," the reader feels the omen fulfilled.

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “But for some reason, they jumbled when her eyes gazed vacantly at the rising moon.”, what does “jumbled” most nearly mean?

    A. to flow in drops
    B. announcing that something is coming
    C. a thicket of tall cane plants
    D. mixed up in a confused way

    Key: D (mixed up in a confused way)

32. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] In the line “Intermittently, all over the countryside dogs barked and roosters crowed as if heralding a weird dawn or some ungodly awakening.”, what does “heralding” most nearly mean?

    A. announcing that something is coming
    B. mixed up in a confused way
    C. a thicket of tall cane plants
    D. to flow in drops

    Key: A (announcing that something is coming)

33. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] Which literary element does this describe in “Blood-Burning Moon”? Red, fire and blood saturate the story, from the moon to the burning factory.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; AP: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “Blood-Burning Moon,” how does Toomer show love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the imagery you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; AP: see unit standards): In Blood-Burning Moon, how does Toomer develop the idea of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the imagery in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how Blood-Burning Moon develops the idea of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of imagery and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of Blood-Burning Moon (where it begins, turns and ends) and its imagery shape the reader's understanding of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; AP: see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what Blood-Burning Moon suggests about love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's imagery and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP: AP-LIT.FIG, AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Jean Toomer uses imagery in Blood-Burning Moon to complicate the reader's understanding of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; AP: see unit standards): Situate Blood-Burning Moon within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; AP: see unit standards): Read Blood-Burning Moon alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence follows or bends those conventions, using the imagery as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; AP: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Blood-Burning Moon and its treatment of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's imagery and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads Blood-Burning Moon as evidence for a larger claim about love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence in Blood-Burning Moon. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads Blood-Burning Moon as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Blood-Burning Moon.

SAT-style questions

1. But for some reason, they jumbled when her eyes gazed vacantly at the rising moon.

   As used in the text, what does the word “jumbled” most nearly mean?

   A. cause to be embarrassed; cause to feel self-conscious

   B. walking at a slow, easy pace

   C. the act of preparing something (as food) by the application of heat

   D. mixed up in a confused way

2. Up from the skeleton stone walls, up from the rotting floor boards and the solid hand-hewn beams of oak of the pre-war cotton factory, dusk came. Up from the dusk the full moon came. Glowing like a fired pine-knot, it illumined the great door and soft showered the Negro shanties aligned along the single street of factory town. The full moon in the great door was an omen. Negro women improvised songs against its spell.

Which choice best states a central concern of "Blood-Burning Moon"?

A. The art of the deadpan tall tale

B. Love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence

C. Revenge carried out with perfect control

D. A choice the reader must make

SAT key: 1. D (mixed up in a confused way); 2. B (Love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence)

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 41 reveal about the character or situation? “Palpitant between the rooster crows, a chill hush settled upon the huddled forms of Tom and Louisa.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 41) shows the situation turning on racial violence in the South: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The words “between” and “huddled” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 1 reveal about the character or situation? “Glowing like a fired pine-knot, it illumined the great door and soft showered the Negro shanties aligned along the single street of factory town.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 1) shows the situation turning on racial violence in the South: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The words “illumined” and “shanties” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 15 reveal about the character or situation? “An here I is, but that aint ahelpin none, all th same.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 15) shows the situation turning on folk song and omen: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The words “ahelpin” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 24 shapes its tone: “Shadows of the figures fought each other on the gray dust of the road.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “figures” and “fought” (paragraph 24) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to folk song and omen: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 17 shapes its tone: “Seems like th love I feels fo yo done stole m tongue.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “tongue” (paragraph 17) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to folk song and omen: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 17 shapes its tone: “An next year if ole Stone'll trust me, I'll have a farm.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words its wording (paragraph 17) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to racial violence in the South: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 10 shapes its tone: “And all around the air was heavy with the scent of boiling cane.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “boiling” and “around” (paragraph 10) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to racial violence in the South: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 10 to the story's treatment of folk song and omen: “A mule, harnessed to a pole, trudged lazily round and round the pivot of the grinder.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 10) develops folk song and omen: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Its words “harnessed” and “trudged” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “And all around the air was heavy with the scent of boiling cane.” (paragraph 10), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating folk song and omen as central.

19. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 41 to the story's treatment of folk song and omen: “After a long while, or so it seemed to him, the thought came to him that it must be time to see Louisa.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 41) develops folk song and omen: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Its words “thought” and “seemed” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Palpitant between the rooster crows, a chill hush settled upon the huddled forms of Tom and Louisa.” (paragraph 41), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating folk song and omen as central.

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 58 shapes its tone: “Then nothing could be heard but the flop of their feet in the thick dust of the road.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “nothing” (paragraph 58) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to racial violence in the South: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 17 to the story's treatment of racial violence in the South: “Silk stockings an purple dresses—course I dont believe what some folks been whisperin as t how y gets them things now.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 17) develops racial violence in the South: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Its words “whisperin” and “stockings” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Sing, honey Louisa, an while I'm listenin t y I'll be makin love.’” (paragraph 23), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating racial violence in the South as central.

22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 24 to the story's treatment of racial violence in the South: “The full moon sank upward into the deep purple of the cloud-bank.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 24) develops racial violence in the South: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Its words “upward” and “purple” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The old woman lifted the well-lid, took hold the chain, and began drawing up the heavy bucket.” (paragraph 24), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating racial violence in the South as central.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 58 to the story's treatment of folk song and omen: “And then he saw the search-lights of the two cars glaring down on him.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 58) develops folk song and omen: the mob kills Tom, while Bob's actions go unjudged. Its words “glaring” and “lights” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Then nothing could be heard but the flop of their feet in the thick dust of the road.” (paragraph 58), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating folk song and omen as central.

Final paper

Blood-Burning Moon: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Jean Toomer develops racial violence in the South across Blood-Burning Moon. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in Blood-Burning Moon and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to love and rivalry.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in Blood-Burning Moon. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether Blood-Burning Moon finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of folk song and omen. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.

Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Toomer's refrain makes the violence feel fated and communal. The text makes this visible when it says “Blue flash, a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat” (Blood-Burning Moon, paragraph 55). The song "Blood-burning moon. Sinner!" recurs as the conflict builds, so when "a steel blade slashed across Bob Stone's throat," the reader feels the omen fulfilled. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.

AP (1300 words; AP: AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Jean Toomer's choices in Blood-Burning Moon (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of folk song and omen, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places Blood-Burning Moon's treatment of folk song and omen in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on folk song and omen in Blood-Burning Moon that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on folk song and omen in Blood-Burning Moon. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about folk song and omen in Blood-Burning Moon, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on folk song and omen in Blood-Burning Moon, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
