Author biography

Leo Tolstoy was born on his family's estate, Yasnaya Polyana, south of Moscow, on 9 September 1828 (28 August, Old Style). After serving in the army in the Caucasus and the Crimean War he wrote War and Peace (1865–69) and Anna Karenina (1875–77). A spiritual crisis in the late 1870s led him to a radical Christianity of non-violence and simple living; he wrote moral tales for ordinary readers, gave up the copyright to many works and was excommunicated by the Russian Orthodox Church in 1901. He died at the railway station of Astapovo on 20 November 1910 after leaving home.

Historical and cultural context

After the emancipation of the serfs in 1861, Russian peasants could buy land, and many sought to acquire more. Tolstoy, a landowner, increasingly condemned private property and greed in his later years.

Publication and reception, then and now

Written and published in 1886 as one of Tolstoy's moral tales for ordinary readers.

Then: Widely read in Russia; James Joyce later called it "the greatest story that the literature of the world knows."

Now: A classic parable about greed.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Pahóm, a peasant, says that with enough land he would not fear the Devil himself. The Devil hears, and Pahóm keeps acquiring more land.

Main themes

- greed.
- contentment.
- temptation.

Why it matters

The parable asks what "enough" means, a question that applies to money, possessions and ambition in any era, and it models how a simple story can carry a moral argument.

Spoilers · teacher only

The Bashkirs offer him all the land he can walk around in a day for 1,000 rubles; he goes too far, races back, and dies at the finish. He is buried in six feet of land.

Model a close reading of one passage using the written think-aloud below.
First, meaning. I read "Six feet from his head to his heels was all he needed" slowly and put it in my own words: After all his struggle for land, Pahom needs only six feet for a grave. Next, craft. I notice the exact, small measurement, set against the huge stretches of land he wanted. The strongest word is "Six": the plain number answers the title's question with grim exactness. Then, effect. What is the irony of this ending sentence? My answer: The answer to "how much land does a man need" is only enough for a grave; Tolstoy turns the story into a parable against greed.

Peasant Pahóm boasts that with enough land he would fear not even the Devil, who overhears. Pahóm buys land, then more, always wanting more. The Bashkirs offer as much land as he can walk around in a day for a thousand rubles, if he returns by sunset. He walks too far, runs back, reaches the starting point at sunset and falls dead. His servant digs a grave six feet long: all the land he needed.

Background: Written 1886. Translation: Louise and Aylmer Maude, Twenty-Three Tales (1906), public domain in the US. The Bashkirs are a Turkic people of the southern Urals.

Significance: A widely taught parable; James Joyce reportedly called it the greatest story in world literature.

Chapter quiz: item bank (all eleven rigor versions)

1. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 1: “An elder sister came to visit her _____ sister in the country.” Word bank: neighbours, sitting, younger, admission
   Key: younger
2. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “I gave away about one hundred roubles' worth of dressing-gowns and _____, besides a case of tea, and I gave wine to those who would drink it; and I got the land for less than twopence an acre.” Word bank: haggled, burdening, disparaged, carpets
   Key: carpets
3. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 29? “Finally he decided: 'It must be Simon-no one else could have done it.' So he went to Simon's _____ to have a look round, but he found nothing, and only had an angry scene.”
   A. though
   B. neighbours
   C. undertaking
   D. homestead

   Key: D (homestead)
4. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What do the Bashkirs offer?

    A. The Devil
    B. His wife
    C. A landlord
    D. A Bashkir

    Key: A (The Devil)

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 61 reveal about the character or situation? “While the Bashkírs were disputing, a man in a large fox-fur cap appeared on the scene.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 61) shows the situation turning on contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “disputing” and “appeared” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “Though a peasant's life is not a fat one, it is a long one.”
    B. “You live in better style than we do, but though you often earn more than you need, you are very likely to lose all you have.”
    C. “An elder sister came to visit her younger sister in the country.”
    D. “Yes, if you like to share with the pigs and the calves!”

    Key: C (“An elder sister came to visit her younger sister in the country.”)

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 29 reveal about the character or situation? “The case was tried, and re-tried, and at the end of it all Simon was acquitted, there being no evidence against him.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 29) shows the situation turning on contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “acquitted” and “evidence” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 41 shapes its tone: “He wanted to go on sowing wheat, but had not enough Communal land for the purpose, and what he had already used was not available; for in those parts wheat is only sown on virgin soil or on fallow land.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “available” and “already” (paragraph 41) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 5 shapes its tone: “Yes, if you like to share with the pigs and the calves!” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “calves” (paragraph 5) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “I have lost my life, I have lost my life” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 120) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.
    Sample answer: His realization. The evidence is “I have lost my life, I have lost my life” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 120). This develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “have” and “lost” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. He boasts "If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself," keeps pushing for more, cries "I have lost my life," and needs only "Six feet.".
17. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “The Bashkírs rose and _____, and the Chief came, too.” Word bank: disparaged, burdening, haggled, assembled
    Key: assembled
18. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “Pahóm's eyes _____: it was all virgin soil, as flat as the palm of your hand, as black as the seed of a poppy, and in the hollows different kinds of grasses grew breast high.” Word bank: disparaged, haggled, burdening, glistened
    Key: glistened
19. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “I have lost my life, I have lost my life” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 120) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: His realization. The evidence is “I have lost my life, I have lost my life” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 120). This develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.
20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 81 shapes its tone: “They gave Pahóm a feather-bed to sleep on, and the Bashkírs dispersed for the night, promising to assemble the next morning at daybreak and ride out before sunrise to the appointed spot.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “appointed” and “dispersed” (paragraph 81) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 34 shapes its tone: “One peasant, he said, had brought nothing with him but his bare hands, and now he had six horses and two cows of his own.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “peasant” and “brought” (paragraph 34) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 23 to the story's treatment of contentment: “The harvest was a good one, and within a year he had managed to pay off his debts both to the lady and to his brother-in-law.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 23) develops contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “managed” and “harvest” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Formerly, when he had passed by that land, it had appeared the same as any other land, but now it seemed quite…” (paragraph 23), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating contentment as central.
23. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8: “If I had plenty of land, I _____'t fear the Devil himself”
    Key: shouldn
24. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “He appealed to them most _____, but they still went on: now the Communal herdsmen would let the village cows stray into his meadows; then horses from the night pasture would get among his corn.” Word bank: burdening, civilly, haggled, disparaged
    Key: civilly
25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 54 to the story's treatment of contentment: “As soon as they saw Pahóm, they came out of their tents and gathered round their visitor.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 54) develops contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “gathered” and “visitor” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Pahóm took presents out of his cart and distributed them among the Bashkírs, and divided amongst them the tea.” (paragraph 54), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating contentment as central.
26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 15 to the story's treatment of contentment: “In the winter the news got about that the lady was going to sell her land, and that the keeper of the inn on the high road was bargaining for it.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 15) develops contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “bargaining” and “winter” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “So they decided to buy the land individually, each according to his means; and the lady agreed to this plan as she had…” (paragraph 17), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating contentment as central.
27. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · AP: AP-LIT.STR] What is the price?

    A. Ten rubles an acre

    B. His house

    C. A thousand rubles a day

    D. Nothing

    Key: C (A thousand rubles a day)
28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Synthesis: trace how greed develops from the opening of “How Much Land Does a Man Need?” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Near the start, “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8) — The boast. Later, “Six feet from his head to his heels was all he needed” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 125) — Ending. Each gain brings only dissatisfaction.
29. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · AP: AP-LIT.STR] What must Pahóm do to keep the land?

    A. Pay tax

B. Marry a Bashkir

C. Return to the starting point by sunset

D. Plant wheat

Key: C (Return to the starting point by sunset)

30. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Analyze the word choice in “Six feet from his head to his heels was all he needed” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 125). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: Ending. The evidence is “Six feet from his head to his heels was all he needed” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 125). This develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “needed” and “heels” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.

31. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Claim: Pahóm's greed destroys him. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8).

    Sample answer: He boasts "If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself," keeps pushing for more, cries "I have lost my life," and needs only "Six feet.". The evidence is “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8) — The boast. This develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction.

32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 50 to the story's treatment of contentment: “They are as simple as sheep, and land can be got almost for nothing.'” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 50) develops contentment: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “nothing” and “almost” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “They stopped at a town on their way, and bought a case of tea, some wine, and other presents, as the tradesman had…” (paragraph 53), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating contentment as central.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; AP: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In "How Much Land Does a Man Need?," how does Tolstoy show greed that grasps more than a person needs? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; AP: see unit standards): In How Much Land Does a Man Need?, how does Tolstoy develop the idea of greed that grasps more than a person needs? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the story helps build that idea. Read in the public-domain translation by Louise Maude and Aylmer Maude.

HS Sophomore (450 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how How Much Land Does a Man Need? develops the idea of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim. Read in the public-domain translation by Louise Maude and Aylmer Maude.

HS Junior (550 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of How Much Land Does a Man Need? (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; AP: see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what How Much Land Does a Man Need? suggests about greed that grasps more than a person needs. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's irony and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; AP: AP-LIT.NAR, AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Leo Tolstoy uses irony in How Much Land Does a Man Need? to complicate the reader's understanding of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; AP: see unit standards): Situate How Much Land Does a Man Need? within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of greed that grasps more than a person needs responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; AP: see unit standards): Read How Much Land Does a Man Need? alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of greed that grasps more than a person needs follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; AP: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to How Much Land Does a Man Need? and its treatment of greed that grasps more than a person needs. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's irony and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads How Much Land Does a Man Need? as evidence for a larger claim about greed that grasps more than a person needs in How Much Land Does a Man Need?. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads How Much Land Does a Man Need? as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of greed that grasps more than a person needs. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on How Much Land Does a Man Need?.

SAT-style questions

1. She had always lived on good terms with the peasants, until she engaged as her steward an old soldier, who took to burdening the people with fines.

   As used in the text, what does the word “burdening” most nearly mean?

   A. floor covering consisting of a piece of thick heavy fabric (usually with nap or pile)

   B. weight down with a load

   C. politely, with good manners

   D. create by putting components or members together

2. Close to the village there lived a lady, a small landowner, who had an estate of about three hundred acres. She had always lived on good terms with the peasants, until she engaged as her steward an old soldier, who took to burdening the people with fines. However careful Pahóm tried to be, it happened again and again that now a horse of his got among the lady's oats, now a cow strayed into her garden, now his calves found their way into her meadows—and he always had to pay a fine.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “How Much Land Does a Man Need?”?

   A. A family and a house collapsing together

   B. Greed that grasps more than a person needs

   C. Courage and guilt in a small community

   D. Science that poisons love

SAT key: 1. B (weight down with a load); 2. B (Greed that grasps more than a person needs)

10. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 17: “Then the _____ tried to arrange for the Commune to buy the whole estate, so that it might be held by all in common.” Word bank: growing, homestead, peasants, admission

    Key: peasants

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 53 reveal about the character or situation? “They stopped at a town on their way, and bought a case of tea, some wine, and other presents, as the tradesman had advised.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 53) shows the situation turning on the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “tradesman” and “presents” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 40 reveal about the character or situation? “Of the Communal land alone he had three times as much as at his former home, and the land was good corn-land.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 40) shows the situation turning on greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “former” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 3 reveal about the character or situation? “You live in better style than we do, but though you often earn more than you need, you are very likely to lose all you have.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 3) shows the situation turning on greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “better” and “though” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 17 reveal about the character or situation? “So they decided to buy the land individually, each according to his means; and the lady agreed to this plan as she had to the other.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 17) shows the situation turning on the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The words “individually” and “according” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 53 shapes its tone: “It was the women who prepared kumiss, and they also made cheese.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “prepared” and “cheese” (paragraph 53) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 63 shapes its tone: “Choose whatever piece of land you like; we have plenty of it.'” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “whatever” and “plenty” (paragraph 63) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 33 shapes its tone: “I would take over their land myself, and make my estate a bit bigger.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “myself” and “estate” (paragraph 33) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 7 to the story's treatment of the devil's temptation: “Pahóm, the master of the house, was lying on the top of the oven, and he listened to the women's chatter.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 7) develops the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “listened” and “chatter” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “I'll give you land enough; and by means of that land I will get you into my power.'” (paragraph 11), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the devil's temptation as central.
19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 54 shapes its tone: “Pahóm took presents out of his cart and distributed them among the Bashkírs, and divided amongst them the tea.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “distributed” and “presents” (paragraph 54) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 23 shapes its tone: “Formerly, when he had passed by that land, it had appeared the same as any other land, but now it seemed quite different.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “different” and “appeared” (paragraph 23) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 22 shapes its tone: “Having done this, Pahóm chose out a farm of forty acres, some of it wooded, and went to the lady to bargain for it.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “bargain” and “wooded” (paragraph 22) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 38 to the story's treatment of the devil's temptation: “He sold his land at a profit, sold his homestead and all his cattle, and withdrew from membership of the Commune.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 38) develops the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “membership” and “homestead” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Of the Communal land alone he had three times as much as at his former home, and the land was good corn-land.” (paragraph 40), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the devil's temptation as central.
23. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 44 shapes its tone: “He went on in the same way for three years; renting land and sowing wheat.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “renting” and “sowing” (paragraph 44) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 85 to the story's treatment of the devil's temptation: “Pahóm lay awake all night, and dozed off only just before dawn.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 85) develops the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “before” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “You live in better style than we do, but though you often earn more than you need, you are very likely to lose all you…” (paragraph 3), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the devil's temptation as central.
25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 27 to the story's treatment of greed: “He came nearer, and saw the stripped trunks lying on the ground, and close by stood the stumps, where the tree had been.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 27) develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “stripped” and “stumps” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The case was tried, and re-tried, and at the end of it all Simon was acquitted, there being no evidence against him.” (paragraph 29), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating greed as central.
26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 34 to the story's treatment of greed: “The stranger answered that he came from beyond the Volga, where he had been working.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 34) develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “answered” and “stranger” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “One peasant, he said, had brought nothing with him but his bare hands, and now he had six horses and two cows of his…” (paragraph 34), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating greed as central.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 80 to the story's treatment of greed: “You must start from that spot and make your round, taking a spade with you.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 80) develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “taking” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “They gave Pahóm a feather-bed to sleep on, and the Bashkírs dispersed for the night, promising to assemble the next…” (paragraph 81), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating greed as central.

28. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 11 shapes its tone: “I'll give you land enough; and by means of that land I will get you into my power.'” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “enough” (paragraph 11) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 57 to the story's treatment of greed: “Pahóm could not understand what they were saying, but saw that they were much amused, and that they shouted and laughed.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 57) develops greed: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “understand” and “shouted” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “While the Bashkírs were disputing, a man in a large fox-fur cap appeared on the scene.” (paragraph 61), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating greed as central.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 41 to the story's treatment of the devil's temptation: “Pahóm wanted to sow more wheat; so he rented land from a dealer for a year.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 41) develops the devil's temptation: each gain brings only dissatisfaction. Its words “dealer” and “rented” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He went on in the same way for three years; renting land and sowing wheat.” (paragraph 44), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the devil's temptation as central.

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] In the line “The younger sister was piqued, and in turn disparaged the life of a tradesman, and stood up for that of a peasant.”, what does “disparaged” most nearly mean?

    A. weight down with a load

    B. argued over a price

    C. spoke of something as having little worth

    D. land owned outright

    Key: C (spoke of something as having little worth)

Final paper

How Much Land Does a Man Need?: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Leo Tolstoy develops greed across How Much Land Does a Man Need?. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in How Much Land Does a Man Need? and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to contentment.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in How Much Land Does a Man Need?. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether How Much Land Does a Man Need? finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of the devil's temptation. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words

Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.

Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Pahóm's greed destroys him. The text makes this visible when it says “If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself” (How Much Land Does a Man Need?, paragraph 8). He boasts "If I had plenty of land, I shouldn't fear the Devil himself," keeps pushing for more, cries "I have lost my life," and needs only "Six feet.". A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.

Essay assignments

Essay: Greed

Scaffolded support (600 words; AP: see unit standards): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what How Much Land Does a Man Need? teaches about greed. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Leo Tolstoy develops greed in How Much Land Does a Man Need?. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; AP: see unit standards): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Leo Tolstoy develops greed across How Much Land Does a Man Need?. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; AP: see unit standards): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of How Much Land Does a Man Need? (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of greed. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of greed in How Much Land Does a Man Need?. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; AP: AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Leo Tolstoy's choices in How Much Land Does a Man Need?
