Essential questions

- What does Young Goodman Brown suggest about faith and doubt?
- What does Young Goodman Brown suggest about hypocrisy?
- What does Young Goodman Brown suggest about the nature of evil?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Nathaniel Hawthorne was born in Salem, Massachusetts, on 4 July 1804; his ancestor John Hathorne was a judge in the Salem witch trials of 1692, a family history Hawthorne felt as a burden. He later changed the spelling of his surname to Hawthorne; why is uncertain, though many link it to his discomfort with his ancestors. After graduating from Bowdoin College in 1825 he spent years writing in near-seclusion in Salem, publishing Twice-Told Tales in 1837. He lived briefly at the utopian Brook Farm community, worked at the Salem Custom House, and achieved fame with The Scarlet Letter (1850) and The House of the Seven Gables (1851). He served as U.S. consul in Liverpool and died on 19 May 1864 in Plymouth, New Hampshire.

Historical and cultural context

The story is set in Salem village in Puritan New England, around the end of the seventeenth century, the world of the 1692 witch trials. Hawthorne's great-great-grandfather John Hathorne was a judge at those trials, and Hawthorne added the "w" to his name partly to distance himself from that inheritance. Puritans believed in human depravity and watched one another for signs of sin.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published anonymously in the New-England Magazine in April 1835; collected in Mosses from an Old Manse (1846).

Then: Little noticed at first; Herman Melville praised the story warmly in his 1850 essay "Hawthorne and His Mosses."

Now: A central text of American Romanticism and "dark romanticism," studied for its allegory and its deliberate ambiguity.

Overview (spoiler-free)

A young Puritan husband leaves his new wife, Faith, for one night to keep a mysterious appointment in the forest with a traveller who carries a serpent-like staff.

Main themes

- loss of faith and innocence: Faith is both his wife and his belief.
- hypocrisy: the "pious" townspeople in the forest.
- ambiguity and suspicion: not knowing the truth destroys him.

Why it matters

The story asks what happens when we see evil in everyone, and how suspicion poisons a community, from 1692 Salem to modern rumour.

Spoilers · teacher only

In the forest he sees the town's most respected people, and apparently Faith, gathering for a witches' meeting; he calls on her to resist and wakes alone. Whether it was a dream or not, he lives the rest of his life gloomy and distrustful, and dies without hope.

Next, craft. I notice he hesitates on the threshold, a sign of doubt. The strongest word is "sunset": it is the start of night and darkness, matching the journey into evil. Then, effect. What does this first sentence suggest about Brown's journey? My answer: He is leaving goodness behind for something dark; the hesitation hints he knows the journey is wrong.

In Puritan Salem, Goodman Brown leaves his new wife Faith for a night errand in the forest, where he walks with a traveler resembling his own grandfather, carrying a serpent-like staff. He sees pious townspeople, his minister and finally Faith herself gathering for a witches' communion. He cries out for Faith to resist and finds himself alone. Whether dream or not, he lives out his life gloomy and distrustful, and 'his dying hour was gloom.'

Background: Hawthorne (1835) was descended from John Hathorne, a judge at the 1692 Salem witch trials.

Significance: An allegory central to American literature courses; in Gale's Short Stories for Students vol. 1.

Allegory: Names are meanings: Goodman Brown (an everyman) and Faith; the journey into the forest is a journey into doubt. Symbolism: The pink ribbons tie Faith to innocence; when one floats down from the sky, Brown despairs. Ambiguity: Hawthorne repeatedly hedges ("Had Goodman Brown fallen asleep in the forest and only dreamed a wild dream of a witch-meeting?"). First, meaning. I read "My Faith is gone" slowly and put it in my own words: When Brown sees his wife's pink ribbon in the forest, he cries that his Faith is gone. Next, craft. I notice "Faith" is both his wife's name and his religious belief. The strongest word is "Faith": the double meaning means he has lost both his wife's innocence and his trust in goodness. Then, effect. What does Brown mean when he cries "My Faith is gone"? My answer: When Brown cries "My Faith is gone," he means both his wife Faith and his belief that anyone is good; the line marks the moment his view of the world turns dark.

Then start your writing prompt at your assigned level (HS Sophomore: Analyze how Young Goodman Brown develops the idea of the loss of faith in human goodness. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of allusion and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.) Exemplar: Brown's real loss is not the evil he sees but his inability to trust anyone afterward. When the text says “A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164), it shows this directly. Whether the meeting was real or a dream, he becomes "a stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man," turning from Faith herself; the vision teaches him that "Evil is the nature of mankind," and he can never unlearn it.

   Key: doubting

10. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “They continued to walk onward, while the elder traveller exhorted his companion to make good speed and _____ in the path, discoursing so aptly that his arguments seemed rather to spring up in the bosom of his auditor than to be suggested by himself.” Word bank: intercepted, persevere, auditor, nettled

    Key: persevere

11. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “The good old minister was taking a walk along the graveyard to get an appetite for breakfast and _____ his sermon, and bestowed a blessing, as he passed, on Goodman Brown.” Word bank: auditor, intercepted, meditate, nettled

    Key: meditate

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 1 reveal about the character or situation? “And Faith, as the wife was aptly named, thrust her own pretty head into the street, letting the wind play with the pink ribbons of her cap while she called to Goodman Brown.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 1) shows the situation turning on faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “letting” and “ribbons” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 97 reveal about the character or situation? “He had cast up his eyes in astonishment, and, looking down again, beheld neither Goody Cloyse nor the serpentine staff, but his fellow-traveller alone, who waited for him as calmly as if nothing had happened.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 97) shows the situation turning on faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “astonishment” and “serpentine” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 7 shapes its tone: “So they parted; and the young man pursued his way until, being” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “pursued” and “parted” (paragraph 7) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 123 shapes its tone: “There was a scream, drowned immediately in a louder murmur of voices, fading into far-off laughter, as the dark cloud swept away, leaving the clear and silent sky above Goodman Brown.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “immediately” and “laughter” (paragraph 123) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 134 to the story's treatment of faith and doubt: “In the interval of silence he stole forward until the light glared full upon his eyes.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 134) develops faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “interval” and “forward” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “As the red light arose and fell, a numerous congregation alternately shone forth, then disappeared in shadow, and again…” (paragraph 134), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating faith and doubt as central.

17. [mc · recall · DOK 1] How does Brown live after that night?

    A. As an exile

    B. As a minister

    C. Stern, sad and distrustful until death

    D. Happily with Faith

    Key: C (Stern, sad and distrustful until death)

18. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 149: “Evil is the nature of _____”

    Key: mankind

19. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “My Faith is gone” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 124) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The pun. The evidence is “My Faith is gone” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 124). This develops loss of faith and innocence: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone.

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Claim: Brown's real loss is not the evil he sees but his inability to trust anyone afterward. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164).

    Sample answer: Whether the meeting was real or a dream, he becomes "a stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man," turning from Faith herself; the vision teaches him that "Evil is the nature of mankind," and he can never unlearn it. The evidence is “A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164) — His fate. This develops loss of faith and innocence: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone.

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 133 to the story's treatment of faith and doubt: “On he flew among the black pines, brandishing his staff with frenzied gestures, now giving vent to an inspiration of horrid blasphemy, and now shouting forth such laughter as set all the echoes of the forest laughing like demons around him.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 133) develops faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “inspiration” and “brandishing” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He paused, in a lull of the tempest that had driven him onward, and heard the swell of what seemed a hymn, rolling…” (paragraph 133), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating faith and doubt as central.

22. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “On came the hoof tramps and the voices of the riders, two grave old voices, _____ soberly as they drew near.” Word bank: nettled, conversing, intercepted, auditor

    Key: conversing

23. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Whom does Brown see in the forest?

    A. Only strangers

    B. Indians only

    C. Pious townspeople and his minister

    D. No one

    Key: C (Pious townspeople and his minister)

24. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 21 shapes its tone: “South was striking as I came through Boston, and that is full” Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: The words “striking” and “through” (paragraph 21) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 118 shapes its tone: “While he still gazed upward into the deep arch of the firmament and had lifted his hands to pr ay, a cloud, though no wind was stirring, hurried across the zenith and hid the brightening stars.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “brightening” and “firmament” (paragraph 118) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “My Faith is gone” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 124) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: The pun. The evidence is “My Faith is gone” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 124). This develops loss of faith and innocence: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Whether the meeting was real or a dream, he becomes "a stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man," turning from Faith herself; the vision teaches him that "Evil is the nature of mankind," and he can never unlearn it.

27. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 1: “Young Goodman Brown came forth at sunset into the street at Salem village; but put his head back, after crossing the _____, to exchange a parting kiss with his young wife.” Word bank: tremble, people, acquainted, threshold

    Key: threshold

28. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze the word choice in “A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: His fate. The evidence is “A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164). This develops loss of faith and innocence: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “distrustful” and “meditative” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 44 to the story's treatment of faith and doubt: “They were my good friends, both; and many a pleasant walk have we had along this path, and returned merrily after midnight.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 44) develops faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “pleasant” and “midnight” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “But, were I to go on with thee, how should I meet the eye of that good old man, our minister, at Salem village?” (paragraph 56), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating faith and doubt as central.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 82 to the story's treatment of faith and doubt: “Accordingly the young man turned aside, but took care to watch his companion, who advanced softly along the road until he had come within a staff's length of the old dame.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 82) develops faith and doubt: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “companion” and “advanced” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The traveller put forth his staff and touched her withered neck with what seemed the serpent's tail.” (paragraph 82), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating faith and doubt as central.

Sample answer: The devil's sermon. The evidence is “Evil is the nature of mankind” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 149). This develops loss of faith and innocence: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone.

38. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · Program outcome: LeL-C4-LIT-1] Which choice best states a central concern of “Young Goodman Brown”?

A. The loss of faith in human goodness

B. The art of the deadpan tall tale

C. Self-destruction and the urge to do wrong

D. Science that poisons love

Key: A (The loss of faith in human goodness)

39. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-GR-LIT-1] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Evil is the nature of mankind” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 149) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

Sample answer: The devil's sermon. The evidence is “Evil is the nature of mankind” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 149). This develops loss of faith and innocence: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “mankind” and “nature” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. Whether the meeting was real or a dream, he becomes "a stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man," turning from Faith herself; the vision teaches him that "Evil is the nature of mankind," and he can never unlearn it.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “Young Goodman Brown,” how does Hawthorne show the loss of faith in human goodness? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the allusion you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): In Young Goodman Brown, how does Hawthorne develop the idea of the loss of faith in human goodness? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the allusion in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how Young Goodman Brown develops the idea of the loss of faith in human goodness. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of allusion and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of Young Goodman Brown (where it begins, turns and ends) and its allusion shape the reader's understanding of the loss of faith in human goodness. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what Young Goodman Brown suggests about the loss of faith in human goodness. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's allusion and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Nathaniel Hawthorne uses allusion in Young Goodman Brown to complicate the reader's understanding of the loss of faith in human goodness. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.3, ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.1): Situate Young Goodman Brown within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of the loss of faith in human goodness responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Read Young Goodman Brown alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of the loss of faith in human goodness follows or bends those conventions, using the allusion as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Young Goodman Brown and its treatment of the loss of faith in human goodness. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's allusion and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads Young Goodman Brown as evidence for a larger claim about the loss of faith in human goodness in Young Goodman Brown. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads Young Goodman Brown as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of the loss of faith in human goodness. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Young Goodman Brown.

SAT-style questions

1. They continued to walk onward, while the elder traveller exhorted his companion to make good speed and persevere in the path, discoursing so aptly that his arguments seemed rather to spring up in the bosom of his auditor than to be suggested by himself.

   As used in the text, what does the word “auditor” most nearly mean?

   A. carry on a conversation

   B. someone who listens attentively

   C. to a great extent or degree

   D. feeling unsure

2. They continued to walk onward, while the elder traveller exhorted his companion to make good speed and persevere in the path, discoursing so aptly that his arguments seemed rather to spring up in the bosom of his auditor than to be suggested by himself. As they went, he plucked a branch of maple to serve for a walking stick, and began to strip it of the twigs and little boughs, which were wet with evening dew. The moment his fingers touched them they became strangely withered and dried up as with a week's sunshine. Thus the pair proceeded, at a good free pace, until suddenly, in a gloomy hollow of the road, Goodman Brown sat himself down on the stump of a tree and refused to go any farther.

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Young Goodman Brown”?

   A. A reversal that punishes a change of heart

   B. The foolishness of wishing to be young again

   C. Guilt that the mind cannot hide

   D. The loss of faith in human goodness

SAT key: 1. B (someone who listens attentively); 2. D (The loss of faith in human goodness)

[fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 26: “But the only thing about him that could be fixed upon as _____ was his staff, which bore the likeness of a great black snake, so curiously wrought that it might almost be seen to twist and wriggle itself like a living serpent.” Word bank: through, indistinct, journey, remarkable

    Key: remarkable

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 133 reveal about the character or situation? “He paused, in a lull of the tempest that had driven him onward, and heard the swell of what seemed a hymn, rolling solemnly from a distance with the weight of many voices.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 133) shows the situation turning on hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “distance” and “solemnly” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “So they parted; and the young man pursued his way until, being”

    B. “What, my sweet, pretty wife, dost thou doubt me already, and we but three months married?’”

C. “Then God bless you!’ said Faith, with the pink ribbons; ‘and may you find all well when you come back.”

D. “My journey, as thou callest it, forth and back again, must needs be done 'twixt now and sunrise.”

Key: D (“My journey, as thou callest it, forth and back again, must needs be done 'twixt now and sunrise.”)

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 118 reveal about the character or situation? “The next moment, so indistinct were the sounds, he doubted whether he had heard aught but the murmur of the old forest, whispering without a wind.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 118) shows the situation turning on the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “indistinct” and “whispering” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 56 reveal about the character or situation? “But, were I to go on with thee, how should I meet the eye of that good old man, our minister, at Salem village?” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 56) shows the situation turning on hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “minister” and “village” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 127 shapes its tone: “But he was himself the chief horror of the scene, and shrank not from its other horrors.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: The words “himself” and “horrors” (paragraph 127) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 109 shapes its tone: “The young man sat a few moments by the roadside, applauding himself greatly, and thinking with how clear a conscience he should meet the minister in his morning walk, nor shrink from the eye of good old Deacon Gookin.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: The words “conscience” and “applauding” (paragraph 109) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 136 to the story's treatment of the nature of evil: “Either the sudden gleams of light flashing over the obscure field bedazzled Goodman Brown, or he recognized a score of the church members of Salem village famous for their especial sanctity.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 136) develops the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “recognized” and “bedazzled” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “And Faith, as the wife was aptly named, thrust her own pretty head into the street, letting the wind play with the pink…” (paragraph 1), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the nature of evil as central.

18. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 12 reveal about the character or situation? “He had taken a dreary road, darkened by all the gloomiest trees of the forest, which barely stood aside to let the narrow path creep through, and closed immediately behind.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 12) shows the situation turning on the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The words “immediately” and “gloomiest” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 134 shapes its tone: “As the red light arose and fell, a numerous congregation alternately shone forth, then disappeared in shadow, and again grew, as it were, out of the darkness, peopling the heart of the solitary woods at once.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “congregation” and “alternately” (paragraph 134) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 2 shapes its tone: “Pray tarry with me this night, dear husband, of all nights in the year.’” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “husband” and “nights” (paragraph 2) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 133 shapes its tone: “The verse died heavily away, and was lengthened by a chorus, not of human voices, but of all the sounds of the benighted wilderness pealing in awful harmony together.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “lengthened” and “wilderness” (paragraph 133) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 11 to the story's treatment of hypocrisy: “Well, she's a blessed angel on earth; and after this one night I'll cling to her skirts and follow her to heaven.’” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 11) develops hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “blessed” and “heaven” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He had taken a dreary road, darkened by all the gloomiest trees of the forest, which barely stood aside to let the…” (paragraph 12), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hypocrisy as central.
23. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 70 shapes its tone: “As he spoke he pointed his staff at a female figure on the path,” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “pointed” and “female” (paragraph 70) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 118 to the story's treatment of hypocrisy: “Aloft in the air, as if from the depths of the cloud, came a confused and doubtful sound of voices.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 118) develops hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “doubtful” and “confused” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The next moment, so indistinct were the sounds, he doubted whether he had heard aught but the murmur of the old forest,…” (paragraph 118), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hypocrisy as central.
25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 93 to the story's treatment of the nature of evil: “But now your good worship will lend me your arm, and we shall be” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 93) develops the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “worship” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He had cast up his eyes in astonishment, and, looking down again, beheld neither Goody Cloyse nor the serpentine staff,…” (paragraph 97), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the nature of evil as central.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 82 shapes its tone: “The traveller put forth his staff and touched her withered neck with what seemed the serpent's tail.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “serpent's” and “traveller” (paragraph 82) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

27. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 26 shapes its tone: “This, of course, must have been an ocular deception, assisted by the uncertain light.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “deception” and “uncertain” (paragraph 26) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 26 to the story's treatment of hypocrisy: “As nearly as could be discerned, the second traveller was about fifty years old, apparently in the same rank of life as Goodman Brown, and bearing a considerable resemblance to him, though perhaps more in expression than features.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 26) develops hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “considerable” and “resemblance” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “This, of course, must have been an ocular deception, assisted by the uncertain light.” (paragraph 26), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hypocrisy as central.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 3 to the story's treatment of the nature of evil: “What, my sweet, pretty wife, dost thou doubt me already, and we but three months married?'” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 3) develops the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “already” and “married” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “So they parted; and the young man pursued his way until, being” (paragraph 7), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the nature of evil as central.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 127 to the story's treatment of hypocrisy: “And, maddened with despair, so that he laughed loud and long, did Goodman Brown grasp his staff and set forth again, at such a rate that he seemed to fly along the forest path rather than to walk or run.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 127) develops hypocrisy: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words “maddened” and “laughed” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “But he was himself the chief horror of the scene, and shrank not from its other horrors.” (paragraph 127), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hypocrisy as central.

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 111 to the story's treatment of the nature of evil: “They tell me that some of our community are to be here from Falmouth and beyond, and others from Connecticut and Rhode Island, besides several of the Indian powwows, who, after their fashion, know almost as much deviltry as the best of us.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 111) develops the nature of evil: once Brown believes all are sinners, he cannot love anyone. Its words "community" and "deviltry" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "While he still gazed upward into the deep arch of the firmament and had lifted his hands to pr ay, a cloud, though no…" (paragraph 118), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the nature of evil as central.

Final paper

Young Goodman Brown: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Nathaniel Hawthorne develops faith and doubt across Young Goodman Brown. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in Young Goodman Brown and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to hypocrisy.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in Young Goodman Brown. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether Young Goodman Brown finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of the nature of evil. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.

Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Brown's real loss is not the evil he sees but his inability to trust anyone afterward. The text makes this visible when it says “A stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man did he become” (Young Goodman Brown, paragraph 164). Whether the meeting was real or a dream, he becomes "a stern, a sad, a darkly meditative, a distrustful, if not a desperate man," turning from Faith herself; the vision teaches him that "Evil is the nature of mankind," and he can never unlearn it. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.
