Essential questions

- What does The Most Dangerous Game suggest about hunter and hunted?
- What does The Most Dangerous Game suggest about civilization and savagery?
- What does The Most Dangerous Game suggest about survival?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Richard Connell was born in Poughkeepsie, New York, on 17 October 1893. He reported for newspapers as a teenager, graduated from Harvard, worked in advertising and served in France in the First World War. He became a prolific magazine writer and Hollywood screenwriter; his story for Meet John Doe (1941) earned an Academy Award nomination. He died in Beverly Hills on 22 November 1949.

Historical and cultural context

Written after the First World War, in which Connell served, and at the height of the fashion for big-game hunting safaris among wealthy Americans and Europeans. General Zaroff is a Cossack aristocrat who fled the Russian Revolution of 1917.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in Collier's on 19 January 1924; it won the O. Henry Memorial Award.

Then: An instant popular success, filmed in 1932.

Now: One of the most-taught stories in American schools, the model of suspense and the source of countless "human hunt" plots.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Rainsford, a famous big-game hunter, falls overboard near the mysterious Ship-Trap Island and finds the château of General Zaroff, who has grown bored with hunting animals.

Main themes

- hunter and hunted.
- civilization versus savagery.
- reason and instinct.

Why it matters

It asks students to think about empathy and violence, and teaches suspense and conflict.

Spoilers · teacher only

Zaroff hunts shipwrecked men; he hunts Rainsford for three days. Rainsford escapes by leaping into the sea, ambushes Zaroff in his bedroom, and the story ends with Rainsford sleeping in Zaroff's bed, implying he killed him.

First, meaning. I read "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" slowly and put it in my own words: Rainsford claims the world is made up of two classes, the hunters and the huntees. Next, craft. I notice the confident, simple claim, stated as if it were a law of nature. The strongest word is "classes": it sorts living things into fixed ranks, the same logic Zaroff uses to justify hunting men. Then, effect. How does Rainsford's line set up the irony of the whole story? My answer: Rainsford's own belief will be turned against him when Zaroff decides humans are fair prey; the line forces him to face what his attitude means once he becomes the hunted.

Lesson 2: The Most Dangerous Game

Focus: the hunter becoming the hunted

Objective: Students will analyze how conflict develops in "The Most Dangerous Game" by writing a claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph that cites at least 2 quotations from the section, and will score at least 80% on the section quiz.

Standards: Cambridge International: see the unit standards

Content note (killing of humans for sport, violence, zaroff's racist hierarchy of victims (racist language), alcohol or drugs (mentioned)): Sensitive content: Killing of humans for sport; violence; Zaroff's racist hierarchy of victims (racist language). Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. This section mentions drinking or a drug ("… le the general was sitting, alone. "You'll have a cocktail, Mr. Rainsford," he suggested. The cock…"). Treat it as period custom or plot detail; name it plainly and don't glamorize it.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes killing of humans for sport; violence; Zaroff's racist hierarchy of victims (racist language).

I read "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" slowly and put it in my own words: On the yacht, Rainsford tells Whitney that the world is made up of two classes, hunters and huntees. Next, craft. I notice the neat two-part division and the made-up joking word "huntees," which makes the hunted sound unimportant. The strongest word is "huntees": the comic word shows he gives no thought to how the hunted animal feels. Then, effect. What does Rainsford's view of the world show about him at the start? My answer: At the start, Rainsford's view that the world is made of hunters and huntees shows his confidence that he will always be the hunter; the story reverses this by making him Zaroff's prey.

1. What does “The Most Dangerous Game” suggest about the hunter becoming the hunted? State the inference and the line that supports it. [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Among the most anthologized American stories; it appears in Glencoe's grade 9 lesson plans and Gale's Short Stories for Students, vol. 1.
2. Find one example of conflict in this story. What does it reveal that a plain statement would not? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for the forces, people or desires pulling against each other.
3. How does the foreshadowing in this story shape what we understand about the hunter becoming the hunted? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for hints, warnings or images that point to later events.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14): His early philosophy. On foreshadowing: Ship-Trap Island's reputation and Rainsford's dismissal of animals' feelings. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
4. In the passage that begins “He struggled up to the surface and tried to cry out, but the wash from the speeding yacht slapped him in the face and the salt water in his open mouth made him gag and strangle.”, why might Connell have chosen these particular words? Pick two and explain their connotations. [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Diction analysis of two words in the anchor passage.
5. What causes the main turn in “The Most Dangerous Game”, and what effect is it likely to have on what follows? [DOK 2 · followUp · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Big-game hunter Sanger Rainsford falls overboard near Ship-Trap Island and finds the chateau of General Zaroff, a Russian aristocrat bored with hunting animals who now hunts shipwrecked sailors. Rainsford refuses to join and becomes the prey for three days. He builds traps that kill a servant and a…
6. As the opening story, what does “The Most Dangerous Game” set up that the rest of The Most Dangerous Game will need? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A causal or structural link between this and the previous story.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95): Zaroff's belief. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211): The ending. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

8. The bell-ringer asked: “Is it ever acceptable to hunt for sport? Where would you draw the line?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does irony appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with hunter and hunted? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: Look for gaps between what characters expect or say and what is true.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14): His early philosophy. On irony: The hunter becomes the hunted; Zaroff's "civilized" manners hide savagery. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Published in Collier's on 19 January 1924, after the First World War, in which Connell served. Big-game safaris were a fashionable sport. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO2] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.

    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Useful evidence: “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95): Zaroff's belief. Theme link: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

Evaluative / synthesis / creative

1. A critic might argue: “Among the most anthologized American stories; it appears in Glencoe's grade 9 lesson plans and Gale's Short Stories for Students, vol. 1.” How far do you agree? Take a stand and defend it with two lines from the story. [DOK 3 · fourCorners · wait 8 s · CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5] Look for: A defended position with evidence and one counterpoint.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Rainsford's early view is turned against him.    B. A month
   C. Three days
   D. One night

   Key: C (Three days)

9. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 113? "I refuse to believe that so modern and _____ a young man as you seem to be harbours romantic ideas about the value of human life."

   A. civilized
   B. pinched
   C. surmounted
   D. recognized

   Key: A (civilized)

10. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "I, _____, had invested heavily in American securities, so I shall never have to open a tea room in Monte Carlo or drive a taxi in Paris." Word bank: luckily, wrestled, complimented, bizarre

    Key: luckily

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 21 reveal about the character or situation? "Those fishy blue eyes held a look I never saw there before." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 21) shows the situation turning on hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words "before" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: His early philosophy. The evidence is "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees" (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14). This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 117 reveal about the character or situation? "But I think I can show you that your scruples are quite ill founded." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 117) shows the situation turning on hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words "scruples" and "founded" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 42 shapes its tone: "The last shot was when he trailed it here and finished it." Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words "finished" and "trailed" (paragraph 42) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 34 shapes its tone: "It came out of the darkness, a high, screaming sound, the sound of an animal in an extremity of anguish and terror." Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words "extremity" and "screaming" (paragraph 34) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 190 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: "When the general, nursing his bruised shoulder, had gone, Rainsford took up his flight again." Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 190) develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words "shoulder" and "general" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "Rainsford had dug himself in in France when a second's delay meant death." (paragraph 192), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hunter and hunted as central.
17. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "There, _____ in and out in the pattern of shadow, were black, noiseless forms; the hounds heard him at the window and looked up, expectantly, with their green eyes." Word bank: wrestled, bizarre, weaving, complimented
    Key: weaving
18. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What does Zaroff hunt?

    A. Wild boars
    B. Tigers
    C. Human beings
    D. Deer

    Key: C (Human beings)
19. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14: "The world is made up of two _____—the hunters and the huntees"
    Key: classes
20. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95: "Instinct is no match for _____"
    Key: reason
21. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 49? "The _____ pointed as rigidly as if the giant were a statue."

    A. cigarette
    B. remarkable
    C. revolver
    D. headlong

    Key: C (revolver)

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 175 shapes its tone: “He had not been entirely clear-headed when the château gates snapped shut behind him.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “entirely” and “snapped” (paragraph 175) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 51 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: “The man’s only answer was to raise with his thumb the hammer of his revolver.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 51) develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “revolver” and “hammer” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Ivan had reappeared, and the general spoke to him with lips that moved but gave forth no sound.” (paragraph 60), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hunter and hunted as central.

24. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 31? “The cry was _____ off short as the blood-warm waters of the Caribbean Sea closed over his head.”

    A. deliberateness
    B. pinched
    C. moonless
    D. mental

    Key: B (pinched)

25. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What is Ship-Trap Island known for?

    A. Rare birds
    B. A lighthouse
    C. Sailors' dread of it
    D. Gold mines

    Key: C (Sailors' dread of it)

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 142 shapes its tone: “And now,’ said the general, ‘I want to show you my new collection of heads.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “collection” and “general” (paragraph 142) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 72 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: “I’ve always thought,’ said Rainsford, ‘that the Cape buffalo is the most dangerous of all big game.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 72) develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “dangerous” and “thought” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “You are much younger than I am, Mr. Rainsford, and have not hunted as much, but you perhaps can guess the answer.” (paragraph 91), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hunter and hunted as central.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Evaluate this claim about the story: “Rainsford's early view is turned against him.” Is it fully persuasive? Argue with evidence, including a passage that complicates it.

    Sample answer: The claim is persuasive in part. “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) supports it: He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too. But “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95) complicates it: the line (Zaroff's belief) shows the same issue from another side, and its “no” marks a limit or reversal the claim passes over. Weighing the two passages, the claim survives, but only once it admits the tension the second passage creates.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 181 to the story's treatment of hunter and hunted: “The general’s eyes had left the ground and were traveling inch by inch up the tree.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 181) develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “traveling” and “general” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He slid down from the tree, and struck off again into the woods.” (paragraph 186), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hunter and hunted as central.

30. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “Whenever he looked up from his plate he found the general studying him, appraising him _____.” Word bank: narrowly, bizarre, wrestled, complimented
    Key: narrowly

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] In the line “He wrestled himself out of his clothes, and shouted with all his power.”, what does “wrestled” most nearly mean?
    A. praised
    B. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual
    C. struggled with effort (out of something)
    D. diffusing warmth and friendliness

    Key: C (struggled with effort (out of something))

32. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Which choice best states a central concern of “The Most Dangerous Game”?
    A. A story so convincing it becomes real
    B. The art of the deadpan tall tale
    C. The hunter becoming the hunted
    D. Waking into a changed nation

    Key: C (The hunter becoming the hunted)

33. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Claim: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14).
    Sample answer: He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too. The evidence is “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) — His early philosophy. This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

34. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Analyze the word choice in “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.
    Sample answer: The ending. The evidence is “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211). This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words “decided” and “better” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.

35. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Which literary element does this describe in “The Most Dangerous Game”? Ship-Trap Island's reputation and Rainsford's dismissal of animals' feelings.
    A. Alliteration
    B. Foreshadowing
    C. Imagery
    D. Theme

    Key: B (Foreshadowing)

36. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] In the line “He was finding the general a most thoughtful and affable host, a true cosmopolite.”, what does “affable” most nearly mean?
    A. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual
    B. diffusing warmth and friendliness
    C. struggled with effort (out of something)
    D. praised

    Key: B (diffusing warmth and friendliness)

37. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Synthesis: trace how hunter and hunted develops from the opening of “The Most Dangerous Game” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Near the start, “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14) — His early philosophy. Later, “He had never slept in a better bed, Rainsford decided” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 211) — The ending. Rainsford learns empathy through terror.

38. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.
    Sample answer: Zaroff's belief. The evidence is “Instinct is no match for reason” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 95). This develops hunter and hunted: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words “reason” and “match” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too.

39. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-GR-LIT-1] In the line “Rainsford’s first impression was that the man was singularly handsome; his second was that there was an original, almost bizarre quality about the general’s face.”, what does “bizarre” most nearly mean?
    A. praised
    B. diffusing warmth and friendliness
    C. struggled with effort (out of something)
    D. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual

    Key: D (conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual)

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Most Dangerous Game,” how does Connell show the hunter becoming the hunted? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the conflict you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): In The Most Dangerous Game, how does Connell develop the idea of the hunter becoming the hunted? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the conflict in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Analyze how The Most Dangerous Game develops the idea of the hunter becoming the hunted. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of conflict and foreshadowing shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO3): Analyze how the structure of The Most Dangerous Game (where it begins, turns and ends) and its conflict shape the reader's understanding of the hunter becoming the hunted. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3, CAIE-9695.AO5): Two readers disagree about what The Most Dangerous Game suggests about the hunter becoming the hunted. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's conflict and foreshadowing), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2, CAIE-9695.AO4): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Richard Connell uses conflict in The Most Dangerous Game to complicate the reader's understanding of the hunter becoming the hunted. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Situate The Most Dangerous Game within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of the hunter becoming the hunted responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Read The Most Dangerous Game alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of the hunter becoming the hunted follows or bends those conventions, using the conflict as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Most Dangerous Game and its treatment of the hunter becoming the hunted. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's conflict and foreshadowing, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Most Dangerous Game as evidence for a larger claim about the hunter becoming the hunted in The Most Dangerous Game. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Cambridge International: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Most Dangerous Game as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of the hunter becoming the hunted. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Most Dangerous Game.

SAT-style questions

1. When I shot some of his prize turkeys with it, he did not punish me; he complimented me on my marksmanship.

   As used in the text, what does the word “complimented” most nearly mean?

   A. utter words of protest

   B. interlace by or as if by weaving

   C. praised

   D. to express pleasure at someone's good fortune

2. He struggled up to the surface and tried to cry out, but the wash from the speeding yacht slapped him in the face and the salt water in his open mouth made him gag and strangle. Desperately he struck out with strong strokes after the receding lights of the yacht, but he stopped before he had swum fifty feet. A certain cool-headedness had come to him; it was not the first time he had been in a tight place. There was a chance that his cries could be heard by someone aboard the yacht, but that chance was slender, and grew more slender as the yacht raced on. He wrestled himself out of his clothes, and shouted with all his power. The lights of the yacht became faint and ever-vanishing fireflies; then they were blotted out entirely by the night.

Which choice best states a central concern of "The Most Dangerous Game"?

A. The hunter becoming the hunted

B. Love and rivalry destroyed by racial violence

C. Reason struggling against terror

D. The cost of wanting to seem richer than you are

SAT key: 1. C (praised); 2. A (The hunter becoming the hunted)

Unit test

The Most Dangerous Game: end test · 90 minutes · 18 questions per rigor version (multiple choice, fill in the blank, short answer). The class rigor level picks the version; student auto-adjust applies.

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

Unit test: item bank (all eleven rigor versions)

1. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 43? “Eagerly he hurried along, now slipping on a rotten log or a loose stone, but making headway; night was _____ to settle down on the island.”

   A. remarkable
   B. beginning
   C. unreality
   D. recognized

   Key: B (beginning)

2. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 37: “Ten minutes of _____ effort brought another sound to his ears—the most welcome he had ever heard—the muttering and growling of the sea breaking on a rocky shore.” Word bank: cigarette, determined, civilized, moonless

   Key: determined

3. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 22? “What I felt was a—a _____ chill; a sort of sudden dread.”

   A. mental
   B. determined
   C. civilized
   D. thought

   Key: A (mental)

4. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 37? “He flung himself down at the jungle edge and tumbled _____ into the deepest sleep of his life.”

   A. surmounted
   B. headlong
   C. pinched
   D. glittering

   Key: B (headlong)

5. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 29: “It’s so dark,’ he _____, ‘that I could sleep without closing my eyes; the night would be my eyelids——” Word bank: surmounted, deliberateness, mental, thought

   Key: thought

6. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 45: “The stone steps were real enough; the massive door with a leering gargoyle for a knocker was real enough; yet above it all hung an air of _____.” Word bank: unreality, mental, deliberateness, beginning

   Key: unreality

7. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 52: “In a cultivated voice marked by a slight accent that gave it added precision and _____, he said: ‘It is a very great pleasure and honour to welcome Mr. Sanger Rainsford, the celebrated hunter, to my home.’” Word bank: moonless, deliberateness, recognized, thought

   Key: deliberateness

8. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 63? “The dining room to which Ivan conducted him was in many ways _____.”

   A. deliberateness
   B. pinched
   C. remarkable
   D. thought

   Key: C (remarkable)

9. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 99: “The general smiled the quiet smile of one who has faced an obstacle and _____ it with success.” Word bank: deliberateness, surmounted, moonless, determined

   Key: surmounted

10. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 80? “The general took from his pocket a gold _____ case and offered his guest a long black cigarette with a silver tip; it was perfumed and gave off a smell like incense.”

    A. revolver
    B. pinched
    C. cigarette
    D. recognized

    Key: C (cigarette)

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 60 reveal about the character or situation? “Ivan had reappeared, and the general spoke to him with lips that moved but gave forth no sound.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 60) shows the situation turning on civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words “reappeared” and “general” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 186 reveal about the character or situation? “He slid down from the tree, and struck off again into the woods.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 186) shows the situation turning on civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words “struck” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 39 reveal about the character or situation? “But what kind of men, he wondered, in so forbidding a place?” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 39) shows the situation turning on survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words “forbidding” and “wondered” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 169 reveal about the character or situation? “Oh,’ said the general, ‘in that case—— But why discuss that now?” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 169) shows the situation turning on survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The words “discuss” and “general” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

15. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “What I felt was a—a mental chill; a sort of sudden dread.”

    B. “Sometimes I think evil is a tangible thing—with wave lengths, just as sound and light have.”

    C. “Those fishy blue eyes held a look I never saw there before.”

    D. “You’ve good eyes,’ said Whitney, with a laugh, ‘and I’ve seen you pick off a moose moving in the brown fall bush at four hundred yards, but…”

    Key: D (“You’ve good eyes,’ said Whitney, with a laugh, ‘and I’ve seen you pick off a moose moving in the brown fall bush at four hundred yards, but…”)

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 125 shapes its tone: “Rainsford’s eyes saw only blackness, and then, as the general pressed a button, far out to sea Rainsford saw the flash of lights.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “blackness” and “general” (paragraph 125) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 178 shapes its tone: “He flattened himself down on the limb and, through a screen of leaves almost as thick as tapestry, he watched....” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “flattened” and “tapestry” (paragraph 178) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 154 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: “He saw the dead black eyes of the general on him, studying him.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 154) develops civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “studying” and “general” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Oh,’ said the general, ‘in that case—— But why discuss that now?” (paragraph 169), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating civilization and savagery as central.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 64 shapes its tone: “The cocktail was surpassingly good; and, Rainsford noted, the table appointments were of the finest—the linen, the crystal, the silver, the china.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “appointments” and “surpassingly” (paragraph 64) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 91 shapes its tone: “You are much younger than I am, Mr. Rainsford, and have not hunted as much, but you perhaps can guess the answer.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “perhaps” and “younger” (paragraph 91) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 37 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: “Gasping, his hands raw, he reached a flat place at the top.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 37) develops civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “reached” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “But what kind of men, he wondered, in so forbidding a place?” (paragraph 39), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating civilization and savagery as central.
22. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 192 shapes its tone: “Rainsford had dug himself in in France when a second’s delay meant death.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “himself” and “second” (paragraph 192) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 177 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: “Night found him leg-weary, with hands and face lashed by the branches, on a thickly wooded ridge.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 177) develops civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “branches” and “thickly” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He flattened himself down on the limb and, through a screen of leaves almost as thick as tapestry, he watched....” (paragraph 178), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating civilization and savagery as central.
24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 31 to the story's treatment of survival: “He strained his eyes in the direction from which the reports had come, but it was like trying to see through a blanket.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 31) develops survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “direction” and “strained” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “It came out of the darkness, a high, screaming sound, the sound of an animal in an extremity of anguish and terror.” (paragraph 34), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating survival as central.
25. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 24 shapes its tone: “Sometimes I think evil is a tangible thing—with wave lengths, just as sound and light have.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “tangible” and “lengths” (paragraph 24) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral.

That weight points the reader to civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 188 shapes its tone: “Nothing escaped those searching black eyes, no crushed blade of grass, no bent twig, no mark, no matter how faint, in the moss.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: The words “searching” and “escaped” (paragraph 188) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 103 to the story's treatment of survival: “Oh,’ said the general, ‘it supplies me with the most exciting hunting in the world.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 103) develops survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “exciting” and “supplies” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “But I think I can show you that your scruples are quite ill founded.” (paragraph 117), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating survival as central.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 193 to the story's treatment of survival: “It seemed to Rainsford that the general was coming with unusual swiftness; he was not feeling his way along, foot by foot.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 193) develops survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “swiftness” and “feeling” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Those fishy blue eyes held a look I never saw there before.” (paragraph 21), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating survival as central.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO3] Connect this passage from paragraph 132 to the story's treatment of survival: “I give him a supply of food and an excellent hunting knife.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 132) develops survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “excellent” and “hunting” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “And now,’ said the general, ‘I want to show you my new collection of heads.” (paragraph 142), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating survival as central.

30. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO1] In the line “When I shot some of his prize turkeys with it, he did not punish me; he complimented me on my marksmanship.”, what does “complimented” most nearly mean?

A. praised

B. diffusing warmth and friendliness

C. struggled with effort (out of something)

D. conspicuously or grossly unconventional or unusual

Key: A (praised)

31. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Cambridge International: CAIE-9695.AO2] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 46 shapes its tone: “The door opened then, opened as suddenly as if it were on a spring, and Rainsford stood blinking in the river of glaring gold light that poured out.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: The words “blinking” and “suddenly” (paragraph 46) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to survival: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Connect this passage from paragraph 44 to the story's treatment of civilization and savagery: “But as he forged along he saw to his great astonishment that all the lights were in one enormous building—a lofty structure with pointed towers plunging upward into the gloom.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 44) develops civilization and savagery: Rainsford learns empathy through terror. Its words “astonishment” and “structure” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The door opened then, opened as suddenly as if it were on a spring, and Rainsford stood blinking in the river of…” (paragraph 46), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating civilization and savagery as central.

Final paper

The Most Dangerous Game: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Richard Connell develops hunter and hunted across The Most Dangerous Game. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Most Dangerous Game and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to civilization and savagery.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Most Dangerous Game. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Most Dangerous Game finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of survival. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.

Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Rainsford's early view is turned against him. The text makes this visible when it says “The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees” (The Most Dangerous Game, paragraph 14). He tells Whitney "The world is made up of two classes—the hunters and the huntees," and Zaroff makes him a huntee; at the end, "He had never slept in a better bed," suggesting he has become a hunter of men too. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.
