Essential questions

- What does The City of Refuge suggest about the Great Migration?
- What does The City of Refuge suggest about hope and exploitation?
- What does The City of Refuge suggest about urban identity?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Lesson 1: Introduction to The City of Refuge

Objective: Students will explain, in a 3-sentence exit ticket, how one fact about Rudolph Fisher's life or times connects to the Great Migration in “The City of Refuge”, and will set up a reading journal with a prediction and a question for each of 3 themes (the Great Migration, hope and exploitation, urban identity).

Standards: Common Core RL.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2

Author biography

Rudolph Fisher was born in Washington, D.C., on 9 May 1897 and grew up in Providence, Rhode Island. He graduated from Brown University and Howard University's medical school and practised in Harlem as a physician and radiologist while writing fiction. "The City of Refuge" (1925) was his first published story; his stories The Walls of Jericho (1928) and The Conjure-Man Dies (1932), one of the first detective stories by a Black American writer, made him a leading wit of the Harlem Renaissance. He died on 26 December 1934, aged 37.

Historical and cultural context

The Great Migration (about 1916–1970) brought millions of Black Southerners north. Harlem in the 1920s was the cultural capital of Black America. The title alludes to the biblical cities of refuge (Numbers 35), where a man who had killed could find sanctuary.

Publication and reception, then and now

First published in The Atlantic Monthly in February 1925, and included in Alain Locke's anthology The New Negro (1925).

Then: Praised; it established Fisher as a Harlem Renaissance writer.

Now: An important Harlem Renaissance story about migration and exploitation.

Overview (spoiler-free)

King Solomon Gillis arrives in Harlem from North Carolina, fleeing after shooting a white man, and is amazed to see Black policemen. A fellow migrant, Mouse Uggam, befriends him.

Main themes

- migration and hope.
- exploitation.
- freedom and the law.

Why it matters

It shows the promise and the traps of the Great Migration.

Spoilers · teacher only

Mouse uses Gillis to sell drugs; Gillis is arrested by a Black policeman and, oddly happy, says "Cullud policemans!"

Lesson 2: The City of Refuge

Focus: Harlem as promised refuge and trap

Objective: Students will analyze how setting develops in "The City of Refuge" by writing a claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph that cites at least 2 quotations from the section, and will score at least 80% on the section quiz.

Standards: Common Core RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1, L.9-10.4

Content note (racial slurs in dialogue, drugs, violence): Sensitive content: Racial slurs in dialogue; drugs; violence. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. The text quotes racial slurs in period dialogue: decide in advance that no one reads them aloud, and name why the author records them.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes racial slurs in dialogue; drugs; violence.
Suggested language: "Why does the writer include this, and what does it make us notice?"

First, meaning. I read "Cullud policemans" slowly and put it in my own words: Fresh from North Carolina, Gillis is amazed to see a Black policeman giving orders to white drivers. Next, craft. I notice the dialect and the plural "policemans," which show his excitement. The strongest word is "policemans": his grammar shows his rural voice and the newness of what he sees. Then, effect. Why is Gillis so astonished? My answer: Gillis is so astonished because he sees a Black policeman directing white drivers; for Gillis that authority means Harlem is a place of freedom, a hope the story will test.

Theme link: Mouse betrays him. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

3. Rewrite one moment of “The City of Refuge” from the point of view of a different character. What does the new angle reveal or hide about Harlem as promised refuge and trap? [DOK 4 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.1, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.6] Look for: A creative product with a rationale tied to the text.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Fisher shows Harlem as both refuge and trap. Useful evidence: “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255): The dream. Theme link: Mouse betrays him. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

4. Write three questions of your own about “The City of Refuge”: one recall, one “why/how”, and one “should/what if”. Trade with a partner and answer theirs. [DOK 3 · studentGenerated · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: Student-generated questions at three levels.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Fisher shows Harlem as both refuge and trap. Useful evidence: “This was Negro Harlem” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 8): Arrival. Theme link: Mouse betrays him. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

5. Connect this story to hope and exploitation: is the link strong or weak so far? What would Fisher need to show next to strengthen it? [DOK 4 · socraticCircle · wait 8 s · RL.9-10.2, SL.9-10.1, RL.11-12.2] Look for: A judgment of thematic development across the work.

   A. entrance
   B. penetrate
   C. yaller
   D. spotted

   Key: A (entrance)

3. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: RL.9-10.1] What is Gillis unknowingly selling?

   A. Lottery tickets
   B. Stolen jewelry
   C. Drugs
   D. Liquor

Key: C (Drugs)

4. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: RL.9-10.1] What amazes Gillis in Harlem?

   A. A Black policeman directing white drivers

   B. Tall buildings only

   C. The river

   D. The subway

   Key: A (A Black policeman directing white drivers)

5. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: L.9-10.4] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: "A high, strongly accented Jamaican voice, with its characteristic _____ intonation, interrupted King Solomon's sigh of relief." Word bank: meditating, spokesman, singsong, gratefully

   Key: singsong

6. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: L.9-10.4] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 22? "Yet most of the vehicles that leaped or crouched at his bidding carried white _____."

   A. passengers

   Key: A (passengers)

7. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: RL.9-10.1] Why did Gillis leave North Carolina?

   A. He shot a white man

   B. He wanted college

   C. He was drafted

   D. His family moved

   Key: A (He shot a white man)

8. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from paragraph 16: "Ever since a _____ preacher had first told him of the place, King Solomon Gillis had longed to come to Harlem." Word bank: cookin, straightened, privileges, travelling

   Key: travelling

9. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: RL.9-10.1] Complete the quotation from The City of Refuge, paragraph 255: "Harlem. Land of _____. City of refuge-city of refuge"

   Key: plenty

10. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 50 reveal about the character or situation? "There was a collision; the apples rolled; Tony exploded; King Solomon apologized." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 50) shows the situation turning on urban identity: Mouse betrays him. The words "apologized" and "collision" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.3] What can you infer from this line? "Cullud policemans" (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: His wonder. The evidence is "Cullud policemans" (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28). This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

12. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.1] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?
    A. “Yet most of the vehicles that leaped or crouched at his bidding carried white passengers.”
    B. “If the inside of New York had mystified him, the outside was amazing him.”
    C. “Casting about for direction, the tall newcomer's glance caught inevitably on the most conspicuous thing in sight, a magnificent figure in…”
    D. “Thank y', suh,' said Gillis, and put the card in his pocket.”

    Key: C (“Casting about for direction, the tall newcomer's glance caught inevitably on the most conspicuous thing in sight, a magnificent figure in…”)

13. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 171 reveal about the character or situation? “But he had no store in which to set up an agency and hence no single place where his customers could go to get what they wanted.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 171) shows the situation turning on urban identity: Mouse betrays him. The words “customers” and “single” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 191 shapes its tone: “Usually Tony enjoyed sitting out front thus in the evening, when his helper had gone home and his trade was slackest.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “slackest” and “enjoyed” (paragraph 191) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to urban identity: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze the word choice in “This was Negro Harlem” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 8). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.
    Sample answer: Arrival. The evidence is “This was Negro Harlem” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 8). This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him. It reads more sharply beside “Cullud policemans” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28), which shows the same situation from another angle.

16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 21 to the story's treatment of urban identity: “If the inside of New York had mystified him, the outside was amazing him.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 21) develops urban identity: Mouse betrays him. Its words “mystified” and “outside” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Thank y', suh,' said Gillis, and put the card in his pocket.” (paragraph 49), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating urban identity as central.

17. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from paragraph 144: “This would be doin' Tony a favor, an' _____' y'self out o' the barrel.” Word bank: gettin, storekeeper, spotted, straightened
    Key: gettin

18. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: RL.9-10.1] What does Gillis do at the end?
    A. Surrenders when he sees the Black officer
    B. Kills Mouse
    C. Escapes
    D. Returns south

    Key: A (Surrenders when he sees the Black officer)

19. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: RL.9-10.1] Who befriends and exploits him?

    A. A preacher

    B. Uncle Ezra

    C. Mouse Uggam

    D. Tony Gabrielli

    Key: C (Mouse Uggam)

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 172 shapes its tone: “Mustn't let Tony catch on, because he might object, and then the whole scheme would go gaflooey.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “gaflooey” and “because” (paragraph 172) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to urban identity: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.9-10.2] Synthesis: trace how exploitation develops from the opening of “The City of Refuge” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.

    Sample answer: Near the start, “Cullud policemans” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28) — His wonder. Later, “This was Negro Harlem” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 8) — Arrival. Mouse betrays him.

22. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: L.9-10.4] Complete the quotation from paragraph 50: “The little yellow man laughed shortly, took out a _____, and put down the address he had seen on King Solomon's slip of paper.”

    Word bank: notebook, storekeeper, prosperous, gettin

    Key: notebook

23. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 56 shapes its tone: “Chief, I got him: a baby jess in from the land o' cotton and so dumb he thinks ante-bellum's an old woman.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “bellum's” and “thinks” (paragraph 56) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to urban identity: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 164 to the story's treatment of urban identity: “Look like he think I stole it from him, stiddy him tryin' to steal from me.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 164) develops urban identity: Mouse betrays him. Its words “stiddy” and “tryin'” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Den he run off talkin' Wes' Indi'man an' shakin' his fis' at me.'” (paragraph 164), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating urban identity as central.

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.11-12.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 94 shapes its tone: “A crescendo of footfalls in the hallway culminated in a sharp rap on Gillis's door.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “culminated” and “footfalls” (paragraph 94) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to urban identity: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.11-12.2] Claim: Fisher shows Harlem as both refuge and trap. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255).

Sample answer: Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for. The evidence is “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) — The dream. This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 192 to the story's treatment of urban identity: “Tony always managed to get back into his flat via the side-street entrance and watch the new man through this unobtrusive glass-windowed door.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 192) develops urban identity: Mouse betrays him. Its words “unobtrusive” and “entrance” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The Uggams were always talking about it; one of their boys had gone to France in the draft and, returning, had never…” (paragraph 16), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating urban identity as central.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.11-12.4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: The dream. The evidence is “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255). This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him. The words “plenty” and “refuge” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for.

29. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Common Core: L.11-12.4] In the line “King Solomon located and gratefully extended a slip of paper.”, what does “gratefully” most nearly mean?

    A. reflect deeply on a subject

    B. with appreciation; in a grateful manner

    C. the person who did most of the talking

    D. a regular and monotonous rising and falling intonation

    Key: B (with appreciation; in a grateful manner)

30. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Which literary element does this describe in “The City of Refuge”? Gillis's speech marks his Southern roots.

    A. Metaphor

    B. Setting

    C. Dialect

    D. Structure

    Key: C (Dialect)

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Connect this passage from paragraph 151 to the story's treatment of urban identity: “Dass all I wants to be, a policeman, so I kin police all de white-folks right plumb in jail!” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 151) develops urban identity: Mouse betrays him. Its words “policeman” and “police” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Spitting blood and crying with rage, the West Indian scrambled to his feet.” (paragraph 157), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating urban identity as central.

32. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “Cullud policemans” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

Sample answer: His wonder. The evidence is “Cullud policemans” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 28). This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for.

33. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] In the line “King Solomon Gillis sat meditating in a room half the size of his hencoop back home, with a single window opening into an airshaft.”, what does “meditating” most nearly mean?

    A. the person who did most of the talking

    B. with appreciation; in a grateful manner

    C. a regular and monotonous rising and falling intonation

    D. reflect deeply on a subject

    Key: D (reflect deeply on a subject)

34. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] What can you infer from this line? “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The dream. The evidence is “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255). This develops exploitation: Mouse betrays him.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The City of Refuge,” how does Fisher show Harlem as promised refuge and trap? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): In The City of Refuge, how does Fisher develop the idea of Harlem as promised refuge and trap? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Common Core: RL.9-10.3, W.9-10.1): Analyze how The City of Refuge develops the idea of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.5, RL.11-12.1, W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.9): Analyze how the structure of The City of Refuge (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.9): Two readers disagree about what The City of Refuge suggests about Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's setting and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Common Core: RL.11-12.3, W.11-12.1): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Rudolph Fisher uses setting in The City of Refuge to complicate the reader's understanding of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Situate The City of Refuge within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of Harlem as promised refuge and trap responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Read The City of Refuge alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of Harlem as promised refuge and trap follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The City of Refuge and its treatment of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's setting and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The City of Refuge as evidence for a larger claim about Harlem as promised refuge and trap in The City of Refuge. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The City of Refuge as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of Harlem as promised refuge and trap. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The City of Refuge.

SAT-style questions

1. Inside, the spokesman snuffled, gave his shoulders a queer little hunch, and asked, "Can you fix us up, buddy?"

   As used in the text, what does the word "spokesman" most nearly mean?

   A. a regular and monotonous rising and falling intonation

   B. reflect deeply on a subject

   C. with appreciation; in a grateful manner

   D. the person who did most of the talking

2. Uggam stepped over and opened the door. King Solomon's apprehensive eyes saw framed therein, instead of a gigantic officer, calling for him, a little blot of a creature, quite black against even the darkness of the hallway, except for a dirty, wide-striped silk shirt, collarless, with the sleeves rolled up. "Ah hahve bill fo' Mr. Gillis." A high, strongly accented Jamaican voice, with its characteristic singsong intonation, interrupted King Solomon's sigh of relief.

   Which choice best states a central concern of "The City of Refuge"?

   A. A reversal that punishes a change of heart

   B. Harlem as promised refuge and trap

   C. A story so convincing it becomes real

   D. Refusal as a mystery the narrator cannot solve

SAT key: 1. D (the person who did most of the talking); 2. B (Harlem as promised refuge and trap)

Unit test

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

10. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 182 reveal about the character or situation? “By the time he had finished, King Solomon was wallowing in gratitude.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 182) shows the situation turning on hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. The words “gratitude” and “wallowing” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 157 reveal about the character or situation? “Spitting blood and crying with rage, the West Indian scrambled to his feet.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 157) shows the situation turning on the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. The words “scrambled” and “crying” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 89 reveal about the character or situation? “Cheevers come up on three of 'em one night pizenin' his well.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 89) shows the situation turning on hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. The words “pizenin'” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Common Core: RL.9-10.3] What does this passage from paragraph 16 reveal about the character or situation? “The Uggams were always talking about it; one of their boys had gone to France in the draft and, returning, had never got any nearer home than Harlem.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 16) shows the situation turning on the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. The words “returning” and “talking” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 164 shapes its tone: “Den he run off talkin' Wes' Indi'man an' shakin' his fis' at me.'” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “shakin'” and “talkin'” (paragraph 164) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 172 shapes its tone: “King Solomon was in a position to help him now, same as he had helped King Solomon.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “position” and “helped” (paragraph 172) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 142 shapes its tone: “I know Tony some, an' I'll be there to put in a good word.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words its wording (paragraph 142) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 52 shapes its tone: “As Gillis, approaching his destination, stopped to rest, a haunting notion grew into an insistent idea.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “approaching” and “destination” (paragraph 52) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 135 to the story's treatment of the Great Migration: “But this is my friend, an' I'll be john-browned if there's a monkey-chaser in Harlem can gyp him if I know it, see?” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 135) develops the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. Its words “there's” and “browned” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “I know Tony some, an' I'll be there to put in a good word.” (paragraph 142), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the Great Migration as central.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 192 shapes its tone: “As a matter of fact, the new man was never under more vigilant observation than during these two or three mornings." Pick two words and explain their effect.

Sample answer: The words "observation" and "mornings" (paragraph 192) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 49 shapes its tone: "Thank y', suh,' said Gillis, and put the card in his pocket." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "pocket" (paragraph 49) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 58 to the story's treatment of the Great Migration: "This one come up the stairs, batted his eyes once or twice, an' froze to the spot—with his mouth open." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 58) develops the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. Its words "batted" and "stairs" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "Cheevers come up on three of 'em one night pizenin' his well." (paragraph 89), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the Great Migration as central.

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.9-10.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 16 shapes its tone: "Why, had not Mouse Uggam sent back as much as fifty dollars at a time to his people in Waxhaw?" Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "dollars" and "people" (paragraph 16) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 192 to the story's treatment of the Great Migration: "The new man had seemed to prove himself honest and trustworthy, it was true." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 192) develops the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. Its words "trustworthy" and "himself" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "As a matter of fact, the new man was never under more vigilant observation than during these two or three mornings." (paragraph 192), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the Great Migration as central.

24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.9-10.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 52 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: "That receding brow, that sharp-ridged, spreading nose, that tight upper lip over the two big front teeth, that chinless jaw- He fumbled hurriedly for the card he had not looked at and eagerly made out the name." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 52) develops hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Its words "spreading" and "hurriedly" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "Chief, I got him: a baby jess in from the land o' cotton and so dumb he thinks ante-bellum's an old woman." (paragraph 56), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hope and exploitation as central.

25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 173 to the story's treatment of the Great Migration: "There'd be at least ten or twelve a day-two and a half or three dollars plumb extra!" Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 173) develops the Great Migration: Mouse betrays him. Its words "dollars" and "twelve" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "By the time he had finished, King Solomon was wallowing in gratitude." (paragraph 182), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the Great Migration as central.

26. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Common Core: RL.11-12.4] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 158 shapes its tone: "King Solomon Gillis, mildly puzzled, watched him from Tony's doorway."I jess give him a li'l shove,' he said to himself; 'an' he roll' clean 'cross de sidewalk.' And a little later, disgustedly, 'Monkey-chaser!' he grunted, and went back…" Pick two words and explain their effect.
Sample answer: The words "disgustedly" and "sidewalk" (paragraph 158) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 50 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: "Presently, as he proceeded, a pair of bright-green stockings caught and held his attention." Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 50) develops hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Its words "attention" and "stockings" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "There was a collision; the apples rolled; Tony exploded; King Solomon apologized." (paragraph 50), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hope and exploitation as central.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Common Core: RL.11-12.2] Connect this passage from paragraph 172 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: "Then he could simply send his customers to King Solomon at Tony's store." Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 172) develops hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Its words "customers" and "simply" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "Mustn't let Tony catch on, because he might object, and then the whole scheme would go gaflooey." (paragraph 172), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hope and exploitation as central.

29. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] In the line "Inside, the spokesman snuffled, gave his shoulders a queer little hunch, and asked, 'Can you fix us up, buddy?'", what does "spokesman" most nearly mean?

    A. with appreciation; in a grateful manner
    B. reflect deeply on a subject
    C. the person who did most of the talking
    D. a regular and monotonous rising and falling intonation

    Key: C (the person who did most of the talking)

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Connect this passage from paragraph 171 to the story's treatment of hope and exploitation: "Now there were any number of people who would buy and pay well for as much of this French medicine as Uggam could get." Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 171) develops hope and exploitation: Mouse betrays him. Its words "medicine" and "number" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "But he had no store in which to set up an agency and hence no single place where his customers could go to get what…" (paragraph 171), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating hope and exploitation as central.

Final paper

The City of Refuge: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Rudolph Fisher develops the Great Migration across The City of Refuge. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The City of Refuge and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to hope and exploitation.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The City of Refuge. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The City of Refuge finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of urban identity. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.
Organization	15

		Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Fisher shows Harlem as both refuge and trap. The text makes this visible when it says “Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge-city of refuge” (The City of Refuge, paragraph 255). Gillis dreams of "Harlem. Land of plenty. City of refuge," but his friend exploits him; yet even arrested he marvels "Cullud policemans," seeing the dignity he hoped for. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.

Essay assignments

Essay: The Great Migration

Scaffolded support (600 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The City of Refuge teaches about the Great Migration. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Rudolph Fisher develops the Great Migration in The City of Refuge. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Rudolph Fisher develops the Great Migration across The City of Refuge. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.5): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The City of Refuge (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of the Great Migration. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of the Great Migration in The City of Refuge. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Rudolph Fisher's choices in The City of Refuge (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of the Great Migration, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The City of Refuge's treatment of the Great Migration in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on the Great Migration in The City of Refuge that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on the Great Migration in The City of Refuge. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about the Great Migration in The City of Refuge, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on the Great Migration in The City of Refuge, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Scaffolded support (600 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The City of Refuge teaches about hope and exploitation. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how Rudolph Fisher develops hope and exploitation in The City of Refuge. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; Common Core: W.9-10.1, RL.9-10.2): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how Rudolph Fisher develops hope and exploitation across The City of Refuge. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.5): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The City of Refuge (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of hope and exploitation. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of hope and exploitation in The City of Refuge. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; Common Core: W.11-12.1, RL.11-12.2): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how Rudolph Fisher's choices in The City of Refuge (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of hope and exploitation, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The City of Refuge's treatment of hope and exploitation in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on hope and exploitation in The City of Refuge that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on hope and exploitation in The City of Refuge. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about hope and exploitation in The City of Refuge, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; Common Core: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on hope and exploitation in The City of Refuge, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
