Lesson 1: Introduction to The Open Window

Objective: Students will explain, in a 3-sentence exit ticket, how one fact about Saki (H. H. Munro)'s life or times connects to deception and storytelling in “The Open Window”, and will set up a reading journal with a prediction and a question for each of 3 themes (deception and storytelling, nerves and credulity, romance as invention).

Standards: Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see the unit standards

Author biography

Saki was the pen name of Hector Hugh Munro, born in Akyab, Burma (now Sittwe, Myanmar), on 18 December 1870. After his mother's death he was raised in Devon by strict aunts, a childhood that may lie behind his stories of clever children outwitting adults. He worked as a journalist and foreign correspondent and wrote witty, often cruel stories of Edwardian society. At 43 he enlisted as a private in the First World War and was killed by a sniper in France on 14 November 1916.

Historical and cultural context

Set in an English country house with Edwardian social customs, such as letters of introduction.

Publication and reception, then and now

Published in Beasts and Super-Beasts (1914); earlier in the Westminster Gazette (1911).

Then: Popular.

Now: A classic of the comic twist.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Nervous Framton Nuttel, on a rest cure, visits Mrs. Sappleton; her niece, Vera, tells him a tragic story about the open window.

Main themes

- deception.
- storytelling.
- appearance versus reality.

Why it matters

It shows how a storyteller manipulates an audience.

Spoilers · teacher only

The "ghosts" are the living men returning, and Framton flees; Vera invents another story about him.

Nervous Framton Nuttel visits the Sappletons for a rest cure. While waiting, fifteen-year-old Vera tells him her aunt keeps the French window open because her husband and brothers vanished in a bog three years ago and she expects them back. When the men appear at the window with a spaniel, Framton flees in terror. Vera calmly invents a new story to explain his flight. 'Romance at short notice was her speciality.'

Background: Published in 1914 in Beasts and Super-Beasts. Saki (H. H. Munro) satirized Edwardian country-house society.

Significance: A short masterpiece of the twist ending; in Gale's Short Stories for Students vol. 1.

First, meaning. I read "Romance at short notice was her speciality" slowly and put it in my own words: After Framton flees, the narrator remarks that inventing romance on short notice was Vera's specialty. Next, craft. I notice the dry understatement after the frantic scene, a calm sentence that explains everything. The strongest word is "Romance": here it means invented adventure stories, not love, which is the sly double meaning. Then, effect. What does the story's last line reveal about Vera? My answer: Vera made up both the tragic tale for Framton and the excuse about dogs; the line reveals the trick and praises the skill of a girl who controls the adults around her.

On structure: A story within a story: Vera's ghost tale inside the visit, and a second invented tale (about Framton and the dogs) at the end. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
7. What can we infer about a character's motives from what they say and do here, as opposed to what they claim? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): unit standards] Look for: An inference about motive supported by a quoted line.

   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. Useful evidence: “Her great tragedy happened just three years ago” (The Open Window, paragraph 10): Vera's story. On characterization: Vera, "a very self-possessed young lady of fifteen," invents with total composure; Framton is anxious, self-absorbed and easy prey. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

8. The bell-ringer asked: “What makes a lie believable?” Now that we have read closely, how would you revise your first answer, and which line changed your mind? [DOK 2 · thinkPairShare · wait 5 s · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): unit standards] Look for: A revised answer anchored in the text.
9. Where does structure appear, and how does it connect this story to the larger concern with deception and storytelling? [DOK 3 · followUp · wait 8 s · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): unit standards] Look for: Look for how the story is ordered and why it begins and ends where it does.
   Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. Useful evidence: “Romance at short notice was her speciality” (The Open Window, paragraph 29): The reveal. On structure: A story within a story: Vera's ghost tale inside the visit, and a second invented tale (about Framton and the dogs) at the end. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.
10. Background: Published in 1914 in Beasts and Super-Beasts. Saki (H. H. Munro) satirized Edwardian country-house society. How does knowing this change the way you read one moment in the story? [DOK 3 · thinkPairShare · wait 8 s · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): unit standards] Look for: A specific moment reread in light of the context.
    Answer guidance: A defensible line of argument: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. Useful evidence: “nerve cure which he was supposed to be undergoing” (The Open Window, paragraph 2): Framton. Theme link: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Credit any position that is supported by quotation and reasoning; push one-sided answers to address the strongest counterpoint.

    Key: falteringly

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 23 reveal about the character or situation? "Framton shivered slightly and turned towards the niece with a look intended to convey sympathetic comprehension." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 23) shows the situation turning on nerves and credulity: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The words "comprehension" and "sympathetic" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. "My aunt will be down presently, Mr. Nuttel,' said a very self-possessed young lady of fifteen; 'in the meantime you must try and put up…"

    B. "I shall just give you letters of introduction to all the people I know there."

    C. "I know how it will be,' his sister had said when he was preparing to migrate to this rural retreat; 'you will bury yourself down there and…"

    D. "Some of them, as far as I can remember, were quite nice."

    Key: A ("My aunt will be down presently, Mr. Nuttel,' said a very self-possessed young lady of fifteen; 'in the meantime you must try and put up…")

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 3 shapes its tone: “Some of them, as far as I can remember, were quite nice.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “remember” (paragraph 3) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to nerves and credulity: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 28 shapes its tone: “He was once hunted into a cemetery somewhere on the banks of the Ganges by a pack of pariah dogs, and had to spend the night in a newly dug grave with the creatures snarling and grinning and foaming just above him.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “creatures” and “somewhere” (paragraph 28) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to nerves and credulity: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Synthesis: trace how deception develops from the opening of “The Open Window” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.
    Sample answer: Near the start, “Romance at short notice was her speciality” (The Open Window, paragraph 29) — The reveal. Later, “Her great tragedy happened just three years ago” (The Open Window, paragraph 10) — Vera's story. A young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling.
17. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 7? “He made the last _____ in a tone of distinct regret.”

    A. statement
    B. collision
    C. successful
    D. sometimes

    Key: A (statement)
18. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 24: “Noiselessly they neared the house, and then a hoarse young voice _____ out of the dusk: ‘I said, Bertie, why do you bound?’” Word bank: chanted, extraordinary, spaniel, staring
    Key: chanted
19. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from The Open Window, paragraph 29: “Romance at short notice was her _____”
    Key: speciality
20. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “They’ve been out for snipe in the marshes to-day, so they’ll make a fine mess over my poor _____.” Word bank: mackintosh, speciality, carpets, discounting
    Key: carpets
21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 25 shapes its tone: “Framton grabbed wildly at his stick and hat; the hall-door, the gravel-drive, and the front gate were dimly-noted stages in his headlong retreat.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “headlong” and “retreat” (paragraph 25) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to nerves and credulity: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze the word choice in “Her great tragedy happened just three years ago” (The Open Window, paragraph 10). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.
    Sample answer: Vera's story. The evidence is “Her great tragedy happened just three years ago” (The Open Window, paragraph 10). This develops deception: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The words “happened” and “tragedy” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.
23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 13 to the story's treatment of nerves and credulity: “It is quite warm for the time of the year,’ said Framton; ‘but has that window got anything to do with the tragedy?” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 13) develops nerves and credulity: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Its words “anything” and “tragedy” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “It had been that dreadful wet summer, you know, and places that were safe in other years gave way suddenly without…” (paragraph 14), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating nerves and credulity as central.
24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 15 to the story's treatment of nerves and credulity: “It was a relief to Framton when the aunt bustled into the room with a whirl of apologies for being late in making her appearance.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 15) develops nerves and credulity: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Its words “appearance” and “apologies” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “She rattled on cheerfully about the shooting and the scarcity of birds, and the prospects for duck in the winter.” (paragraph 19), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating nerves and credulity as central.
25. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What is Vera's 'speciality'?
    A. Hunting
    B. Gardening
    C. Romance at short notice: inventing stories
    D. Music

    Key: C (Romance at short notice: inventing stories)
26. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “nerve cure which he was supposed to be undergoing” (The Open Window, paragraph 2) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: Framton. The evidence is “nerve cure which he was supposed to be undergoing” (The Open Window, paragraph 2). This develops deception: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling.
27. [mc · analysis · DOK 3] Which literary element does this describe in “The Open Window”? Dramatic this device is withheld: the reader believes Vera as Framton does, so the twist catches both.
    A. Point of view
    B. Symbolism
    C. Imagery
    D. Irony

    Key: D (Irony)
28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “nerve cure which he was supposed to be undergoing” (The Open Window, paragraph 2) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

Sample answer: Framton. The evidence is “nerve cure which he was supposed to be undergoing” (The Open Window, paragraph 2). This develops deception: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The words “undergoing” and “supposed” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. She invents "Her great tragedy" so convincingly that Framton flees, and the narrator says "Romance at short notice was her speciality.".

29. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “In crossing the moor to their favourite snipe-shooting ground they were all three engulfed in a treacherous piece of bog.”, what does “engulfed” most nearly mean?

    A. disregarding or not taking seriously

    B. a raincoat

    C. a particular skill or thing a person is known for

    D. swallowed up completely

    Key: D (swallowed up completely)

30. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “Framton Nuttel endeavoured to say the correct something which should duly flatter the niece of the moment without unduly discounting the aunt that was to come.”, what does “discounting” most nearly mean?

    A. swallowed up completely

    B. disregarding or not taking seriously

    C. a raincoat

    D. a particular skill or thing a person is known for

    Key: B (disregarding or not taking seriously)

31. [short · inference · DOK 2 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] What can you infer from this line? “Romance at short notice was her speciality” (The Open Window, paragraph 29) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The reveal. The evidence is “Romance at short notice was her speciality” (The Open Window, paragraph 29). This develops deception: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling.

32. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Which literary element does this describe in “The Open Window”? Vera, ‘a very self-possessed young lady of fifteen,’ invents with total composure; Framton is anxious, self-absorbed and easy prey.

    A. Symbolism

    B. Diction / vocabulary

    D. Characterization

    Key: D (Characterization)

33. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] In the line “Here we are, my dear,’ said the bearer of the white mackintosh, coming in through the window; ‘fairly muddy, but most of it’s dry.”, what does “mackintosh” most nearly mean?

    A. a raincoat

    B. swallowed up completely

    C. disregarding or not taking seriously

    D. a particular skill or thing a person is known for

Key: A (a raincoat)

34. [mc · inference · DOK 2 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] Which choice best states a central concern of "The Open Window"?

    A. A story so convincing it becomes real

    B. The arrogance and loneliness of seeing differently

    C. A family and a house collapsing together

    D. The mind's final escape at the moment of death

    Key: A (A story so convincing it becomes real)

35. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Program outcome: LeL-C3-LIT-1] Claim: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: "Romance at short notice was her speciality" (The Open Window, paragraph 29).

    Sample answer: She invents "Her great tragedy" so convincingly that Framton flees, and the narrator says "Romance at short notice was her speciality.". The evidence is "Romance at short notice was her speciality" (The Open Window, paragraph 29) — The reveal. This develops deception: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling.

36. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-GR-LIT-1] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of "Romance at short notice was her speciality" (The Open Window, paragraph 29) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Open Window,” how does Munro) show a story so convincing it becomes real? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the irony you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): In The Open Window, how does Munro) develop the idea of a story so convincing it becomes real? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the irony in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how The Open Window develops the idea of a story so convincing it becomes real. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of irony and characterization shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of The Open Window (where it begins, turns and ends) and its irony shape the reader's understanding of a story so convincing it becomes real. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

HS Senior (600 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what The Open Window suggests about a story so convincing it becomes real. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's irony and characterization), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay. Distinguish what is directly stated from what is really meant.

AP (650 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Saki (H. H. Munro) uses irony in The Open Window to complicate the reader's understanding of a story so convincing it becomes real. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.3, ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.1): Situate The Open Window within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of a story so convincing it becomes real responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Read The Open Window alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of a story so convincing it becomes real follows or bends those conventions, using the irony as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Open Window and its treatment of a story so convincing it becomes real. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's irony and characterization, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Open Window as evidence for a larger claim about a story so convincing it becomes real in The Open Window. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Open Window as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of a story so convincing it becomes real. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Open Window.

SAT-style questions

   Key: D (brothers)

10. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 14 reveal about the character or situation? “It had been that dreadful wet summer, you know, and places that were safe in other years gave way suddenly without warning.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 14) shows the situation turning on romance as invention: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The words “dreadful” and “suddenly” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 3 reveal about the character or situation? “I know how it will be,’ his sister had said when he was preparing to migrate to this rural retreat; ‘you will bury yourself down there and not speak to a living soul, and your nerves will be worse than ever from moping.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 3) shows the situation turning on deception and storytelling: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The words “preparing” and “yourself” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 27 reveal about the character or situation? “One would think he had seen a ghost.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 27) shows the situation turning on deception and storytelling: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The words its wording are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 9 shapes its tone: “He was wondering whether Mrs. Sappleton was in the married or widowed state.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “wondering” and “whether” (paragraph 9) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to deception and storytelling: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 14 shapes its tone: “That is why the window is kept open every evening till it is quite dusk.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “evening” and “window” (paragraph 14) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to deception and storytelling: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

15. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 21 to the story's treatment of deception and storytelling: “Then she suddenly brightened into alert attention – but not to what Framton was saying.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 21) develops deception and storytelling: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Its words “brightened” and “attention” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Framton shivered slightly and turned towards the niece with a look intended to convey sympathetic comprehension.” (paragraph 23), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating deception and storytelling as central.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 19 shapes its tone: “She rattled on cheerfully about the shooting and the scarcity of birds, and the prospects for duck in the winter.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “cheerfully” and “prospects” (paragraph 19) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to romance as invention: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 23 shapes its tone: “In a chill shock of nameless fear Framton swung round in his seat and looked in the same direction.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “direction” and “nameless” (paragraph 23) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to romance as invention: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 6 to the story's treatment of romance as invention: “My sister was staying here, at the rectory, you know, some four years ago, and she gave me letters of introduction to some of the people here.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 6) develops romance as invention: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Its words “introduction” and “letters” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He was wondering whether Mrs. Sappleton was in the married or widowed state.” (paragraph 9), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating romance as invention as central.

19. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 26 to the story's treatment of romance as invention: “Who was that who bolted out as we came up?” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 26) develops romance as invention: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Its words “bolted” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “One would think he had seen a ghost.” (paragraph 27), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating romance as invention as central.

20. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 24 to the story's treatment of deception and storytelling: “A tired brown spaniel kept close at their heels.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 24) develops deception and storytelling: a young girl, with little social power, controls the adults through storytelling. Its words “spaniel” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Framton grabbed wildly at his stick and hat; the hall-door, the gravel-drive, and the front gate were dimly-noted…” (paragraph 25), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating deception and storytelling as central.

Final paper

The Open Window: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Saki (H. H. Munro) develops deception and storytelling across The Open Window. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Open Window and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to nerves and credulity.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Open Window. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Open Window finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of romance as invention. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words

Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.

Organization	15	Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Vera's skill shows the power of a story. The text makes this visible when it says “Romance at short notice was her speciality” (The Open Window, paragraph 29). She invents "Her great tragedy" so convincingly that Framton flees, and the narrator says "Romance at short notice was her speciality.". A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.
