Author biography

W. W. Jacobs was born in Wapping, London, on 8 September 1863, where his father managed a wharf. He worked as a clerk in the Post Office Savings Bank while writing, and became popular for comic stories about sailors and dockside life, collected in volumes such as Many Cargoes (1896). He also wrote a handful of macabre tales; "The Monkey's Paw," in The Lady of the Barge (1902), is the most famous. He died in London on 1 September 1943.

Historical and cultural context

Late-Victorian Britain ran a global empire, and soldiers returning from India brought souvenirs and tales. The story's paw is from "an old fakir."

Publication and reception, then and now

Published in Harper's Monthly in September 1902 and collected in The Lady of the Barge (1902).

Then: Very popular; adapted for the stage in 1903.

Now: A classic horror story about fate and wishes.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Sergeant-Major Morris gives the White family a monkey's paw that grants three wishes. Mr. White wishes for two hundred pounds.

Main themes

- fate.
- greed.
- grief.

Why it matters

It reminds us to be careful what we wish for.

Spoilers · teacher only

Their son Herbert dies at work, and the company pays exactly two hundred pounds. Mrs. White wishes him back; there is knocking at the door, and Mr. White uses the third wish.

First, meaning. I read "He wanted to show that fate ruled people's lives" slowly and put it in my own words: Morris explains that the man who enchanted the paw wanted to prove fate rules lives. Next, craft. I notice "ruled," a word of power and government, applied to fate. The strongest word is "ruled": it makes fate a ruler that punishes those who defy it. Then, effect. Why is this line a warning to the White family? My answer: Jacobs tells us the rule before the family breaks it, so we read the story with dread, watching them ignore the warning.

Jacobs worked as a clerk in the London post office and wrote this story in 1902, when stories of the British Empire in India were popular. Why might the paw come from India in a London story? Answer: Accept answers such as: British readers were fascinated by "exotic" magic from the colonies; the soldier brings it home from imperial service; the story mixes empire, superstition and fear.

Lesson 2: The Monkey's Paw

Focus: wishes that defy fate

Objective: Students will analyze how foreshadowing develops in “The Monkey's Paw” by writing a claim-evidence-reasoning paragraph that cites at least 2 quotations from the section, and will score at least 80% on the section quiz.

Standards: AP: see the unit standards

Content note (death of a son, horror, alcohol or drugs (mentioned)): Sensitive content: Death of a son; horror. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. This section mentions drinking or a drug (“…fire, watched contentedly while his host got out whiskey and tumblers and stood a small copper k…”). Treat it as period custom or plot detail; name it plainly and don't glamorize it.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes death of a son; horror.
Suggested language: “Why does the writer include this, and what does it make us notice?”

Sergeant-Major Morris brings the Whites a mummified monkey's paw from India, cursed by a fakir to grant three wishes to three men. Mr. White wishes for two hundred pounds. The next day their son Herbert is killed in machinery at work, and the company pays two hundred pounds. Mrs. White makes her husband wish Herbert alive. A knocking comes at the door; as she unbolts it, Mr. White uses the last wish, and the road outside is empty.

Background: Published in 1902 in Harper's Monthly; British readers knew India through soldiers like Morris returning from imperial service.

Significance: A classic of the horror tale that leaves its terror offstage; Gale's Short Stories for Students features it.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “He wanted to show that fate ruled people's lives” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 25) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: Theme. The evidence is “He wanted to show that fate ruled people's lives” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 25). This develops fate: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow.
12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 44 reveal about the character or situation? “Don't you think you might wish for four pairs of hands for me?” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 44) shows the situation turning on be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words its wording are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.
13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 77 reveal about the character or situation? “She brought the stranger, who seemed ill at ease, into the room.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.
    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 77) shows the situation turning on be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words “stranger” and “brought” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.
14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 7 shapes its tone: “The words died away on his lips, and he hid a guilty grin in his thin grey beard.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “guilty” (paragraph 7) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 52 shapes its tone: “He darted round the table, pursued by the maligned Mrs. White armed with an antimacassar.” Pick two words and explain their effect.
    Sample answer: The words “antimacassar” and “maligned” (paragraph 52) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.
16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 73 to the story's treatment of be careful what you wish for: “I dare say,’ said Mr. White, pouring himself out some beer; ‘but for all that, the thing moved in my hand; that I'll swear to.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 73) develops be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words “himself” and “pouring” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “In mental connection with the two hundred pounds, she noticed that the stranger was well dressed, and wore a silk hat…” (paragraph 76), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating be careful what you wish for as central.

17. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 11? “The sergeant-major shook hands, and taking the proffered seat by the fire, watched _____ while his host got out whiskey and tumblers and stood a small copper kettle on the fire.”

    A. henpecked

    B. contentedly

    C. hospitable

    D. enthralled

    Key: B (contentedly)

18. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Who brings the paw?

    B. Sergeant-Major Morris

    C. The company man

    D. A fakir

    Key: B (Sergeant-Major Morris)

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Claim: The paw shows that meddling with fate brings sorrow. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “He wanted to show that fate ruled people's lives” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 25).

    Sample answer: The fakir wanted to prove "fate ruled people's lives," and Mr. White's wish "for two hundred pounds" is granted through Herbert's death. The evidence is “He wanted to show that fate ruled people's lives” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 25) — Theme. This develops fate: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow.

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 62 shapes its tone: “They sat down by the fire again while the two men finished their pipes.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “finished” (paragraph 62) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What did the fakir want the paw to show?

    A. That magic is good

    B. That fate rules people's lives

    C. That India is rich

    D. That wishes are free

    Key: B (That fate rules people's lives)

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 85 shapes its tone: “She caught her breath, and turning to her slower-witted husband, laid her trembling old hand upon his.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “trembling” and “turning” (paragraph 85) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 32 to the story's treatment of be careful what you wish for: “Yes,’ was the reply; ‘I don't know what the first two were, but the third was for death.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 32) develops be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words its wording carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “They think it's a fairy tale; some of them, and those who do think anything of it want to try it first and pay me…” (paragraph 35), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating be careful what you wish for as central.

24. [fill · recall · DOK 1 · AP: AP-LIT.STR] Complete the quotation from The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 56: “I wish for two _____ pounds”

    Key: hundred

25. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Synthesis: trace how fate develops from the opening of “The Monkey's Paw” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.

    Sample answer: Near the start, “He wanted to show that fate ruled people's lives” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 25) — Theme. Later, “frantically breathed his third and last wish” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 141) — The end. The fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “I wish for two hundred pounds” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 56) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: The wish. The evidence is “I wish for two hundred pounds” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 56). This develops fate: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words “hundred” and “pounds” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. The fakir wanted to prove "fate ruled people's lives," and Mr. White's wish "for two hundred pounds" is granted through Herbert's death.

27. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] In the line “A loud knock resounded through the house.”, what does “resounded” most nearly mean?

    A. ring or echo with sound

    B. hang freely

    C. a long dining-room cabinet with a flat top

    D. a chance happening that only looks planned

    Key: A (ring or echo with sound)

28. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Analyze the word choice in “frantically breathed his third and last wish” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 141). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: The end. The evidence is “frantically breathed his third and last wish” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 141). This develops fate: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words “frantically” and “breathed” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 17 to the story's treatment of be careful what you wish for: “What was that you started telling me the other day about a monkey's paw or something, Morris?” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 17) develops be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words “something” and “monkey's” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “To look at,’ said the sergeant-major, fumbling in his pocket, ‘it's just an ordinary little paw, dried to a mummy.” (paragraph 22), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating be careful what you wish for as central.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 64 to the story's treatment of be careful what you wish for: “It got so vivid that, with a little uneasy laugh, he felt on the table for a glass containing a little water to throw over it." Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 64) develops be careful what you wish for: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words "containing" and "uneasy" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "And if they could, how could two hundred pounds hurt you, father?'" (paragraph 67), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating be careful what you wish for as central.

31. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line "Morris said the things happened so naturally,' said his father, 'that you might if you so wished attribute it to coincidence.", what does "coincidence" most nearly mean?

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; AP: see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “The Monkey's Paw,” how does Jacobs show wishes that defy fate? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the foreshadowing you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; AP: see unit standards): In The Monkey's Paw, how does Jacobs develop the idea of wishes that defy fate? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the foreshadowing in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how The Monkey's Paw develops the idea of wishes that defy fate. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of foreshadowing and symbolism shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; AP: see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of The Monkey's Paw (where it begins, turns and ends) and its foreshadowing shape the reader's understanding of wishes that defy fate. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; AP: see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what The Monkey's Paw suggests about wishes that defy fate. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's foreshadowing and symbolism), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; AP: AP-LIT.STR, AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how W. W. Jacobs uses foreshadowing in The Monkey's Paw to complicate the reader's understanding of wishes that defy fate. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; AP: see unit standards): Situate The Monkey's Paw within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of wishes that defy fate responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; AP: see unit standards): Read The Monkey's Paw alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of wishes that defy fate follows or bends those conventions, using the foreshadowing as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; AP: see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to The Monkey's Paw and its treatment of wishes that defy fate. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's foreshadowing and symbolism, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads The Monkey's Paw as evidence for a larger claim about wishes that defy fate in The Monkey's Paw. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; AP: see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads The Monkey's Paw as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of wishes that defy fate. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on The Monkey's Paw.

SAT-style questions

1. There was an air of prosaic wholesomeness about the room which it had lacked on the previous night, and the dirty, shrivelled little paw was pitched on the sideboard with a carelessness which betokened no great belief in its virtues.

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 59 reveal about the character or situation? “Well, I don't see the money,’ said his son as he picked it up and placed it on the table, ‘and I bet I never shall.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 59) shows the situation turning on fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words “placed” and “picked” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 22 reveal about the character or situation? “To look at,’ said the sergeant-major, fumbling in his pocket, ‘it's just an ordinary little paw, dried to a mummy.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 22) shows the situation turning on grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words “ordinary” and “sergeant” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 1 reveal about the character or situation? “Father and son were at chess, the former, who possessed ideas about the game involving radical changes, putting his king into such sharp and unnecessary perils that it even provoked comment from the white-haired old lady knitting placidly…" Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 1) shows the situation turning on fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words "unnecessary" and "possessed" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 67 reveal about the character or situation? "And if they could, how could two hundred pounds hurt you, father?'" Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 67) shows the situation turning on grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The words "hundred" and "father" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 15 shapes its tone: "I'd like to go to India myself,' said the old man, 'just to look round a bit, you know." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "myself" (paragraph 15) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 35 shapes its tone: "They think it's a fairy tale; some of them, and those who do think anything of it want to try it first and pay me afterward.'" Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "afterward" and "anything" (paragraph 35) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 71 shapes its tone: "His mother laughed, and following him to the door, watched him down the road; and returning to the breakfast table, was very happy at the expense of her husband's credulity." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "returning" and "breakfast" (paragraph 71) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 76 to the story's treatment of fate and greed: "The fourth time he stood with his hand upon it, and then with sudden resolution flung it open and walked up the path." Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 76) develops fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words "resolution" and "walked" carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in "She brought the stranger, who seemed ill at ease, into the room." (paragraph 77), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating fate and greed as central.

19. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 26 shapes its tone: "His manner was so impressive that his hearers were conscious that their light laughter jarred somewhat." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "impressive" and "conscious" (paragraph 26) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 64 shapes its tone: “He sat alone in the darkness, gazing at the dying fire, and seeing faces in it.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “darkness” and “seeing” (paragraph 64) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 47 shapes its tone: “Mr. White dropped it back in his pocket, and placing chairs, motioned his friend to the table.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “motioned” and “placing” (paragraph 47) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 88 to the story's treatment of grief: “He sat staring blankly out at the window, and taking his wife's hand between his own, pressed it as he had been wont to do in their old courting-days nearly forty years before.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 88) develops grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words “courting” and “between” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Father and son were at chess, the former, who possessed ideas about the game involving radical changes, putting his…” (paragraph 1), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating grief as central.

23. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 76 shapes its tone: “In mental connection with the two hundred pounds, she noticed that the stranger was well dressed, and wore a silk hat of glossy newness.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “connection” and “stranger” (paragraph 76) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

24. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 55 to the story's treatment of grief: “His father, smiling shamefacedly at his own credulity, held up the talisman, as his son, with a solemn face, somewhat marred by a wink at his mother, sat down at the piano and struck a few impressive chords.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 55) develops grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words “shamefacedly” and “impressive” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Well, I don't see the money,’ said his son as he picked it up and placed it on the table, ‘and I bet I never shall.” (paragraph 59), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating grief as central.

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · AP: AP-LIT.FIG] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 77 shapes its tone: “She then waited as patiently as her sex would permit, for him to broach his business, but he was at first strangely silent.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “strangely” and “patiently” (paragraph 77) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 83 to the story's treatment of fate and greed: “Badly hurt,’ he said, quietly, ‘but he is not in any pain.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 83) develops fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words “quietly” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “She caught her breath, and turning to her slower-witted husband, laid her trembling old hand upon his.” (paragraph 85), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating fate and greed as central.

27. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 62 to the story's treatment of grief: “A silence unusual and depressing settled upon all three, which lasted until the old couple rose to retire for the night.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 62) develops grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words “depressing” and “settled” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He sat alone in the darkness, gazing at the dying fire, and seeing faces in it.” (paragraph 64), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating grief as central.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 9 to the story's treatment of grief: “The new arrival also condoled with himself, so that Mrs. White said, ‘Tut, tut!’ and coughed gently as her husband entered the room, followed by a tall, burly man, beady of eye and rubicund of visage.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 9) develops grief: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words “condoled” and “followed” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “I'd like to go to India myself,’ said the old man, ‘just to look round a bit, you know.” (paragraph 15), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating grief as central.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · AP: AP-LIT.LAN] Connect this passage from paragraph 40 to the story's treatment of fate and greed: “If you don't want it, Morris,’ said the other, ‘give it to me.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 40) develops fate and greed: the fakir's spell proves that interfering with fate brings sorrow. Its words its wording carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Don't you think you might wish for four pairs of hands for me?” (paragraph 44), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating fate and greed as central.

30. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] In the line “He took the paw, and dangling it between his forefinger and thumb, suddenly threw it upon the fire.”, what does “dangling” most nearly mean?

    A. hang freely
    B. a chance happening that only looks planned
    C. a long dining-room cabinet with a flat top
    D. ring or echo with sound

    Key: A (hang freely)

Final paper

The Monkey's Paw: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how W. W. Jacobs develops fate and greed across The Monkey's Paw. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in The Monkey's Paw and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to be careful what you wish for.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in The Monkey's Paw. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether The Monkey's Paw finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of grief. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.
Organization	15

		Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: The paw shows that meddling with fate brings sorrow. The text makes this visible when it says “He wanted to show that fate ruled people's lives” (The Monkey's Paw, paragraph 25). The fakir wanted to prove "fate ruled people's lives," and Mr. White's wish "for two hundred pounds" is granted through Herbert's death. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.

Essay assignments

Essay: Fate and greed

Scaffolded support (600 words; AP: see unit standards): Supported track: write a five-paragraph essay explaining what The Monkey's Paw teaches about fate and greed. Use at least three quotations from passages your teacher selects from different parts of the book.

HS Freshman (800 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a multi-paragraph essay explaining how W. W. Jacobs develops fate and greed in The Monkey's Paw. Use evidence from the beginning, middle and end of the book.

HS Sophomore (1000 words; AP: see unit standards): Write an argumentative essay analyzing how W. W. Jacobs develops fate and greed across The Monkey's Paw. Trace the idea through at least three parts of the story and address a counterclaim.

HS Junior (1100 words; AP: see unit standards): Write an analytical essay on how the structure of The Monkey's Paw (its order, turns and ending) shapes the meaning of fate and greed. Discuss at least one place where the book leaves the question open.

HS Senior (1200 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a sustained argument comparing two interpretations of fate and greed in The Monkey's Paw. Weigh the evidence for each and defend the stronger reading in a mature, well-organized essay.

AP (1300 words; AP: AP-LIT.LAN): Write a literary argument: develop a defensible thesis about how W. W. Jacobs's choices in The Monkey's Paw (a recurring element, structure and narration) shape a complex understanding of fate and greed, weigh at least one competing reading, and sustain commentary on well-chosen evidence. Do not merely summarize.

College Freshman (1600 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a researched essay (4–6 pages) that places The Monkey's Paw's treatment of fate and greed in its historical context, using at least two scholarly sources.

College Sophomore (2200 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a contextual essay (6–8 pages) on fate and greed in The Monkey's Paw that reads the story against its genre and period and engages two published critics. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Junior (2800 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a theoretically informed essay (8–10 pages) on fate and greed in The Monkey's Paw. Name your critical method, apply it closely, and acknowledge its limits. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

College Senior (4000 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a research paper (12–15 pages) with an original argument about fate and greed in The Monkey's Paw, engaging at least four scholarly sources in Chicago style. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.

Graduate / PhD (6000 words; AP: see unit standards): Write a seminar paper (15–20 pages) that intervenes in the critical conversation on fate and greed in The Monkey's Paw, engaging the relevant scholarship and textual history. At this level students write ONE of the unit's essays (choose one theme), not all five.
