Grades: Grades 9–12 (accessible text, well suited to the scaffolded-support track; scales to graduate via rigor levels). Short story: read whole in one 90-minute lesson (assign longer stories as pre-reading). The scaffolded-support track works from the full text with scaffolds. Weeks: 1. Class days: 2 × 90 minutes (1 chapter lessons plus seminar, test and essay days).

Essential questions

- What does Rip Van Winkle suggest about change and time?
- What does Rip Van Winkle suggest about the American Revolution?
- What does Rip Van Winkle suggest about escape from responsibility?

Objectives

- Students will cite at least 2 quotations, with locations, to support each written claim about what the text says explicitly and implicitly (scored on the writing-prompt rubric).
- Students will trace one theme across at least 3 sections of the story in the final paper, earning at least 70 of 100 rubric points.
- Students will explain how characters, setting and point of view interact in at least 3 exit tickets, each meeting the claim-evidence-reasoning criteria.
- Students will determine the in-context meaning of taught vocabulary, scoring at least 80% on the vocabulary items of the story quizzes.
- Students will write an argument with a clear claim, reasons and relevant evidence, scoring at least 80% on the unit test's short-answer scoring guides.

Author biography

Washington Irving was born in New York City on 3 April 1783, the youngest of eleven children of a merchant family, and named after George Washington. He won fame with a comic History of New York (1809) by "Diedrich Knickerbocker" and lived in England from 1815, where he published The Sketch Book of Geoffrey Crayon, Gent. (1819–20), containing "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." He was among the first American writers admired in Europe; he later served as U.S. minister to Spain and died at Sunnyside, his home in Tarrytown, New York, on 28 November 1859.

Historical and cultural context

Set in a Dutch village in New York's Catskill Mountains before and after the American Revolution. Irving wrote it in England in 1818–19, drawing on German folk tales (one about a goatherd named Peter Klaus). Rip sleeps through the Revolution and wakes to a republic.

Publication and reception, then and now

Published in The Sketch Book of Geoffrey Crayon, Gent., first American part, 1819, under Irving's pseudonym.

Then: A transatlantic success; The Sketch Book made Irving the first American writer with an international reputation.

Now: A foundational American story; "Rip Van Winkle" has become a byword for someone out of touch with change.

Overview (spoiler-free)

Rip, a good-natured, idle villager henpecked by his wife, wanders into the mountains, drinks with a strange company of old Dutchmen playing ninepins, and falls asleep.

Main themes

- change and continuity.
- escape from responsibility.
- American identity.

Why it matters

It asks what changes in a revolution and what stays the same.

Spoilers · teacher only

He wakes twenty years later; his wife is dead, the Revolution has happened, and King George's picture on the inn sign has become George Washington's. He settles in as a village storyteller.

Content note (mild drinking (alcohol), a scolding wife played for comedy, a passing mention of possible suicide, a period ethnic slur for an indigenous woman): Sensitive content: Mild drinking (alcohol); a scolding wife played for comedy; a passing mention of possible suicide; a period ethnic slur for an Indigenous woman. Preview the story, tell students in advance, and allow a pass on reading aloud. Keep discussion on how the writer uses these elements, not on graphic detail. The text quotes racial slurs in period dialogue: decide in advance that no one reads them aloud, and name why the author records them.
Student preview: Heads-up: this story includes mild drinking (alcohol); a scolding wife played for comedy; a passing mention of possible suicide; a period ethnic slur for an Indigenous woman. Support is available if this is hard to read.
Suggested language: "Why does the writer include this, and what does it make us notice?"
Safe messaging: Discuss the character's despair and what the text does with it; do not dwell on methods. Before the lesson, remind students that support is available and how to reach the counselor. Check in privately with any student who seems affected and follow your school's referral protocol. Share with students: If you or someone you know is struggling or thinking about suicide, call or text 988 (Suicide & Crisis Lifeline, U.S.) or talk with a school counselor today. Let a counselor know in advance that this story is being taught.

Teacher only · spoilers

Good-natured, idle Rip Van Winkle wanders into the Catskill Mountains to escape his scolding wife, meets strange men in old Dutch dress playing ninepins, drinks their liquor, and falls asleep. He wakes twenty years later, bearded and stiff. In the village, King George's portrait has become George Washington, his wife is dead, and the Revolution has happened. He settles into old age telling his story.

Background: Published in 1819 in The Sketch Book under the persona 'Geoffrey Crayon' and the fictional historian Diedrich Knickerbocker; Irving adapted a German folktale.

Significance: One of the first American short stories to become a national myth.

First, meaning. I read "petticoat government" slowly and put it in my own words: Rip, back from his long sleep, rejoices that his wife is dead and he is no longer ruled at home. Next, craft. I notice the joking mix of words: "government," a political term, applied to a marriage. The strongest word is "petticoat": a petticoat is a woman's underskirt, so the phrase mocks rule by a wife. Then, effect. Why is Rip glad to be free from "petticoat government"? My answer: Rip is glad to be free from "petticoat government" because his wife has died; he slept through a revolution, but the only tyranny he cares about escaping was hers, a joke showing he has not changed.

10. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Fill in the blank with the vocabulary word that fits: “Passing through the ravine, they came to a hollow, like a small amphitheatre, surrounded by perpendicular _____, over the brinks of which impending trees shot their branches, so that you only caught glimpses of the azure sky, and the bright evening cloud." Word bank: dismembered, vexations, precipices, conciliating

Key: precipices

11. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? "petticoat government" (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: Rip's escape. The evidence is "petticoat government" (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74). This develops change and continuity: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington.

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 39 reveal about the character or situation? "The rocks presented a high impenetrable wall, over which the torrent came tumbling in a sheet of feathery foam, and fell into a broad deep basin, black from the shadows of the surrounding forest." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 39) shows the situation turning on change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words "impenetrable" and "surrounding" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 12 reveal about the character or situation? "Whenever, therefore, he happened upon a genuine Dutch family, snugly shut up in its low-roofed farm-house, under a spreading sycamore, he looked upon it as a little clasped volume of black-letter, and studied it with the zeal of a bookworm." Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 12) shows the situation turning on change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words "spreading" and "therefore" are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze the word choice in "the whole twenty years had been to him but as one night" (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 70). Pick two words and explain what they suggest.

    Sample answer: The sleep. The evidence is "the whole twenty years had been to him but as one night" (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 70). This develops change and continuity: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words "twenty" and "whole" carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect.

15. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 24 shapes its tone: "Times grew worse and worse with Rip Van Winkle as years of matrimony rolled on; a tart temper never mellows with age, and a sharp tongue is the only edged tool that grows keener with constant use." Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words "matrimony" and "constant" (paragraph 24) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

16. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of "I'm not myself--I'm somebody else" (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 59) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: Identity crisis. The evidence is "I'm not myself--I'm somebody else" (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 59). This develops change and continuity: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words "somebody" and "myself" carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. Rip, still free of "petticoat government," wonders "I'm not myself--I'm somebody else," yet he soon settles back exactly as before.

17. [fill · recall · DOK 1] Complete the quotation from paragraph 12: "The following Tale was found among the papers of the late Diedrich Knickerbocker, an old gentleman of New York, who was very curious in the Dutch History of the province and the manners of the _____ from its primitive settlers." Word bank:

personages, character, overpowered, descendants

Key: descendants

18. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 19? “He would carry a fowling-piece on his shoulder, for hours together, trudging through woods and swamps, and up hill and down dale, to shoot a few _____ or wild pigeons.”

    A. sympathized

    B. overlook

    C. whistled

    D. squirrels

    Key: D (squirrels)

19. [short · inference · DOK 2] What can you infer from this line? “I'm not myself--I'm somebody else” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 59) Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: Identity crisis. The evidence is “I'm not myself--I'm somebody else” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 59). This develops change and continuity: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington.

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 45 shapes its tone: “There was, as usual, a crowd of folk about the door, but none that Rip recollected.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “recollected” (paragraph 45) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 41 shapes its tone: “His mind now misgave him; he began to doubt whether both he and the world around him were not bewitched.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “bewitched” and “whether” (paragraph 41) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

22. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 33 to the story's treatment of change and time: “Nothing interrupted the stillness of the scene but the noise of the balls, which, whenever they were rolled, echoed along the mountains like rumbling peals of thunder.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 33) develops change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “interrupted” and “mountains” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He even ventured, when no eye was fixed upon him, to taste the beverage which he found had much of the flavor of…” (paragraph 35), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating change and time as central.

23. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Which word completes this sentence from paragraph 28? “From an opening between the trees, he could _____ all the lower country for many a mile of rich woodland.”

    A. personages

    B. descendants

    C. overlook

    D. incessantly

    Key: C (overlook)

24. [mc · recall · DOK 1] What has replaced King George on the inn's sign?

    A. George Washington

    B. Rip himself

    C. A ship

    D. A bear

    Key: A (George Washington)

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 20 shapes its tone: “In fact, he declared it was of no use to work on his farm; it was the most pestilent little piece of ground in the whole country; everything about it went wrong, in spite of him.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “everything” and “pestilent” (paragraph 20) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 30 to the story's treatment of change and time: “As he was about to descend, he heard a voice from a distance hallooing: ‘Rip Van Winkle!” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 30) develops change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “hallooing” and “distance” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Rip now felt a vague apprehension stealing over him; he looked anxiously in the same direction, and perceived a strange…” (paragraph 30), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating change and time as central.

27. [mc · recall · DOK 1] Who is the 'Rip Van Winkle' leaning against a tree?

    A. Rip's grown son

    B. Rip's grandson

    C. A ghost

    D. A stranger

    Key: A (Rip's grown son)

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 56 to the story's treatment of change and time: “Every answer puzzled him too, by treating of such enormous lapses of time, and of matters which he could not understand: war--Congress-Stony-Point;--he had no courage to ask after any more friends, but cried out in despair, ‘Does nobody…” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 56) develops change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “understand” and “enormous” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “At this critical moment a fresh, comely woman pressed through the throng to get a peep at the gray-bearded man.” (paragraph 60), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating change and time as central.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Close reading: how do the diction and syntax of “petticoat government” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74) shape its meaning? Consider a second, competing reading.

    Sample answer: Rip's escape. The evidence is “petticoat government” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74). This develops change and continuity: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words “government” and “petticoat” carry that meaning: they are the charged choices in the line, and changing either would soften the effect. Rip, still free of "petticoat government," wonders "I'm not myself--I'm somebody else," yet he soon settles back exactly as before.

30. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Synthesis: trace how change and continuity develops from the opening of “Rip Van Winkle” to its ending. Use one quotation from each part.

    Sample answer: Near the start, “petticoat government” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74) — Rip's escape. Later, “the whole twenty years had been to him but as one night” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 70) — The sleep. The inn sign changes from King George to General Washington.

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 71 to the story's treatment of change and time: “Peter was the most ancient inhabitant of the village, and well versed in all the wonderful events and traditions of the neighborhood.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 71) develops change and time: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “neighborhood” and “traditions” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “To make a long story short, the company broke up, and returned to the more important concerns of the election.” (paragraph 72), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating change and time as central.

32. [mc · analysis · DOK 3 · Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.5] Which literary element does this describe in “Rip Van Winkle”? The village politics after the Revolution are as noisy and empty as before.

    A. Metaphor

    B. Satire

    C. Symbolism

    D. Irony

    Key: B (Satire)

33. [short · analysis · DOK 3 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Claim: Irving suggests the Revolution changed the surface more than the people. Explain how this evidence supports the claim: “petticoat government” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74).

    Sample answer: Rip, still free of "petticoat government," wonders "I'm not myself--I'm somebody else," yet he soon settles back exactly as before. The evidence is “petticoat government” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74) — Rip's escape. This develops change and continuity: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington.

Writing prompts (eleven rigor levels)

Scaffolded support (250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Supported track (work from the passage your teacher selects). In “Rip Van Winkle,” how does Irving show waking into a changed nation? Write a paragraph that states your claim, quotes two details from the passage, and explains how each detail supports your idea. Use the setting you noticed as one piece of evidence.

HS Freshman (350 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): In Rip Van Winkle, how does Irving develop the idea of waking into a changed nation? State a clear claim, support it with two or three quotations, and explain how the setting in the story helps build that idea.

HS Sophomore (450 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how Rip Van Winkle develops the idea of waking into a changed nation. Make a precise claim, support it with at least three pieces of textual evidence, and explain how the author's use of setting and irony shapes that idea. Address one possible counterclaim.

HS Junior (550 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Analyze how the structure of Rip Van Winkle (where it begins, turns and ends) and its setting shape the reader's understanding of waking into a changed nation. Identify one place where the text leaves matters uncertain and explain how that uncertainty adds to its meaning.

HS Senior (600 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Two readers disagree about what Rip Van Winkle suggests about waking into a changed nation. Lay out two plausible interpretations, weigh the evidence for each (including the story's setting and irony), and argue for the stronger one in a sustained, well-organized essay.

AP (650 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Write a literary argument in which you analyze how Washington Irving uses setting in Rip Van Winkle to complicate the reader's understanding of waking into a changed nation. Develop a defensible thesis, select evidence purposefully, and explain how specific choices of diction and syntax create meaning.

College Freshman (1000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): ICC-WC-1.3, ICC-WC-1.5, ICC-WC-1.1): Situate Rip Van Winkle within its historical and literary context and argue how the story's treatment of waking into a changed nation responds to that context. Engage with at least one secondary perspective (a critic, historian or the author's own statements), integrate quotations smoothly, and cite in MLA style.

College Sophomore (1250 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Read Rip Van Winkle alongside the conventions of its genre and period. Argue how the story's handling of waking into a changed nation follows or bends those conventions, using the setting as evidence, and test your reading against one published critic. Document two secondary sources in MLA.

College Junior (1500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Apply a named critical approach (for example formalist, historicist, feminist, psychoanalytic or ecocritical) to Rip Van Winkle and its treatment of waking into a changed nation. State your method, show what it reveals in the story's setting and irony, and identify where the text resists it.

College Senior (2000 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop a research argument that reads Rip Van Winkle as evidence for a larger claim about waking into a changed nation in Rip Van Winkle. Connect close reading of the story to the whole story, engage at least four scholarly sources, and state precisely where your reading departs from theirs (Chicago style).

Graduate / PhD (2500 words; Dual Credit (Indiana College Core): see unit standards): Develop an original argument that reads Rip Van Winkle as a hinge in the story's larger treatment of waking into a changed nation. Position your reading within a named critical conversation (for example formalist, historicist, psychoanalytic, feminist or postcolonial approaches), account for the textual history where relevant, and articulate the stakes of your intervention for scholarship on Rip Van Winkle.

SAT-style questions

1. In old times, say the Indian traditions, there was a kind of Manitou or Spirit, who kept about the wildest recesses of the Catskill mountains, and took a mischievous pleasure in wreaking all kind of evils and vexations upon the red men.

   As used in the text, what does the word “vexations” most nearly mean?

   A. an event that happens

   B. natures; dispositions

   C. a very steep cliff

   D. annoyances; worries

2. On waking, he found himself on the green knoll whence he had first seen the old man of the glen. He rubbed his eyes--it was a bright sunny morning. The birds were hopping and twittering among the bushes, and the eagle was wheeling aloft, and breasting the pure mountain breeze. "Surely," thought Rip, "I have not slept here all night." He recalled the occurrences before he fell asleep. The strange man with the keg of liquor--the mountain ravine--the wild retreat among the rocks--the woe-begone party at ninepins--the flagon--"Oh! that flagon! that wicked flagon!" thought Rip--"what excuse shall I make to Dame Van Winkle?"

   Which choice best states a central concern of “Rip Van Winkle”?

   A. Racial pride destroying love

   B. Waking into a changed nation

   C. Accepting one's place in nature's cycle

   D. Greed that grasps more than a person needs

SAT key: 1. D (annoyances; worries); 2. B (Waking into a changed nation)

Short-answer scoring guides

Scaffolded support and HS Freshman (2 points): correct answer in a complete sentence with a detail from the text. HS Sophomore to HS Senior (3 points): claim, one accurate quotation, one sentence of explanation. AP to College Sophomore (4 points): precise claim, two embedded quotations, commentary on word choice or structure, link to theme. College Junior to Graduate (5 points): nuanced thesis, close reading of two passages, synthesis across sections, a competing reading answered. Each item lists a sample answer; partial credit is described in the app.

    D. companions

    Key: A (incessantly)

12. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 60 reveal about the character or situation? “At this critical moment a fresh, comely woman pressed through the throng to get a peep at the gray-bearded man.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 60) shows the situation turning on the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words “critical” and “through” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

13. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 43 reveal about the character or situation? “This desolateness overcame all his connubial fears--he called loudly for his wife and children--the lonely chambers rang for a moment with his voice, and then all again was silence.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 43) shows the situation turning on escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words “desolateness” and “connubial” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

14. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 22 reveal about the character or situation? “He shrugged his shoulders, shook his head, cast up his eyes, but said nothing.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 22) shows the situation turning on escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words “shoulders” and “shrugged” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

15. [short · inference · DOK 2] What does this passage from paragraph 30 reveal about the character or situation? “Rip now felt a vague apprehension stealing over him; he looked anxiously in the same direction, and perceived a strange figure slowly toiling up the rocks, and bending under the weight of something he carried on his back.” Answer in two or three sentences with one detail.

    Sample answer: The passage (paragraph 30) shows the situation turning on the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The words “apprehension” and “anxiously” are the proof, because they show how the moment looks to the people in it. They suggest more than the narrator states outright.

16. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 35 shapes its tone: “He even ventured, when no eye was fixed upon him, to taste the beverage which he found had much of the flavor of excellent Hollands.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “excellent” and “ventured” (paragraph 35) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

17. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 28 shapes its tone: “He was after his favorite sport of squirrel-shooting, and the still solitudes had echoed and re-echoed with the reports of his gun.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “solitudes” and “shooting” (paragraph 28) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

18. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 18 to the story's treatment of escape from responsibility: “Whenever he went dodging about the village, he was surrounded by a troop of them hanging on his skirts, clambering on his back, and playing a thousand tricks on him with impunity; and not a dog would bark at him throughout the neighborhood.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 18) develops escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “neighborhood” and “throughout” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “In fact, he declared it was of no use to work on his farm; it was the most pestilent little piece of ground in the…” (paragraph 20), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating escape from responsibility as central.

19. [mc · inference · DOK 2] Which of these passages comes earliest in the story?

    A. “The children of the village, too, would shout with joy whenever he approached.”

B. “Whenever he went dodging about the village, he was surrounded by a troop of them hanging on his skirts, clambering on his back, and playing…”

C. “In fact, he declared it was of no use to work on his farm; it was the most pestilent little piece of ground in the whole country;…”

D. “He would carry a fowling-piece on his shoulder, for hours together, trudging through woods and swamps, and up hill and down dale, to shoot…”

Key: A (“The children of the village, too, would shout with joy whenever he approached.”)

20. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 40 shapes its tone: “As he approached the village, he met a number of people, but none whom he knew, which somewhat surprised him, for he had thought himself acquainted with every one in the country round.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “approached” and “acquainted” (paragraph 40) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

21. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 51 shapes its tone: “There was a silence for a little while, when an old man replied, in a thin, piping voice, ‘Nicholas Vedder? why, he is dead and gone these eighteen years!” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “eighteen” and “replied” (paragraph 51) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

22. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 14 shapes its tone: “The old gentleman died shortly after the publication of his work; and now that he is dead and gone, it cannot do much harm to his memory to say that his time might have been much better employed in weightier labors.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “publication” and “gentleman” (paragraph 14) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

23. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 37 to the story's treatment of escape from responsibility: “He now suspected that the grave roysterers of the mountains had put a trick upon him, and, having dosed him with liquor, had robbed him of his gun.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 37) develops escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “roysterers” and “mountains” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “The rocks presented a high impenetrable wall, over which the torrent came tumbling in a sheet of feathery foam, and…” (paragraph 39), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating escape from responsibility as central.

24. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 32 shapes its tone: “Their visages, too, were peculiar; one had a large head, broad face, and small piggish eyes; the face of another seemed to consist entirely of nose, and was surmounted by a white sugar-loaf hat, set off with a little red cock's tail.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “surmounted” and “entirely” (paragraph 32) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

25. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 72 shapes its tone: “To make a long story short, the company broke up, and returned to the more important concerns of the election.” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “important” and “election” (paragraph 72) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

26. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 41 to the story's treatment of escape from responsibility: “A troop of strange children ran at his heels, hooting after him, and pointing at his gray beard.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 41) develops escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “pointing” and “children” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “His mind now misgave him; he began to doubt whether both he and the world around him were not bewitched.” (paragraph 41), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating escape from responsibility as central.

27. [short · analysis · DOK 3] Analyze how the word choice in this passage from paragraph 68 shapes its tone: “I am your father!’ cried he-‘Young Rip Van Winkle once-old Rip Van Winkle now--Does nobody know poor Rip Van Winkle!” Pick two words and explain their effect.

    Sample answer: The words “father” and “nobody” (paragraph 68) make the tone heavy and deliberate rather than neutral. That weight points the reader to escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. The author chooses them so the moment feels significant instead of passing.

28. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 46 to the story's treatment of the American Revolution: “The appearance of Rip, with his long, grizzled beard, his rusty fowling-piece, his uncouth dress, and the army of women and children at his heels, soon attracted the attention of the tavern politicians.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 46) develops the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “politicians” and “appearance” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “There was a silence for a little while, when an old man replied, in a thin, piping voice, ‘Nicholas Vedder? why, he is…” (paragraph 51), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the American Revolution as central.

29. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 42 to the story's treatment of the American Revolution: “He found the house gone to decay--the roof had fallen in, the windows shattered, and the doors off the hinges.” Use one other moment from the story as well.

    Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 42) develops the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “shattered” and “windows” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “This desolateness overcame all his connubial fears--he called loudly for his wife and children--the lonely chambers…” (paragraph 43), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the American Revolution as central.

30. [mc · recall · DOK 1] In the line “They are a dismembered branch of the great Appalachian family, and are seen away to the west of the river, swelling up to a noble height, and lording it over the surrounding country.”, what does “dismembered” most nearly mean?

    A. annoyances; worries

    B. friendly and trying to win good will

    C. visit again

D. separated, detached (from the main range)

Key: D (separated, detached (from the main range))

31. [short · synthesis · DOK 4] Connect this passage from paragraph 25 to the story's treatment of the American Revolution: “His adherents, however (for every great man has his adherents), perfectly understood him, and knew how to gather his opinions.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 25) develops the American Revolution: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “understood” and “adherents” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “He was after his favorite sport of squirrel-shooting, and the still solitudes had echoed and re-echoed with the reports…” (paragraph 28), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating the American Revolution as central.

32. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] In the line “In old times, say the Indian traditions, there was a kind of Manitou or Spirit, who kept about the wildest recesses of the Catskill mountains, and took a mischievous pleasure in wreaking all kind of evils and vexations…”, what does “vexations” most nearly mean?

B. visit again

C. separated, detached (from the main range)

D. friendly and trying to win good will

Key: A (annoyances; worries)

33. [short · synthesis · DOK 4 · Program outcome: LeL-C2-LIT-1] Connect this passage from paragraph 75 to the story's treatment of escape from responsibility: “He used to tell his story to every stranger that arrived at Mr. Doolittle's hotel.” Use one other moment from the story as well.
Sample answer: This passage (paragraph 75) develops escape from responsibility: the inn sign changes from King George to General Washington. Its words “stranger” and “arrived” carry that idea into this moment. The same concern returns in “Whenever, therefore, he happened upon a genuine Dutch family, snugly shut up in its low-roofed farm-house, under a…” (paragraph 12), so the two passages read as a pattern, not a single moment. Together they show the story treating escape from responsibility as central.

34. [mc · recall · DOK 1 · Program outcome: LeL-GR-LIT-1] In the line “He determined to revisit the scene of the last evening's gambol, and if he met with any of the party, to demand his dog and gun.”, what does “revisit” most nearly mean?

A. friendly and trying to win good will

Final paper

Rip Van Winkle: final paper (formal literary analysis). Choose one prompt.

1. Analyze how Washington Irving develops change and time across Rip Van Winkle. Trace the idea through at least three moments (beginning, middle and end) and argue what the ending finally suggests.
2. Choose one recurring symbol, image or motif in Rip Van Winkle and argue how its meaning changes over the story and why that change matters to the American Revolution.
3. Analyze a central character's choices in Rip Van Winkle. Argue whether the story judges that character, and how its structure or point of view shapes your answer.
4. Two readers disagree about whether Rip Van Winkle finally endorses or criticizes its society's view of escape from responsibility. Weigh both readings and argue for one, answering the strongest objection.

Length: Scaffolded support 500-700 words; HS Freshman 700-900 words; HS Sophomore 900-1,100 words; HS Junior 1,000-1,300 words; HS Senior 1,200-1,500 words; AP 1,300-1,600 words; College Freshman 1,500-2,000 words; College Sophomore 2,000-2,500 words; College Junior 2,500-3,000 words; College Senior 3,000-4,000 words; Graduate / PhD 4,000-6,000 words Evidence requirement: at least 4 quotations from at least two parts of the story. Quote the reading text exactly and cite the paragraph (MLA style). HS Senior and above: one scholarly or historical source; College Sophomore and above: two, cited in MLA.

Criterion	Points	Descriptor	Exemplary	Proficient	Developing	Beginning
Thesis	20	A specific, arguable claim that answers the prompt and organizes the paper.	Specific, arguable and precise; it organizes every section.	Clear and arguable, but broad in places.	States a topic or a summary more than an argument.	Missing, or restates the prompt.
Evidence	25	Well-chosen, accurately quoted and cited passages from across the work, meeting the evidence requirement.	Accurate, well-chosen quotations from across the work, all cited; meets the requirement.	Accurate and cited, but clustered in one part of the work.	Too few quotations, or some inaccurate or uncited.	Little or no quoted evidence.
Analysis	30	Explains how language, structure and literary elements create meaning; goes beyond summary.	Explains how specific words, structure and devices create meaning; weighs a competing reading.	Explains the evidence, with some close reading.	Mostly summary; the link to the claim is asserted, not shown.	Summary only.
Organization	15

		Logical progression, clear topic sentences and transitions; introduction and conclusion frame the argument.	Each paragraph advances the argument; transitions show logic.	Logical order with minor jumps.	Order is loose; paragraphs repeat or drift.	No discernible structure.
Style and conventions	10	Formal academic voice, present tense for literature, correct grammar and MLA format.	Formal, precise, present tense; MLA format; virtually error-free.	Formal with a few errors that do not obscure meaning.	Informal or error-prone in ways that distract.	Errors obscure meaning.

Exemplar paragraph: Irving suggests the Revolution changed the surface more than the people. The text makes this visible when it says “petticoat government” (Rip Van Winkle, paragraph 74). Rip, still free of "petticoat government," wonders "I'm not myself--I'm somebody else," yet he soon settles back exactly as before. A full paper would carry this reading through the beginning, middle and end, and answer the strongest competing reading.
